CAROLINA MOB KILLS A WOMAN MILL STRIKER

Twenty Fired Upon While in Truck.

BULLETIN.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Reports that William Dunne, secretary of the Communist party in America, and Hugo Gehler, southern organizer for the National Textile Workers' union, were missing reached persons connected with the two organizations here tonight.

Friends of the two men said that when they entered a cab and drove away three cars loaded with men followed them. They feared the men may have been kidnaped.

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—While cowering with twenty companions in a truck which had been forcibly turned around while on its way to an advertised rally of the National Textile Workers' union here this afternoon, Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, 36 year old textile worker, was shot and killed. A fusillade of shots was fired into the truck by anti-communists.

At the place designated for the union rally where a crowd estimated at 2,000, composed largely of "loyal" mill workers, was waiting for the avowed purpose of seeing to it that there should be no speaking, Judge N. A. Townsend, personal representative of Gov. Max Gardner, and 25 heavily armed special deputy sheriffs recruited from American legionnaires were on hand to prevent bloodshed.

Arrest Radical Agitators.

At the time of the shooting no speakers had arrived, but a car containing Mary Heaton Vorse, well known writer of New York; Liston Oak of New York, publicity director of the International Labor Defense; his wife, Margaret, and C. M. Grier, who was acting as Oak's chauffeur, were seized and the occupants searched. Oak and Grier were arrested on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and reckless driving, respectively. Mrs. Oak was also taken to the police station but was released.

The mob which was responsible for the killing formed near the Loray mill, where the communist leaders of the union called a strike on April 1, which has never been officially abandoned but which long since ceased to be effective.

Auto Forces a Collision.

A strict watch was kept for all persons who might be on their way to the meeting and when the truck with twenty occupants approached from Bessemer City, ten miles away, where the union has also been conducting strikes, it was turned back by force.

The truck was followed by several automobiles, and about two miles out of Gastonia one of these automobiles passed the truck and turned into its path, forcing a collision.

With the truck motionless, other automobiles arrived and as they did so their occupants fired repeatedly into the truck.

Two Others Are Injured.

Apparently Mrs. Wiggins, the mother of four children, was the only person seriously injured, but at a coroner's inquest this afternoon, which was adjourned until tomorrow, it was learned that Hobart White, a young mill worker, had a broken arm and that Mary Goldsmith, another mill worker, had a hole through her lip.

White stated he fell from the truck and was also hit by a club, while the girl would not say how her injuries were inflicted. In the mixup of automobiles at the time of the shooting, one of the autos was turned over but the occupants were not injured and the license tags of the machine were removed.

G. E. Lingerfelt, the driver of the truck, is held in jail "for investigation."

Shot At While Fleeing.

When the firing started half of those on the truck jumped and ran and the mob ran after them, shooting at them as they fled across the cotton fields. Those that held their ground were not further molested.

Solicitor John G. Carpenter, who has taken charge of the investigation tonight, ordered Sheriff Eli Lineberry to get every man of his force on the case.

"We will get this murderer if it is humanly possible," he said. "Today's tragedy is a disgrace to our county."

Today's mob was the third that has been in action against the strikers since the beginning of the conflict. Their first headquarters was destroyed by a mob on April 18 and on Monday night of this week, following a mistrial in the case of the sixteen per-

PITTED AGAINST MAC DONALD IN NAVY REDUCTION

Ability as Diplomat to Be Tested.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Once more Great Britain is maneuvering to check the expansion of the American navy which challenges British mastery of the sea.

Once more the statesmanship of the United States is being put to the test of capacity to thwart this scheme and to achieve actual equality of British and American sea power.

Will President Hoover succeed in establishing this equality where his predecessors, Harding and Coolidge, failed for want of the capacity to cope with British statecraft?

This is the question that looms larger and larger during the negotiations between Mr. Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, the British prime minister, for an Anglo-American naval understanding.

Pitfalls Ahead.

Whether Mr. Hoover succeeds or fails will depend on the extent to which he is able to induce the British to scrap their present actual preponderance of naval power in ships and naval bases over American naval power, as Britain induced us to sacrifice our preponderance of naval power over hers in 1921.

Mr. MacDonald is coming to Washington to deal directly with the President in a bold attempt to accomplish on a smaller scale what Arthur J. Balfour won for the British empire in Washington in 1921: The scrapping of American superiority in fighting ships.

The preliminary proposals of the British reveal their grand objective. It is to induce the United States to agreed to build fewer than 20 big cruisers compared with the 33 required to meet navy needs and the 23 now either under construction or authorized.

Inequality of Naval Bases.

On account of our lack of naval bases, of which Britain has a multitude scattered over the seven seas, the United States requires more big cruisers of long cruising radius than than does Britain. The British navy now has 22 big cruisers, built, building, or projected; nearly forty small cruisers, and numerous bases. The United States has 23 big cruisers, building and provided for, ten small cruisers, and few bases. To establish parity betwen the two fleets it would be necessary to allow the Americans a great preponderance over the British in big cruisers.

How willing the British are to accord us parity in reality may be judged by MacDonald's preliminary proposal, which would limit our big cruisers to 18, aggregating 180,000 tons, and allow Britain 19, aggregating 186,600 tons. In reality we should still fall short of parity if we were to have 23 big cruisers of 230,000 tons and the British 13 of 130,000 tons.

Tonnage Proposals.

On the head of small cruisers MacDonald proposad a British aggregate of 153,400 tons, bringing the grand total tonnage of all British cruisers up to 340,000, and an American limitation of 125,000 tons in the small ships, which we cannot use to advantage on account of lack of bases, bringing the total tonnage for all American cruisers up to 305,000.

Mr. Hoover was reluctant to accept so large an allowance as 340,000 tons for the British cruiser strength, but finally accepted when the British refused to make any concession from this figure. The President held out for a greater preponderance over the British in 8 inch gun ships than Mr. MacDonald was at first disposed to agree to. As a result of further interchanges the Washington government is now confident that an agreement allowing the United States at least 20 big cruisers with 8 inch guns is in sight.

Problems Before President.

Mr. Hoover's problem may be stated thus:

1. As to ships, to effect a parity of cruiser strength between America with a contemplated preponderance of 10,000 ton ships with 8 inch guns, and Britain with an existing preponderance not only in these but in 5,000 ton 6 inch gun ships.

2. As to bases, to eliminate British bases off the Atlantic coast of the

MAYFLOWER FOR SALE, BUT PURCHASER MUST NOT HAUL RUM IN IT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A guarantee that the U. S. S. Mayflower, formerly used as the president's yacht, shall never be used by purchasers for the transportation of liquor, is one of the conditions that will attend the sale of this famous craft, according to an announcement made today by authority of the secretary of the navy.

Bids for the sale of the Mayflower were invited today, returnable Oct. 31. Included in the sale will be a quantity of furnishings and equipment of the yacht. The Mayflower is in decommissioned status at Philadelphia, having been refused by President Hoover for use as a yacht and declared by the navy to be unfit for naval purposes.

Among the conditions of sale are that the yacht and its military equipment, such as guns and munitions, shall not be sold to other than an American citizen.

Autos to Pay Toll and Speed Above Railway

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A toll speedway elevated 40 feet above the rails, which will enable motorists to cover the 25 miles from Detroit to Pontiac in 30 minutes, was announced today by C. G. Bowker, general manager of the Grand Trunk Western Lines, as a feature of the $100,000,000 development project providing for electrification of the Grand Trunk between Detroit and Pontiac.

At intervals where traffic may easily be diverted, ramps will be placed along this speedway, Bowker said, and toll collected from motorists.

Four Lanes Are Planned.

The speedway, which will be surfaced with asphalt, will provide for four streams of traffic, the inner line in each direction being reserved for speeders. Slow moving vehicles will be required to keep to the outer traffic lanes.

Construction will start shortly after the first of the year and the roadway will be completed sometime in 1931, according to the official announcement.

Wire to Be Below Autos.

The proposed motor speedway will be constructed on columns carrying the overhead wires of the electric system which will be installed between the two cities.

Public garages will be built near the ramps, where passengers if they choose, can park their cars and come into Detroit on buses.

Shepherd Gets Half of Estate of McClintock

Division of what was the $1,000,000 estate of young William Nelson McClintock, over which many court battles have been waged, will be announced in a few days. This was indicated yesterday as attorneys concluded arrangements for settling the fight out of court by dividing the estate almost equally between William Darling Shepherd, acquitted of a charge of slaying his ward through the administration of typhoid germs, and a score of contesting claimants, headed by Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancée of the millionaire orphan.

Negotiations for the settlement, which have been under way since the opening of the battle, were given fresh impetus in May when Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled that the two groups of cousins who sought to set the will aside were lawful heirs. Miss Pope, who contended that she was entitled to a widow's award, had entered into an agreement regarding a division of the estate in the event that either group was successful.

Approval of Kin Reported.

Miss Pope and the ten cousins are the chief claimants of the estate. It is understood that they have already signified their acceptance of the terms of settlement, although Attorneys Preston Boyden and Orville Taylor, representing the cousins, and Attorney John H. S. Lee, representing Miss Pope, refused to confirm the report. Signatures of minor claimants are said to have been obtained during the week.

McClintock's will gave the entire estate to Shepherd, except an annuity of $8,000 to Miss Pope. The will was drawn on the youth's 21st birthday by Shepherd, who is a lawyer. The legal battle began in 1924 shortly after McClintock's death.

Shepherd was victorious in two of the three major engagements. He was acquitted of the charge of murder, but lost his attempt to probate the will. This defeat was erased, however, when an appeal in the Circuit court won the point. But the victory was of little significance, as Circuit Judge Scanlan pointed out ways to break the will. The decision was given after two years of litigation.

File Suit to Break Will.

Early in 1927 the cousins filed their suit to break the will, charging that the document was dictated by Shepherd. A few months later Miss Pope filed her suit for a widow's share in the estate. She alleged that she wanted to wed McClintock during his fatal illness because he requested it, and she believed it would aid his fight to recover. Shepherd was alleged to have circumvented the marriage by misrepresentations.

The question of settlement was aired at that time, when it was pointed out that a final decision could not be expected for ten years if the fight were carried to higher courts, and that the estate would hardly be worth struggling for at the end of such a period.

During the five years it has been in the courts the estate has dwindled into the pockets of attorneys. One estimate fixes the present value at $500,000. This made overtures for disposition out of court agreeable to the contestants.

Ten Cousins in Case.

The cousins are Luella Yokum, Minnie Kerstens, William J. Eaton, Ira P. Eaton, Charles E. Eaton, Archie Eaton, Viola Eaton, and Maude Walker, all of Ottumwa, Ia., and Bertram and William Eaton of California.

The terms of the settlement are to be announced by Attorney W. A. Keplinger, of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, representing Shepherd. Mr. Keplinger has returned from Wisconsin, where he obtained signatures of more distant claimants.

FLYING NOVICE COLLIDES WITH VETERAN PILOT

Mrs. Benjamin Bird One of Victims.

Fatalities of the Air

Within a few hours yesterday afternoon a total of eighteen deaths in airplane accidents were reported. Fourteen of them in America and four in France. The record:

Four killed in air collison just north of Chicago.

Six perished in falling, burning plane near Thorold, Ontario.

Four were killed by burning army plane at Chartres, France.

Two lost their lives at Berkeley, Cal., when burning plane crashed into a house.

One young woman killed when her parachute failed to work at Wichita, Kas.

Pilot killed in unsuccessful parachute jump near Minneapolis.

Three men and a woman were killed last evening when an antiquated, unlicensed airplane collided with another plane 500 feet above Northbrook, 20 miles north of Chicago. Both machines crashed to the earth after locking wings. The four victims, two of whom were pilots and the other two passengers, were killed instantly. Their bodies were pinned in the wreckage when the motors were pushed back into the fuselages by the impact. Those killed were:

Mrs. Mildred Bird, 28 years old, wife of Benjamin L. Bird, a bond broker, living at 925 South Sheridan road, Highland Park.

Walter W. Meyer, 33 years old, 2052 Birchwood avenue, Chicago, operator of an airport at Dempster street and Waukegan road; a licensed pilot.

William Johnston Jr., 23 years old, of Deerfield, an ice man.

Charles Krohn of Chicago, an unlicensed pilot.

Mrs. Bird was a granddaughter of the late Emanuel Mandel, pioneer Chicago merchant and one of the founders of Mandel Brothers. She was flying with Meyer in a new Stearman biplane with a J5 air cooled motor, owned by her brother, Albert Louer Jr., of Roger Williams avenue, Highland Park. Her father, Albert S. Louer, is a Chicago attorney. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Bobbette, 7 years old.

One Plane a War Model.

Krohn, with Johnston as his passenger, was flying an old war time model Standard biplane with a Curtiss OX5 motor.

Meyer was flying northwest toward Sky Harbor and Krohn was heading south when the two planes met over Phingston and Walnut roads in Northbrook. Krohn's ship, according to witnesses, appeared to be having difficulty gaining altitude and was wabbling as it neared the other plane. Meyer, who was known as an experienced and capable pilot, seemed to sense the impending crash and observers thought that he tried to sideslip the other plane.

The tip of the lower right wing of Krohn's plane caught the right wing of the Stearman plane and the two ships appeared to pause momentarily in mid-air before they began turning over slowly and dropping toward the ground. The two locked wings ripped apart and both planes went into nose dives.

Four Pinned in Wreckage.

The wings were striped from the fuselages and the motors pushed back into the planes as they plunged into the ground. The two pilots and the two passengers were pinned in the wreckage when aviators and others who had watched the crash from Sky Harbor, three and a half miles away, arrived at the scene.

The Northbrook police notified Coroner Bundesen and he informed Maj. Ralph Royce, county air supervisor, and Maj. Reed Landis, who has been serving as foreman of coroner's juries investigating recent airplane accidents. Maj. Royce and Maj. Landis went to the scene with Chief Deputy Coroner Victor Klebba to start an investigation.

The condition of the planes, however, made it impossible to determine what had caused the accident and whether there was any defect in the planes or in their motors. Maj. Royce, working on his first case since his appointment as air supervisor, was able to determine that Meyer had shut off his ignition to prevent a fire, but he could not learn whether Krohn had taken the same precaution.

The plane which Meyer was flying was bought only a short time ago by Louer, who was taking lessons in flying under the pilot, and was kept at Meyer's airport. Yesterday afternoon Louer with his sister, Mrs. Bird, her husband, and R. F. Lock of Winnetka, Bird's attorney, had gone to Sky Harbor and had telephoned Meyer to bring the plane there to take Capt. J. W. Schroeder of Oak Park to the Maywood flying field.

Mrs. Bird made the trip with Meyer and Capt. Schroeder from Sky Harbor to Maywood. It was on the return flight that the accident happened while Louer and Bird watched from the airport.

Meyer Former Army Pilot.

Meyer was known as one of the best pilots on the north shore. He served as an army pilot with the rank of lieutenant during the war and was one of the instructors at Kelly field. He was one of the oldest pilots in point of flying hours in the state, having had more than 7,000 hours in the air.

He held a license as a transport pilot. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Laura Meyer, and two sons, Walter W. Jr. and Richard.

Krohn was unlicensed as a pilot and had only about 30 hours solo experience, according to Deputy Coroner Klebba. His antiquated plane had been kept in an open field on Dundee road about a mile west of Waukegan road and had twice been reported to the department of commerce by Chief of Police Lee of Northbrook. Mr. Klebba said Krohn had been characterized by other flyers as a dare-devil who frequently flew at a low altitude. Last Sunday, according to Mr. Klebba, he barely missed a chimney on a house in Northbrook.

Flies Passengers for Fee.

According to flyers, Krohn had been taking passengers up for rides for a small fee but had not taken Johnson as a paid fare. The pilot picked up Johnson at his landing field when he took off there a few minutes before the accident, after having let another friend out of the plane, the investigators were told.

Johnson, who was unmarried, lived with his parents on Fair Oaks avenue, in Deerfield. He had been operating a small ice company, known as the Deerfield Ice company. Besides his parents, he is survived by three brothers.

After removing the bodies from the wreckage, Mr. Klebba announced that the inquest will be opened tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

SIX DIE AS PLANE FALLS

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Four men and a woman and child were killed early tonight after a monoplane belonging to Skyway, Ltd., of Toronto, Ont., crashed in a field between Merriton and Thorold, Ont.

The plane caught fire after the crash and its occupants were burned.

A list of the dead, given out at a St. Catharines undertaking room tonight, follows:

Frank M. Bradfield, Toronto, the pilot.
James McDonald, St. Catharines, Ont.
John Bond, St. Catharines.
Allan Bond, nine years old.
Mrs. Walter Bennett, Hamilton, Ont.
Louis Bennett, St. Catharines Heights.

Plane Hits House; Two Killed.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Two men were killed late today when the airplane in which they were flying fell into a tail spin, took fire in the air, and crashed into the residence of C. E. Gillman in Berkeley.

The pilot was believed to be Robert A. Widman, a student aviator of San Francisco, who had rented an airplane at Oakland airport belongong to Maj. Livingston Irving, well known flyer. The passenger was identified as Thomas R. Hutton of Los Angeles, a student at the University of California.

Observers said the pilot was attempting a loop at low altitude when the plane fell. Gillman's residence and a neighboring house were set afire in the crash.

Girl Dies Making First Jump.

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Helen Williams, 18 years old, of Thomas, Okla., making her first parachute leap, was killed when she fell 2,000 feet from the plane of Elinor Smith, holder of the women's solo endurance record, at the Braley flying school field here. The girl's chute failed to open. She had come to the field late today and asked that she be allowed to jump from the plane, which is here with the safety demonstration crew of an air chute company.

Her relatives said she had been in a plane only twice before. When Braley officials consented to allow the jump Miss Williams went aloft with Miss Smith and Jean Herrick, an employe of the school, who was to follow Miss Williams to the ground.

To the thousands of onlookers it seemed as if Miss Williams' legs became entangled in the shroud lines of the chute, which twisted behind her like a grotesque corkscrew as she fell.

Plane Runs Wild; Pilot Dies.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Melvin Clark of St. Paul was killed near Wold-Chamberlain flying field late today when he lost control of his plane and attempted a parachute jump. Witnesses told Coroner Gilbert Boashore that Clark was flying at a great height, probably 5,000 feet, when his plane went into a tail spin.

12 Escape Injury in Crash.

McCook, Neb., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Twelve passengers in a tri-motored plane escaped injury this afternoon when it made a forced landing in a rough field near here. The plane, The Queen of the Rockies, had brought a delegation of Denver business men here for an air show. Capt. Beavis was at the controls.

Four Killed in France.

CHARTRES, France, Sept. 14.—(AP)—An army airplane from the base here burst into flames today on a training flight and crashed to the ground. Its four occupants were killed.

Sinclair Lewis Suggested for Nobel Prize in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—The names of Sinclair Lewis, American; Maxim Gorky, Russian; John Galsworthy, and G. K. Chesterton, British, were among those suggested by the Stockholm press today as candidates for the 1929 Nobel prize for literature. The newspaper Dagens Nyheter said that Erich Maria Remarque, author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," was forbidden by the rules of the Nobel endowment to receive the Nobel Peace prize.

DEPICT PROGRESS ON MODEL PENAL FARM FOR WOMEN

Thirty-seven women representing as many state and city women's and civic organizations met yesterday afternoon at the Chicago Women's club to review progress on the work being done on the twelve cottages to compose the new Illinois Women's reformatory at Dwight. Through Gov. Emmerson these organizations were instrumental in launching the project last year. At present construction on eight of the dozen cottages has been started.

A description of these cottages, each to have a matron and not more than thirteen women and which make up a unit expected to be a model for women's reformatories for the entire country, was given by Rodney Brandon of Batavia, head of the state welfare department. With the exception of a farm superintendent and a mechanic, the entire farm is to be handled by women, he declared.

"We shall have a problem, of course, to determine what occupations to provide," he said further. "We want the women to go out from this institution equipped to make their own living. We have decided to start out with domestic occupations, such as washing and sewing, and later, after discovering vocational aptitudes, to enlarge our program."

Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, chairman of Gov. Emmerson's committee, was present, as were two other members, Mrs. William E. Lewis, 1724 East 56th street, and Mrs. John Chadwick of Tuscola. Among others at the meeting were Mrs. Murray Nelson, president of the Women's City club; Mrs. C. L. Silvers of Rock Island, assistant director of public welfare; Mrs. Agnes S. McCartney of the new state board of pardons and paroles; Mrs. Herbert Newfield; Miss Agnes Nestor; and Miss Lew Dailey.

POLISH PARTIES WAR ON BUDGET; DEFY DICTATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Sept. 14.—After years of bitter political controversy which hindered legislation, caused the downfall of many cabinets and finally resulted in Marshal Joseph Pilsudski using troops to establish his dictatorship, the seven political parties of Poland have finally reached an agreement. They unanimously decided to reject the marshal's invitation to attend a conference on Monday to discuss the new budget because of the meager estimates he offered. Instead they are demanding that the government call an extraordinary session of parliament immediately, when they will tender their resignations.

This action has proved to be a surprise to political circles, which interpret the refusal to discuss the budget a declaration of war against Marshal Pilsudski, who had refused to permit a new session of parliament.

According to his supporters, the question of changing the constitution and giving more power to the president is considered even more important than the budget by the dictator, who still hopes to obtain a parliament which will agree without compelling him to make changes by decree.

PUBLIC WARNED TO FOLLOW AIR SAFETY RULES

Royce, Landis Ask Reports on Plane Violations.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Maj. Ralph Royce, Cook county's new air supervisor, and Maj. Reed Landis, aviation adviser to the county commissioners, issued a flying guide for laymen yesterday. Observation by the public of general flying rules, they said, would greatly help the county in its war on wild flying and "haywire" airplanes.

"Be extremely careful of the airplane in which flying is to be done, and its pilot," Maj. Royce and Maj. Landis cautioned. "Examine the licenses of the plane and pilot. The plane has certain large numbers awarded by the department of commerce which are marked on the tail surfaces. If these numbers are preceded by the letter 'C' or the letters 'NC' they are department of commerce licenses. In that case there should be displayed prominently in the airplane the actual signed license card. Inspect the date on that card to ascertain if the license is still in effect. If the license has lapsed, refuse to ride in that plane and report the matter to the nearest officer.

Urged to See Licenses.

"Ask to see the pilot's license. These licenses contain the proper authority for piloting aircraft, and in addition the picture of the pilot, his description and the date of expiration. If the license is not in proper order, refuse to ride with that pilot and report him to the nearest law officer.

"Pilots are rated as: private pilots [including students], industrial pilots, limited commercial pilots, and transport pilots. Only the latter two classes are authorized to carry passengers for hire, and the former of the two only in the area covered by his license. Only transport pilots are authorized to instruct student pilots. Too much stress cannot be laid on the duty that is incumbent on the air traveling laymen to see that both plane and pilot are properly licensed, as in carrying out this duty he makes for his own safety and welfare, as well as for that of his family and friends, and also may save a great deal of property damage.

Rules to Protect Public.

"Pilots are required to follow certain of these rules while in the air and certain of these rules are designed purely to protect the public. With the increasing number of airplanes and the increasing amount of air traffic, the noise over the various communities will increase; in fact, complaints of various kinds already have been received by the law officers in Cook county.

"In order that these officers may properly carry out their duties, it is essential they know the following details: 1. The number of the plane. [This is marked in large numbers on the lower left wing and the upper right wing.] 2. The exact time and place that any offense takes place. The time is important, as all pilots are required to keep exact records of time of all takeoffs and landings.

Regulations for Pilots.

"Federal regulations, which have been adopted as state law, are explicit as regards pilots in flight. They are:

"1. Over congested cities and towns planes must be at an altitude from which a reasonably safe emergency landing can be made and in no case less than 1,000 feet.

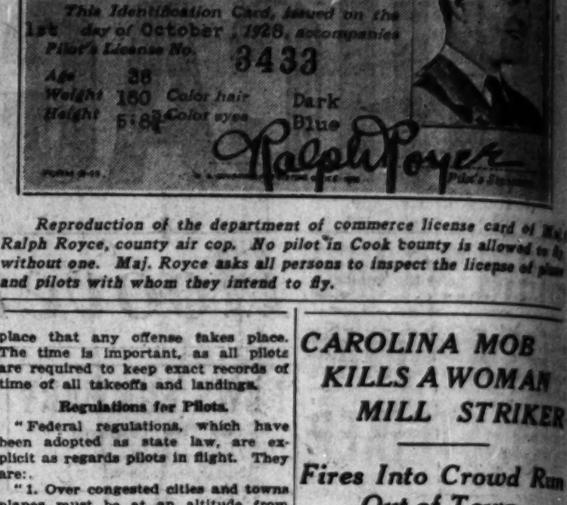
"2. Elsewhere they must fly at an altitude greater than 500 feet.

"3. They must fly above 1,000 feet over an assemblage of persons.

"4. No acrobatics over any congested area or assemblage of persons and none at an altitude less than 2,000 feet over airports or within a horizontal distance of 1,000 feet. Acrobatics always must be concluded at an altitude of 1,500 feet and never indulged in when carrying passengers for hire.

"5. No object shall be dropped from aircraft."

Proper License for Plane Pilot



Reproduction of the department of commerce license card of Maj. Ralph Royce, county air cop. No pilot in Cook county is allowed to fly without one. Maj. Royce asks all persons to inspect the license of plane and pilots with whom they intend to fly.

The congress was told the number of blind people in the world is over seven millions.

Two Hearings Go On.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The inquiry here into the Gastonia communist mob by Judge Thomas J. Shaw was recessed for the week-end after the defense had begun its efforts to disprove statements by state witnesses as to the identity of mob members.

The eight communists and union members arrested here Thursday night and charged with attempting to overthrow the government by dissemination of communist doctrines, were released on $1,000 bond after Judge R. McA. Currie, city recorder, had continued the case against them.

Solicitor John G. Carpenter and Maj. A. L. Bulwinkle, former congressman, were called to the witness stand in Judge Shaw's court to deny the statement of C. D. Saylor, one of the three men kidnaped from the Gastonia rooming house, that he had seen them in the crowd that gathered outside the house Monday night.

Saylor, Ben Wells and C. M. Lee were taken forty miles away when Wells was beaten.

ALLIES BEGIN TO QUIT RHINELAND; BRITISH GO FIRST

End of 11 Years' Occupation Start of Young Plan

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 14.—Six thousand seven hundred and sixty soldiers and officers of the British army of occupation started evacuation of the Rhineland today. Only a small group of "billeting details" of the British regiments, the Leicesters and the Dorsets, marched out of the British headquarters at Wiesbaden, but it was a day of international importance to Europe because it marked the first practical step toward the fulfillment of the Young plan. Germany also hailed the day because it was the beginning of the liberation of the Rhineland which has been occupied by the allies for nearly 11 years.

On Monday the pretty Koenigstein Taunus girls will wave good-by to the Britishers. The bulk of the regiments which were quartered in the former kaiser's palace at Wiesbaden, will leave on Sept. 23 to move down the Rhine and across Belgium to return to their island homes.

Hold Farewell Parade.

Gen. William Thwaites, British commander-in-chief of the Rhineland forces today took official farewell in a parade of the British garrison at Koenigstein. The German authorities issued instructions to the population to strictly refrain from any demonstration so, although a large crowd assembled, they witnessed the parade in complete silence.

On Oct. 1 Biebrich on the Rhine will be evacuated when the 19th brigade of artillery leaves. On Oct. 24 the hussars will ride out of Wiesbaden, and by Dec. 13 the last Britisher will have left German soil.

But there is no rejoicing in Wiesbaden. The Germans have heard that the Interallied commission intends to move from Coblenz to charming Wiesbaden, and they are afraid of it. They are remembering the thoroughly unhappy days of the French occupation.

Sad faces dominate among the British, too, especially among the Benedicks, but saddest of all are the wives of the British soldiers and officers. For the last ten years the Rhineland has been the British Tommy's seventh heaven. There was no grabbing friendship with the population, but, "We got along jolly decent-like, don't you know," one sad-eyed Tommy confided.

Officers Will Miss Pomp.

The same honors which in the old days were paid to the former kaiser have been bestowed upon the British generals. Whenever a British chief appeared there the band would strike up "God Save the King." Now officers are going back to regular drill, to become again one of the many.

The wives of the petty officers went as lavishly for servants, which are easy to obtain here. Food, which is expensive in Germany, came in through British canteens at wholesale prices and made it easy for them to pay and feed a host of hired help.

The hardest problem of all is that of the pets from which the British soldiers must be separated for six months while the animals go through quarantine. At first the outlook for the canine friends of the soldiers was sinister, with the lethal chamber in the background for quarantine costs, $40 per dog, and only a few of the men could afford it.

The British government, however, finally relented and agreed to advance $160, forcing the dog owners to pay only $40. The dog bill will be charged to Germany as part of the cost of evacuation.

The Royal Welsh Fusiliers are the saddest of all groups at the idea of leaving the Rhineland. Their mascot, a splendid white goat which steps out in front of the regiment in every parade, will also be forced to undergo quarantine.

Sacred Goat Tickles Germans.

The mascot is so highly regarded by the regiment that a special man is detailed for its care, and it is decorated with solid silver ornaments presented by the king. The capers of the sacred Welsh goat in front of the regiment have given even the most solemn German burgher a soul satisfying laugh.

An entire army of German second hand dealers have swooped down upon Wiesbaden to buy up grand pianos, automobiles, and other luxuries that the British cannot afford to take home. Especially the "civilian clerks of acting military rank" are selling this property they accumulated in frenzied hurry. They managed to get seats through pull, and now the government gives them $20 traveling allowance with dismissal.

SLAYER OF TEXAS PROSECUTOR IS HUNTED BY POSSE

Borger, Tex., Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—A large posse today sought the slayer of John A. Halmes, 37, district attorney, who was shot to death last night as he entered his home.

Hidden at the corner of a vacant house only a short distance away, the unknown assailant fired three shots as Halmes turned from the garage to enter his home. Neighbors saw the man flee down an alley. Halmes' wife and her mother were at the door of the home when the shots were fired.

Suspicious characters were rounded up during the night but no charges have been filed against any one. Two Texas rangers were en route to assist local officers.

Had he lived Halmes would have been the prosecutor in October of Whitney and Hugh Walker and Ed Hatter, accused of killing two Borger police officers. Whitney Walker escaped during his first trial and was recaptured in New York.

LAKE YIELDS WRECKAGE OF ANDASTE—CHICAGO MOTHER MOURNS

LAKE GIVES UP BODY OF ONE OF ANDASTE'S DEAD

More Wreckage Floats to Michigan Shore.

Lake Michigan yesterday yielded up the body of one of the crew of 25 men who were drowned last Monday when the gravel freighter Andaste was swallowed up in the waves of a storm. The body was identified as that of Ralph Wiley of Benton Harbor, Mich., second engineer of the ship. A former member of the crew, John Van Inginem of Holland, Mich., made the identification.

The body, buoyed up by two life preservers, was washed ashore at Castle Park, seven miles south of Holland. Coast guardsmen kept watch for more bodies but expressed doubt that many members of the crew had had time to don life belts.

Early yesterday morning wreckage from the ship began to be thrown up on the sands of the shore south of Holland. Pieces of two life boats, timbers, stanchions and a hatch cover with the name of the Andaste lettered upon it were found. Spars and a flight of steps which had led up to the pilot house of the ship were also discovered.

Fixes Scene of Tragedy.

Basing his judgment upon the movement of the waves and the direction of the wind, Capt. Samuel Toft of the United States coast guard estimated that the sea tragedy took place about 25 miles southwest of Holland at a place in the lake where the water is 240 feet deep.

The story of the freighter's battle with the waves will probably never be learned, Capt. Toft said. Capt. Albert Anderson of the Andaste may have had time to put into a log some of the details of the disaster, but it seems almost certain that that document will never be found.

"The great depth of the water at the place where the ship probably went down makes it improbable that many of the bodies will be recovered," Capt. Toft said.

The crew were probably penned in their quarters below deck, according to sailors who had formerly sailed on the ship. The "pig-backed" freighter, as the coast guardsmen referred to her, was known to roll so much in rough weather that only the captain, mate, and wheelman would stay on deck, in the pilot house.

Thus, with 1,900 tons of gravel aboard, the old boat [it was constructed in 1892] probably rolled over too far under the battering of the combers, Capt. Toft said, and went to the bottom like a lump of lead.

Coroner to Conduct Inquiry.

Coroner John Van Inghen of Holland declared that an inquest will be held over the body of Wiley tomorrow. The coroner served last spring on board the Andaste as a seaman.

"An investigation may show a faulty condition of the ship," he declared. "I remember last spring when the tug Liberty was in distress and we tried to lower the life boats from the Andaste, the davits were so rusty that the boats could not be lowered."

The Andaste was last inspected at Grand Haven on April 23, according to the official inspector's report, and found to be in good condition at that time. Roy Brinkman, superintendent of the Construction Materials company, which leased the Andaste, said that the ship had been constantly kept in good order and was seaworthy when she set out on her final trip.

Schoolboy One of Dead.

The father of Earl Zitlow, 15 year old schoolboy, of Grand Haven, who was a member of the lost crew, said yesterday that he had resisted for a year the entreaties of the boy to be allowed to ship as a seaman in order to taste adventure on the lake. He finally relented, the father said, and allowed the boy to go. His first trip was the last one the Andaste made.

The wreck left Mrs. C. J. Kibbey, 37 years old, of Benton Harbor, Mich., husbandless and fatherless. Her husband was chief engineer of the Andaste and her father, James Bayles, also of Benton Harbor, was one of the crew.

MOTHER OF ANDASTE VICTIM TELLS OF DEATH PREMONITION

Two old superstitions foretold the tragedy of the steamer Andaste's sinking for Mrs. Pauline Whitaker, mother of Harold J. Whitaker of Oak Park, quartermaster aboard the ship. Mrs. Whitaker, with whom her son lived at 906 North Harlem avenue, Oak Park, said yesterday that when Whitaker left home three weeks ago she had a premonition that he would not return and that shortly after his departure the clock in the house stopped and a picture fell from the wall. She regarded both incidents as omens of an impending death in the family.

The last voyage of the Andaste was Whitaker's first voyage on it, he having been employed on the steamship Theodore Roosevelt until a few weeks ago. Before that he served in the United States navy, having enlisted at the Great Lakes training station during the war.

Whitaker and his brother, Alfred L., a radio operator for the Lamport and Holt steamship lines, had planned to purchase a home in California for their mother and move there within the next few months.

STATUE TO HONOR D'ARTAGNAN, ONE OF 3 MUSKETEERS

PARIS Sept. 14.—D'Artagnan, most dashing of Alexander Dumas' immortal "Three Musketeers," whose adventures are familiar to the readers of romance all over the world, is about to be honored by the erection of a monument.

The statue representing the gallant figure will stand in a prominent place near the village of Lupiac, in Gascony, where he was born. Marcel Present, a member of the French academy, is chairman of the committee formed to erect the statue, which will be constructed by Firmin Michelet, well known sculptor.

Gascony welcomes the idea of perpetuating D'Artagnan's memory in stone, for he is one of Gascony's most representative figures. Charles De Baatz Seigneur D'Artagnan belonged to the illustrious Gascon family of Monteiquiou-Fezensac and served his country as a soldier and a diplomat. He was killed at the battle before Maestricht in 1673.

CHICAGO GIRL IS KILLED AS AUTO RUNS INTO DITCH

Fleeing Thief Dies as Car Overturns.

A 5 year old Chicago girl was killed and her mother and 2 year old sister were severely injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into a ditch near Elkhorn, Wis. The father of the dead girl, Frank B. Stark, real estate agent, 5539 Wayne avenue, who was driving, apparently lost control of the automobile.

The girl killed was Edna Stark, 5 years old. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Stark, and Phyllis Stark, 2 years old, were taken to a Beloit hospital suffering from internal injuries. Stark and another daughter, Barbara, 9 years old, escaped serious injuries.

While fleeing in an automobile they had stolen, Stanley Voydella, 18 years old, 3051 South Troy street, was killed and his companion, John Skubis, 20 years old, 2716 South Troy street, was injured yesterday. Their car overturned in a ditch alongside Roosevelt road near 25th avenue, Maywood. Skubis admitted they had just stolen the car.

Two other deaths in the Chicago territory yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for this year to 615. The other victims:

Samuel Tannbaum, 7 years old, 1243 South Spaulding avenue. Knocked down at Douglas boulevard and Ridgeway avenue by an automobile driven by Dan Saville, 2031 South 11th avenue, Maywood. Fillmore police held Saville.

Patrick J. Walsh, 35 years old, 3711 West 55th street. Died in the county hospital of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile Wednesday night.

Hitching on the rear bumper of an automobile near Elkhorn, Wis., 13 year old Clark Meecham, son of a farmer, fell beneath the wheels of the car and was killed yesterday.

HOLD UP COUPLE; TAKE $3,000.

MAKES DEAF HEAR WITH GERMAN INVENTION.

Science has made remarkable progress in making it possible for deafened people to hear. Recognized authorities on both continents consider a new discovery called "Universotone" the most perfect means of making the deaf hear instantly. The device when worn is practically unnoticeable. Results are astonishing even in the most severe cases. Dr. Hugo Lieber is the distributor in the United States for this German invention. One of his experts, D. Farber, is right here in Chicago now, at Suite 1812, 59 E. Madison St. Those who are deaf should call at once for free demonstration. If you cannot call, write for complete details.—Adv.

FREIGHTER AND LINER COLLIDE IN A FOG IN SAN FRANCISCO BAY

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Panama-Pacific liner Virginia and the Norwegian steamer Hermion collided in San Francisco bay today in a heavy fog. Three men on the Hermion were reported injured in the crash. The Hermion was still anchored in the bay late today.

The Virginia, one of the largest vessels on the Pacific, was en route to New York via San Pedro, with more than 200 passengers. Two holes were torn in the starboard side of the liner. The Virginia feebly pulled back to her dock under the direction of Capt. H. T. Candy.

No passengers were carried by the Hermion, a freighter. It had entered the Golden Gate early this morning, and was standing by waiting for the fog to lift when the collision occurred. The Virginia is an electrically driven vessel. Besides her passengers, she was carrying a shipment of Japanese silk valued at approximately $1,000,000.

HALF A BILLION IN INCOME LEVY DUE TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The American taxpayers' pocketbook will be lightened by approximately a half billion dollars by Monday night through the payment of the third quarterly installment of the 1928 federal income tax.

While the treasury department will not compute the exact figures on the collections for several days, Under Secretary Mills estimated today that the payment would be only slightly less than that of last June, which totaled $544,256,508. Last March the treasury set a new high record collection of $601,363,804 despite the one and one half per cent reduction in corporation taxes which went into effect with that payment.

Deaths by Auto Mishaps Show Big Year Increase

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Statistics made public today by the safety committee of the American Motorists' association showed that there were ten per cent more automobile fatalities last year than the year before.

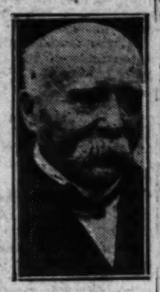
The death rate by automobile for the year ending Aug. 10, 1929, was given as 24.3 persons per 100,000 population. That for the preceding year was 22.1 for each 100,000.

FRANCE'S TIGER SAYS HE'LL DIE WITHOUT HURRAH

Plans Last Sleep in His Native Province.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Chuckling ghoulishly, Georges Clemenceau, wartime premier, today readily discussed his own death and prospects of after life with a few journalists who succeeded in penetrating the barrier around his cottage on the sea coast in the department of La Vendée.



GEORGES CLEMENCEAU.

"Get to hell out of here," is the literal English translation of what the Tiger yelled at the newspaper men upon their arrival, but the crusty old "Father of Victory" later relented long enough to utter a few sinister predictions about the end of his days.

Is Prepared for Death.

"In the first place, I warn you that when I die you will not know a thing about it," the former premier chuckled. "Anyway, it is not going to happen suddenly, even though you would like to see me kick off in order to have a story," he continued. "I will die slowly and I have already made all arrangements.

"If I die in Paris, as soon as I am dead they will put me in a coffin and ship me to La Vendée, where I was born, without a drum or a trumpet. In that way nobody will be bothered by my obsequies, not even myself. If I die in Vendée, I will be right on the spot, and it will not be the least trouble to anybody."

Sees Death as Long Sleep.

Regarding the hereafter, M. Clemenceau expressed himself very pessimistically about passing the time playing the harp.

"Concerning my philosophy, I am an atheist, but not in the ordinary sense of the word," he declared emphatically. "When a fine woman once reproached me for destroying her faith, I replied to her and the Jesuit director by her side, 'When I go to bed it is with the hope that I will sleep well and not with the hope of waking up.'"

Having delivered himself thusly, the Tiger suddenly took on his crusty manner again and repeated, "Now, get to hell out of here," shooing the reporters out of the yard while he hobbled back to the cottage.

HYDE PARK GIRLS SWELL ICE FUND WITH BURLESQUE

With the easy rhythmic motion of the trained ballet dancer a group of Hyde Park girls, twelve and thirteen years old, romped through a burlesque on "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" last night at the Windermere Hotel West, 56th street and Cornell avenue.

The show was given for the benefit of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund. The songs and dances were arranged by Eva Leah Berman, who directed the skit, and who used to good advantage the training of two Christmas seasons at the Oriental theater. Miss Berman said last night that more than $30 have come in from ticket sales, and when the money was counted from door receipts after the show, the players hoped to have at least $100 to turn over for the benefit of babies in Chicago's tenements.

The show was colorful, rollicking, and well organized as to its songs and dances. Costumes of blue, yellow, red and pink, were worn by the players including Elaine Spiesberger, Elaine Rhienhold, Alice McConnell, Betty Jane Metz, Betty Jane Isador, Betty Berger, Beverly Levy, Rhoda Lurie and Stella Meyer.

Until January 1, gifts for both the ice fund and the Camp Algonquin fund are not only welcome but greatly needed. It is no fun for either fund to start out next year on the red side of the book. And it is not pleasant to remain in debt for the vacations which have brought so much happiness to tenement families.

The Camp Algonquin fund has been begging all year. The fund started 1929 without a cent to its credit. And while contributors have generously accumulated more than $5,300 during the year, that is far short of the $10,000 quota alloted to TRIBUNE readers. There is yet time to raise the deficit. The Hyde Park girls demonstrated last night what can be done in the way of a fall benefit. All loyal supporters of Camp Algonquin and summer outings for tenement folk are earnestly implored to push the fund over the $10,000 goal. Your gifts may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

IS HOOVER MATCH FOR STATECRAFT OF MACDONALD?

Naval Conference Will Be Supreme Test.

United States which lie athwart our trade routes and constitute a potential menace to America.

3. As to merchant marine, to achieve such preponderance of big cruisers over Britain's as to reduce the tremendous advantage to the British inhering in 888,000 tons of fast British merchant ships capable of mounting six inch guns compared with 188,000 tons of American merchant craft.

The eyes of not only his own country but of the world are now fixed on Herbert Hoover. How he discharges the responsibility to the country that rests upon him in these navy limitation negotiations will affect profoundly not only our national welfare but his future political career.

If the President succeeds in establishing actual equality between the American and British navies he will have scored one of the greatest victories if not the greatest in the history of American diplomacy. Even if he does no more than to checkmate the British maneuvers and guard us from committing ourselves to a perpetuation of naval inferiority he will have silenced these critics [including our Vice President Charles Curtis, at Kansas City last year] who have classed Mr. Hoover as pro-British and those other critics who regard him by virtue of the Quaker origin as innately a pacifist.

Policies Well Guarded.

There has been little to indicate so far the course Mr. Hoover is pursuing. There have been only two developments which have attracted attention as possible straws showing which way the wind is blowing at the White House.

One was the action of the President in suspending some cruiser construction pending the outcome of the negotiations. When Ramsay MacDonald announced that the British had suspended construction of two 8 inch gun cruisers, the Surrey and the Northumberland, Mr. Hoover, not to be outdone, announced suspension of construction of three new 8 inch gun 10,000 ton cruisers which was to have been begun in the government navy yards this year. One may imagine the difficulty with which even those perfect poker faces at No. 10 Downing street repressed a covert smile at this, for the British suspension of construction was of two cruisers not yet begun which they would be compelled to scrap were they actually to accord us naval parity and the American suspension was of three cruisers which even the pacifists concede must be built if we are to get within gunshot of parity.

The Shearer Investigation.

The other was the action of the president in inciting a congressional investigation of the militarist propaganda of William B. Shearer and certain naval ship building corporations at the Geneva conference of 1927 while at the same time ignoring the pacifist propaganda of such organizations as the National Council for Prevention of War, under Quaker direction, and the Federal council of Churches, representing 22 Protestant denominations, which much more recently attempted to defeat the cruiser legislation. What accentuated the discrimination in favor the pacifists is the fact that only a few weeks ago Capt. Dudley W. Knox published an article in which he referred to an American pacifist organization as subsidised by British funds.

All the negotiations up to date have definitely disclosed is that the British are up to their old tricks of 1921. Again they are aroused by our navy building program and are maneuvering to induce us to abandon the construction of ships that would threaten their domination of the seas.

Halting U. S. Development.

In 1921 we were building a navy that in a few years would have crowned America and dethroned Albion as the mistress of the seas. The British set out to halt our program. They began by picturing Uncle Sam as a militarist just as a few years later they were holding him up to scorn as Uncle Shylock in connection with the war debt settlements. Making a virtue of their financial inability to compete with America in navy construction, they proclaimed the readiness of Britain to abdicate her rule of the waves. She would be willing to accept equality with the United States in naval strength.

American pacifists took up the cry and propagandized the desirability of a navy limitation conference to the calling of which George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, under skillful handling by Lloyd George, steered the Harding administration.

Lloyd George even succeeded in inducing America to pull British chestnuts out of the fire in connection with the Anglo-Japanese alliance. British public opinion had decreed abrogation of the alliance. To avoid offending Japan Lloyd George caused Harding and Hughes to include far eastern questions in the agenda of the conference and the outcome was the four power pact which Britain and Japan were able to accept as a substitute for the alliance without losing face.

Idealism in Defeat.

The moment that Mr. Hughes announced at the opening of the conference the willingness of the United States to scrap its superior fleet in course of construction the British had won their objective. They hailed us as brothers. In every speech they mentioned our lofty idealism. America sacrificed the superiority of its navy, built and building, and Britain, not to be outdone in magnanimity, sacrificed her traditional domination of the seas. Mr. Balfour was visibly touched.

But, though the British had won at the start more than they had hoped for, they lingered long enough to gain the concession to Britain of two brand new battleships, the Rodney and the Nelson, the effect of which was to postpone for at least a decade the achievement of parity in capital ships. Then, as we had not a superiority but an inferiority in cruisers, Mr. Balfour lost interest in further negotiations and got into a controversy with the French which blocked the establishment of parity in auxiliary ships.

Even then American diplomacy might have forced a limitation agreement covering all classes of ships by refusing otherwise to scrap our superiority in battleships, for Mr. Balfour could not afford to go home without the bacon. But American diplomacy was found wanting. Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes allowed themselves to be prevailed upon by the British diplomats and the American pacifists to accept half a loaf.

Mr. Balfour went home covered with glory. He had sunk the American navy without firing a shot and he was awarded an earldom therefor by his king. Then when our ships had been scrapped Mr. Balfour repudiated the parity agreement. He said he never had agreed to parity all along the line in all classes of ships. He had meant parity in capital ships only.

When Mr. Coolidge took office it developed upon him to decide whether we should build cruisers and other auxiliaries in sufficient number to attain parity with the British in these classes. He decided we should not on the ground that such building would precipitate the sort of navy construction competitions that breed war. We had only ten 7,500 ton and no 10,000 ton cruisers. When a program of eight 10,000 ton cruisers was authorized he endeavored, though unsuccessfully in the end, to prevent the construction of some of these. All these years Britain was steadily building 10,000 ton cruisers with 8 inch guns.

Geneva Conference Blows Up.

The Coolidge policy was subservient to the British until the close of his term. He would not at first even allow the elevation of the guns on our battleships to establish parity with the British in range because of the fear that the British would pronounce such action a violation of the navy limitation treaty. Only when assured by discreet inquiry in London that the British would not object did Mr. Coolidge allow the navy to proceed with the elevation of the guns.

The British had only an academic interest in the Geneva navy limitation conference which Mr. Coolidge called. We had no superiority in big ships to sacrifice this time. All we had was a rapidly increasing inferiority to Britain, and even in some respects to Japan. The British started out by repudiating the principle of parity in cruisers, though eventually they were compelled to reaffirm it, and that was all that we got out of the conference. The British would not scrap any cruisers and insisted on a maximum tonnage that meant virtually no limitation. So the conference blew up.

Then Mr. Coolidge blew up—that is, to the extent that one of his disposition blows up. He saw his mistake in failing to build ships, but it was too late. All he could do was blow off steam in private. Whether or not the story is apocryphal, it is related that Mr. Coolidge in one of his moments of exasperation blurted out that if he had it to do over again he never would offer or agree to parity with the British. Just how chagrined he was may be read between the lines of his 1928 Armistice day speech.

After the rebuff at Geneva Mr. Coolidge started out to build ships with a vengeance. He produced a program for the construction of 25 cruisers and 47 other ships at a total cost of $740,-600,000. This startled even the big navy men on Capitol hill and the pacifists opened fire on it with great glee. Gradually this program was whittled down by the administration and by congress until all that was left of it was the 15 cruisers and one airplane carrier authorized by the last congress.

But that was enough to cause the British to prick up their ears. American was going to build 15 cruisers, which would give us eventually a total of 23 8 inch gun ships, whereas the British under their present program would have only 22 big gun cruisers.

MacDonald Has Home Troubles.

From the moment we provided for a superiority in big cruisers the British interest in a navy reduction limitation began to revive. In the meantime the Conservative government in London had suffered a humiliating repudiation by the British public with respect to the Anglo-French agreement on navy limitation designed to coerce the United States into acceptance of virtually the same British cruiser scheme we rejected at Geneva.

With the Conservatives on the defensive, the Labor party in the British election was demanding a naval understanding with America, and MacDonald was advocating that Britain accept the principle of the freedom of the seas in time of war. Mr. Hoover already had proposed the use of a yardstick whereby it would be possible to fix parity of a British cruiser fleet consisting mainly of the small ships Britain favors and an American fleet consisting chiefly of the big cruisers that suit our needs.

When MacDonald won the British election he at once addressed himself to the project of a naval agreement with the Hoover administration. Ambassador Dawes, arriving on the scene about that time, hastened to negotiate, this being the same Dawes who, at the dedication of the Peace bridge at Buffalo, had attributed the failure of the Geneva conference to a lack of preparation therefor, whereby he increased the dislike with which he was viewed by Mr. Coolidge.

Discarding a Yardstick.

The negotiations had not gone far, however, before it became apparent that Mr. MacDonald was not in the sacrificial mood of his election canvass. He no longer insisted that Britain should accept the freedom of the seas. In fact, he passed rapidly over the freedom of the seas question which apparently never had figured in the negotiations.

The Hoover yardstick proposal was also lost in the shuffle. London and Washington could not agree on a yardstick. The British at no time regarded the yardstick with more than good natured toleration. They were intent on getting our prospective strength of 23 big cruisers cut down and were for any yardstick which would demonstrate that we were not entitled to that many on the basis of parity with theirs.

Eventually the British proposed that the number of our big cruisers be limited to 18 and theirs to 15. We would have more big cruisers and fewer small ones, while they would have more small ones and fewer big ones. What could be fairer than that? said the British.

Britain's Latest "Sacrifice."

Examination of this proposal is not without interest. It appears that 15 is exactly the number of big cruisers Great Britain has under construction or has completed since 1925. Two others are the Surrey and Northumberland, the postponement of the construction of which MacDonald announced. Another 10,000 ton 8 inch gun cruiser has been appropriated for but is not yet under construction. The British are willing to scrap these three ships on paper but no others.

But it further appears that in addition to the 15 big modern cruisers actually built and building, Britain has four others that are virtually in the same class. They are big cruisers with big guns. They range in tonnage from 9,770 to 9,996 and mount 7.5 inch guns. They were completed between 1918 and 1925 and the British insist they are too old and too inferior in tonnage and armament to be classed as big cruisers.

In addition to these 19 big cruisers, the British want not fewer than 31 small cruisers mounting 6 inch guns. This would involve the scrapping of no British ships.

Where It Leaves U. S.

If we were to be limited to 18 big cruisers we would have 255,000 tons, including the ten 7,500 ton ships mounting 6 inch guns, which are the only modern cruisers we now have in service. Under the British proposal we would then be at liberty to build up to 305,000 tons in small cruisers which we cannot use because of lack of bases.

The British cruiser proposal was considered unsatisfactory because it provided for neither the navy reduction for which Mr. Hoover contends nor for parity of the American with the British fleet. With 15 big cruisers and four others almost as big, the British fleet would be superior to the American in big cruisers alone if America were to be limited to 18.

CHILDREN LOSE SUIT WHEN JUDGE DECIDES CROKER WAS IRISH

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Richard Croker, the late Tammany Hall chieftain, never established a legal residence in this country and therefore his children by his first marriage have no claim to certain valuable Palm Beach property now owned by Bula Croker, who was his second wife, Federal Judge Halsted Ritter of Miami has ruled, attorneys for the widow announced today.

Judge Ritter made his decision in a suit brought by Howard Croker, son of the late Tammany chieftain by his first marriage, against Bula Croker, J. B. McDonald, her agent, and the Pari Beach Estates, a real estate firm. The suit was one of several in which the children of Croker attacked transfers of property in Florida.

The judge sustained the contention of the defendants that Richard Croker never established a homestead in Florida because his permanent home or domicile, which he established in Glen Cairn, Ireland, in 1904, never was abandoned.

FOREST FLAMES MOST MENACING IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—General improvement in the forest fire situation in Oregon was indicated today in reports from the western fronts where during the last week flames have transformed forests into roaring infernos.

Forty fires, however, are burning over an area of 60,000 acres of brush land in California, threatening several settlements. More than 300 men have been mustered to combat the California fires, which are in an area around Ukiah.

Flames became visible from the streets of Ukiah last night and residents prepared to flee if necessary. Dense smoke made accurate checks of the situation extremely difficult.

Throughout the city of Portland smoke was so dense today that visibility did not extend more than three or four blocks at street level.

FIVE BIG POWERS SOON TO CONFER ON NAVAL CUTS

Meeting Will Be Held in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Final preparations for a naval reduction conference in December were being expedited today in London and Washington, in the hope that early announcement could be made that Japan, France and Italy had accepted invitations to the approaching parley.

Reactions thus far received from Rome, Paris and Tokio following the Washington announcement yesterday that the United States and Great Britain were ready for a naval reduction conference at once were described today as so favorable that Washington officials are confident that all five of the Washington treaty powers will be present when the conference convenes.

As a result it is considered possible that invitations to a five power conference to be held in London as early as possible in December will be sent to France, Japan and Italy, within the near future, possibly before Prime Minister MacDonald comes to the United States.

May Be Held in London.

While it is possible the invitations may be issued jointly by Great Britain and the United States, it is considered certain the parley will be held in London, a development which apparently has the approval of President Hoover.

Indications are that such preliminary arrangements as must be made with Japan, France and Italy will be arranged by conferences between the ambassadors of these powers and either Secretary of State Stimson or Premier MacDonald.

Disclosure today that the ambassadors of these three nations have kept in close touch with the negotiations through conversations with Secretary of State Stimson and Ambassador Dawes in London was taken as strong indication that no objections have developed against any of the naval principles included by the United States and Great Britain in their tentative naval reduction agreement.

Plans for the entertainment of Premier MacDonald have been discussed by American and British officials here but no formal announcement as to details has been made. While no official announcement that the premier was coming to Washington has been received at the state department, Mr. Stimson said today that the British government has been assured that the prime minister is most welcome.

May Still Build Cruisers.

Although the strictest secrecy surrounds the President's plans for entertaining his distinguished guests, there were indications today that Mr. Hoover will take the prime minister to his fishing camp in Virginia.

Investigation today disclosed that the tentative agreement reached by British and American officials will make possible the building of at least twelve and most likely all of the fifteen cruisers provided in the cruiser program passed during the Coolidge administration.

Great Britain has already agreed to allow the United States to build twenty 8 inch gun cruisers. The argument now is whether the United States is to be allowed to build three more 8 inch gun ships, making twenty-three in all of this type for the United States. The British want this country to build the 30,000 tons of cruisers still in dispute in 6 inch gun cruisers. President Hoover is standing out for three additional 8 inch gun vessels.

Victory on this point would give the United States 300,500 standard tons of cruisers. Of these twenty-three, or 230,000 tons, would be 8 inch gun ships and the balance 6 inch gun vessels.

Advantage of the British.

Against this American cruiser navy, Great Britain would have 339,000 tons of ships, fifteen being 8 inch gun vessels. The British would have a preponderance of 6 inch gun cruisers and a total tonnage advantage of about 40,000 tons.

The United States would have the largest tonnage in 8 inch gun ships. Great Britain would have around fifty cruisers, the United States either thirty-three, thirty-four or thirty-five, depending on whether the 30,000 tons in dispute are built in 8 or 6 inch gun vessels.

Analysis of the present naval situation discloses that by agreeing in principle to postpone the battleship replacement program scheduled to begin in 1931 to 1936, the administration has made it possible for Great Britain to maintain battleship supremacy at least throughout the next ten years.

Disclosure that the United States was prepared to acquiesce in the British proposal for postponing capital ship construction until 1936, when a later naval reduction conference would be held, furnished the biggest surprise to Washington officials not acquainted with the details of the negotiations as they have progressed.

Developments today indicated that the battleship section of the agreement will be the most bitterly attacked of all the principles agreed to.

END NAVAL BASES OFF U. S. SHORES, PLEA TO BRITAIN

London Editor Urges MacDonald Act.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Prime Minister MacDonald will make an official statement regarding the status of the Anglo-American naval negotiations Monday, it is learned tonight. The government has refrained from issuing any official news concerning the parleys, and its reticence brought strong protests from the press today.

The foreign office refused to comment on the report from New York that Great Britain had agreed to dismantle the naval bases off the American coast, though in official circles there is a belief that such an offer has been long considered. If this offer is not included in the present agreement it will probably arise at the December meeting of the five power congress.

This subject was brought to the attention of the British government five years ago by THE TRIBUNE correspondent in the course of conversations with Lord Tyrrell, present ambassador to France, then Sir William Tyrrell, permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs.

Admiralty Studies Plan.

It has evidently received the exhaustive study of the admiralty. The first inkling that Great Britain is ready to offer a concession in the matter of the Caribbean naval bases came soon after the Labor victory, when J. L. Garvin, publicist, in close touch with Premier MacDonald, hinted that Great Britain was considering whether these bases might not be scrapped in the interest of an Anglo-American naval agreement.

Tomorrow Mr. Garvin's "London Observer" will invite Premier MacDonald to formally announce if he is dismantling the remaining fortifications.

"The old naval bases in Bermuda and Jamaica are useless and obsolete for imperial purposes, yet they irritate suspicious elements in the United States," it will say. "Let a good gesture be made on our own initiative. The undefended Canadian-American frontier must be extended to the Atlantic."

France "Holds Her Fire."

PARIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—France, officially and unofficially, through newspapers, seems to be "holding her fire" on the proposed five power naval conference mentioned for Washington in December as a consequence to successful pursuit of Anglo-American naval disarmament conversations.

France wishes to know everything possible about the scope and premises of the parley before discussing it. The government withholds comment as a matter of course, because it has not yet received an invitation.

Japan Welcomes Agreement.

TOKIO, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Admiral Hyo Takarabe, Japanese minister of the navy, today said that the news of a virtual Anglo-American naval agreement, which would permit the early convocation of an international conference to consider limitation and reduction of fleets, was most welcome in Japan.

Admiral Takarabe, referring to Japan's desire for reduction instead of mere limitation in the various categories of auxiliaries, said "Japan cannot enter the conference with a hard and fast policy on this point.

"Our desires for the conference to succeed may outweigh our preference for a scale of cruiser limitation, which would make it unnecessary for Japan either to build beyond the current program or to scrap any considerable tonnage," he said.

He declared that Japan was prepared to consider favorably any American proposal to extend the capital ship building "holiday" for five years.

NAVY STRENGTH OF 3 LEADING NATIONS SHOWN

U. S., Japan, and Britain Are Compared.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Comparative statistics showing the relative naval strength of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan in standard tonnage, the system of measurement proposed for adoption at the approaching naval reduction conference in December, were made public at the navy department today.

As explained by naval officials, the standard displacement of a ship is the displacement of the ship complete, fully manned, engined, and equipped ready for sea, including all armament and ammunition, equipment, outfit, provisions, and fresh water for crew, miscellaneous stores and implements of every description that are to be carried in war, but without fuel or reserve feed water.

Under the normal tonnage measurement system now used by the United States, fuel and reserve feed water are counted in in figuring the weight of a ship. Application of this system of measuring the displacement of a vessel serves to lower the actual tonnage of American light cruisers, destroyers, and submarines built before 1922.

The standard system of measuring displacement was adopted at the Washington naval conferepce of 1922 for measuring the tonnage of ships built after the treaty went into effect. As a result the Rodney and Nelson, British battleships of 35,000 tons standard displacement, actually weigh around 37,000 tons measured by this country's system of measurement.

Examination of the comparative figures discloses that Great Britain has 401,791 standard tons of cruisers built, building, and appropriated for, compared with 300,500 standard tons for the United States. The British government has a 31,500 ton advantage in battleships and a 25,000 ton advantage in aircraft carriers.

DICE FATAL TO PORTER.

Carbondale, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A Pullman porter named O'Dell of Memphis was shot to death as a result of a row over a craps game. The argument started when some of the participants protested when he wanted to enter the game and drinking party which was in progress on a St. Louis to Memphis train last night.

NURSE TRIES TO AID ASTOR 'HEIRS' LANDS IN PRISON

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Bertha Kirchner, a former nurse, today was under sentence of ten months' imprisonment following her attempt to get some of the Astor millions for 12 members of the family of Johann Emmerich, a German butcher, who emigrated to America in 1776.

Fraulein Kirchner was charged with attempting to defraud the Emmerich clan by pretending to be able to realize their claim for $700,000,000 against the Astors. The woman was arrested as she was leaving for the United States. Having already spent five months in jail, she will be freed on a leniency plea.

The Emmerich heirs claim their ancestor emigrated from the village of Dieffenbach to America during the revolutionary period and founded a shipping business with Jacob Astor to whom Emmerich is claimed to have willed one third of his fortune. The other two thirds were to be held by the Astor family for a period of 20 years.

Seven dollar bills fell to the floor. Desirow was ordered to hand over six to Mrs. Desirow and use the other for car fare to find work so that he might meet the balance.

PENALIZE DENEEN FOR FAILURE TO FILE TAX LIST

Several Officials Not on Assessment Rolls.

United States Senator Charles S. Deneen was penalized for failure to file a personal property tax schedule. This was revealed yesterday by records in the offices of the assessors. Under the law a one-half valuation penalty was placed on last year's valuation, so that the senator will pay this year on a valuation of $15,000. The Deneen home is at 457 West 61st street.

The Deneen assessment is the largest listed against public officials among the assessments that were available yesterday. State's Attorney John A. Swanson filed a tax schedule for $800 for personal property in his home at 7217 Coles avenue. County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer is on the books for $1,000. He lives at 3522 West Jackson boulevard.

Judge Hayes Listed for $500.

Municipal Judge Howard Hayes, who has a ten room house at 4840 Kimbark avenue, will pay a personal property tax on a $500 valuation. Superior Judge Hugo Pam, whose home is at 5329 Hyde Park boulevard, a short distance away, is down for $2,000. Superior Judge William N. Gemmill in the Hyde Park hotel is scheduled for $600, while Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend returned a schedule for $50, which was thrown out by the assessors. Judge Friend's home is at 4550 Kimbark avenue.

Charles Krutckoff, chairman of the board of assessors, who lives at 5000 East End avenue, is listed for a valuation of $2,000. Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, fixes the value of his personal property in his home at 4257 North Avers avenue at $300.

Clayton F. Smith, recorder of deeds, 2708 Logan boulevard, will pay on a valuation of $2,000. T. J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district, is listed at $500, although an assessor fixed the value of his holdings at $3,900. Ross A. Woodhull, sanitary district trustee, 6912 South Shore drive, will pay on a like amount.

Landis' Schedule $10,500.

Former Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who lives at the Chicago Beach hotel, is assessed on a valuation of $10,500. Ald. Berthold A. Cronson [4th], nephew of Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, is on the books for $300. He lives at the Wilmington hotel, 4901 Drexel boulevard. Eric N. Linn, committeeman of the 40th ward and a wealthy contractor, failed to file a schedule on property in his home at 5731 North Christiana avenue, and an assessor filled in a blank for $450.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson is not listed on goods at his home at 1020 East 48th street or his private garage at the same address. A search of the records failed to disclose the name of Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, who lives at 3347 West 28th street, according to the city directory. Another absentee from the lists is Commissioner of Public Works personal property valued at $150,000. John A. McCormick, 4940 Greenwood avenue, vice president of the Chicago Trust company, is down at $49,500 and his wife is scheduled for $105,000. William C. Cummings, 4900 Woodlawn avenue, president of the Drovers National bank, is assessed on $1,500.

North Town property owners will be given the opportunity to compare old and new real estate tax bills tomorrow. The board of assessors will begin hearings on complaints from residents of Lake View.

Wife Says Flyer Has Child's Mind

Admits Breakup

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—"When a husband has the mentality of a 12 year old child there is nothing a wife can do, no matter how hard she tries." Such is the mature verdict of the former New York actress, Pauline Parker, who today admitted for the first time that her marriage to Jean Assolant, French trans-Atlantic flyer, had gone on the rocks.

Sadly reflecting that five days is not enough time to know a man before marrying him, Mme. Assolant promised that she would soon make some revelations involving participants in two trans-Atlantic flights.

"I did my best to make the marriage a success, and I don't particularly blame Jean for what has happened," she said. "He let himself be imposed upon by the others. He has the mentality of a 12 year old child.

"As for myself, I am convinced that I can get a divorce when I want it, but I don't think that my husband can because he has not any grounds for one."

ACTS TO SPEED TAX COLLECTING, CUT BORROWING

Jacobs Seeks to Get 1928 Payments Early in '30.

A program to promote the reassessment work to insure collection of 1928 taxes early in 1930 have been submitted to William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert. The plan is intended to stabilize local governmental bodies by providing that 1929 taxes be collected before the penalty date of May 1, 1930, so that additional borrowing may not be necessary.

The details of the assessment, setting up for each township the dates of completion of abstracts, advertising, hearings and submission of assessment rolls to the board of review, are to be worked out in such a manner as to insure that all 1928 assessments shall be in the hands of the board of review by Dec. 1, 1929. By limiting discussion on complaints, Mr. Jacobs says the county treasurer may issue bills early in 1930.

Mr. Jacobs suggests that the board of review begin preparation of forms required by the state tax commission. If this be properly done and the board holds hearings concurrently with the transmission of the 1928 township assessments by the board of assessors, the assessment rolls will be in the hands of County Clerk Sweitzer by Dec. 15, 1929.

"These measures are absolutely necessary if the 1928 taxes are to be collected early in 1930," Mr. Jacobs writes, "in order to minimize additional borrowings and interest payments by local governments. These measures will give the board of assessors and the board of review sufficient time to complete the 1929 assessments so that the 1929 taxes may be collected before the penalty date of May 1, 1930."

Chairman Malone announced that he would call a meeting of members of the board of assessors, the board of review, and the joint commission on real estate valuation next week to plan adoption of the measures.

ASSESSORS ROW WITH WOLF OVER USING HIS OFFICE

A meeting of the board of assessors to consider charges of pay roll padding recently made against the board by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert, began with a row yesterday when Assessor Wolf refused the use of his quarters as a meeting place. Assessor Wolf issued his dictum as Director Harry S. Cutmore and his reassessment staff followed other assessors into Mr. Wolf's office, the most spacious in the assessors' suite.

Assistant State's Attorney Moore, assigned to Cutmore's staff, charged the move was a deliberate attempt to block the work. He explained that since Mr. Cutmore and his assistants have taken over the assembly room for their offices, there is no other available meeting place. Mr. Wolf smiled, and insisted that he had a right to his office.

Assessor Conroy sided with Mr. Wolf and wrangled with Mr. Moore. Other assessors interposed and restored decorum. Mr. Wolf consented to allow the use of his room for the one meeting. But the bickering had consumed the allotted time, and forced an adjournment until next week, when Mr. Jacobs will be asked to substantiate his charges.

IRISH FREE STATE REFUSES 2 YEAR TARIFF TRUCE

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Irish Free State today tossed the first stone into the machinery being assembled for the limitation of European tariffs looking toward a European confederation of states. Prof. John O'Sullivan, speaking before a league of nations committee, declared his country could not undertake to participate in a two year tariff truce proposed by the French and British delegations at the league assembly.

The Saorstat already has set up a commission to study the demand for increased tariff, to which the Irish government is pledged if the commission reports favorably, said Mr. O'Sullivan.

"Asking us to relinquish tariffs is equivalent to asking us to commit industrial and economic suicide," he added.

W. D. Euler of Canada reserves for his government entire freedom of action regarding the proposal for a tariff truce. Among other grounds for this position the Canadian cited impending tariff developments with other countries and the possible consequence of the necessity of seeking other markets for Canadian products.

Edison, Able to Sit Up, Directs Work on Rubber

WHEATLAND MAN WINS TITLE IN PLOWING MATCH

Homer Lapp of Wheatland, won the plowing championship of Illinois in the 52d annual contest held yesterday at the Howard Blackman farm, six miles southeast of Aurora. It was Lapp's second victory in two years in the contests, which are open to both tractor-driven and horse-draw plows.

The plowing was judged on straightness of the rows, uniformity of depth, and general neatness. Speed did not enter into the contests. Three hours were given for each contestant to plow about half an acre.

The judges picked Carl Hageman of Wheatland as the best in tractor plowing class and Lapp as best in the horse drawn plow class. Lapp's plowing was considered better than Hageman's in the final judging.

WHALEN PLEDGES AID IN U. S. DRIVE ON SPEAKEASIES

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen today made public a letter, written to Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell promising active police coöperation in the prosecution of speakeasy offenders under the public nuisance act.

While he reiterates his charge that the federal prohibition machinery in this city is ineffective, the letter is quite a backdown from the stand taken in a previous communication. He calls the Campbell communications "political letters."

The commissioner said he had nothing to say about the statement of Bishop Cannon of Virginia voiced on his return from Europe yesterday, that the police commissioner and district attorney ought to be impeached.

STOP... LOOK and LEASE
...when an apartment has a GENERAL ELECTRIC

HERE is a secret for apartment-seekers—examine the trade-mark on the refrigerator in the apartment. It can tell you so much.

For example, the General Electric name on the refrigerator tells you 3 things: first, that the landlord will probably prove to be a good landlord (the fact that he has made the necessary investment to install a General Electric means that he is interested in the permanent comfort of his tenant); second, the General Electric name tells you that your neighbors will be good neighbors (because the most discriminating people choose apartments that are equipped with General Electric Refrigerators); and third, it tells you that you will enjoy all the comfort and health-guarding refrigeration that the General Electric alone affords.

In addition to quiet, economical, amazingly trouble-free performance, the General Electric has another outstanding feature which makes it the ideal refrigerator for apartments. Each tenant has absolutely independent control of his own machine. He regulates its temperature to suit his needs. He defrosts it to suit his convenience. No action of any other tenant, or of the superintendent can in any way affect the service of his machine.

Look for the apartment with a General Electric. It's the sign of a truly modern apartment.

LEAGUE REVISES WORLD COURT SO U. S. CAN JOIN IT

Objections of Washington Met in New Protocol.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The United States of America, by unanimous vote of the assembly of the league of nations, today was invited to become a member of the permanent court of international justice at The Hague.

By adopting the protocol embodying proposals formulated largely by Elihu Root, famous American jurist, the assembly cleared away all outstanding obstacles which had been regarded as blocking American participation in the world tribunal.

The same session of the assembly adopted another protocol which affects revision of the statutes of the world court, defining anew details of qualifications, duties, and emoluments of world court judges.

Article Five Changed.

Article 5 of the protocol presented to the assembly today provides the machinery whereby the United States will be made aware of any proposal before the council or assembly of the league for obtaining an advisory opinion, thus giving the United States opportunity to indicate whether her interests are affected. Hitherto this question has formed the chief objection on the part of the United States to entering the court.

The two protocols will be forwarded without delay to Washington for consideration of the American government. Delegates and league officials tonight were confident that the reservations of the United States had been met and were hopeful that the powerful nonmember of the league would see the way clear to accept membership in the court and cooperate in the work of this agency for the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS ASKED TO OBSERVE CONSTITUTIONAL WEEK

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan yesterday called attention of all principals of the schools to the fact that this is Constitution week and asked that Tuesday, marking the 142d anniversary of the completion and signing of the contitution of the United States, have a period set aside for observance and patriotic exercises.

"It is recommended," the bulletin stated "that some part of the day be set aside for brief discussion of the purposes, meaning and value of the constitution."

The bulletin was accompanied by a pamphlet issued by the Constitution Education association, of which Harry F. Atwood of Chicago is president. This contained excerpts from addresses of Daniel Webster and the principals were urged to use these for reading and in arranging their programs.

Attorney Palmer D. Edmunds, chairman of the Americanization committee of the Illinois American legion; and Russell Whitman, former president of the Chicago Bar association, said speakers will be sent to the schools on Tuesday.

U. S. IN MANDATES ROW

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—The United States was drawn into the battle over mandates when Italy and Germany, in demanding their "place in the sun," challenged the distribution of these territories.

This was revealed during the debate of the sixth commission of the league assembly, when Mrs. Stanwick, British delegate, made the following statement:

"The bestowal of mandates is vested in the allied and associated powers and cannot be alienated except by agreement of all of them, of which the United States is one."

During a long discussion all powers holding mandates fought hard to have the disposition of the territories regarded as permanent and definitive, while Herr von Schubert, representing Germany, and Count Bonin Longare of the Fascist government, insisted that they are merely temporary.

Nansen Would Extend System.

Fridtpof Nansen suggested that the mandate system might be extended to all colonial holdings, and Portugal immediately objected, saying it had no intention of having its territory in West Africa apportioned to others.

"Only exceptional circumstances produced by war could justify mandates," said Señor de Quevedo, representing the Lisbon government.

Count Bonin Longare said: "Juridically, a mandate implies temporary character, and article 22 of the covenant mentions that they are under the tutelage of the powers to which they are awarded."

M. Hubert of France replied: "Tutelage is a temporary term as far as mandates are concerned, and the covenant states that tutelage ends when the states under mandate are able to govern themselves' but says nothing about tutelage ending over class B and C mandates."

Swiss Raps Revolution.

Mr. Rappard, delegate of Switzerland, said: "It is dangerous to awaken hopes which must necessarily be frustrated by the mentioning of the permanence or temporary character of mandates. Nothing more obviously proves inability in self-government than revolt against existing authority," was the astounding conclusion that he drew, apparently forgetful that the Swiss federation itself, without mentioning the United States, Ireland and other countries, obtained their independence through revolution.

Sir James Parr of New Zealand said that discussion of temporary or permanent mandates did not help the powers to administer mandates, but did raise false hopes among the natives.

Herr von Schubert said: "I agree with Italy that mandates are temporary, and regarding Mrs. Stanwick's theory over possible changes and distribution of mandates, and her idea that they are agreements among the allied and associated powers, I must make general reservations on the whole subject."

The delegations of Denmark, Norway and Holland today submitted resolutions to the assembly urging that the international bank for reparations payments be constituted to provide "appropriate relations with the league."

VICTORY OF WAYNE IS CELEBRATED ON FIELD OF BATTLE

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 14.—(AP)—An imposing bronze memorial to "Mad Anthony" Wayne was dedicated at the battlefield of Fallen Timbers, near here, today to mark the place where the fiery general led American troops to a decisive victory over the Indians, August 20, 1794, which saved for this nation the rich territory between the great lakes and the Ohio river.

The statue was unveiled by Miss Imogene Van Camp of Columbus, Ohio, descendant of William Sloane, a bugler in Wayne's army, in the presence of William Wayne, Paoli, Pa., a direct descendant of the general, and Mrs. Fredrika Hull and Miss Rilla Hull of Maumee, Ohio, descendants of Chief Little Turtle, who was Wayne's opponent.

The memorial statue is the work of Bruce Wilder Saville. It depicts General Wayne standing between a rugged white settler and an Indian.

Secretary of War James J. Good eulogized the general as the "second soldier and first fighter of the revolution" in the dedicatory address.

Former French Cabinet Member Freed from Prison

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Lucien L. Klotz, former French minister of finance and one of the signers of the treaty of Versailles, was given today conditional liberty from the prison where he has been confined for several months. M. Klotz was arrested following a complaint by an automobile company that he had purchased an automobile with a worthless check. A number of other complaints followed, but the persons interested withdrew their charges and M. Klotz was sentenced to two years in jail.

CHARGES A BOMB PLAN.

Jerseyville, Ill., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Charging his landlord, Jake Foster, had placed gunpowder in the cylinder of his automobile engine in an effort to kill him, Thomas Swift, 65, a tenant on a farm near here, filed a complaint with R. C. Chappell, state's attorney of Jersey county.

TWO POLICEMEN WIN $100 EACH FOR HEROIC ACT

Slaying of Two Ex-Convicts Is Rewarded.

Policemen George Mankowsky and William J. Simpson, detailed at the Wabash avenue police station on vice and gambling, were fired upon by two ex-convicts who were among the six prisoners arrested in a disorderly house. The policemen stood their ground and returned the fire, killing their attackers. To reward each for their courageous action, THE TRIBUNE has doubled its monthly hero prize for August, awarding $100 to each of the policemen.

The two policemen were sitting in an apartment at 4240 South Parkway with their six prisoners, three colored men, a white man, and two colored women, awaiting the arrival of a patrol wagon from the station. Mankowsky was preparing to take the names of those arrested when one, Fred Haymaker, colored, jumped up with a gun in his hand and fired at them.

Grabs Fallen Man's Gun.

Shoving aside one of the women, who was in the line of fire, Mankowsky and Simpson began shooting at Haymaker, who was crouched behind a table in the center of the room. Haymaker fell, fatally wounded, and Charles Powell, colored, grabbed for Haymaker's gun and raised it to fire. Before Powell could pull the trigger he was shot dead by the policemen.

The shooting affray had its beginning about 2:30 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 17. The policemen, in plain clothes, had been solicited on the street by Haymaker, who took them to the apartment on the third floor where they found the other three men.

On Haymaker's orders the two women were brought in. The plain clothes men then announced that they were police and Simpson went into an adjacent hallway to call for the patrol wagon.

Two Other Prisoners Wounded.

As he returned to the room where Mankowsky was guarding the prisoners, Haymaker leaped up with the gun shooting, "You are not going to take anybody out of this room." The shooting was over in a minute but in that brief space of time Haymaker and Powell were dead and the two other men prisoners were wounded slightly. The policemen and the women were uninjured.

Both Powell and Haymaker, according to the police, have long criminal records. Haymaker had served a sentenced at Pontiac, and both had been identified in twenty-one robberies committed in the Wabash avenue and Hyde Park districts. One of the wounded prisoners, George Thomas, colored, was identified in three robberies, was indicted by the grand jury, and is being held for trial in bonds of $45,000.

Capt. Malone of the Wabash avenue station and Deputy Commissioner Hogan of the second division commended Simpson and Mankowsky for their "exceptional bravery" and recommended them for THE TRIBUNE prize and for mention in the departmental orders. Mankowsky, who is 31 years of age and lives at 5667 Normal boulevard, has been on the force three years and Simpson, who is 33 years old and lives at 7228 South Morgan street, has been a policeman for nine years.

Three Other Policemen Cited.

The other policemen of the Stanton avenue station also were recommended for creditable mention and extra compensation for the month of August. They are Joseph Sheldon, Maurice Sheehan and Harry McCaverty.

Notified that Fred Risper, 3629 South Dearborn street, was shooting at his neighbors the three policemen went to that address to arrest him. Risper was standing on the sidewalk with a gun in his hand when the policemen approached. He fired first and the policemen returned the fire, killing him instantly.

BALTIMORE PAGEANT DEPICTS PROGRESS OF CITY IN ITS 200 YEARS

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The biggest crowds since Baltimore began its bi-centenary's celebration turned out today for a pageant which carried the city's history and progress from the early settlement to the present.

Beside the historical floats depicting the settlement, the early life of the colonists, and such figures as Mary Pickersgill making the flag that flew over Fort McHenry in 1814; Francis Scott Key, whose "Star Spangled Banner" was inspired by the bombardment of the fort; Edgar Allan Poe and Johns Hopkins, another section of the parade depicted early and modern activities of the various branches of the government. Tonight was given over to merrymaking in a street carnival.

LIQUOR FLOWS TO U. S. BELOW BOATS OF DRYS

Runners Get Busy Under Detroit River Surface.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—While government patrols maintained a blockade on the surface of the river, rum runners transported cargoes of liquor beneath them along a submarine cable from Mud Island in the Detroit river to the American shore at Ecorse, customs border patrol inspectors have discovered.

Employing a method approaching in ingeniousness the much discussed but mythical "pipe line" into Canada, the runners operated a sled which carried from 15 to 20 cases of liquor a trip along a 500 foot cable while customs crews sped along an apparently inactive water front and reported "all quiet" in the rum war.

One Cable Dismantled.

The cable was discovered and dismantled by the inspectors Friday and no arrests were made. Customs officials believe other cables are being used on the river.

Mud island is a long, narrow island barely rising above the mud flats of the river opposite Ecorse and is covered with reeds and a few small trees and bushes. The only building on it is a two story house used by a fisherman, but just off the end of the island is a partly submerged houseboat. Rum runners conveyed their cargoes in rowboats towed by speedboats from the Canadian shore to the island.

The cable extended to a boathouse at Ecorse. It was a double affair. There was one heavy cable. The sled hung below and was suspended from wheels which ran on the wires. A lighter wire pulled the sled, laden, to the American side. Another pulled it back when unloaded. The whole affair was laid sufficiently low in the water to avoid being struck by river boats.

"Submarine" Seized.

In the boathouse were found an improvised diver's helmet, an air pump and a 15 foot skid. The diver, inspectors said, was lowered into the water. He placed the cases of liquor on a skid, along which they were raised to a platform. The liquor immediately was loaded in automobiles in a nearby garage and hurried out for delivery.

A liquor "submarine" was seized last night near Algonac. It was being towed from Canada by a speed boat when officers started pursuit. Occupants of the speed boat cut the tow line and sped away. The "submarine" was built with an air tight hatch, and when fully loaded with liquor, was lowered below the surface of the water.

SHEPPARD DENIES WHEELER DREW DRY AMENDMENT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Prohibition temporarily displaced the tariff in the senate today for the first time since the special session reconvened. Irked by an article on the subject appearing in a recent issue of Collier's Weekly, Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.] sought to refute the assertion that "Wayne B. Wheeler framed the 103 word holeproof amendment that Senator Sheppard got passed because the senate was in a hurry and most senators didn't think it would ever become a law, anyway."

"To assert," the Texan declared, "that Wayne B. Wheeler was solely responsible for the amendment which passed congress and was then submitted to the states is to fall into distinct error."

Goshen, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Miss Pauline Kunderd, daughter of A. E. Kunderd, Goshen's world famed gladioli king, was married at the First Presbyterian manse here this morning to Malcolm D. The bride, who has attended Ward Belmont college and Northwestern university, was recently pictured by Chicago papers with a display of choice blooms shown by her father in a Chicago bank.

CO-ED ROBBER IS HELD INSANE BY WITNESSES

New Braunfels, Tex., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Technical testimony concerning insanity was offered in the trial here today of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, charged with robbing the Farmers National bank of Buda, Tex., in 1926.

Several alienists testified that if testimony given by nonexpert witnesses was true, there was no doubt in their minds that the former Texas university co-ed was insane.

Physicians called to the stand all agreed that the woman who on three other occasions had been brought to trial in connection with the holdup, had suffered from pellagra.

Baltimore Officials Doubt Latest Court Move.

Willie Neimoth, member of the Sally gang and arrested numerous times by the police for gun toting and pay-roll robbery, is causing the state's attorney and the police department of Baltimore to wonder where he gets his drag. For nearly three years the Baltimore authorities have been attempting to take Neimoth to their city to face a charge of pay roll robbery and as yet have had no success.

Deputy State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells and Sergts. William Feehley and Cornelius Roache have commuted between Baltimore and Chicago regularly to attend scheduled court hearings to decide Neimoth's status as a fugitive and they hope they have come to the end of their journey, they said last night. A habeas corpus hearing for Neimoth is scheduled to come up before Judge Otto Kerner tomorrow morning.

Wonder If He Will Appear.

Maybe Neimoth will keep his appointment this time and then again may be he will not, the Baltimore officials said last night. If he duplicates past performances Neimoth will be among those not present.

Another bit of proceeding in the case that is causing the Baltimore officials to scratch their heads is the mysterious way in which Ferdinand (Pat) Sammons, notorious police character, slipped through the officials' hands. He, too, is wanted at Baltimore for the pay roll robbery.

Sammons was sentenced to Leavenworth by the government for booze violations and the Baltimore officials lodged a detainer against him for their charge. Sammons completed his sentence and walked from the penitentiary — nobody remembering the Baltimore detainer.

"We were told it was a mistake," said Prosecutor Wells. "It seems some one was extremely careless, to say the least, in forgetting such a document as a detainer for a $47,000 pay roll robbery."

"Mistake" to Be Investigated.

District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson is to be asked by the Baltimore authorities to find out—if he can—why such "mistakes" are possible. Sammons, profiting by the "mistake," has made himself scarce, so that Deputy Commissioner John Stege, who is cooperating with the Baltimore authorities, cannot place hands on him.

"It has cost us much over $5,000 now," said the Baltimore prosecutor. "If this case is not determined pretty soon we will begin to think we are residents of Chicago instead of Baltimore. We have been here nearly as much as we have in Baltimore."

The history of the Neimoth case as related by Prosecutor Wells is substantially as follows:

Oct. 1, 1926, a pay roll robbery was committed on the streets of Baltimore. Sonneborn & Co., clothing manufacturers, lost $47,500. One of the bandits was killed accidentally when the automobile in which they were making their escape collided with another car, causing a sawed off shotgun to explode.

About six weeks after the robbery Neimoth was arrested in Chicago. The Baltimore officials brought their witnesses to prove that he was one of the bandits. Trips to Springfield were part of the expense. Finally Judge William J. Lindsay on a habeas corpus hearing discharged Neimoth and the Baltimore authorities figured the case was ended.

With the change of administration about a year ago Commissioner Stege and Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott, in charge of extradition, figured that plans could be worked out to send Neimoth back to Baltimore. In February he was again arrested and the Baltimore prosecutor notified to bring his witnesses.

State's Attorney Wells came on with the witnesses to prove his case. Another habeas corpus writ was taken out before Judge D. J. Normoyle. For some reason Judge Normoyle said he could not hear the case and it was sent to the then Chief Justice John J. Sullivan. After two or three days it was transferred to the late Judge Frank Comerford's court.

Judge Comerford planned to make short work of the much kicked about case—but then Neimoth was not consulted. He upset the plans of the judge by just simply not showing up. His $20,000 bond was forfeited.

"We waited around and nothing happened; so we went back to Baltimore," said Prosecutor Wells.

$20,000 Bond Never Executed.

"Just think of it. There has been no execution on that bond," he continued. "Does a bond mean anything to the courts or state's attorney of Chicago?"

Anyhow Neimoth later showed up and this time put up a $25,000 bond. The case was to be heard Friday, but Judge Kerner said he was busy with a murder trial and now the hearing is set for tomorrow.

"If the $20,000 bond meant nothing will the $25,000 bond have any significance," said Prosecutor Wells as he started to the offices of the Chicago crime commission to ask for help.

"I have had coöperation from Commissioner Stege and Prosecutor Chott in this matter, but alone they seem to be having their hands full," commented the Baltimore prosecutor.

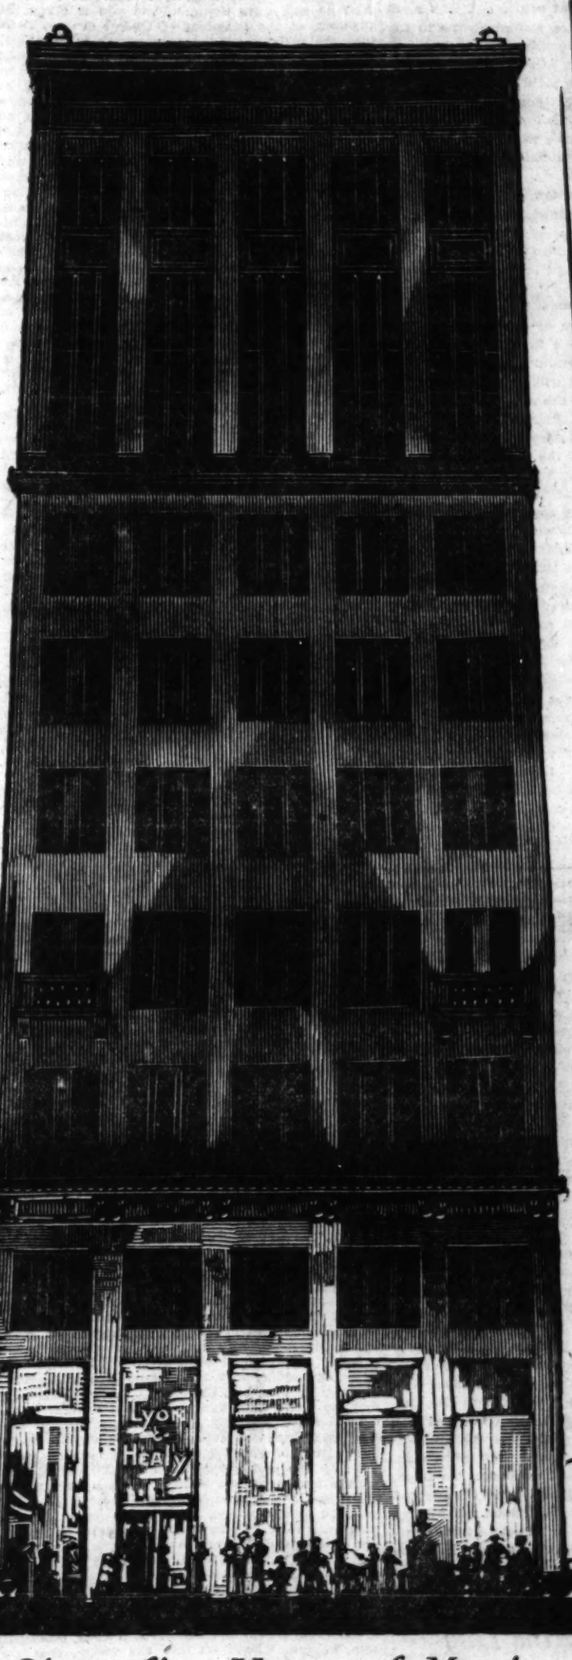
THE GENTLE ART OF SERVING BETTER HAS PAID WELL

"EVERYTHING Known in Music" was Patrick Healy's phrase. To build an institution which should serve better by containing everything musical within the means of the most modest income was his goal. During 65 years, this gentle art of serving better has paid manyfold the energy and vigil our musical completeness demands. Today, the world—in search of a rare piece of sheet music from the pen of César Cui—comes to Lyon & Healy . . . and the Lyon & Healy harp goes singingly around the world. Small wonder you think "Lyon & Healy" when you think of anything in music.



Nowhere else could the phrase "Everything Known in Music" be so truthfully employed. Here the most complete stock of sheet music ever gathered is at your service. Over 190,000 titles—selections, not copies. 54,139 vocal numbers, 6,352 for the violin alone, 1,239 for the harp—all from leading publishers. Chicago's largest stock of Victor, Columbia, Brunswick records is here, too, and a wide choice of small musical goods from a Domino ukulele at only $7.50. Musical literature, publications and books make for our complete service to you. Let Lyon & Healy serve you.

AMERICA AND THE LEAGUE COURT.

Our adherence to the international court will be one of the questions before the coming session of congress. The specific point at issue is the authority of the court to receive requests for advisory opinions and give them, American objection being grounded upon the conviction that sooner or later this authority would be used to impose upon us concessions in respect of vital policies such as immigration, the Monroe Doctrine, the defense of the canal, or our defensive policies in the isthmus and Caribbean. Upon this problem Mr. Elihu Root has been at work with special cooperation from Sir Cecil Hurst, a leading British jurisprudent, and together they have formulated amendments and additions for the protocol which have been highly approved by European jurists and are said to be satisfactory to Mr. Hoover and at least the Democratic senators, Swanson and Walsh, both leaguists. Senator Borah, we are glad to note, has been reported as unenthusiastic, and we as opponents of our direct or indirect involvement in European politics cannot find in the revisions of the protocol reliable assurances against future embarrassment. Certainly the decision is of great moment and should not be made without the fullest deliberation by the senate and by the people.

We think the advisory powe. of the court is fraught with grave consequences in American foreign policy and that to reserve the right to withdraw from the court is not an alternative which will protect us. It would throw upon us the moral burden of an apparent retreat and be used by pacifists and international doctrinaires to embarrass any American administration which was disposed to resolve doubts in our own favor and vigilantly to protect national policy.

This objection is neither meticulous nor fanciful. It is founded upon the conspicuous disposition of our statesmen in recent foreign affairs to seek the approbation of foreign opinion rather than to follow the clear indication of American national judgment. This is a phenomenon almost unique in history and it disables the defense of American interests wherever they collide with foreign. It could exist only through our national preoccupation with internal affairs and our consequent failure to realize the bearing and importance of proposals which appeal to an apparently inexpensive altruism, to our good nature, and our easy optimism. In this situation we are certain to drift into commitments which are plausibly presented as measures of international peace but which upon a realistic examination will be found to be based upon European conditions or interests and likely in effect to be injurious to our own. Since the war our representatives have steadily given way, save in the case of the hard fought battles to keep us out of the league and the league's court. And though these two major decisions on behalf of American independence and traditional policy were promptly and overwhelmingly approved by the nation, that fact has not been accepted as a guide to our international policy but has been virtually ignored. In meeting the demands of Europe our statesmen have seemed to be willing and even anxious to give away anything that could be surrendered without prompt and violent protest at home and the loss of their political power.

There is but one correction for this costly and dangerous tendency and that is a revival of the stalwart Americanism upon which our national greatness has been built. We should prefer it be of the quality and vision of Theodore Roosevelt, but if the choice is between our present complaisancy and the defiant vigor of Andrew Jackson, give us the latter.

PUN CONTROL.

Punsters take a low advantage of the English language, and by sly and clever waiting catch it, as it were, with its shirt out. They are irreverent rascals ordinarily, without regard for the dignities of an old speech mixed like a cocktail from several major stocks, and they will disintegrate it willingly, if the chance comes, into its broken parts and pungent contradictions. English is not an air tight language like the French, controlled by pundits and academies; it is ample and careless, full of slang and poetry and double edged words, and puns fall from its crevices like crumbs for sharp billed birds to pick.

Punning is less an art than a technology. In America particularly pun production has been standardized and experts in the field now supply the market by industrial methods and mass production. Pun technique has developed in recent years until no one is safe from their encroachment. Puns punctuate the routine hours. They lurk in the simplest acts of life, in the beefsteak, among the boiled potatoes, under the pillow, on the greens, and in the fairway, beside a punctured tire, waiting only for the punster with his corkscrew to extract them.

Although punsters may well be allowed to operate in a free country, measures should be taken for their control, if not their punishment. Most persons enjoy puns in moderation; they should be protected in their naïve pleasure, however, from the punster who would exploit them. If punsters never were applauded in any way or given even Punic recognition they possibly could be kept in a proper state of humility. But this is difficult.

A licensing system for punsters probably is the best solution. All puns should bear a license tag. A state pun inspector should keep the records with punctilio and attend to law enforcement. Consumption could thus be limited to relatively high grade puns.

CINDERELLA IN MAYFAIR.

A few weeks ago one of the London Sunday newspapers printed an article, said to have been written by an American girl, recounting her impressions of British life. She had been presented at court. We quote fragments:

"At the beginning I was just a scared stranger, dreading being presented at court. . . . I shall soon be sailing for America and my home in the south. . . . A diction teacher to teach me to speak English; our accent is so crude. . . . I hope to soften my a's and lighten my r's. When I first met Englishmen at dances I was stiff with fright. Now I have to admit that the Englishman is a marvel. . . . I have never seen anybody at home like the queen, beautiful individual and so attractive to everybody. . . . Then the duchesses! Fancy me, George Lincoln ———'s daughter, talking to a viscount about the heir to the British throne. . . . A sympathetic 'no' to four proposals of marriage. . . . I was tempted, but there was the lovely viscount and the waltz. . . ."

No American is likely to have much doubt regarding the genuineness of the document. A southern girl would have a father whose middle name was Lincoln and would find it difficult to soften her r's. Americans will, therefore, manage to control their delight in the success achieved by their sister, including the four proposals of marriage, and will prefer to examine the article as a significant reflection of the notions and ideals of the mass of Englishmen today regarding their social superiors. A sociologist could find much material of the same sort regarding America in our own confession magazines.

Of course, there are Englishmen who can see men and women for what they are, without reference to the peerage for guidance in making judgment. There have always been such men in England. Chaucer was one of them, and he has had many successors, but they have always been in the minority. The Normans established an aristocracy of blood which Cromwell and his fighting men destroyed for a brief period, but as soon as the mass of Englishmen saw what was happening the restoration was achieved. It was more than a restoration of the royal line; it was a restoration of a society in which there were superiors who could never be less than superiors and inferiors who could never hope to make the grade. Englishmen like that kind of a society. Men exceptional for accomplishment or for adroitness may hope for ennoblement and sometimes achieve it, but even then they remain a lesser nobility, in contrast to their Norman superiors and the older aristocracy. America stems from the Cromwellians.

It need scarcely be noted that England's present difficulties derive largely from the organization of her society. Men of education are largely withdrawn from industry and trade. The caste system blocks the advancement of men of ability, demeans them, and prevents the realization of their ideas. The class consciousness which marks off a duke from a baronet is imitated in the relations between employers and employés. Men are called to a station in life and they are supposed to be contented with it, which is unfortunate, and the vast majority of them are contented with it, which is considerably worse. Initiative, force, and ability are smothered. Preoccupation with rank hampers the recognition and the reward of genuine achievement.

There is little reason to expect any great change in Great Britain. The Labor government has done little to modify the class consciousness of the British, and its program offers no promise of fundamental change. What will happen within the next few decades in the colonies and dominions is another question. The American girl's story was gratifying to the vast majority of those who read it in Britain; it was Cinderella to the submerged, a pleasant fantasy. It confirmed the notions of Olympus in the minds of the lowlanders. Australians, Canadians, and New Zealanders are being bred in a different tradition. To them, as to Americans, the account, even if accepted as true, probably appears ridiculous. They can see the queen and judge her beauty without preconception. The fact is significant for the future of the British empire.

Editorial of the Day

ILLEGIBLE WRITING.

[Danville, Ill., Commercial News.]

When a word is badly written the context often makes it clear. When a proper name is scribbled the difficulty in deciphering it is much greater. But when numbers are illegible there's no figuring them out. A study of illegibilities in numerals has been made in the department of psychology of the Ohio State university. The results of the survey of 135,371 numerals written by 1,127 persons have been embodied in a report for the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Among the specimens studied were bank checks, luggage checks and sales slips. The numeral 7 was found to be the black sheep of the family. It furnished 46 per cent of the total illegibilities. In almost half of the cases the difficulty was due to the incorrect placing of the dash at the top. Zero came next with 13 per cent of the inaccuracies.

Next to the list of offenders, especially with children, were 7 and 2. The ornamental tick at the beginning of each causes the trouble in this case. Poor handwriting causes no end of trouble and loss of time in the business world. Many signatures are altogether illegible, and purposely so. Many men who ought to know better pride themselves on the illegibility of their signatures, apparently thinking it a matter of distinction and a mark of unusual business ability. And many another business man's signature and handwriting are illegible for the very good reason that he was not trained in penmanship in his youth and has not the ambition now to improve it. The public schools have not in recent years given penmanship the attention it deserves. It should be classed as a branch of major importance in the curriculum of every public school, and in every grade on through the high school. Even then few pupils will win the coveted 100 per cent.

"—Read, Mark, Learn, and Inwardly Digest Them"

The following Bible reading begins with the first verse of the fourth chapter of St. Mark and continues to the twentieth verse of the fifth chapter. The American standard version is used. The only change is in paragraph form and punctuation method. J. E.

SEA SIDE PARABLE

AND again he began to teach by the seaside. And there is gathered unto him a very great multitude, so that he entered into a boat, and sat in the sea; and all the multitude were by the sea on the land. And he taught them many things in parables, and said unto them in his teaching, "Hearken: Behold, the sower went forth to sow; and it came to pass, as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside, and the birds came and devoured it. And other fell on the rocky ground, where it had not much earth; and straightway it sprang up, because it had no deepness of earth; and when the sun was risen, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away. And other fell among the thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit. And others fell into the good ground, and yielded fruit, growing up and increasing; and brought forth, thirtyfold, and sixtyfold, and a hundredfold." And he said, "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear."

And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parables. And he said unto them, "Unto you is given the mystery of the kingdom of God; but unto them that are without, all things are done in parables; that seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest haply they should turn again, and it should be forgiven them." And he saith unto them, "Know ye not this parable? And how shall ye know all the parables? The sower soweth the word. And these are they by the wayside, where the word is sown; and when they have heard, straightway cometh Satan, and taketh away the word which hath been sown in them. And these in like manner are they that are sown upon the rocky places, who, when they have heard the word, straightway receive it with joy; and they have no root in themselves, but endure for a while; then, when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, straightway they stumble. And others are they that are sown among the thorns; these are they that have heard the word, and the cares of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. And those are they that were sown upon the good ground; such as hear the word, and accept it, and bear fruit, thirtyfold, and sixtyfold, and a hundredfold."

And he said unto them, "Is the lamp brought to be put under the bushel, or under the bed, and not to be put on the stand? For there is nothing hid, save that it should be manifested; neither was anything made secret, but that it should come to light. If any man hath ears to hear, let him hear." And he said unto them, "Take heed what ye hear; with what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you; and more shall be given unto you. For he that hath, to him shall be given; and he that hath not, from him shall be taken away even that which he hath."

And he said, "So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed upon the earth; and should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how. The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. But when the fruit is ripe, straightway he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come."

And he said, "How shall we liken the kingdom of God? Or in what parable shall we set it forth? It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown upon the earth, though it be less than all the seeds that are upon the earth, yet when it is sown, groweth up, and becometh greater than all the herbs, and putteth out great branches; so that the birds of the heaven can lodge under the shadow thereof."

And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it; and without a parable spake he not unto them; but privately to his own disciples he expounded all things.

And on that day, when even was come, he saith unto them, "Let us go over unto the other side." And leaving the multitude, they take him with them, even as he was in the boat. And other boats were with him. And there ariseth a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the boat, insomuch that the boat was now filling. And he himself was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they awake him, and say unto him, "Teacher, carest thou not that we perish?" And he awoke, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, "Peace, be still." And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. And he said unto them, "Why are ye fearful? Have ye not yet faith?" And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

And they came to the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gerasenes. And when he was come out of the boat, straightway there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit, who had his dwelling in the tombs; and no man could any more bind him, no, not with a chain; because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been rent asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces; and no man had strength to tame him. And always night and day, in the tombs and in the mountains, he was crying out, and cutting himself with stones. And when he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and worshiped him; and crying out with a loud voice, he saith, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High God? I adjure thee, my God, torment me not." For he said unto him, "Come forth, thou unclean spirit, out of the man." And he asked him, "What is thy name?" And he saith unto him, "My name is Legion; for we are many." And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country.

Now there was there on the mountain side a great herd of swine feeding. And they besought him, saying, "Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them." And he gave them leave. And the unclean spirits came out, and entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the steep into the sea, in number about two thousand; and they were drowned in the sea. And they that fed them fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And they came to see what it was that had come to pass.

And they come to Jesus, and behold him that was possessed with demons sitting, clothed and in his right mind, even him that had the legion; and they were afraid. And they saw it declared unto them how it befell him that was possessed with demons, and concerning the swine. And they began to beseech him to depart from their borders.

PATRIOTIC SONGS

WHEN JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME.
By L. Lambert.

When Johnny comes marching home again,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll give him a hearty welcome then, Hurrah!
Hurrah!
The men will cheer, the boys will shout,
The ladies they will all turn out,
And we'll all feel gay when Johnny comes marching home.

The old church bell will peal with joy, Hurrah!
Hurrah!
To welcome home our darling boy, Hurrah!
Hurrah!
The village lads and lassies say,
With roses they will strew the way,
And we'll all feel gay when Johnny comes
marching home.

CONSTITUTION AND ILLNESS

PHYSICIANS have been writing much in recent years about constitution in relation to disease. The men who practice public health have concerned themselves with what is called the epidemic constitution. By this they mean the combination of climate and weather, of temperature, wind barometric pressure, humidity and rainfall, which makes for or against such epidemic diseases as influenza, common colds, pneumonia, plague, cholera, malaria, smallpox, meningitis, infantile paralysis, sleeping sickness, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria in different parts of the world at different seasons of the year and in different years.

They regard as significant cablegrams from Buenos Aires which tell of forty thousand cases of influenza present in one week in that city in July and a similar report from Berlin dated in January. This idea of an epidemic constitution launched by Hippocrates in Greece two thousand years ago was advocated by Sydenham several centuries later and then by such men as Noah Webster, Benjamin Rush and N. S. Davis, down the ages. It is now very much the vogue.

Among practitioners of curative medicine the study has related to the human constitution in relation to health and disease. The reference is to the human body as a factor in disease in contra distinction to bacteria and other outside influences.

The leader investigating this subject has been and is Dr. George Draper. He could almost be called the founder of a school. Certainly he is entitled to be called leader of a school. Most of Dr. Draper's published studies have related to structure. He has written on the height and weight, length of the trunk, of the neck, of the legs, shape of the head and face, of the trunk—all in relation to the susceptibility or lack of susceptibility to certain diseases. In his latest contribution he takes up the relation of inheritance. He gives it as his opinion that a tendency to acute rheumatic fever runs in families. Persons in certain families tend to develop acute rheumatic fever at certain age periods. Other families are either resistant to this disease, or else they develop it in other age periods. He calls this inherited quality of a constitution an age-resistance character.

A study of inguinal hernia did not convince him that there was an inherited condition. It would seem that men should inherit strength or weakness in the abdominal wall muscles and we find him advising that the subject should be studied further. In another family he found that a tendency to break down with apoplexy or some form of heart disease was a peculiarity. He thinks this may be an inherited quality just as diabetes is. The tendency to migraines and headaches may be inherited qualities also.

PROBABLY IS RINGWORM.

Mrs. R. C. writes: Last summer my daughter, aged 12, got an itch between her toes. I kept putting on ointments and bandaging. When cold weather came the itch disappeared, but now it is back again.

REPLY.

She seems to have ringworm of the toe, also called toe scald. Your plan of treatment will not cure.

Cleanse with cold cream. Have your physician prescribe some remedy that kills ringworm such as fuchsin paint, sulphur ointment, or Whitfield's paste.

Bandaging is bad practice. The ringworm parasite prefers it that way. Better let her go barefoot or wear sandals without stockings.

BATHS AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

L. K. writes: 1. Are warm baths beneficial in Bright's disease? 2. Is a moderate amount of exercise harmful? 3. What foods should be eliminated from the diet?

REPLY.

1. In acute Bright's disease, with dropsy, hot baths and sweats may help. In other forms of Bright's they have no special place.

2. Much depends on the kind of Bright's. Generally speaking, the answer is yes.

3. Again, much depends on the kind of Bright's. Except in acute Bright's dieting is not an important part of the treatment.

WILL NOT CAUSE CANCER.

M. N. R. writes: Could a person get cancer from eating foods that had been cooked in aluminum pans?

REPLY.

No.

WANTS DIVORCE.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been separated from my husband for two years and want to divorce him but cannot afford to pay much toward a divorce. He has not supported the children or me.

M. S.

Where it appears, after investigation, that a client is unable to pay an attorney and that a divorce is necessary for the proper protection of the family, the Legal Aid Bureau of the United Charities sometimes takes such action, but there is no other agency through which one can avoid paying an attorney's fee. The mere fact that you have legal grounds and that the payment will involve some sacrifice for you will not suffice. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SON IN CANADA.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—[Friend of the People.]—Our son, a naturalized Canadian, would like to come to the U. S. A. How can he come here to stay? J. U.

If the young man communicates with the United States immigration officer nearest to where he resides, he will be pleased to give him proper information as to his entry into the United States.

QUOTA PREFERENCE IMMIGRANT.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Can a citizen of the United States have his father, who is over 65 years old, come to this country if the quota of said country in Europe is filled already, or are old people over 65 years old put in the quota rate of said country? C. L.

It is necessary for a citizen of the United States to execute form 633 in order to bring his father to this country as a quota preference immigrant. There is no age limit in this respect.

THE RACE BETWEEN THE SPRINTER AND THE HURDLER

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 15, 1864.

WASHINGTON.—It is probable that the general order for the draft will not be issued for some days yet, though drafting has already begun in a few districts. It is understood the war department is about ready to proceed with it everywhere, but as long as men come forward at the present rate by volunteering President Lincoln will withhold the necessary order.

WASHINGTON. — The Richmond Examiner says: "Grant has massed a great many troops on the railroad two miles south of Petersburg, and has within the last ten days pushed his left a quarter of a mile northeast of the railroad. He will at an early day make a grand burst to try to reach the south side railroad at some point near the town. This is to be his next grand movement."

DECATUR, Ill.—The weather is delightful and the attendance at the state fair is large for the second day. The sanitary fair was opened by Gov. Yates, who was introduced to the audience by Gen. R. J. Oglesby, the Union candidate for governor. George W. Gage of the Tremont house, Chicago; David A. Gage of the Sherman house, William Z. Tucker of the Briggs house, and Emory Cobb of the Western Union Telegraph company, and their friends arrived in Supt. Rice's famous Prince Albert car all well and in excellent condition.

CHICAGO.—A sensation was introduced in the finance committee of the Fall Festival association by Chairman Truax of the general committee, who said the whole labor trouble that threatened the success of the festival could be settled on a cash basis. He said that for $5,000 and the expenses of two labor representatives to Washington opposition of labor unions to the laying of the corner stone of the federal building would be withdrawn. He declared the proposition was made to him in the presence of John Barton Payne by M. J. Sullivan, president of the stone cutters' union. Later Mr. Sullivan absolutely denied he had made any such proposal.

LONDON.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily News says that 1,000 men are engaged in strengthening the defenses of Pretoria, and the correspondent of the Times at Pretoria says that it is doubtful whether Kruger will give an unqualified reply to Great Britain's demands. Montagu White, consul general of the South African republic, said he had good authority for believing that the Transvaal government's reply will be unsatisfactory to the British government.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1919.

EL PASO, Tex.—Six thousand dollars in gold was paid Mexicans yesterday for the release of Dr. J. N. Smith, an American, and E. Monsen, believed to be a subject of Sweden, who were taken from a train near Santa Eulalia, Chihuahua, according to reports from Chihuahua City.

BOSTON, Mass.—Determination "to defend the sovereignty of Massachusetts" was expressed by Gov. Coolidge in a telegram sent to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in reply to a request of Mr. Gompers that the governor take a "broad view" of the situation brought about by the policemen's strike in Boston.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—For the second time in three months THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE came to the rescue of the United States senate with information that body has sought in vain on the extent to which President Wilson has committed the United States to participate in European affairs. THE TRIBUNE presented to Senator Lodge the complete official text of the peace treaty signed by Austria. On June 8 it furnished the senate with the text of the treaty with Germany which President Wilson had declined to transmit.

CHICAGO.—Arthur M. Beaupre, intimate friend of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and the diplomat he chose to push through to success this country's negotiations with Colombia for control of the Panama canal, died at his home, 4224 Hazel avenue, at the age of 66.

SIDETRACKED FOR BOULDER DAM.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 23.—What has happened to the Chicago postoffice to be built on the west side? Several years ago a piece of ground was purchased and we read of appropriations being made for the building, but the whole project seems to have been forgotten. Can you give any information about it?

GEORGE W. LUDLOW.

LIVES LOST FOR PROGRESS.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 31.—I have been reading, since the advent of air travel, of the great toll of human lives that is paid daily to further its growth. I have also noticed that all new things and ideas and laws pay a similar toll in some way or another. Very little has been said about the vast amount of deaths due to aero development. On the other hand, large headlines, daring cartoons, fierce criticism have been made and directed at the eighteenth amendment. I agree that some of the things laid at the door of prohibition could have been avoided. However, a great deal of unpleasantness was forced upon the agents who are endeavoring to enforce the law.

However unjust the law may seem to some, it's a law passed by our country and should be respected and enforced. To put across a large order of this kind and leave the fruits of its working to our posterity is worth all that it has cost. We have dry agents because the people make it necessary.

MRS. ABEL ENGELMAN.

COME AGAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—On the evening of Aug. 27 four out of town visitors and I had the pleasure of being taken through your newspaper plant. The trip was indeed enjoyed by each and every one from the very start until the finish.

Let me take this opportunity to thank THE TRIBUNE for this great privilege and also the gentlemen who so kindly guided us, explaining every detail very minutely, making the tour very interesting.

POLITICAL NURSES!

Chicago, Sept. 6.—How can nurses who are not registered in any state by examination hold positions such as superintendent of nurses and floor supervisors at the Municipal Contagious hospital, which is recognized by the American Medical association as a training institution for student nurses? Seems to me it isn't a case of what you know but who you know, and most unfair to those fully capable and eligible of holding the positions. DISGUSTED R. N.

GRATEFUL.

Chicago, Aug. 29. — Just a word of commendation to the staff of the Contagious Disease hospital. A near relative of mine was very badly stricken with a contagious disease and was obliged to remain there for four months. Doctors and nurses gave of their talent and time freely and even at times when they were not required to be on duty. We appreciate greatly this wonderful service which was done so willingly and efficiently. FLORENCE IRENE JOHNSON.

AND FREE CIGARS WILL BRING THE MEN.

Paris, Ill., Sept. 3.—A short time ago I tuned in on an announcement of an exposition to be held in Chicago some time in October. I tuned in too late to hear the entire announcement. I, like all women, like to receive free samples. The announcer said millions of samples would be given away.

I wonder if I could find out when and where this exposition will take place, as I intend visiting Chicago in October and will plan my trip accordingly!

ITALY TO REMAIN UNDER DICTATOR, SAYS MUSSOLINI

800 Fascist Leaders Hear Duce's Speech

BY DAVID DARR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ROME, Sept. 14.—Over a million members of the Fascist party breathed easier today after Premier Mussolini announced that he had no intention of dissolving them and proclaimed that centralization and dictatorship were still the fundamental principles of Italy's government. He gave this announcement in a speech before 800 party leaders in the Palazzo Venezia.

"Never as now," said Premier Mussolini, "have I felt all the living actuality of the Fascist doctrine by which the state is centered in one person, who is complete master. Some philosophers called this a dictatorship and we acknowledge it.

"A dictatorship necessarily is in the political, moral and intellectual life of a man who exercises the dictatorship and in the objects at which it aims."

There had been persistent reports that Premier Mussolini would declare the fascist party's usefulness ended. On the contrary the duce said the party was still the keystone of the political structure, that it was of fundamental importance, and that its members constituted a sort of apostolate of the régime.

Praises Seven Years of Fascism.

No innovations of signal importance were contained in Premier Mussolini's speech. A large part of it was in a defensive eulogistic vein in praise of fascism's seven years af achievement, mixed with ample Nietzschean platitudes about the joy of obedience and nonessentialness of liberty.

Premier Mussolini said that the grand fascist council of 52 members was at present too large a body to deliberate in secret and added some members would be dismissed. In the future also, he said, the secretary of the fascist party would be appointed by royal decree and not be merely a party appointee. Thereby King Victor Emmanuel scores a point and the party secretaryship becomes more amalgamated with government machinery.

He also spoke harshly in many passages about democracy and liberty. He said world interest in fascism is growing by leaps and bounds because fascism is the only original political contribution to the twentieth century, and because the fascism accord is more perfect than any other system with modern political and social necessities.

Authority, Order, Justice.

"For the watchword of the French revolution and democracy, namely liberty, equality and fraternity, fascism has substituted another, namely authority, order, and justice," said Premier Mussolini.

Dwelling on the educational question and the struggle with the church in this field, Premier Mussolini said the state not only had the right, but the duty, to educate and mold its people. As a hint to clerical efforts not to invade this field he reiterated his former statement that "everything is in the state, nothing outside the state, and nothing against the state."

Premier Mussolini further said that relations between the church and the state since the Lateran pact were not bad. Masonry and those clericals who held out for temporal power of the pope were disgruntled, but the masses of the clergy were cooperating loyally with the civil authorities, the duce declared.

Armed Forces Unified.

Reëstablishment of the ministry of agriculture means that the government intends to center on agricultural development. The most salient feature of the ministerial change, however, said Premier Mussolini, was the fact that he abandoned the portfolio for war. This means, he announced, that all armed forces of state have been completely unified and coördinated and can now be intrusted to other hands.

Recent reports show that the great work of reclaiming 4,000,000 acres of land at a cost of $150,000,000 is making enormous strides. Unemployment is decreasing largely through employment on public works and roads. Sixty thousand men are working on the roads.

Concluding, the duce called attention to the changed character of the Italian people. They have ceased their gesticulations, chatter, and superficial carnivalesque ways and have become serious. He denied strenuously that there was any scandal or corruption in the fascist ranks, financially or otherwise, declaring the party leaders were honest and incorruptible.

The premier gave the strength of the Fascist party on Sept. 7, 1929, as 1,030,000 registered male members and 93,495 women, besides thousands of boys and girls in organized groups. The population of Italy is about 40,000,000.

The Cooler Days

The cooler days are not so many weeks away. Then this season's hollyhocks will be only memories, the last of the gladioli will have withered, and only the belated asters will hold the garden trenches against advancing winter.

Once more, the fireplace in the living room will come into its own. The house, and not the garden, will be the center of attraction for family and friends.

It is said that the home is the corner stone of our civilization. Let us furnish it accordingly as the cooler days approach.

DEMOCRATS SHOO 17 JUDGES OFF ELECTION FENCE

Name Your Ticket Quick, Is Ultimatum.

Democratic leaders stepped on the accelerator last night in the judicial campaign and gave the seventeen renominated Superior court judges until tomorrow night to make a quick choice as to which ticket they will run on at the November bench election.

All seventeen last Wednesday night were placed on the rival tickets of the Democrat-Deneen alliance and the Barrett-Snow-Thompson Republican organization. The general theory was that each would have to decide on which ticket he would remain. Yesterday, however, some of the judges spread word they might try to stick on both tickets, despite the ancient understanding of the law that no man's name can appear twice on the same ballot for the same office, and it raised so much doubt that the Democratic chiefs took the bull by the horns and expedited action.

Cermak Issues Ultimatum.

After a conference, County Chairman A. J. Cermak announced that the renominated judges would have to announce their withdrawal from the Republican ticket by the time the Democratic county convention meets tomorrow night. Those who do not withdraw are to be thrown off the Democratic ticket and others are to be nominated in their place. Of the seventeen, nine are Democrats. They are expected to stick with their party. Of the eight Republicans, Mr. Cermak and his chiefs say four are indicating their preference is to run on the Democratic-Deneen ticket.

Two Deneen judges—A. C. Barnes and William H. McSurely, are said by the Democrats ready to pull their names off the Barrett-Snow Republican ticket. The Democrats also say Judges H. B. Miller and Hugo Pam have indicated they are inclined that way.

Give Voters a Choice.

"Our action," said Mr. Cermak, "is with a view of demonstrating there is no coalition. Some question arose today as to whether candidates could run on both tickets. Lawyers pointed out the possibility of a loophole, and to prevent that and to insure the public two tickets, we ask the judges to choose the ticket they will run on by Monday night. Those who do not withdraw from the Republican ticket will be dropped off our ticket and others nominated. We will have a full ticket in the field.

"This procedure is to protect the voters in the right of a choice between candidates at the polls. I am convinced that the Democratic party acted wisely, and rendered a distinct public service."

Brundage Asks New Deal.

A new deal in the Republican party was called for by Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, in a statement which curry-combed present leaders, including Senator Deneen and Mayor Thompson. Mr. Brundage says the Republican party is now "nothing but a shadow" and it needs a new and public spirited leadership. He says he will join with any element which "proposes a way out of the mess," and, failing that, he proposes to tackle the job himself.

"Our county situation is discouraging," said the Brundage statement. "We are now confronted with a judicial campaign along factional coalition lines. On one side Senator Deneen in carrying out his political alliance with Tony Cermak, has won the first skirmish, and this leading Republican, associated with the Republican national committeeman, has succeeded in placing four of his faction upon the Democratic ticket, in which they propose to unite to elect their four friends and twelve Democrats, totally unmindful of what happens to the Republican sitting judges, who might like to remain Republican.

Takes Whack at Galpin.

"Cermak, a former bi-partisan ally of State's Attorney Crowe, is now working the bi-partisan game with a Republican senator—the wet and the dry united spoils the objective. On the other side of our local Republican picture we have Homer Galpin still kept as the chairman of the party and exhorting the committeemen to nominate good judges. Galpin's failure to answer the grand jury summons alone makes him impossible as a political leader. The continuance of him as chairman is asinine.

"To be fair, I believe Snow and Barrett tried conscientiously with the bar association to name a good ticket, renaming all sitting judges, including those affiliated with Deneen, but they could not work with the tools available, and besides they were wrong in their premises—the people do not want coalition.

"Deneen justifies his course by claiming that he represents the vote cast in opposition to Small, Thompson, and Crowe a year ago. He forgets that the county committee was selected by the voters at the same time as party managers.

Calls Deneen Lucky.

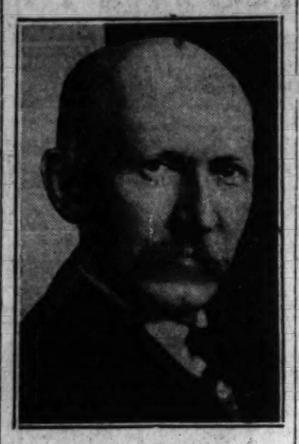
"Deneen did not create the sentiment of a year ago. He simply rode the tidal wave. Sometimes luck is mistaken for astuteness. Up to the time Mayor Thompson took Small from him Deneen was in close political alliance with Small and owes his present seat in the senate to Small's help. He should not criticize Thompson, but be grateful to Thompson for having lifted the label of Smallism from him.

"My criticism of the whole lot is that there cannot be any successful Republican party until there is a different kind of leadership.

"Coalition, which is another name for bi-partisanship, in the selection of judges means absolutely a denial to the people of any voice in the selection of the men who are to try the issues involving their property, their injuries, and even their freedom. This power should not be in the hands of ward committeemen.

"I am speaking as a man who has been honored by the Republican party and the voters of Illinois who feels that there must be absolutely a new deal if the Republican party is going to be worthy of public confidence. I am willing to join with any responsible element that proposes a way out of this mess."

PIONEER DIES



ACORS W. RATHBUN.
[Maizene Photo.]

Funeral services for Acors Wells Rathbun of Glen Ellyn, pioneer resident of Du Page county, will be conducted by St. Bernard commandery of the Knights Templar in Oriental consistory temple at 935 North Dearborn street at 1 p. m. Tuesday, and by Glen Ellyn lodge of the Masons at 4 p. m. in Glen Ellyn. Mr. Rathbun, who was 66 years old, and for many years active in the printing business in Chicago, died Friday in Henrotin hospital after an operation.

Mr. Rathbun was president of the Rathbun-Grant-Heller company, printers and advertisers. He was vice president of the Old Colony Life Insurance company, and director in several other concerns, including the Central Copper company of Arizona. He was a past potentate of Medinah temple, past master of Glen Ellyn lodge of the Masons, and past commander of St. Bernard commandery.

He is survived by his widow, Annie Louise Rathbun, by his sons, Acors Earl, Harry Rowland, and Rowland D., and his daughters, Mrs. Irene Rathbun Bradshaw and Mrs. Lola Rathbun Grote.

BOYS, TRAPPED IN OIL PIT, SAVED BY HUMAN CHAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—With oily pitch licking at their chins, three boys who sank in the supposedly bottomless La Brea oil pits while chasing a squirrel, and three trapped rescuers, were saved from suffocation here by a chain of firemen.

Like the great beasts of past centuries which were drawn to the pits by the cries of trapped animals, William Newman, 15, dashed into the pitch after the squirrel. His companions, Willard Marshall, 12, and Jack Shoenair, 14, followed, and within a few minutes all three had sunk to their hips. Three men who attempted to rescue the boys also were trapped, and when firemen arrived all six were up to their chins in the pitch and sinking rapidly.

Firemen formed a human chain and with the aid of ladders dragged the six to safety. The coatings of tar were the only ill results of the near tragedy.

3 Killed, 4 Badly Hurt When Train Hits Auto

Peru, Ill., Sept. 14.—(AP)—One man and two children are dead, a third child is dying, and a mother and three other children are injured seriously because a New York Central locomotive hit an automobile at a crossing near McNabb, south of here, today. Laverne Ahlstrom, 8 is said to be dying. The mother of the Ahlstrom children, Mrs. Minnie Ahlstrom, 40, is seriously injured, as are three of her other children, Leannea, 6, Rogene, 4, and 17 months old Barbara.

American Woman Dies in Paris After Short Illness

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Mary Kilgour Miller of Cincinnati, sister of Bayard Kilgour, died at a hotel in the Rue Rivoli this morning. She had been ill only a short time. For several years she had been a resident of both New York and Paris. Her daughter, Mrs. Mary Nordella, is expected to arrive shortly from the United States.

E. J. Fanuels, Attorney, Dies After Long Illness

E. J. Fanuels, attorney, who had had offices at 7 South Dearborn street for many years, died last night at his home in the East End Park hotel after a long illness. He was 65 years old. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Mildred Fanuels, and a daughter, Cecile. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

KILLED BY SILO CHUTE.

Lincoln, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Leo Mallory, 14, was instantly killed and Albert Richmond, a farmer, was seriously injured Saturday afternoon when a chute of ensilage cutter fell upon them while they were filling a silo on the Richmond farm near Armington.

LEGAL CALENDAR JAM IS WORST IN COURT ANNALS

Hope for Relief Through More Judges Is Slight.

Superior and Circuit courts will open the fall term tomorrow with calendars overcrowded worse than ever before. The present number of judges, it was said, is entirely inadequate to handle the growing volume of business, as each court has an increase of 2,500 cases over last year, according to estimates made by Superior Court Clerk Szymczak and Circuit Court Clerk Wallace.

In the law division of the Superior court twelve judges have an average of 1,100 law cases on their call. It it estimated that each judge can dispose of approximately 800, which will leave many litigants without prompt adjudications. There is little hope of the legislature granting relief by increasing the number of judges.

9,210 Divorce Suits Pending.

Ten regular Superior judges, Caylor, David, Eller, Gentzel, Kavanagh, Lewis, Lindsay, McKinley, Pam, and Steffan are assigned to the law division of the Superior court. Two downstate judges, Harry C. Stuttle and Frank W. Shepherd, will take the calls of Judges Cook and Foell, who are ill. In the chancery division Judges Denis J. Sullivan, Hebel, and Fitch must dispose of a total of 2,500 equity matters and Judges Sabath and Williams of a divorce call of 9,210 suits.

In the law division of the Circuit court Judges David M. Brothers, Caverly, Fisher and Taylor each have a call of approximately 1,200 cases. The calls of Judges Klarkowski and Rush, who have been assigned to the Criminal court, will be heard respectively by Judges Craig A. Hood and Harry W. McEwan from downstate.

Circuit Court the More Crowded.

In the Circuit court chancery division Judges William V. Brothers, Feinberg, Friend and Sullivan have an average call of 950 new cases besides 600 cases passed over from last year's calendar. Judge Lynch, who will sit in the divorce court, has a call of more than 2,500 cases. The crowding in the Circuit court is more acute than that in the Superior court because of the deaths of Judges Comerford and Arnold.

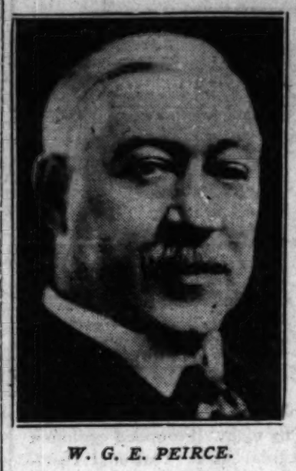
Under the law the county is entitled to seventeen more judges, Chief Chancellor Denis E. Sullivan of the Superior court said. The law allows a judge for every 50,000 in population, and the county is far behind the ratio.

"The law recently passed by the legislature forcing litigants to decide when they file suits whether or not they will seek jury trials will aid materially in speeding up courts," Judge Sullivan said. "But we will not have the full benefit of this, since many cases were filed before the law became effctive."

TRAIN COLLISION KILLS TWO.

Andover, Mass., Sept. 14.—(AP)—An engineer and fireman were killed and two other engine crews injured today when two locomotives, coupled together and running light, collided with a freight train on the Boston and Maine line at Shawsheen village.

TAKEN BY DEATH



W. G. E. PEIRCE.

William G. E. Peirce, who was affiliated with the Illinois Bell Telephone company for thirty-five years and a familiar figure in Chicago musical and dramatic groups, died Friday at the Chicago Athletic association, where he had made his home for a number of years.

Mr. Peirce was born in New Bedford, Mass., in 1857 and came to Chicago as a young man. He retired two years ago as contract agent for the Bell Telephone company. He was a member of the Forty club and the Chicago Athletic association, a founder of the Chicago Mendelssohn club, and for several years was a director of the Skokie Country club.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Mary M. Peirce of Evanston, a nephew, George J. Pope of Glencoe, and two nieces, Miss Susan Goodwin of Chicago, and Mrs. George W. Tracy of Glencoe. Services will be held Monday at 3 p. m. at the chapel at 1818 South Michigan avenue. Burial in Oakwoods cemetery will be private.

Sir Robert Lorimer, Famed Scotch Architect, Dies

EDINBURGH, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Sir Robert Lorimer, 65, famous architect, died today. Among the most notable structures he planned are the Scottish national war memorial at Edinburgh castle and the new chapel for the Knights of the Thistle at St. Giles cathedral, Edinburgh. His whole professional career was spent in Scotland. He was knighted in 1911.

DEATHS OF A DAY

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Gen. William A. Wright, 85 year old veteran of the civil war and for half a century comptroller-general of Georgia, died. He served with 17 governors.

MORRISON, Ill.—Alfred N. Abbott of Morrison died today in Jane Lamb hospital at Clinton, Ia., after a week's illness. Mr. Abbott was one of the best known agriculturists in this section and served this district in the state legislature.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(AP)—Charles Paist Jr., 58, advertising man and former president of the Poor Richard club of Philadelphia, died.

COLUMBUS, Ind.—George Pence, age 77, a leader in state historical work and long in public life, died.

Dignified Simplicity

For more than sixty years a tradition of dignified simplicity has been a vital part of the Skeeles-Rockefeller organization. It has been our constant policy to avoid all pagan pomp and distressing display.

A funeral service conducted by Skeeles-Rockefeller is essentially an impressive tribute to one departed . . . it is a model of unobstrusive efficiency, of all-inclusive friendly service.

Every item in a Skeeles-Rockefeller funeral is included in one moderate charge. Two chapels, strategically located on the north and south sides, are easily accessible from any part of the city—conveniently reached by elevated, surface lines or bus. Wherever you live our service is available.

INDIANA SCHOOL CLOSES DOOR TO BOY WHO SLIPPED

Indianapolis, Ind. Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Indiana university officials today maintained their refusal to readmit Arthur W. Schaible, age twenty-one, of Wanatah, because of his conviction this summer on a bootlegging charge. Governor Harry G. Leslie disposed to uphold them.

Governor Leslie learned from Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana University, that a transcript of the youth's credits had been obtained for presentation at another college and that no obstacle would be placed in his path by the Indiana school authorities. Under a rule of the Indiana institutions of higher education, however, a student expelled from one school can not gain entrance to another.

Schaible, a pre-medical student, was arrested by federal prohibition agents last summer after liquor had been found in his possession at Chicago. Serving as a bell boy on a great lakes steamship, he said he obtained the whisky at Sault Ste. Marie for some passengers. He pleaded guilty before a United States commissioner at Chicago and with two other youths, students at other colleges, received a suspended sentence.

"We Had Better Call Hursen"

"Yes, we will have Hursen attend to the funeral. Then we will be sure that we will have given the very best as a last tribute and, besides, the cost will have been even less than we would be charged elsewhere."

This, in effect, is the usual decision arrived at by families in every part of Chicago and its suburbs. They know that when a funeral is directed by "Hursen" it is unsurpassed in quality, in beauty, in service and in automobile equipment. They know that this is true in every instance, whether the funeral be large or small, and no matter what their distance away.

You have noticed perhaps the unusual automobile equipment used at "Hursen" funerals. The "Hursen" limousines for carrying passengers are unexcelled in beauty, in size, and in riding comfort by any other equipment for the purpose used in America. There is no charge for this superior equipment above the usual auto hire.

Even with all this superiority, you are reminded that the cost of "Hursen" funerals is but a fraction of the charges made anywhere else. Call Hursen, of course!

RUSSIA DECLARES STATE OF WAR, CHINA REPORTS

Tribune Writer Finds No Cruelty to Prisoners.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—An official communique today said the Chinese intelligence service had learned the soviet government had advised Vladivostok officials that a state of war existed. The communique said the intelligence service had learned that the soviet had mobilized all its forces along the Siberian fronts and had ordered all military commanders to attend a secret conference.

The communique added that the Chinese intelligence service learned the soviets had arrested 7,000 Chinese living in Vladivostok. Gen. Chang Tso-hiang notified Mukden that his armies expect an attack momentarily.

VISITS PRISON CAMP

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HARBIN, Sept. 10.—[Delayed by Censor.]—Accompanied by Leonard Lilliestrom, American vice consul, I made a detailed inspection today of the Chinese concentration camp, where 1,163 soviet prisoners are held. Most of them are members of soviet labor unions employed at the various Chinese Eastern railway stations between Harbin and the Russian border, but they also include a number of soviet residents of Harbin and vicinity.

The Chinese say they have a specific charge against each prisoner, varying from cutting telephone and telegraph wires to removing rails and attempting to blow up locomotives or bridges, or other offenses consisting of inciting strikes for the purpose of blocking train operations.

Among the prisoners were 56 women and 13 children, 6 girls and 7 boys. The women and children were brought here with their husbands and fathers from outlying stations. The Chinese say they have no charges against the women, but are unable to release them since they have no means of support, hence they are being held in the camp temporarily.

Mr. Lilliestrom, who speaks Russian fluently, closely questioned the spokesman of each baracks, where the men were confined in groups ranging from 20 to 60 prisoners. The chief complaint was that the food was uncooked. There were also complaints of lack of bathing facilities, close confinement, and in a few cases lack of medical attention. However, it was found that only two of the cases were sufficiently grave to warrant hospitalization. The women and children are given more freedom than the men and have better quarters.

The food provided for the prisoners consists of tea, sugar, potatoes, tomatoes, and cucumbers for breakfast, tea and bread for luncheon, and tea and bread for dinner. The prisoners have been promised meat or soup as soon as kitchen facilities, now under construction, have been completed.

Prisoners Refuse "Charity."

I presented the prisoners with cigarettes, which in a few cases were rejected on the grounds that the soviets are not objects of charity.

Following the inspection the Chinese officials discussed the problems of the prisoners. The Chinese declare that most of their troubles are due to the rapid increase in the number of prisoners. However, a large force of laborers was observed putting up new buildings, kitchens, a hospital, and latrine facilities.

In a few cases prisoners said they were beaten at the hands of the police, but the Chinese denied this, stating that in a few instances it was necessary to use force to quell quarrels among the prisoners and in the event that any one of them refused to obey the prison discipline they were placed in solitary confinement.

Routine of a Day.

The prison routine is as follows: Rise at 6 a. m., following which there is a half hour for outdoor exercise, then breakfast and confinement indoors until 5 p. m., when another half hour for exercise is allowed; following this the prisoners return to the sleeping quarters.

All the prisoners are provided with blankets and sleep on wooden benches in two long rows extending the length of the building. Each building is about 100 feet long and 25 feet wide. The buildings are of brick construction and have floors and windows. The camp is guarded by 200 police armed with rifles and revolvers. Each barracks is provided with drinking water and hot water for washing.

Finds No Cruelty.

In reference to stories of cruelty circulated from Moscow I found little evidence of it here. In Harbin stories were circulated regarding Chinese executions and torture of soviet prisoners, but I have been unable to obtain any evidence from eyewitnesses among the foreigners and the Chinese emphatically deny them. The Chinese permit the wives and members of their families to visit the camp and bring food, clothing, and comforts, but do not permit them to see or converse with the prisoners.

The Chinese officials are unable to say how long the prisoners will be held, but they are making preparations for a long siege and are constructing heating facilities for winter weather. When asked why they do not deport the prisoners, the Chinese allege soviet cruelties to Chinese prisoners in the Siberian concentration camps and declare that confinement in the concentration camps here is the only possible means of breaking up the sabotage and violence for which the soviets are declared responsible.

VETERANS OF 4 WARS TO HOLD CARBONDALE CONVENTION SEPT. 28

Carbondale, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Veterans of four wars will gather here Sept. 28 and 29 at the convention of the 4th Illinois and 130th Veterans' association.

When Illinois was fighting the Indians this military unit was known as the Fourth Illinois riflemen. In the civil war it was the Fifth cavalry, and in the world war it became the 130th infantry.

The organization also took part in the Spanish-American war. Gen. John V. Clinnin of Chicago, who commanded the 130th during the world war, will make the memorial speech here on Sunday, Sept 29, at Woodlawn cemetery. Gen. Clinnin's address will be delivered on the same hallowed ground were Gen. John A. Logan, in decorating the graves of his comrades of the civil war, conceived the thought of national Decoration day.

SWANSON WON'T USURP JOBS OF POLICE, HE SAYS

State's Attorney John A. Swanson yesterday denied that he had any intention of having his assistant prosecutors usurp the functions of the police officials. He said, however, that he has instructed his assistants to see that all law violations called to their attention are taken care of by the police and if not to report the matter to him.

"I do not intend to become a policeman," said the prosecutor in discussing the prohibition raids made on Friday by Assistant State's Attorney Leonard J. Mandel. "I expect the police to do their duty, but I have no criticism to make of my assistant for having led the raids in his district."

Another official of the state's attorney's office was reported, however, to have told Prosecutor Mandel to tend to his own knitting as a court prosecutor and to leave the police duties to the properly designated persons.

Prosecutor Mandel said yesterday he had not directed the raids, but had merely accompanied the police raiders, led by Sergt. James Quinn.

DETROIT MERELY INDIFFERENT TO GULF WATERWAY

Business Men Hesitate to Follow Politicians.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—Special.]—A change seems slowly dawning in the attitude of eastern Michigan towards the lakes to gulf waterway. Talks with manufacturers and traffic specialists indicate that Detroit business interests are not performing in the manner the politicians may have led the outside world to infer. Sentiment towards the opening of the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico through the Chicago gateway appears to be not antagonistic, but indifferent.

The St. Lawrence seaway is what they talk about here. Detroit calls itself a "fast freight town." Automobile makers are for quick transportation of highly manufactured products to keep down the amount of money tied up in goods in transit. This is held to be one reason for the scant interest in barge service through the $26,000,000 Illinois waterway down the Mississippi to gulf ports. But some of the automobile factories have been utilizing the government Mississippi barge service to some extent, sending automobiles under their own power to Cairo or St. Louis and putting them on barges for distribution into the south and southwest markets.

Antagonizing Market Area.

The situation has become rather muddled. Now one finds manufacturers asking whether the politicians have not started Michigan off on the wrong foot in opposing water diversion at Chicago for navigation of the lakes to gulf route. It is one of the six lake states which brought the suit which led to the decree of the United States Supreme court this year denying the right of water withdrawals for sewage dilution but leaving open the question of withdrawals for navigation, and it joined in the more recent request that not more than 1,000 cubic feet per second be allowed for navigability, which has been regarded as a scheme of the Niagara hydro-electric and the steel trust combine to kill off the lakes to gulf water route by making it unnavigable.

Some manufacturers now are pointing out that Michigan has been placed in a position of antagonism toward the Mississippi valley states, where it has great markets. At the same time, although its great interest is in the St. Lawrence sea route, the state has tied up with New York, which is leading the fight against the St. Lawrence project in favor of an "all American route."

Long Shore, Many Harbors.

Michigan has the longest shore line of all the lake states, the Detroit river is the greatest maritime thoroughfare in the world, the Soo canal is the world's greatest waterway gate, carrying four times the traffic of the Suez canal.

But on its pet project, the St. Lawrence route to the sea, Michigan can count on nothing but active opposition from its ally, New York, which takes the view that if the St. Lawrence proposal goes through, "Buffalo is ruined and the port of New York will suffer."

Then, too, Michigan has 31 government improved natural harbors besides others improved at local expense. These harbors are so well distributed in the state that there are 91 places where the different railroads touch the shore line. Michigan traffic experts are beginning to point out that with all these contacts the state has a great economic stake in the 9 foot barge outlet from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Manufacturers' Views Summed Up.

The attitude displayed by manufacturers in general is reflected by William H. Burnham of Adrian, president of the Michigan Manufacturers' association.

"It cannot be said," says Mr. Burnham, "that the manufacturers of Michigan are opposed to the Mississippi waterway connecting the great lakes with the Gulf of Mexico. So far as I can judge, they are in favor of it. But they feel the St. Lawrence seaway should be the first installed. It is true that with the Illinois waterway nearing completion, the route from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico will be the earliest opened. It has not been talked of much here, as it is a barge project. But it cannot be intimated that manufacturers in Michigan are antagonistic. It will unquestionably expand the southwest market.

"As to the controversy over the lowering of lake levels, I feel there has been a great deal of nonsense about that."

High water in the lakes appears to have wrecked the old lake levels argument. Summer cottages along the St. Clair flats have been half under water; shore lines have been devastated; a standing joke in Detroit has been that some subdividers have needed rowboats to take prospects to see choice waterfront lots. One comment often heard is that on this matter of water diversions, it is time for the political propagandists to pipe down and let engineers do the talking.

The engineers say the high water has given a new slant to the problem of compansating works in the connecting channels between Lakes Huron and Erie. The joint board of engineers has proposed works that will cost $3,400,000 to overcome the constant differential lowerings of the levels of the great lakes.

Plans May Be Changed.

Some engineers affirm the high water may necessitate some overhauling of plans on the compensating works to keep the lakes from getting higher in high years.

The sanitary district of Chicago has posted a million dollar bond for its share of the controlling works.

In the low water period, when the lake levels argument was at its height, the most said of a diversion of 8,500 cubic second feet at Chicago was that it lowered Lakes Michigan and Huron six inches at mean lake levels. The decreased slope in the Detroit and St. Clair rivers due to dredging of the channels was estimated to lower the levels between seven and eight inches, and the retention of water in Lake Superior for power purposes was estimated to cut three inches off the levels of Michigan and Huron in the low water period.

At present there is a project in the rivers and harbors bill to deep the channels to 24 foot depth at a cost of $24,000,000 [the controlling depth is now about 20 feet], which will increase the discharge unless the compensating works are built.

RELIABILITY TOUR NEXT STUNT FOR AMERICAN FLYERS

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—With the major races of the year over, with advance models of leading aircraft manufacturers daily claiming superiority over planes of the past, one of the first real tests of modern airplane construction and reliability will get under way on Oct. 4 with the start of the competition for the trophy in the national air tour.

Forty entries will take off on that date from Dearborn, Mich., setting out on a fifteen day cruise and closely watched by the scoring committee, which will award the trophy to the plane best suited for commercial purposes. Planes of all classes and descriptions will be among the starters and classifications will be made of their particular purposes so that scoring may be done on an equitable basis.

The fleet will vary from tiny two place biplanes to the giant Curtiss Condor, a twin motored ship of 1,300 horsepower carrying eighteen passengers.

In the contest itself planes will be checked out of the starting field in intervals one minute apart. The entourage will fly to Windsor and Toronto the first day, to Ottawa and Montreal the second, and then by stages through Maine and New England, the middle Atlantic states and the south, returning to Dearborn by way of Georgia, Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Illinois.

Baby Out of Danger; Pin Removed from Stomach

Four months old Bernard Naughton Jr., who swallowed an open safety pin while at play in his home at St. Charles, Ill., Friday, was reported out of danger at the Geneva hospital yesterday. Physicians, who had taken X-rays of the baby's stomach, reported a natural removal of the pin.

WAGGONER GIRDS TO FIGHT RETURN ON FRAUD CHARGE

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—C. D. Waggoner of Telluride, Colo., bank president accused of swindling six New York banks out of half a million dollars, waived a preliminary hearing at Newcastle, Wyo., late today, and was remanded to the county jail at Cheyenne.

Waggoner has retained attorneys to represent him in an effort to resist removal to New York.

A. D. Walton, United States attorney here, has been informed by E. C. Raymond, attorney for Waggoner, that the banker will demand a hearing at Cheyenne on the removal order. He is due to reach Cheyenne in irons at 9:15 a. m. Sunday.

Indictment Planned Monday.

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The federal grand jury will be asked on Monday to return a six count indictment against Charles D. Waggoner of Telluride, Col., who obtained a $500,000 credit here by means of telegrams to six banks.

In making this announcement today United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle said he had decided upon this step as a means of facilitating the removal of Waggoner to this jurisdiction and an early trial. He will not wait the arrival of witnesses from the west, some of whom are expected Monday.

New York Judge Married to Illinois Girl Model

New York, Sept. 14.—[Staff Special.]—It developed today that Judge Francis X. Mancuso of general sessions, who was chairman of the now bankrupt City Trust company had been secretly married for nearly ten weeks. The bride was Miss Paula Helena Thomson, a 28 year old model, who gave her address as a Riverside drive hotel and said that she was born at Gardiner, Ill. The ceremony took place on July 3, being performed by the Rev. Florentino of St. Dominick's church at the Bronx.

EXPLOSION KILLS 3 WORKMEN IN HIGHWAY TUNNEL

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Dispatches received here from Quincy, Plumas county, this afternoon said three men were killed, a fourth badly injured and ten others rescued unhurt, after a premature explosion in a highway tunnel they were constructing near Paxton. The blast trapped the men in the tunnel.

Rescue crews after several hours of digging sighted the body of one of the miners. The miners were starting work on a new section when the cave-in occurred, burying them fifteen feet below the earth's surface. Several tons of earth must be removed before the other bodies can be reached.

CHICAGOAN IS FOUND DEAD.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The body of A. W. Kendall, 40, a Chicago silverware salesman, was found today in the Turkish bathroom of a hotel. The coroner said death was due to heart disease.

CHURCH LEADERS IN ENGLAND AT WAR ON DIVORCE

Modernist Pastor Assails Catholic Viewpoint.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Cardinal Bourne, who yesterday severely decried the modern tendencies of easier divorce and the increased practice of birth control, was severely criticized by prominent advocates of divorce law reform today.

"The whole Roman Catholic view is indefensible," said the Rev. W. F. Geikie Cobb, well known modernist churchman. "Those who are advocating a reform in the divorce laws are doing so in the name of common humanity. Their opponents are inhuman in holding fast to the obsolete, untenable point of view at the expense of people's happiness. It is not Christian."

Calls Catholic View Unchristian.

Silas K. Hocking, vice president of the divorce law reform union, said:

"I cannot see the logic of the Roman Catholic position and cannot reconcile it to a Christian or religious view," he said.

Dr. Elizabeth Sloan Chesser declared that the present divorce laws caused most of the immorality nowadays.

"If these people were released from their miserable marriages they would remarry and there would be less immorality," he said.

Catholics Launch Attack.

Meantime, at the meeting of the National Roman Catholic congress, Father Owen Dudley launched a withering attack on the English church modernists. He described Bishop Barnes and Dean Inge as "very ignorant men."

"They are ignorant of the first things that they, as professing to be Christians, should know," he said. "They are ignorant of theology and the Christian religion. These men are modernists, and modernism is one of the greatest enemies of Catholicism. These men are blinding the multitudes to the revelation of Christ, blinding them with their modernism."

Father Dudley said that until there is a corporate reunion among the Protestants themselves, there is little hope of winning them over as a whole to the Catholic church, but added that Catholicism is gaining many new adherents.

Raps Church of England.

"We are now receiving converts from almost all denominations and sects," he said. "As the people realize that Protestantism is dying, they most instinctively turn towards the growing Catholic church.

"The Church of England, the national church, is fast becoming a farce. Numerically we have just as much right to be the national church. The Church of England will soon change to a sect, and even possibly to an insect."

Evil Called "State of Mind."

LONDON, Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—In an attempt to define obscenity and impropriety from a modern and "scientific" point of view, the advanced thinkers of the International League of Sexual Reform discovered today that they had really nothing better to offer on the subject than the retort of a 14th century English queen. The queen, on losing her garter in public, unblushingly challenged criticism with the famous dictum: "Shame to him who evil thinks."

Oscenity, the delegates of the sex reform league concluded, was just what the wife of Edward III. implied it to be—a state of mind, a matter too subjective, too indefinite to serve as a basis of laws and decrees. The league passed a resolution to that effect, and proposed that human beings should be so educated as to be able to decide for themselves what to avoid and reject as obscene.

"On this ground," the resolution read, "we declare ourselves opposed to all kinds of censorship of sex subjects in literature, scientific publications, pictures and other representations."

See City's Sights

One hundred Chinese students, girls in native dress, and men in European clothing, came into Chicago over the Burlington railroad yesterday and spent several hours sightseeing in the city. A number of them will become students at the University of Chicago, Northwestern, and the University of Illinois, and the others will go on to eastern colleges. They came from China by way of Seattle.

Lock Cashier in a Vault, Rob Bank in Arkansas

Elaine, Ark., Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—Two bandits robbed the Bank of Elaine of $4,400 in cash today after locking the cashier in a vault. Sheriff Barbor of Helena organized a posse to hunt the bandits, who are believed to have fled in an automobile.

TAG DAYS, ONCE HELD TO THREE, NOW TOTAL FIVE

Aldermen Object, but Number Increases.

Despite the oft-repeated contention of members of the city council that tag days should be limited, the number increases steadily, according to an examination yesterday of the council records. Three tag days were considered sufficient by one council but the restrictions drawn by that group in an ordinance have been amended by later councils.

Two organizations, the Children's Benefit league and the Aged and Adult Charities, are mentioned specifically in the ordinance and a third was to be designated by the aldermen. The Federated Charities, according to John A. Richert of the council finance committee staff, is the other organization authorized to sell tags.

Since then the council has authorized the observance of a Poppy day in May and at last Wednesday's meeting gave the Salvation Army the right to tag for a day between Oct. 15 and Nov. 1 to be announced later. The Disabled Veterans of Foreign Wars are expected to hold a Forget-Me-Not day soon, which would increase the number to six.

Restrictions on the number of tag days were required, according to the alderman, due to the habit of ward organizations and pseudo charities of tagging Chicagoans nearly every day of the year. A tag day commission, consisting of the chairman of the finance committee and four other aldermen, was established by ordinance to pass on the credentials of organizations which expressed a desire to participate.

Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th] until recently was chairman of a tag day subcommittee. Yesterday he revealed that the committee had ceased to exist, as it was not reappointed after the reorganization of the council following the election of last spring. All requests for tag days go to the finance committee, he said.

TAG SALE BRINGS IN $91,320 FOR THE UNITED CHARITIES

Receipts from the tag day held last Monday by the Chicago Federated Charities totaled $91,320.85, Miss L. Ellen Babcock, president of the federation, announced yesterday. That amount will be distributed among the charitable institutions forming the federation, according to the earnings of each group's workers. While the total is below the goal of $190,000, Miss Babcock expressed satisfaction over the tag day result. The rainy weather, she said, cut down tag sales during the noon hour.

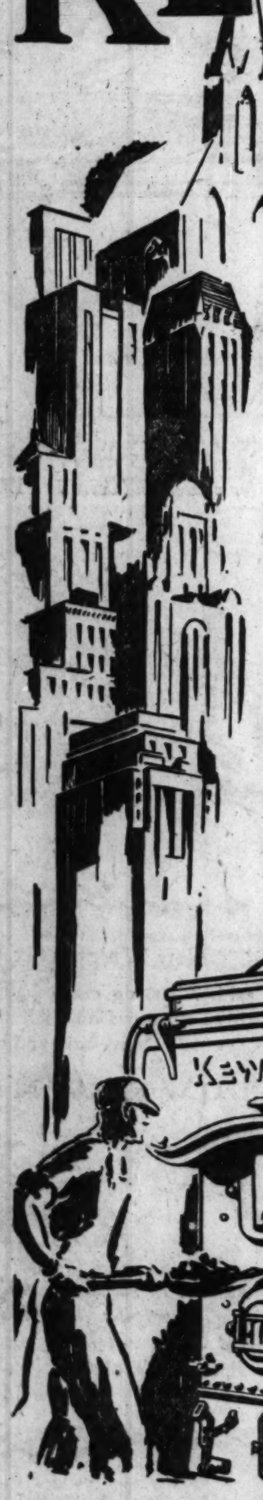
The magnificent, modern structures which mark the rise and progress of great cities, were all built from the boiler up. Not one has ignored the fact that the heating boiler is of dominant importance.

In former years, the heating boiler was the last thing thought of. It was merely an incident. Few owners of buildings actually knew what boilers they had. And they cared less.

Since then, the world has discovered that the success of every fine building depends on its heating boiler, and now it's the FIRST thing that's thought of.

Those buildings equipped with the KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (riveted) FIRE-BOX BOILER — which lasts forever and a day — are permanently-paying investments. This boiler saves their tenants — saves their fuel — saves their profits. This boiler has proved a boon to city and rural schools which no longer indulge in prolonged shut downs for "lack of heat" or "boiler repairs". Apartment-house owners no longer have countless unsatisfactory explanations to make to freezing tenants.



The Kewanee All-steel [riveted] Firebox Boiler is not only the best and most lasting heating boiler in the world, but it is also SMOKELESS with any type of fuel and saves you 25 per cent on your fuel-cost. See or telephone our branch Manager in your city.

JUSTICE OLSON CALLS HICKSON A "SQUAW MAN"

Dr. Meyer Solomon Named to Succeed Alienist.

Dr. William J. Hickson was placed in the category of "squawmen" by Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal court yesterday in a resumption of the verbal fracas that followed the resignation of Hickson as head of the court's psychopathic laboratory on Friday. Judge Olson expressed regret at Hickson's action and attributed the difficulty to the alienist's wife, who assisted him in the laboratory and who also resigned.

In his letter of resignation Dr. Hickson accused Chief Justice Olson, Clerk Kearns of the Municipal court of plotting to force him out of the laboratory. He declared Kegel coveted the research records compiled over a period of years and charged Judge Olson with an attempt to destroy the laboratory.

Dr. Solomon Succeeds Hickson.

There were three other developments in the case during the day:

1. Dr. Meyer Solomon, neurologist in the faculty of the Northwestern university medical school, was appointed acting director of the laboratory by Commissioner Kegel.

2. A statement from Dr. Kegel, nominal head of the laboratory, expressed a regret that he had not summarily discharged Hickson instead of attempting to treat him considerately.

3. Inquiry at the New York address of Dr. Hickson's letter dated five days ago brought the report that he had sailed for Europe two weeks ago.

Judge Olson's Statement.

"The attack of Dr. Hickson on Chief Justice Olson and Dr. Kegel," said Justice Olson's statement, "arises out of the doctor's unwillingness to cooperate with the medical man working in his field, the health department by whom he is employed, the court which furnishes him with the human material and with which he deals and his general unscientific attitude.

"While associated with the court Dr. Hickson demonstrated his scholarly attainments in his chosen field but was forced by Mrs. Hickson to feel that his findings in dealing with criminals should be his private property and should not be given to the public that has paid him over $100,000 over a period of fourteen years.

Calls Situation Unfortunate.

"It is unfortunate that a man of his ability and fine training should fall under the category of 'squawmen' and that his judgment should be directed from the tremendous opportunities in his field by Mrs. Hickson's petty quarrels with clerks employed by Clerk Kearns.

"I have never known Hickson to make a mistake during the years he was examining cases," Judge Olson went on. "He is one of the world leaders in his work and is a great surgeon and toxicologist as well. Dr. Kegel is wrong when he says that Hickson's examinations were not competent. Among the cases sent to the psychopathic hospital by him and dismissed there were a number of persons who later turned out to be murderers, showing that Hickson's judgment was right."

Kegel Prepares Changes.

"The way is now clear to place the laboratory on a scientific foundation so that the findings will be of real worth and guidance to the judiciary," said Dr. Kegel in announcing the appointment of Dr. Solomon as acting director. "I shall give careful consideration to the appointment of a new director and will choose one who will expand the laboratory and will give attention to the problems of the adolescent who comes before the Boys' court. Adolescent delinquency is in need of conscientious scientific study."

Dr. Solomon, in addition to his Northwestern university post, has been employed by the city health department as neurologist. He has had twenty years practice in the field of neurology and psychiatry and was sent to the laboratory to make a survey of its activities when Dr. Hickson departed on his vacation a month ago.

RAIL ENGINEERS TAKING VOTE TO GUIDE LEADERS

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Great Western, Milwaukee, Santa Fe, and Oregon Short Line are taking a strike vote action in an old dispute.

A representative of the engineers said today, however, that even should the vote be to strike, there will be no walkout of engineers on the roads affected, unless negotiations, under way for months, finally fail. The vote is being taken, he said, to sound the sentiment of the engineers to lay a foundation for further negotiations.

The controversy originated between the organizations of the engineers and the brotherhood of locomotive firemen and engineers. It involves an old agreement affecting chiefly young engineers on the "extra," or part time list, who have been promoted to engineers from the ranks of firemen, but who are temporarily acting as firemen, because they are not needed as engineers.

FRENCH SPEED UP YANKEE HURRY TO REACH GAY PAREE

Provide 60 Miles an Hour Trains from Coast.

BY ROBERT SAGE.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—A 60 mile an hour railway service between Cherbourg and Paris, permitting American tourists to arrive at the capital four and one-half hours after debarking instead of six hours as at present, will be inaugurated by the French state railroads on Jan. 1, 1930.

The greatly speeded up service will be only one of several radical improvements planned to make a visitor's arrival here more rapid, more comfortable, and pleasanter. The company's workshops are now working overtime turning out modernized rolling stock and special locomotives adapted for the new service.

Adopt American Style Cars.

These include 75 de luxe all steel coaches with special provisions for safety and comfort. They will not be divided into compartments like most French cars, but will be open and will be equipped with luxurious easy chairs in which the tourists can remain while meals are being served.

Another important change will be the abandonment of the immense St. Lazare station, located in the ugly congested central districts of Paris, and switching the trains to the Invalides station, which is located at the edge of the Seine beside the beautiful Esplanade des Invalides, not far from Nepoleon's tomb and across the river from the Champs des Elysées.

Thus a new arrival's first glimpse of the capital will be of the airiest and most beautiful part. In order to make this change the Invalides station will have to be entirely rebuilt, as it is too small for its intended purpose. The Cherbourg maritime station will likewise have to be enlarged and modernized.

Improvement Long Contemplated.

The new train service which was announced today is the result of long patient experimentation in providing the American tourist with the utmost comfort. An experimental train has already been run over the 230 mile course in three hours and twenty-three minutes carrying instruments for registering the oscillation of coaches when traveling at high speed.

As a result of this test four hours and one-half was fixed as the ideal time, and it was decided to reinforce the rails of the entire line. A mountain type locomotive will be employed, designed to haul a full load at a rate of 60 miles per hour with a maximum speed of 75 miles per hour, which is the railroad speed limit prescribed by French law.

TURKEY GOES IN FOR READING; DUE TO NEW ALPHABET

This is the sixth of a series of articles on the new Turkey by a Tribune correspondent who is making an airplane trip through Asia Minor and North Africa.

BY LARRY RUE.

ANGORA [Ankara], Turkey, Aug. 23.—[By mail.]—The nipping of the monarchistic plot in the bud, the execution of its leaders, cleared the political atmosphere in Turkey and opened the way for radical reforms which were to follow.

The separation of church and state established the social status of Turkish women for the first time in history on a par with man. The veil was abolished. Her equality as a citizen, or in the professions, was a revolution in itself.

But even with this Mustafa Kemal Pasha was not content. He wanted to erase the stamp of the Moslem on the nation itself. Much has been written humorously about the abolishing of the fez, and the substituting of the hat. But this is not a superficial gesture. Its purpose lies deeper. It eradicated from the life of 14,000,000 Turks the visible reminder of former Christian hatreds. It destroyed the physical symbol of the gap between the east and west. It has actually established a contact between the European and the Turk that could never have existed before.

How Kemal Kicked Out Fez.

Kemal did this with characteristic action. This subject had been discussed, but the Ghazi kept his opinion to himself. Advisers had counseled against such a move; mob resistance was predicted. Without confiding to any one his intentions he went to Kastamuni, a very hotbed of religious fanaticism.

He called together religious leaders, kicked fezzes out of the assembly room, and announced their abolishment by law. It is thus Kemal has always attacked. He has hit unexpectedly where the opposition is strongest.

The result was electrical. Within a few weeks the entire nation wore hats and caps. Even in Kastamuni the fezzes disappeared in a few hours after they were legally prohibited. There is no sign of opposition to the hat. It is generally agreed to be a better protection against cold, rain or sun than the traditional fez.

President Acts as Teacher.

The substituting of the Latin for the Arabic character and the Roman calendar for the Mohammedan has brought Turkey still farther toward the west. The Arabic character containing 127 letters took years to learn. Many children after having studied for two years quit school without being able to master the alphabet.

The Ghazi himself publicly appeared throughout the country in the rôle of school teacher. In villages he himself introduced the new alphabet. On a big blackboard he would read the new characters and spell out Turkish words. The spelling being phonetic, it becomes the simplest of all languages.

The introduction of Latin characters made possible the use of linotype machines and typewriters. An American concern alone sold 3,000 machines to the Turkish government. Never in the history of Turkey has there been such a list of publications turned out.

A New Popular Pastime.

Instead of being resented, the new alphabet has met with enthusiastic reception. Those who never could read or write before began to study. In cafes, restaurants, on the streets, groups still gather, spelling out words.

In a little Turkish village 40 kilometers from Angora, where I spent a night, I found ten Turks who knew the new alphabet; only two of these knew the old. Newspaper editors say they still suffer from lost subscriptions but that this is being gradually regained. One editor, however, told me that Turkey today is only 50 per cent illiterate, where before the new alphabet was introduced 85 per cent of the population could neither read nor write. Progress of school children has been accelerated enormously.

Kemal still plans another change. The Moslem Sabbath still occurs on our Friday. The Ghazi when in Constantinople recently received the president of the chamber of commerce, himself a very religious man. The commerce expert complained that owing to the closing of the Turkish banks and exchanges on Friday, Turkey suffered great financial losses. Kemal asked what could be done about it. It was suggested that beginning next year the calendar would be changed so that the Turkish Friday would fall upon our Sunday. The Turk word for Friday will conform to the European Sunday.

On this point the Ghazi avoided taking the initiative. The change will be made at the request of the chamber of commerce, the leaders of which are known for their Moslem faith.

A shrewd political sagacity is herein revealed. Only through the influence of the Ghazi could such a change be made. But here, as always, the demand comes from without. While the Ghazi has led every reform, the revolution itself, has been conducted not in his name, but in the name of the grand national assembly. Legally that body has the sovereign power; without its support the president is helpless.

PONTIAC BIG SIX
PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Although Pontiac value has been world-famous ever since the first Pontiac appeared in 1926, it has remained for the Pontiac Big Six to prove the greatest value of them all. This is true for a perfectly obvious reason—the Pontiac Big Six was the first to introduce the "big car" idea into the low-priced field. BIG CAR PERFORMANCE based on the greatest combination of big car features ever offered at or near $745! BIG CAR BEAUTY—achieved by modish new Fisher bodies in a variety of colors and smartened by the exclusive concave belt moulding and flaring 70-inch fenders! BIG CAR COMFORT—due to roomy interiors, adjustable driver's seat and full length springs! BIG CAR RELIABILITY—made possible by engineering advancements which definitely assure dependable performance and eliminate any necessity for frequent adjustments or repairs! In other words, BIG CAR VALUE—and yet you save in every way when you buy a Pontiac Big Six!

Pontiac Big Six, $745 to $895, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Bumpers, spring covers and Lovejoy shock absorbers regular equipment at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for handling and for financing when the Time Payment Plan is used.

CHIEF OF THE SIXES

Save IN PURCHASE PRICE
Pontiac is the lowest-priced six in the world combining a 200 cubic inch L-head engine . . . the Harmonic Balancer to eliminate crankshaft vibration . . . the cross-flow radiator with automatic temperature-control . . . gasoline pump in place of a vacuum system . . . two separate braking systems including noiseless, dirt-and-weather-proof internal-expanding service brakes . . . bodies by Fisher in a variety of Duco colors.

Save IN MAINTENANCE
According to the records of a large public utilities company which operated 996 automobiles of 33 different makes during 1928, Pontiac costs one cent per mile less to own and drive than any other low-priced six. The average car is driven 10,000 miles per year. On this basis Pontiac Six costs $100 less per year to own, which is just like saving $100 when you buy!

Save IN OPERATING COST
Pontiac costs less to drive because its automatic spark control assures highest engine efficiency . . . because the G-M-R cylinder head promotes high compression operation using ordinary gasoline . . . because its crankcase ventilating system maintains the quality of engine oil over longer periods . . . because the cross-flow radiator eliminates losses of alcohol in winter . . . because its special non-squeak brake linings frequently serve for more than 30,000 miles without replacement.

Save IN DEPRECIATION
Check the offerings of Used Car Dealers and you will find Pontiac resale values uniformly high. Pontiac's impressive record of performance and dependability has built a ready market for used Pontiacs. Hence the owner of a Pontiac Six saves in depreciation when he is ready to buy a new automobile.

Never before has there been a buying opportunity such as the Pontiac Big Six affords today. No other six at or near its price gives you so many big car features. Come in! Let us give you all the facts—and clinch the facts with a demonstration. We are prepared to deal liberally with you on your used car—and this is your chance to enjoy big car advantages at small car cost. A small down payment—and a few dollars a month take care of the balance. Bring in your car and get our appraisal.

DETECTIVE SHOT HAGERTY TWICE, REPORTER SAYS

Wood Murder Case Jury Hears Newspaper Man.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—[Special.] Detective Sergeant John Whitman of the homicide squad fired twice into the prostrate body of Ambrose L. Hagerty, Frederick W. Schultze, Detroit Free Press reporter, testified today at the murder trial of Ralph A. Wood, Herbert L. Sullivan and Cecil W. Hall. Schultze was called to the stand by the state.

He said he hid in the house facing Wood's real estate office until the firing commenced. Then he rushed out and ran to where Hagerty's body lay, by the doorstep of Wood's office, he said. He went into the office, turned on the lights and grabbed a telephone.

Tells of Conversation.

Whitman aimed two shots at the body, Schultze continued. And while waiting for a telephone connection, he testified, he heard Detective Charles Searle say to Whitman:

"John, what did you do that for?"

And Whitman, according to Schultze, replied:

"I had a couple of shots left. I might as well give them to him."

Whitman and Searle then turned over the bleeding body, Schultze testified.

Mrs. Wood Sought in Vain.

Frank Darin, representing the defense, said that Schultze's testimony corroborated the defense theory that Hagerty was not necessarily slain by Wood, but that he might have been killed by police officers.

Search for Mrs. Grace M. Wood to subpoena her as a witness for the state in the trial of her husband is a hopeless quest, Charles Lambert, chief investigator for the prosecutor's office said today.

Drug in Cake Addressed to Prisoner Traps Wife

Miss Grace Cummings, 30 years old, 823 Montrose avenue, was arrested yesterday when she tried to smuggle 30 grains of morphine to her husband, Gavin Cummings, a government prisoner. The latter, an alleged drug addict, is being held in the county jail for trial. Warden David Moneypenny discovered the drug in a cake taken to the jail by Mrs. Cummings. Miss Esther Dobbs, a companion of Mrs. Cummings, was turned over to the federal authorities for questioning.

Wife Ends Life in Lake as Husband Calls Sanitarium

While her husband was in a drug store telephoning a sanitarium, Mrs. Olive Neyer, 54 years old, 5629 North Maplewood avenue, left their automobile and ended her life by plunging into the lake off Jarvis avenue yesterday. Capt. John Schmidt and a crew of life guards from the Rogers Park beach recovered the body. John A. Neyer, the husband, said his wife had been suffering from a nervous breakdown and that he was taking her to a sanitarium when she left the automobile.

BRITAIN APPOINTS BOARD TO PROBE PALESTINE RIOTS

Will Seek Way to Avoid Future Trouble.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—A commission of inquiry into the causes of the recent outbreaks in Palestine was appointed today by Lord Passmore, British colonial secretary.

The commission is composed of Sir Walter Shaw, former chief justice of the Straits Settlements; Sir Henry B. Betterton, M. P.; R. H. Morris, M. P.; Henry Snell, M. P., and T. I. K. Lloyd of the colonial office, who will be secretary.

CHINESE PIRATES SEIZE SHIP, HOLD TWO FOR RANSOM

PEIPING, China, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Smooth seas made easy the task of the pirates who seized the Norwegian steamer Botnia off Haichow and held Capt. Haaland and Chief Officer Westerheim for ransom.

The steamer had gone on the bar off Haichow and the pirate junks swarmed about her. There were about 20 pirates to each junk, their craft being armed with two old fashioned Chinese cannon at the bow and having two square metal plates hung over the sides as armor.

BRUNSWICK INVITES YOU TO A RADIO PROGRAM - BROADCAST MAY 4th LAST at 12:11 MIDNIGHT New York City

And At The Same Time To Listen To The Identical Program As It Was Received Through The NEW BRUNSWICK RADIO

YOU can have no true conception of the fineness of radio programs until you have heard them as received through the NEW Brunswick Radio—Brunswick being the first and only maker to announce and prove "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

As a result, for the first time, you can actually hear music, orchestra, every instrument, every type of voice, anything and everything exactly as it is broadcast, precisely as though you were in the studio where the program originates—without loss of quality.

A Dramatic Demonstration

Brunswick not only announces a new standard of radio reception, but every Brunswick dealer can prove it definitely right in his own store—demonstrating the Brunswick Radio to you as no other Set can or will be demonstrated.

He will re-create for you the most dramatic and convincing Test for Radio Tone and Reception ever conceived. He will reproduce for you a broadcast made at 12:11 midnight, May 4th last, at the studio of WABC, New York City. You will hear this Broadcast just as though you had been in the Studio of Station W A B C, on that date.

And, at the same time, you will hear the same program just as it was received through a stock model of the NEW Brunswick Radio. And so, for the first time, you can compare the pre-microphone studio performance of great artists with the work of these same artists as it sounds when received through the NEW Brunswick Radio.

No other Radio was ever subjected to a Test so drastic.

No other Radio offers proof of "Tone" and "Reception" in permanent, demonstrable form.

Brunswick invites you to hear this intensely interesting Test—at the shop of any authorized Brunswick Dealer. It proves, as nothing else can, that Brunswick and Brunswick alone, has the right to claim "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

The NEW Brunswick Radio is made in three models

You'll be out-of-date within a year without an Eight

Why wait another year for an EIGHT?

Motor history repeats itself. You remember what happened to the Four in the medium and high priced fields.

The Six is now succumbing to a sweeping trend toward the Eight—the car of today and tomorrow. In 1923 only 10 per cent of all makes were Eights. This year 41 per cent are Eights.

Studebaker, foreseeing this trend, two years ago brought out an Eight to sell at moderate six cylinder cost.

Today Studebaker sells more Eights than any other automobile manufacturer—Eights that are champions through and through—that hold 11 world records and more American stock car records for speed and endurance than all other makes put together.

Extra gear shifting won't give a six-cylinder car the smoothness and flexibility of a Studebaker Straight Eight. Wealth of power, smoothness at all speeds, flashing acceleration—manifest and provable thrift—these qualities are found without compromise in a Studebaker Eight.

Today look over a smart new Studebaker Eight. Compare prices and features—and remember your new car will be worth more a year from now if you buy the car of tomorrow—a Studebaker Straight Eight!

MANY DROWNINGS LAID TO NIAGARA RUM SMUGGLERS

"Dupes" Told to Swim to Escape Capture.

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—The deaths within the year of 20 American and Canadian men are being debited to the international rum running octopus which straddles the international border between Niagara Falls and Buffalo. Ontario's provincial police have been asked to look into the new methods of rum runners, whose activities have led to these deaths.

With their rum boats practically backed out of the Detroit river in the recent American dry navy offensive, the rum runners made a quick switch, moving their major activities to Lake Erie and up shore in Lake Huron. They commenced doubling and trebling their activities along the swift flowing and treacherous Niagara river. Expensive motor boats with large cargoes were abandoned on the Niagara front as involving too much financial loss in the event of a capture. Cheap row boats, each manned by a "dupe" rower and towed along in a string, laden with liquor, constitute the latest Niagara river means of booze transportation to the dry United States.

Poolroom Recruits.

The rowers in these cockle shell flotillas are American and Canadian lads, recruited, it is said, largely from the poolrooms on either side of the border. Their instructions are to upset the boats and "swim for it" if overtaken or intercepted by dry patrols. Their remuneration, out of the immense profits realized by the rum running principals, is usually 25 cents per case, which means that they risk their lives almost nightly for about $10.

The death of Hector Anderson, young taxi driver, of Welland, Ont., from one of these flotillas has occasioned an inquiry by the provincial police of Ontario. Anderson was thrown into the river from one of these boats off the Buffalo shore a few days ago. When his cries for help rent the night air his bootlegging allies, fearing he had been heard by the dry patrol, pulled away from him and let him drown. Afterward, when it was apparent that no one had heard, the rum runners landed their cargo at Buffalo and let the body of the young recruit float down the river.

All this alleged information has been laid before Commissioner of Provincial Police Victor Williams by Welland residents, who claim to know something of the circumstances. And with this complaint there has been laid before the provincial police board a list of recent Niagara river alleged mystery deaths, which are held only to partially represent the "beat the dry law" death toll along the Niagara this year. This list emanates from the Buffalo calendar of "missing men," and the assurance given the provincial police is that it could be greatly amplified from Canadian towns and hamlets along the Niagara.

Other Deaths.

This is the list as made public here:

Sam N. McLean, 24 years, reported missing Dec. 29, 1928, found March 28, 1929, at foot of Evans street.

Frank Dougherty, 48 years, found foot of Main street, May 9. Last seen in company with Alfred Smith. Both bodies recovered the same day. Only particulars available are that their boat must have capsized.

Alfred Smith. As recorded above.

Body of unknown man found at foot of Erie street, May 31.

Edward C. Parks, 49 years, drowned. Causes unknown. Found at Bird Island pier. Cut in head.

James Rush, Scotch youth, 22 years, 854 West avenue, reported missing May 1. Body found floating in river at foot of Vernon avenue on June 11. No particulars as to how he came to his death.

A. Krosiac, found in river. Nothing known as to how he got in.

Jack Moore, United States coast guard from Brooklyn, N. Y. Abrasions on both temples. This officer went out to test a new motor boat. It is generally accepted that he fell foul of bootleggers. Died July 8, 1929.

Edward Bromley, chauffeur, aged 20, found drowned at foot of Crawley avenue. He had not been dead long and was still bleeding from the mouth when taken from the water Aug. 11.

Robert Burr and Jack Napea, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., both under 21 years, allegedly forced into a run-running row boat, and seen to go over the falls after the current caught their vessel.

KEGEL, IN PLANE, FINDS POLLEN 4,000 FEET IN THE AIR OVER CITY

Health Commissioner Kegel spent three hours in an airplane yesterday making pollen tests at different altitudes over Chicago to discover what hopes he could offer to hay fever sufferers. He found there would be little relief until frost gets in its work.

"Finding pollen up to 4,000 feet leads me to believe that the cutting of weeds in the city and suburbs to end hay fever suffering will have slight effect," Dr. Kegel said. "Cruising over Chicago in various localities, some above weedy districts and others nearer the loop, we held out slides exposed to the air at 2,000, 3,000, 4,000, 4,500, and 5,000 feet. We found weed pollen up to 4,000 feet, making tests of three to five minutes duration. At 4,000 feet and above we found no pollen.

"It is probable that pollen may be carried from across the lake with an east wind," the commissioner concluded. "This coming week I expect to cruise over the lake in a seaplane to make further tests.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses with or without understraps, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom if ever larger than a dime or 5c piece (no matter the size of the Rupture), and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

"The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 747247 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions with distinguished personal patrons of all nations." "If you want done what the rest cannot do—see Seeley."

Will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired.

N. B.—Every statement in this notice has been verified before the Federal and State Courts.

Read the Truth About DISARMAMENT PROPAGANDA

Get both sides of the attempts to influence governmental action on naval reduction

Organized propaganda is at the throat of American liberty! Pressure is persistently and surreptitiously brought to bear on governmental action in matters of foreign and domestic policy. Vital news is distorted and suppressed to serve the purposes of interested but secretive individuals and organizations.

President Hoover has demanded an inquiry into propaganda affecting naval disarmament. The Senate has launched an investigation. And Tribune readers will get the facts.

Trained writers will cover the inquiry for Tribune readers. At the last naval conference essential news was kept from the American people. The Tribune has found the facts—and dares to print them. The truth of both sides of the attempts to influence any governmental decision concerning naval disarmament as revealed by the present Senate quiz will be printed in the Tribune. The Chicago Tribune will be one newspaper that will enable American citizens to learn the truth about naval parity and the needs of national defense.

The Tribune owes no allegiance to any group or cause. As a newspaper it seeks the facts and prints them. Not even a senate committee can use the Tribune for propaganda purposes. No other newspaper is so energetic in its search of the news, so fearless in publication of it. Tribune writers watch vigilantly. They report fully and accurately.

These revelations of the effects of organized propaganda constitute another chapter of the fearless news reporting of the Tribune. Be sure to read these amazing dispatches daily.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

JUDGE DEFENDS HIS WARSHAWSKY CASE HEARINGS

Puts Blame for Delays on City Prosecutor.

Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson disclaimed responsibility yesterday for the dozen continuances in his court of the suit to compel Israel Warshawsky, son-in-law of City Collector Morris Eller to comply with the fire prevention laws. Judge Erickson placed the blame on City Prosecutor Frank Peska.

"I personally warned the city prosecutor about asking for postponements in cases like this and, after warning him, I fined Warshawsky $200 and costs, the maximum penalty," declared a statement dictated by the judge.

Puts Blame on Peska.

At the same time Mr. Peska, aroused by the criticism leveled at him, replied to the judge by shifting the responsibility back to him and to the city fire prevention bureau which, he said, had asked dismissal of an earlier case against Warshawsky after agreeing to many continuances. Fire Prevention Chief Patrick J. Egan had previously credited the delays to the prosecutor's office.

None of the explanations, however, altered the record showing that Mr. Warshawsky, over a period of 18 months, has managed to secure 35 continuances without the trouble of appearing in court and that he has not paid a dollar in fines.

The complaint brought against the junk dealer by the fire prevention officials is that his warehouse, the old Alhambra hotel at 1900-34 South State street, is a fire trap, imperiling the lives of 150 persons living in upper story flats. Warshawsky, according to the complaints, stores gasoline in the basement, has failed to repair fire escapes, has boarded up rear doors, and violated the law in several other respects.

How Judge Views It.

Judge Erickson, in his statement, scouted a report that Mr. Peska was "mystified" by the delays in the Warshawsky case. Any mystification on the part of the prosecutor, he said, "is not a recent affliction."

"Last spring," he said, "my attention was called to the fact that city cases were being postponed so many times that there was no more space on the file to write. I immediately called on Mr. Peska and asked him why he started suits and kept postponing them indefinitely. I told him I feared criticism and a comeback.

"He assured me that he would be responsible for any criticism; that in many cases the defendants were impoverished and had to be 'nursed along' to get them to comply with the amended building ordinances. 'Refer them to me if anybody wants to know,' Peska told me.

Moves to Vacate Fine.

"The next time I discovered Warshawsky's name on my blotter I asked the prosecutor's assistant, 'Where is the defendant?' When the motion was made to postpone I denied it and entered the maximum fine of $200 and costs. The prosecutor thereupon entered a motion to vacate. This was on June 26. On July 20 I left on my vacation, and I am not responsible for continuances after the fine was entered."

Since June 26, the record shows, the motion to vacate the fine has been continued five times by Judge George B. Holmes. It is set for the next hearing Sept. 18.

City Prosecutor Peska called in Nathan Rubenstein, former assistant who handled the Warshawsky case, and together they dug out their files. These files showed that the 35 continuances involved two separate cases. In the first, on July 25, 1928, Warshawsky was fined $100, but after six continuances on a motion to vacate the case was nolle prossed at the request of the fire prevention bureau, Rubenstein said. A new complaint, filed the day the old suit was dismissed, resulted in the $200 fine by Judge Erickson after nine continuances.

Can't Remember Lawyer.

Rubenstein denied that he moved to vacate the $200 fine on June 26. Although no one can recall Warshawsky's lawyer in court, somebody representing him must have been there, he said.

"Why all this innocence in the fire department?" Peska demanded. "They knocked out the first case themselves, didn't they? And then they brought in again and again reports to us that Warshawsky had partially complied with their orders. That's why we asked for continuances. My men don't inspect the premises. That's up to the fire department."

Mr. Peska said that, in view of Warshawsky's political connections, he realized the case is a "hot one" not to be tampered with. On Sept. 18, he said, he will go to court in person to insist that the motion to vacate Warshawsky's fine be disposed of and a judgment rendered against the property.

SUPERHIGHWAYS TO CHICAGO ARE BALKED BY GARY

Park Board Won't Trade Land with Railroad.

BY HAL FOUST.

The right of way problem involving a section of road less than a mile long is threatening to block a major improvement program contemplated by the Indiana highway department on the link between Chicago and the east around the southern end of Lake Michigan.

The section lies on a cut-off of the Dunes highway between Miller and Aetna, Ind., just east of Gary. The cut-off, now under construction, runs between the South Shore electric and the Wabash railroad tracks.

The state let the contract for this short cut, which avoids the congestion corner in Miller, so that the contractor can lay the pavement either twenty or forty feet wide, depending upon what width can be obtained for the right of way. Steam shovels are now at work on the grading.

Offers to Give Land.

For almost a mile the rights of way of the electric and steam railroads are too close together for a forty foot pavement. However, the Miller Lake Shore Improvement association has obtained the word of the electric railroad company that the carrier will give twelve feet from its property on the south side of the tracks, providing that in return it may have twelve feet from the right of way of the present Dunes highway on the north side of the tracks.

An examination of the terraine shows that such an arrangement would permit forty feet of pavement to be laid between the Wabash and the South Shore without disturbing the tracks. The electric line, by acquiring twelve feet on the north side of its right of way, would have room for any double tracking in the future.

Refused by Gary Board.

The scheme has not gone through, according to L. P. Godwin of the Miller Lake Shore Improvement association, because the Gary park board, which controls the present route of the Dunes highway at this point, refuses to donate its land, although to do so would not affect the pavement. W. P. Gleason, president of the park board, could not be reached yesterday.

"Unless the plan for trading land with the South Shore is successful," said Mr. Godwin, "the state highway department will not go through with its plans for two superhighways between Chicago and Michigan City, which we would like to have completed before the 1933 World's Fair.

Will Delay Construction.

"I get this information from State Legislator J. Glenn Harris, who has been working with the highway department, getting the right of way for a new forty foot road from Michigan City to Gary. This road would come into the Dunes highway on Eighth street at the cut-off that is now under construction."

AUSTRALIA SEES U. S. TALKIES AS LANGUAGE PERIL

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—American talking pictures were seen as a menace to the English language by the members of the dominion technical educational conference, who sent a resolution to the government demanding that it discourage the importation of talkies into this country.

The resolution said the American talkies obliterated the work done in the schools to promote the speaking of correct English.

R. A. Wright, parliamentarian, said the purity of the English language was becoming endangered and that all the British countries were becoming Americanized.

Believe Corpses Found in France to Be Yankee Fallen

RHEIMS, France, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Several bodies, believed to be of American soldiers killed during the world war, were found today by workmen rebuilding the Chateau des Grands-Bois near here. The workmen immediately notified the authorities without further disturbing the bodies, so that the number and identification remained uncertain. The men were sure, however, that cartridges and buttons found beside the bodies were American.

NEGRO HELD FOR SLAYING.

Bert Frazier, 38 years old, negro, of 71 East 42d street, was held to the grand jury yesterday after a coroner's jury found that he had slain George Elder, 16, also colored, on Friday. The boy was shot during a quarrel between his father and Frazier over Frazier's room rent.

MODEL NEW U. S. GRAIN CO-OP ON CANADIAN POOL

Leaders Hope to Control 60% of Normal Crop.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Grain farmers in the United States who for years cast longing glances across the border where, they have been told, their Canadian cousins have been obtaining better prices because of the gigantic wheat pool's powerful operations.

Farm leaders who are active in the formation of the $20,000,000 national farmers' grain marketing corporation, through which they expect to get financial backing from the federal farm board, are aware of this. Discussions behind closed doors in weeks of meetings in Chicago have frequently centered on the possibilities of a system of American grain growers similar to the Canadian.

Largest Farm Organization.

The Canadian wheat pool is regarded as the world's largest farm organization, the world's largest shipper of wheat, and the biggest business in Canada. Six years ago it was the dream of Dominion grain growers; today it controls more than half of Canada's wheat crop, with a turnover of more than a billion dollars in its first five years' operations. In the first year's pool in Alberta, 34,000,000 bushels of wheat from 2,250,000 acres were handled. Today the pool claims priority rights on the wheat from more than sixteen million acres in the three prairie provinces, exporting more wheat than any other country in the world.

Can American farmers expect, from present farm relief measures, to possess in the next few years such powerful influence on national and world grain markets? That is the size of the job confronting Chariman Alexander Legge and other members of the farm board.

How Pool Works in Canada.

Existing conditions in Canada are more favorable for a single huge marketing organization than in this country. In the first place, the dominion government controls transportation facilities. Preferential rates for grain farmers can and have been made. Secondly, the percentage of exportable wheat in Canada is many times greater than that of this country. The wheat pool thus has two tremendous forces aiding in its program of orderly marketing, obtained after years of legislative effort. These two factors are recognized by the American farm board and grain growers.

It is the ambition of sponsors of the new American corporation to control 40 per cent of the national grain acreage, in normal years. They recognize the impossibility of maintaining this during abnormally high crop years. So, in perhaps one year out of five, when surplus grain threatens to demoralize the market, a separate farm-owned and farmer-controlled organization is contemplated to stabilize prices.

The leaders expect to keep the marketing and the stabilizing activities in two separate yet sympathetic organizations. They also expect the federal farm board to supply funds or facilities in handling the surplus situations.

Won't Incorporate in Illinois.

While the original plan of the committee drafting articles of incorporation and by-laws of the grain marketing corporation was to incorporate under the coöperative marketing act in Illinois, this has been dropped, yesterday's inquiries brought out. Since the corporation will be made up of member coöperatives, it is not strictly a producers' coöperative.

The Illinois law was not regarded as suitable for such a federation and incorporation papers will be filed in another state. Headquarters will probably be in Chicago, regardless of this change in plans.

The methods of the Canadian wheat pool, insofar as they can be applied to the American organiastion, will be followed. This means that ample storage and marketing facilities, now recognized as inadequate, must be provided. Further than this, the grain farmers are expecting to employ a simple practice of controlling the grain movement from farm to buyer, now being used to some extent in regional American pools.

Marketing Plan Outlined.

This practice, in substance, is the buying of all pool members' grain at what the corporation decides is a reasonable figure, advancing payment on this basis. This member growers' grain will be held off the market, while grain from nonmembers is bought at the same time and moved immediately into consumption channels. The pooled grain is then marketed as the demand justifies, and with at least some increase in price, according to those familiar with the practice.

MAY BE KIDNAPED

RICHARD GLASS.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Police today became convinced that 4 year old Richard Glass, who disappeared last Wednesday, was kidnaped from the vicinity of his home at 920 52d street. They came to the conclusion after they had dragged Tannery creek and dynamited it and following a report from Frank Shaw that he saw two men driving south in Sheridan road late Wednesday night in a sedan from which some one, presumably a child, was calling for help.

Richard was seen by his mother on Wednesday noon, and he answered her call for him to come into the house by saying he would come soon. Tony Mattuci, 7 years old, one of his playmates, said he saw Richard playing under a bridge on the banks of the wide, deep creek at 4:30 in the afternoon. Following this boy's report police dragged the creek for two days and then dynamited it in the hope of bringing the boy's body to the surface.

Neither the boy's parents nor the police could fix upon any motive for the possible kidnaping of the boy. The child's father, Adolph Glass, is a factory worker.

SECRET FILES OPENED TO GIVE TARIFF FIGURES

Mellon Is Asked for Tax Returns.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Income tax returns of more than 200 corporations whose operations would be affected by rate increases or decreases proposed in the pending tariff bill were demanded of the treasury department today by Democratic members of the senate finance committee. The list, agreed upon by the minority group in a secret meeting this morning, was presented to Reed Smoot [Utah], chairman of the committee, who in accordance with the Simmons resolution calling upon the treasury to furnish the information will transmit it to Secretary Mellon on Monday.

Neither Senator Smoot nor Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.], ranking minority member of the finance committee, would reveal the names of the corporations involved, nor would they discuss the possibility that Secretary Mellon, in spite of the Simmons resolution, may refuse to submit the records on the grounds that compliance with the demand would violate the principle of income tax secrecy.

Expect Battle in Senate.

Lively squabbles are expected on the senate floor if the Democrats attempt to make use of information obtained from the records during debate in efforts to prove their contention that many of the corporations listed have no need of the increased tariff protection offered in the pending bill.

Devoting three hours to the task today, the senate disposed of all of the non-controversal committee amendments to administrative sections of the bill and thus cleared the decks for the fight on the flexible tariff and other disputed provisions scheduled to begin Monday.

One Provision Held Up.

One of the amendments went over for discussion with the other disputed provisions when Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] objected to the proposal to allow organized labor the right to participate, as manufacturers now do, in litigation on tariff question. The Utah senator insisted that the consumer is entitled to be heard if the other two interested classes are given the privilege.

Debate on the resolution proposed by Senator W. H. McMaster [Rep., S. D.] to require the tariff commission to furnish information, whether "confidential or otherwise," upon the request of any senator was postponed until Wednesday.

NEW YORK GANG WAR SPREADING TO OTHER CITIES

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Spread of New York's gang war to other cities was seen today in the shooting of two New Yorkers in widely different sections of the United States.

In Cleveland, a man who said he was Daniel Ahearn, Tammany leader, was "put on the spot" by gangsters and shot four times. He lies near death in a Cleveland hospital.

William J. Aherns, of this city, brother of the Tammany leader, denied that there was any relative named Daniel and said that there was no member of the family in Cleveland.

In Boston, Samuel Rheinstein, who is believed to have been a New York furrier, was killed in a corridor of the Hotel Huntington. The Boston police said they had reason to believe Rheinstein was connected with the underworld, and are now working on the theory that a mob of gangsters murdered Rheinstein.

Comfortable—Alert—Teeming with Life—No Drowsy, Listless Families in Holland-Heated Homes!

TODAY modern-minded home owners demand more than heat from a heating system. Realizing the importance of ventilation, air in motion, and humidity, alert and informed buyers are making Holland Vaporaire an overwhelming first choice throughout the nation.

Warm moving air, ventilation, and humidity—supplied automatically by Holland Vaporaire—are vital essentials to health and comfort. Dry dead heat—the product of the ordinary heating system—is the direct cause of colds and other illnesses. Twenty-one states require by law that public buildings, schools, hospitals, and theatres, be heated by circulating, humidified, warm air. Health authorities everywhere are directing attention to the danger of old fashioned heating methods. Unless your present heating system automatically vaporizes from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily, and circulates clean pure air throughout your home all year long—it is obsolete!

Holland Vaporaire is more than a heating system. It warms. It circulates. It ventilates. It humidifies. In summer, the built-in electric power unit forces a gentle breeze through your home with a cooling effect equal to several electric fans in every room.

Holland Vaporaire is tailored to fit the needs of your home exactly. The cost of this custom-built system is reasonable—the terms unusually liberal. It is individually designed, installed, and serviced by the largest installers of home heating equipment in the world, who are solely and directly responsible to you. Your satisfaction is guaranteed by an iron-clad bond. Now is the time to solve your heating problem permanently with the modern, clean, convenient, and economical Holland Vaporaire. This lifetime system burns any fuel—oil, gas, coal, or coke—and saves from 10 to 30 per cent of it! Why not banish the dread of winter now—forever! Philadelphia's Athletics are 1929 champions of the American league. Fifteen years ago Connie Mack's great team won the pennant and the world championship. It has been a long struggle for the veteran to bring together a team that could climb to the top of the league. And our Cubs bar the path to the world title. It's a great outfit, Mack says. He thinks his boys are as good as the 1914 champions. Led on attack by Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx and presenting a great infield defense, they're worthy opponents for any club in the October classic.

WHICHONE WINS RICH FUTURITY; MISSTEP TAKES STEGER STAKE

Whitney Colt Runs Off with $105,730 Belmont Prize.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, Sept. 14.—Them as has gets—and this afternoon at Belmont Park, a horse named Whichone, a brown 2 year old colt belonging to Harry Payne Whitney, won the Futurity and $105,730 for Mr. Whitney, who needs $105,730 about as much as a desert rat needs a yachting cap.

The Futurity is a very old horse race, first run in 1888, but this running of the same, the forty-first, was the gaudiest of all, for the prize money exceeded any other stimulus ever posted anywhere to accelerate the horses and improve the breed. One way and another the promoters accumulated $119,600, and the horses went down the diagonal lane of the straight away which slashes across the infield park of the great race track as though they all had a sharp appreciation of the value of a dollar.

There were two Whitney horses in the field of 17 starters. The other one's name is Boojum, also a brown colt, and between them they had won so often that nobody really expected any other man's horse to finish closer than third. Boojum was fifth out from the rail, and he got away in front, with a crowd of forty some thousand people leaping and craning to get some glimpse of them as they broke from a starting chute way off in the distance.

Whichone Tardy at Start.

Gallant Fox was just behind Boojum at the break, but Whichone was a bit tardy leaving the post and got away about sixth. Jimmy Burke, sitting on Boojum, spun him along in front for six furlongs and it looked as if his horse was going to win the $105,730 until they came to the last gold tipped post on the route. With a furlong more to go, Boojum suddenly went veering off across the track to his right. Whichone had been sliding along on the rail where the going was a little heavier than it was out in the center, and about two furlongs from the finish began to move up so smoothly that Sonny Workman, who was on his ridge, seemed merely to be stepping on the gas.

Still, it didn't seem that he could catch Boojum until they came to that gold tipped barber pole and Burke's horse began to wander. Then Workman thought he had better get busy and ride himself some horse, and Mr. Whitney's other entry flashed past Boojum, Hi Jack and Gallant Fox to win by three lengths. Boojum's slight detour cost him just enough to set him back to fourth position, a nose behind Gallant Fox, who was a nose behind Hi Jack.

And that was the Belmont Futurity of 1929, the richest horse race ever run. It was all over in a minute and 1934 seconds, after the most elaborate planning, financing and nominating. These 17 colts and fillies were timed to run in the race before they were even born. The money was so tempting that when rain fell overnight, and the track seemed just the least bit soggy, five owners who hadn't expected to start their critters at all paid the starting fee of $1,000 and sent their pets to the track in the hope that the soft footing would interfere with Whitney's animals and enhance the chances of some others.

Added Starters Mean Nothing.

The greatest previous prize had been $1,790, which Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago won with Anita Peabody in 1927. None of these added starters contributed anything but their money and their presence to the occasion, however.

There are so many of these Whitneys, cousins, uncles, aunts, nieces and what not that they are as hard to keep straight as the Vanderbilts, but among those known to be present was Sonny Whitney, a big, healthy looking lad, who is either a son or nephew of the man who owned the horse that won the $105,730. Whether Mr. Whitney, the owner, was actually present or not is something I cannot go into with accuracy. He doesn't always go to the big races in which his horses

Makes Karl Eitel, My Dandy Quit in Stretch.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Misstep, the red flyer from Kentucky, ran another spectacular race at Lincoln Fields yesterday as he drove toward the handicap championship of the country. It brought him a brilliant victory in the $5,000 Steger handicap at a mile.

Burdened by the crushing weight of 129 pounds and with the fleetest horses in the west showing him their heels for six furlongs, Misstep was sent to the front by Jockey Clarence McCrossen as the small field of four straightened out for the run down the stretch.

"Come on Misstep," shouted most of those in the crowd of 20,000 for he was the odds on favorite. And Misstep did not disappoint them. He jumped into a two lengths lead. It completely whipped the exhausted My Dandy and Karl Eitel which had fought it out at every stride for three quarters of a mile.

Lady Broadcast Second.

These early leaders after reeling off the half in :46 2-5 and the six furlongs in 1:10 3-5 as they tried to run away from Misstep were in distress. They staggered, swerved, and they dropped back as the finish neared. Lady Broadcast, after trailing far back, also came with a rush. It sent her into second place and she was within a length of Misstep as they galloped past the placing judges.

Five lengths back came Karl Eitel in third place and he was two lengths in front of My Dandy. Karl Eitel carried 115 pounds and My Dandy 118. There was an original overnight field of ten but the presence of Misstep scared six out leaving the four leading handicap performers here in the struggle. This made it a truly run race and there was no delay at the post to put Misstep at an advantage with his heavy impost.

My Dandy Breaks on Top.

As the barrier lifted Jockey Halbert sent My Dandy out on top with Karl Eitel right after him. They ran closely lapped all the way down the back stretch with Misstep a couple of lengths back of them.

On the turn Misstep made his move. He went around on the outside and as they turned for home the three leaders were only noses apart. Misstep moved on and My Dandy and Karl Eitel faltered. Lady Broadcast was a half dozen lengths back but she ran over Karl Eitel and My Dandy in the last sixteenth to get second money.

Misstep's time was 1:37 1-5. In the mutuels he paid $3.96 to win and $2.72 to place. Lady Broadcast was at $4.44 to place. No show mutuels were sold. The race was worth $5,080 to owner Leo J. Marks; Lady Broadcast's share was $1,000; Karl Eitel's $500 and My Dandy got $120 for fourth money

Brown Wisdom Deceives Again.

The old deceiver Brown Wisdom got in his work again in the South Shore Country club purse at six furlongs. He neared an American record a few days ago when he ran a mile in 1:35 4-5. He was the 7 to 10 favorite in the South Shore. Yet he was beaten right handily by Chicleight from the Nevada farm stables in 1:11. His defeat shocked the big crowd. Chicleight was always in front. Brown Wisdom made up some ground in the stretch but was two lengths back as the battle ended. Greenock was third. Halbert, who had ridden Brown Wisdom to his two easy victories here lately couldn't make him run fast enough to catch Chicleight.

There was also an upset in the Roseland purse for 2 year olds at six furlongs. J. W. Parrish's Rich Widow, the short priced favorite, failed while the Cold Stream Stud's filly Wild Waters turned up as the winner after leading Rich Widow all the way. Perjury was third, but ran far below her recent form, and Camp Boss, which also had a following, was taken all over the track by Jockey Pichon.

Three great pitchers. These are the lads the Cubs' murderers row will face Oct. 8. Speed, and more speed. Two great left handers and a right hand pitcher twisting 'em to the plate a la Grimes. That's Philadelphia's idea of its hurling staff for the world classic. The experts are busy figuring averages, arguing pro and con. And the Cubs will answer all arguments when they start swinging their bats.

Shires, Calm, Sober, Ponders Latest Melee

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The Great Shires, sober and calm, tonight reviewed the melee in which he whipped his manager, Lena Blackburne, and Lou Barbour, secretary of the Chicago White Sox, in a hotel room brawl here early this morning.

ART SHIRES.

The young man was not belligerent nor was he remorseful. He was not jovial, but he was whimsical. You couldn't say he was bitter, but his words at times were highly ironical.

He denied that he had been consorting extensively with the Demon Rum and that it was he that nearly bit off one of Lou Barbour's best fingers. He says Lena did it.

It seems there were a lot of fingers flying around the premises and that Lena picked out one he thought was Shires', only to find out too late that it belonged to Barbour. Barbour used to be an infielder himself, but Lena forgot this. So Lena's mistake was natural; he picked out what he thought was a ball player finger, made sure it wasn't his own and started biting, much to the distress of the traveling secretary.

Hears Barbour's Prowess.

Barbour, incidentally, still is inclined to think it was Shires who bit him, although both of his fellow contestants have good teeth.

Shires said he had heard some time back that Barbour had invested heav-

HERMAN OBTAINS 200TH HIT, BUT DROPS IN BIG SIX

Babe Herman provided what little interest there was in the doings of the Big Six members yesterday by collecting his 200th hit of the season against the Cubs. This one blow made the Brooklyn Babe the third of the Big Six batsmen to reach the 200 mark. O'Doul and Hornsby preceeded him.

No Big Six player got more than one hit yesterday. Simmons and Hornsby went to bat fewer times and held their averages stationary. Herman lost a point while Babe Ruth dropped two, going to bat five times in a double-header. O'Doul and Foxx were idle. The standing:

Judge Postpones Court; Conflicts with World Series

Bartlesville, Okla., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Judge J. R. Charlton of the Washington County District court doesn't believe in mixing baseball and lawsuits. Today he postponed the civil jury term of court, set to begin Oct. 7, to Oct. 14, announcing that it was not necessary for the court term to interfere with the world series.

Tilden Beats Hunter for 7th U.S. Net Title

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The gaunt figure of William T. Tilden II. still stands at the head of the list of America's seeded players. On the treacherous turf of the Forest Hills courts he disposed of Francis T. Hunter, America's second ranking player, in five sets of competition that at times was extremely brilliant. A crowd of 10,000 fans saw Tilden capture the national singles title for the seventh time. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Equals Larned's Record.

In winning today Tilden equalled the long standing record of Bill Larned, who many years ago also acquired the singles championship on seven occasions. Tilden's victories were registered from 1920 to 1925, inclusive, and in 1929. The only thing to mar his conquest is the absence of Henri Cochet and Rene La Coste, the two French players who outrank him in the international standing.

Certainly in his match today with his good friend Hunter, Tilden showed that he has the American tennis world well under his thumb. True, Hunter carried him to five sets, but the feeling throughout the match was that the gangly "lad" who boasts thirty-seven years was merely biding his time.

Tilden, always the super-showman, seemed to have much in reserve, although he was hard pressed by Hunter at all times. Hunter's handling of Tilden's service was brilliant, but he had to run himself out to reach Big Bill's well directed drives, which nicked the side lines.

Hunter played magnificent tennis in winning the first set from Tilden by six games to three. He handled in admirable style Big Bill's low scudding, heavily sliced shots which skid-

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Connie Mack, the tall tactician, of Philadelphia marched into the promised land at exactly 4:24 o'clock this afternoon, ending a journey marked by fourteen seasons of disappointment and effort. When George Earnshaw turned back the White Sox, 5 to 0, after the Browns had chastised the Yankees, 12 to 3, in the front half of a double header at New York, Cornelius McGillicuddy made his seventh American league pennant safe beyond the last mathematical doubt.

The grand old man of Shibe park now could lose every one of his fifteen remaining games and still finish half a contest ahead of the Yankees, even if the fallen champions should sweep their seventeen remaining engagements. The Yanks took the second half of their bargain bill with the Browns today.

If the Macks should lose all and the Yankees win all, the final standing would be:

Faber Yields Reluctantly.

Urban Faber yielded only grudgingly to the new champions today. One run was manufactured in the fourth on Mule Haas' safe bunt, a pass to Al Simmons and Bing Miller's drive to center for a single. Simmons' thirty-first home run added another to the total in the sixth, but still the fight remained close.

About this time news of the Yankees' defeat sent the crowd into a frenzy of delight, and a few moments later the Macks fell upon Faber for the final thrust—in the eighth. A single by Cochrane, a pass to Simmons, a double by Georgie Burns, scoring two, and a single by Miller gave the A's three runs and removed the last doubt regarding the outcome.

The ninth soon was over, and the Athletics had hit the trail in quest of world series gold for the first time since the ancient days of Bender and Coombs and Plank and the infield rated at $100,000, pre-war value.

The victory was Earnshaw's twenty-first. He won it with a substitute in field at his back, but this second line met every emergency. Joe Boley alone remained on the inner wall, with Burns at first, Morse at second and Cronin at third.

Broke Up Famous Infield.

In the lean years that followed his last American league championship in 1914 Mack experimented with all kinds of material. First, he tried the plan of drafting college material, with no success. A team of veterans that included Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb, and Edward Trowbridge Collins fell short of winning the flag. Then Mack resorted to buying material from the minors.

For Robert Moses Grove he paid the Baltimore Orioles a pretty penny. And he followed this policy in landing such other of his stars as Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons.

Mack's aggregation this year, according to the experts, compares favorably with the team he considered his greatest—namely: the 1914 club. That season he sold his crack infield, made up of Frank Baker, John Barry, Eddie Collins, and John [Stuffy] McInnis.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Despite the reluctancy with which William Watson Clark yielded hits yesterday, the Cubs were able to slap down the Robins. Only five blows were frisked from the delivery of the frail southpaw but the coming champions used them in such a way as to cop a somewhat methodical affair by 3 to 0. Now, with a couple more triumphs, the Cubs will be beyond the point where any mathematical quirk can shake them loose from the flag.

In the course of the proceedings Pat Malone turned loose a sufficient amount of pitching to give him his twenty-first win of the year as well as a shutout. He was not as impressive as Clark, however. But Pat had the knack of spreading eight hits so as they would do no damage. There were only two innings in which more than a lone hostile runner was on base. In the way of strikeouts, a matter in which he tops the league, he didn't do so well. Only three fellows fell in that fashion.

Three Runs on Five Hits.

Getting three runs on five hits without the assistance of an error or a pass, probably can be rated an unusual feat, but the Cubs did it. One reason for this was that three of the five blows were concentrated in the fourth when McMillan, Hornsby and Wilson swung into action to the extent of two runs. Another reason for the large number of tallies in proportion to the hits was that what should have been an ordinary double by Cuyler in the seventh was unexpectedly converted into a homer by a piece of luck.

Malone started his day's work as if intending to find trouble. E. Moore greeted him with a single that Stephenson dove for but couldn't get. A pass to Frederick was next. A fast double play started by English prevented further annoyance. Malone had almost the same experience in the second round. Bissonette led off with a pass and Gilbert rammed one back at Malone, who slowed it down just enough to permit Hornsby to grab it and start another twin killing. After the double play Warner singled and Picinich grounded easily to Tolson. In the third Frederick tripled with two out and Malone arose to this emergency by fanning Herman the Great.

Score Two in Fourth.

Before the Cubs got down to the business of making some runs they didn't have much to talk about in the shape of hits. Their exact total in three rounds was a single by Wilson to start the second chapter. Hack whacked a liner to center. Cuyler forgot to swing at a third strike. Stephenson dumped a slow roller in front of the plate and Picinich pounced on it in time to get an easy decision at first base. Meanwhile Hack was engaged in the job of trying to make two bases on the play. It didn't work. Bissonette whipped [illegible] to Gilbert and Hack was doubled going into the far bag. Hack was thinking too fast for the speed in his legs.

A single by McMillan was the first ingredient that went into the making of the two Cub runs in the fourth. Mac clipped a low drive into center and the ball, in its travels, almost carried Clark's right ear with it. English bunted and was thrown out by the pitcher. Two strikes were promptly called on Hornsby but this didn't annoy him in the least. He slashed a terrific grounder between short and third and made two bases on it. McMillan running home. Not to be outdone by the Rajah, Wilson whistled a double to the right field flag pole, Hornsby counting. After Cuyler had been retired, Stephenson walked and Tolson ended the round with a roller to Bissonette.

Babe Herman Blunders.

An incident in the sixth indicated that Babe Herman has not been attending skull practice regularly. With one out the young man slapped a single to center. Hendrick tore lose a fly that sent Wilson back to the center field fence. While the ball was still in the air Herman sauntered down to second and passed the bag. When the catch was made he retraced his steps but neglected to touch second, so was called out when Hornsby took the return throw and put his foot on the canvas.

Bissonette tried to inspire his mates by opening the seventh with a single, but the next three fellows didn't get the idea. Then Cuyler stepped forth with his funny homer in the Cubs' half. The ball went on a line to the right field corner and Herman the Great was there to pick it up, but the ball took one hop and vanished from his sight. It had jumped into the extreme end of the grandstand, and being more than the prescribed 250 feet from the plate, it had to be rated a homer. Clark then walked Stephenson, but Tolson poked to E. Moore for a double play and Taylor tapped one only as far as the hostile pitcher.

The Robins reserved two of their hits for a last dying kick in the ninth. This was the second time during the debate that they had more than a lone runner on base at one time. Hendrick rapped a single to center with one out and Bissonette did the same. Gilbert brought the finish a bit closer by hoisting a fly which Cuyler gobbled up. Then Hornsby leaped to grab a lazy liner off Warner's bat and the show was completed.

fly in elastic exercising apparatus, which he has been using faithfully to enlarge his biceps and otherwise get in shape to whip a few ball players. C. Arthur declared he had been getting reports of Barbour's calisthenics and had been anticipating an attack ever since he had heard Lou was claiming to "feel stronger than at any time since over in Italy during the war."

"I had been out addressing my public over the radio," Shires said. "On my return I had a few shots of straight gin, as per my usual custom before retiring. Then I ordered up a pint of ginger ale for a wash. When the ginger ale came in my room, in come these two policemen and want to know what's the big idea.

The Battle Is On.

"Well, I tell them my home is my castle and order them to take the air. And when they don't, I give them a little push, whereupon Lena makes a pass at me and the battle is on.

"There was nothing left for me to do. I had to give the pair of them a good trimming. The only thing I'm sorry about is Lena biting Lou's finger. The por fellow had to go to a doctor to have it dressed.

"I'm not so sorry about Blackburne's eye. I don't believe I ever gave a man such a sweet shiner. It was a masterpiece."

Shires was barred from the final game of the series between the White Sox and Athletics this afternoon. He left the place in company of two burly uniformed guardians of the law who took every precaution against any further disturbance.

The storm had subsided this morning and all was calm, though in his conversation the truculent first sacker was still denouncing the White Sox and calling Blackburne and Barbour "just a pair of stool pigeons."

Shires went out to view the game this afternoon, but was greeted at the press gate by armed policemen who escorted him to the clubhouse where he wrapped his uniform. Later he was told that the ball park was not big enough for him. Shires appealed to Connie Mack, the Athletics' manager, but the lean leader would have none of his presence at the game.

"Let's go then," growled a cop, "I got orders to get you out of here."

"All right," the Great Arthur said, affecting a meekness that was unbecoming him. "We'll follow the orders."

And away they went.

It Might Interest You to Know That—

AUGIE WALSH is to be a member of the Cub pitching staff next season. His purchase from the Los Angeles club for $20,000 has been announced. He has won 21 games for the Angels. Walsh became an Angel last winter when his release was purchased from the Phillies for $10,000.

Capt. Charley Grimm, who has been out for a month because of a broken left hand, is growing impatient. The doctors have promised him he could take off the splint in another week, but yesterday he asked Boss McCarthy to let him go to work. The manager advised him not to hurry.

If Dazzy Vance feels in the mood today he will hurl the second of the series. Charley Root will have the job of trying to beat him or anybody else that might be selected.

A funny mishap overtook Catcher Taylor in the eighth. A tip foul off Frodericks' bat jammed in between his neck and the lower part of his mask. Ump McCormick yanked the ball loose and Taylor fell to the ground but was back on his feet in about ten seconds. The blow had cut off his breath.

TAYLOR SMOOTHS CUBS' TRAIL TO PENNANTVILLE

Fills Catching Gap and Steadies Hurlers.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

You wouldn't know him by his real name—James Wrenn Taylor. Yet as Zack Taylor he immediately becomes the mainstay of the catching staff of the pennant bound Cubs.

ZACK TAYLOR.

He's another one of those quiet southern boys, more inclined to speak of his diamond shortcomings and his luck in being tossed into a world series than to mention that the Chicagoans were in a bad way for backstops until he happened into the picture.

But to those of the Cubs who don't mind giving credit where credit is due, he is the man who started the team on its way to a one sided triumph in a race that everybody figured would be three or even four cornered until the waning moments. The records almost prove what his arrival meant.

Taylor put himself into a Cub uniform—thus ending years of aimless wandering about the National league—when the McCarthy crew was in Boston the second week in July.

Weak in Catching.

McCarthy knew his catching was his biggest problem. Hartnett was doomed for the season although nothing was said about it. Gonzales was a bit ragged, as a gentleman his age should be, and Schulte was not steady. The pitchers weren't backward about declaring that the catching was handicapping them.

The Cubs had been scouting around the minors looking for somebody worth while. Nobody was available. Then the Braves suddenly turned up with a request for waivers on Taylor. It was no reflection on his ability. He was getting too much money for a second division occupant. The Braves might lose a few more games without him, but a few games either way is of no importance to a modern Boston team.

As soon as McCarthy was appraised of the waiver request, he instructed President William Veeck to block whatever scheme the Brave management had up its sleeve. Veeck resorted to the long distance phone. From the Braves president, Emil Fuchs, he learned he could have the player. It took less than five minutes to conclude the deal. Of course, it was announced that the player had been obtained for the waiver price because the final date for sales had passed, but it is pretty safe to say that the Cubs slipped the Boston club a bit of a bonus on the side.

Taylor Shows the Difference.

The day Taylor caught his first game as a Cub there was a difference in the team. That was at a time when they were struggling neck and neck with the Pirates for first place. Taylor in some way seemed to add the bit the Cubs needed to cop the tight, low scoring pitching battles. They could take the slugging matches easily, but the struggles in which one or two runs meant something were frequent and also valuable.

Taylor has been in there almost steadily. He even has caught in both ends of double headers. He has hit timely. Nobody has run wild on the bases against him. And if he hadn't shown up at the right moment there is no telling what might have happened. Shortly after he arrived Gonzales went on the ailing list. Without Taylor, this would have meant Schulte for the heavy rôle, and the ex-Philly is a bit lacking in the knack of keeping a hurler steady.

The case of Taylor is another that shows a man may drift a long way and finally hit. In 1920, five years after his entry into organized baseball, he became a member of the Brooklyn club and was enrolled with them in the world series against Cleveland that fall, but he didn't take part in a game.

Once Wore Giant Togs.

Six seasons later he still was wearing Brooklyn flannels, but in the winter of that season was traded to Boston with Infielder Johnston and Outfielder Brown for Catcher O'Neill, Pitcher J. Barnes and Outfielder Felix. In the midst of the 1927 campaign he went to the Giants along with Larry Benton in a deal he figured would put him up among the elite for the rest of his career, but last season McGraw, even though he had no catchers worth shooting at, turned him back to the Braves for the waiver price. He stayed there until the Cubs flagged him.

Taylor has spent practically his entire life in Florida. His dad was a fruit grower, and he's the same.

When he was about 13, he was out on his dad's fruit lands one day when a big storm came up. His dad advised him to seek shelter under some tin sheeting that was laid across a narrow, dry ditch. He took the advice, but in getting to the ditch fell over a fence and shattered the elbow of his left arm.

He says this story is important because it might have been his right arm, and in that event the big leagues never would have known a catcher by the name of Zack Taylor.

Michigan Nine Loses to Meiji University, 4 to 3

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Meiji defeated the University of Michigan baseball team in a ten inning game today by a score of 4 to 3. It was a contest of erratic fielding and light hitting.

Campolo and Scott Near End of Drill for Bout

New York, Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—Victorio Campolo, giant gaucho from South America, and Phil Scott of England, neared the end of their training today for the ten round heavyweight bout at Ebbets' field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

Shires' Bout to End Blackburne's Reign with Sox?

"What's the matter with the White Sox?" has been asked so frequently it is trite. However, because we think the question still needs an answer, Edward Burns tries to give it. Mr. Burns has traveled with the Sox for the last three years. His answers are his sincere opinions.—Sports Editor.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Again the Great Shires has risen up to remind the world that the White Sox team, though a disorganized ball club, still is operating in organized baseball. But for C. Arthur, thousands of fans throughout Chicago would have lived through the season under the impression the club had disbanded or something.

LENA BLACKBURNE.

So Mr. Shires has served some purpose even though his last outbreak, early yesterday morning, when he thrashed both Manager Lena Blackburne and Traveling Secretary Lou Barbour in his hotel room in Philadelphia, seems a bit rough for the gentle requirements of modern baseball.

We know there are several players who would have enjoyed blacking Mr. Blackburne's eyes were it not for the restraining power of discretion. One trip around the eastern circuit with the White Sox in early August this year convinced us the club is the most utterly disorganized and disgruntled group of employés we ever have encountered, in or out of baseball. We recall some of the grumblings of the Sox in 1927 and 1928. They pale into joyful gurgles as compared with complaints of this year's band of Comiskeyites.

Pick yourself an all American team of big league stars and get them in the state of mind that the White Sox have been in this year and you'd have yourself a second division ball club.

We're not saying the discontent is justified in all its phases. Blackburne is a tireless, loyal worker. But he has made a monumental frost of his handling of the White Sox. This may be said without reference to the most recent Shires escapade.

Some of the things that have caused the most irritation to the more intelligent of the Sox have been trivial episodes in which Lena's intentions were the best in the world.

Blackburne's transparent flourishes at "psychological leadership" have been accepted by some of the players as insults to their intelligence. A case in point:

The club took a new route out of Philadelphia for New York. They were to go to Jersey City, board two busses, ferry up the Hudson and then drive to their hotel. When they arrived there was but one bus. Lena, Lou Barbour, and another member of the party were crowded out.

Barbour suggested the overflow trio take a cab but Lena, in a voice that could be heard throughout the neighborhood, said:

"Lena sticks with his gang. What's good enough for them is good encugh for Lena. Lena ain't that kind of a calibre."

That night at the hotel we heard no fewer than six players commenting on the incident. "He's trying to feed us that silly oil all the time. Can you imagine the dumb So and So, etc., etc." was the substance of their speeches.

Lena has not suspected these reactions. He's plodded on—intensely eager to give Charles A. Comiskey the best that was in him. Though every inch a ball player, Lena hasn't been able to fathom the minds of ball players. And the ball players haven't been able or haven't taken the trouble to accept Lena for just what he is—a hard working, guileless soul, trying to surmount all the discouragements that go with the management of any ball club, plus the handicap of working for a club owner who never sees a ball game, has little or no contact with baseball people, a man who is ill.

There are many theories as to why the Sox have been in the second division for nine consecutive years. Some say it's Secretary Grabiner's fault. Others say the club is cheap. Tip O'Neil's untitled, mysterious and constant connection with the outfit, frequently is cited. To us all these things seem erroneous.

Grabiner takes the rap for many things that are not his fault. If all the ball players Comiskey has owned in the last ten years had been possessed of Grabiner's loyalty and sincerity of purpose, world series would not have been so scarce in these parts. The club isn't cheap and Comiskey isn't cheap. Tip O'Neil is a rich man, so there's no chance to hire him to stay away from the Sox offices.

You know the history of legends—folklore which is relayed in a community from one generation to another. The bellyaching of the Sox players is legendary. The only way to interrupt the sequence is to get rid of the whole bunch and start with an all fresh crew. Players join the Sox with clean, happy minds. But, like dope addicts, the moaners lose no time in gaining recruits. And there's the rub.

The Sox have had three "I Knew Him When" managers in a row. What they need is a hard nosed guy who hasn't ever associated with the Sox on a fellow player basis. And, incidentally, a man who doesn't sympathize with the theory that poker is a more important and absorbing game than big league baseball.

PLAN CHANGES IN NEXT WRIGLEY MARATHON SWIM

When the next Wrigley marathon swimming races are held in Toronto many radical changes will be made in conducting the events. No boats other than those actively engaged in the interests of the events will be permitted on the course. Every effort will be made to keep the public informed regarding the progress of the contestants. Large square signs will be erected on each boat that accompanies a contestant, and it has been suggested that flags of different colors be used to indicate which lap the swimmer has completed.

MISS AMERICA VII CRASHES AT 85 MILES AN HOUR

Wood and Mechanic Hurt in Italy Race.

LIDO, Italy, Sept. 14.—America lost all chances of winning and withdrew from the Venice international motor boat speed races this afternoon when Miss America VII., piloted by Phil Wood and Mechanic Orlin Johnson, was badly knocked into a laguna wave crest at a speed of 90 miles per hour and took a frightful twelve foot leap into the air and smashed back on to the surface of the sea, splitting the keel and injuring the pilots.

A cry of horror rose from the fashionable jury pier in front of which the accident happened, Crown Prince Humbert ordering boats to the rescue, while princesses and ladies, with pale faces, issuing the Italian cry for help, "Aiuto," urged on the rescuers.

Seagrave Aids in Rescue.

The accident occurred on the straightaway after half the first round in the race for Count Volpi's cup for unlimited racers. Other competitors in the same run were Sir H. O. D. Seagrave with Miss England and Prince Ruspoli with Miss America V., who both rushed to the aid of Wood and Johnson as soon as they discovered the crash.

Sir Henry said shortly after the accident that Miss America VII., ahead when crossing the starting line, had been caught by the British racer after the first bend at 93.5 miles per hour, while Mr. Wood made 90. According to him Miss America got entangled in the water froth of Miss England, causing it to leap. Prince Ruspoli told reporters that he saw Phil Wood swimming around the wreck, while Mr. Johnson lay at the bottom of the boat unconscious, his head leaning on a life belt. Both the injured were transported to the naval hospital, Santa Anna, at Venice, where the crown prince paid the American seamen a visit later in the evening.

American Boats Withdrawn.

Following the accident the race was called off until tomorrow. Disappointment soured the looks of the American colony here when Paul Bernhard, member of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, gave out a statement that "America is through for good at the Venetian races at this time," thus announcing America's withdrawal. Rumors lingered awhile on the chances of Miss America V.'s still running tomorrow for the American team, with Prince Ruspoli piloting. The realization that Miss America V. could only boast of an 85 mile per hour maximum speed, besides Prince Ruspoli's inexperience with the new boat, decided the American withdrawal.

In an early morning interview to THE TRIBUNE correspondent Phil Wood showed great confidence in Miss America VII., stating: "I would like to see the game where some one could beat her." He expressed annoyance that Miss America VII. landed at Venice at 3 o'clock this morning, so shortly ahead of the race. He further complained that the race course was not handled properly, the element of foreign boats carelessly coming in during competition causing danger to the racers and themselves.

Wood Praises Seagrave.

He ended by praising Sir Henry, but said, "He is too fond of speed. He will kill himself some day."

Crown Prince Humbert attended a large luncehon party given by the Countess Frasso, formerly Dorothy Taylor of New York. Other guests included Prince Hess, Princess Kapurthala, and Miss Elsa Maxwell, California social organizer, who is a guest at Count Robliant's palace here and extremely popular. Tomorrow she gives a lunch at Excelsior for Sir Henry and the other race winners. A ball will be given tonight by the Countess Anna Morosini, descendant of a long line of Venetian doges, to be the last social feature of this brilliant lap of the Venetian season in the crown prince's honor.

Yankees Split with Browns as Flag Fades

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The Yankees faded from the pennant picture in the American league today but managed to gain an even break for the afternoon by defeating the Browns in the second game of a double header, 4 to 2, after St. Louis had ended the Hugmen's flag possibilities by winning the first, 12 to 3. An eight inning rally gave the Yanks the second contest.

FOOTBALL UNDER WAY TOMORROW ON ALL FRONTS

Big Ten, Other Elevens to Begin Drills.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Football, the monarch of intercollegiate sports, will make its 1929 debut tomorrow when formal practice will start at all major universities and colleges. A few other major elevens including Army, Navy, West Virginia have been at work for two weeks.

BOB ZUPPKE.

As a rule, however, the big teams do not settle down to hard work until the middle of September. Western conference squads are not permitted to organize until Sept. 15. As today is the official starting day of practice, the squads must wait until tomorrow before receiving preliminary instructions.

When the big ten squads report tomorrow, they will be guided by eight men who coached last year. There have been only two radical changes in the coaching staffs. Harry Kipke, one of the greatest backs in Michigan's football history, will direct the Maize and Blue eleven. He succeeds Tad Weiman, a former Michigan player who became head coach when Fielding H. Yost decided to devote his time to the athletic directorship.

Kipke Knows Football.

Kipke knows football. Since his playing days, he has coached at several schools, and last year was in charge of the Michigan State eleven. He was an all-American selection in 1922 and was named by many critics for a back field position in 1923. Kipke was one of the most accurate punters of his day.

Sam Willaman, who learned the game at Ohio State, will be in charge of football at his alma mater. Willaman succeeds Dr. John W. Wilce as head coach. The latter has done much for conference football and the game at Ohio State. He will be missed by all those who have come into contact with him as officials and coaches. Willaman has had a deal of experience in the coaching game, being head coach at Iowa State college before he accepted the position of assistant at Ohio State. If the Ohio State alumni support Willaman, Ohio State should be a factor in this year's championship race.

Robert Zuppke, who guided Illinois to the championship last year, again will be in charge at the Champaign institution. A. A. Stagg is beginning his 38th year with Chicago eleven. Glenn Thistlethwaite at Wisconsin, Burt Ingwersen at Iowa, Dick Hanley at Northwestern, Dr. C. W. Spears at Minnesota and Jimmy Phelan at Purdue have plunged into work at their regular stands. Pat Page, the former University of Chicago star, is [illegible] his fourth year in charge of Indiana elevens.

INTERPRET RULES

Officials who will handle Western conference football games this fall held their annual meeting yesterday at the Hotel Stevens to reach uniform interpretations of the playing rules.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western conference, presided. Several prominent officials talked on the various penalties and the reasons for them. In general, however, all concurred that this year's rules are specific and need little interpretation.

To Explain Penalties.

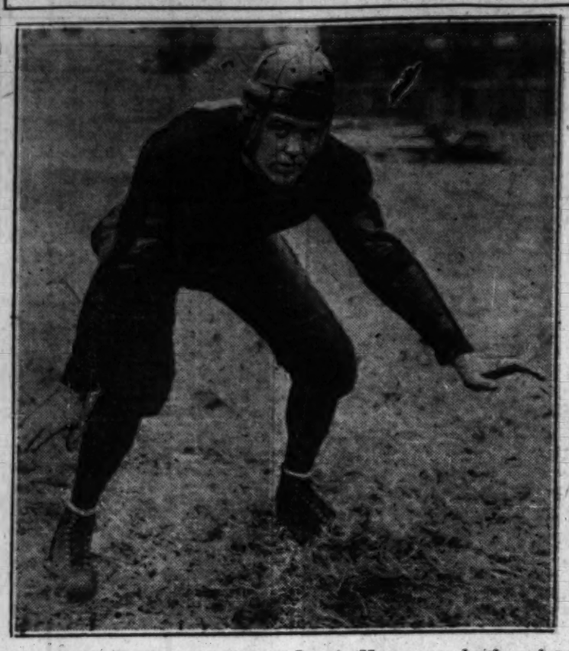
The forward pass was discussed, also the five and fifteen yard penalties. It was agreed that officials signal the score board keeper the reasons for various penalties. The code will be determined by Maj. Griffith and announced before the first games.

"I think the signal code will help every one," said Coach Stagg of Chicago. "If we can give the information to the spectator, it will improve the game. Although some of the officials voted against the idea, it was passed by a large majority."

Coaches who attended were Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Stagg of Chicago, Page of Indiana, Kippke of Michigan, Phelan of Purdue, Ingwersen of Iowa, and Thistlethwaite of Wisconsin.

Although the morning session did not bring up a discussion of the rules, Glen Thistlethwaite and Burt Ingwersen gave very interesting talks concerning beating the ball on line plays. Both gave valuable information to officials and their recommendations will be inclosed in the list of instructions to be sent out to Big Ten officials this week.

EAGER FOR CALL TO GRIDIRON



Pat Kelly, lanky end, will lead Stagg's Maroons to battle and no doubt inject some of that "fighting Irish" spirit into his teammates. Kelly is 6 feet tall and weighs 186 pounds, furnishing one ray of hope in an otherwise drab setting at the Midway.

Big Ten Title Badgers' Goal as They Await Initial Drill

Madison, Wis., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Denied the Western conference championship last year when they lost the final game of the season to Minnesota, 6 to 0, University of Wisconsin football players again will have their eyes fixed on first place when they open the practice season Monday with a four hour drill.

GLENN THISTLETHWAITE.

A score or more of athletes arrived here today after summer vacations in which they did everything from saving lives at resort beaches to pouring red hot metal in the Gary steel mills. The remainder of the advance guard of 55 summoned by Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite will arrive tomorrow in time to secure suits and lockers from Shorty Bartz, the genial equipment manager.

Third Year for Thistlethwaite.

Thistlethwaite, often called the gloomiest Big Ten coach, is beginning his third year at Wisconsin. Prior to his transfer to Madison, Thistlethwaite spent five years in lifting Northwestern from the football doldrums to a commanding place in the conference.

During his first year here the Badgers won only one conference game, finishing ninth in the standing. Remarking only that it took time to make football teams, Thistlethwaite kept working. Last year Wisconsin defeated Notre Dame and won second place in the Big Ten.

The big question mark in all of the coach's calculations for the coming season has to do with the quarter back position, where Sammy Behr, Rockford, Ill., and Walter Graebner, Wausau, Wis., are candidates to replace Bo Cuisinier, former Tilden Tech, Chicago, player, who now is a member of the coaching staff.

Scoring Power in Back Field.

Plenty of scoring power is available for the back field. Half backs are led by Bill Lusby, Hyde Park kicker and passer; Red Oman, Chisholm, Minn., and Russ Rebholz, Portage, Wis. Rebholz is an 160 pound sophomore who looked impressive in spring practice. The others are letter men.

Harold Rebholz, brother of Russ, and a three year varsity performer, will battle a pair of sophomores, Walter Gnabah of Forest Park, Ill., and Jack Sport, Childress, Tex., for the full back berth.

Among the letter winning linemen who will report are Capt. John Parks, Muskogee, Okla., a guard; Milo Lubratovich, Duluth, Minn., tackle; Chet Miller, Antigo, Wis., center, and four ends: George Casey, Chicago; Milton Gantenbein, La Crosse, Wis.; Ebert Warren, Akron, O., and Lewis Smith, Prospect, O.

Bible Defends New Football Fumble Rule

Kansas City, Sept. 14.—Dana X. Bible, new head football coach at the University of Nebraska and a member of the national football rules committee which last winter made the new regulations ruling a fumbled ball dead at the point of recovery, explained the rule and defended himself and the committee in a meeting here today.

Bible talked to nearly 100 coaches and officials of the Big Six, Missouri Valley, and lesser conferences for most of the general meeting. Bible was a member of the committee from the southwestern states while a member of the coaching staff of Texas A. & M. college.

The new rule, which has caused much comment, favorable and unfavorable, but generally the latter, as listed in rule 13, section 14:

Gives Four Reasons.

"If the side in possession of the ball fumbles it and the ball, after striking the ground, is then recovered by an opponent, it is dead at the point of recovery and cannot be advanced."

Bible said he voted for the rule for these reasons:

1. The coaches association, meeting last year at New Orleans, voted (with two exceptions) for the fumble rule now in effect.
2. The error of one player should not be charged to an entire team.
3. Although the change may take some thrill from the game (that of seeing a player scoop up the ball and race to a touchdown, or at least make a big gain) it will add more than it takes away in that it will stimulate the offense to take more chances.
4. It helps a weak team.

In a terse, vivid explanation of the rule changes, Bible emphasized that the rules this year prevent an offensive team from advancing the ball on any kick it makes and recovers, except when the ball goes into the possession of the opponents and then is fumbled.

Bruins to Play All Home Games at Chicago Stadium

Professional basketball fans were assured of seeing their favorite winter sport in a major league setting this season when George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bruins, announced yesterday that his five would play all its home games this season in Chicago stadium. The Bruins will open their home season Nov. 27 with Cleveland's world champions. All games at the stadium will be played on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Ex-Augustana Coach Gets Job in Kansas

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Carl J. Peterson, formerly football coach at Augustana college here, has been appointed director of athletics at the high school at Norton, Kas. He is a graduate of Nebraska university.

RIDDLED LINE MAIN PROBLEM FOR N. U. COACH

Reconstructing a line which has been somewhat riddled through graduation appears to be the big problem confronting Coach Dick Hanley and his aids at Northwestern this fall. The back field, while weakened by the loss of Walt Holmer, all-western full back a year ago, still seems to possess considerable power.

Sixty candidates are expected to don regimentals for the first time tomorrow morning. Double practice sessions will be held until the start of classes next Monday. Coach Hanley intends to put his men through some spirited workouts for the next few weeks to get them ready for the opener with Butler, Oct. 5.

Included among the players who will report are 17 lettermen, about half of whom saw service on the varsity a year ago. This group, plus several promising sophomores, will give the Wildcats a strong nucleus around which to consturuct the 1929 machine.

Must Develop Kicker, Passer.

With Holmer gone, Coach Hanley will find it necessary to develop a kicker and passer. Hank Bruder, the Pekin, Ill., husky who turned in some fine performances as a sophomore last year, probably will be the answer to this search.

Bruder may not be as finished a kicker and passer as Holmer, but he has few equals as a line smasher. It is in this department that he probably will be used for the most part. Lee Hanley, brother of Coach Hanley, and Rus Bergherm, a senior, are excellent passers. The former has a good chance of landing the quarter back assignment, while Bergherm is in line for the full back post. The other half back position probably will be held down by Bill Calderwood, an excellent blocker and ball carrier.

Several other back field lettermen also are available and can be counted upon for first class performances. They are Bill Griffin, half back, and George [Shorty] Rojan and Johnny Haas, quarter backs. Griffin, a sophomore last year, proved a splendid ball carrier.

Gaps to Fill in Line.

Loss of three first string tackles, two guards and an end will be difficult to overcome. John Hazen, Harry Kent and Frank Sinkler are the tackles who will not be back. Justin Dart, regular guard for three years, and Tom Verdell, mentioned as all-conference and a year ago, are the others who have joined the alumni ranks.

Little concern is held by the coaches over the center position with Mickey Erickson, veteran of two years, ready for action. Coach Hanley expects him to prove one of the outstanding pivot men in the conference this year. Bob Clark, a sophomore a year ago, will be a creditable reserve center.

The ends appear strong at this time with a quartet of lettermen available including Frank Baker, Larry Oliphant, Ted Egbert and Don Massie.

About 40 sophomores, nearly 15 of whom are counted upon to make varsity material, will be on hand. Despite the number of veteran backs returning, several sophomores will make a strong bid for a position. They are Half Backs Sid Bernstein, Os Baxter, Bob Hails, Jimmie O'Mara and full backs, Al Moore, Harry Pritchard and Sol Simon.

Move Woodworth to Tackle.

The new linemen must take over the vacancies caused by graduation. Red Woodworth, an end last year, is to be shifted over to tackle and probably will hold down a regular job. Several huskies among the sophomores will fight it out for the other job. They are Paul Engebritsen, Dallis Marvil, Carl Hutchinson, Jack Riley and Cliff Kinder.

With Capt. Henry Anderson and Francis Sullivan back at the guard positions, it will be a tough task for a sophomore to break in here. However, a quintet of these men will provide able reserve material. They are Jimmie Evans, Ralph Sharberg, Paul Schoettle, Bus Smith and John Spivey. The new flankmen, all of whom show promise are Ralph Eylar, Bob Gonya, John Krugt and Fred Witzel.

A number of non-lettermen from last year, most of whom held down positions on the B team, stand a good chance of graduating to the varsity. They are Dean Klarr, Roy Lemming and Bill Davis, backs; Art Cool, Dick Scott and Ralph Haug, tackles; J. R. Schneider, guard and James Vail, center.

Tompkins, New to Fight on Mastro-Zorilla Card

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 14.—Special.]—The Cream City Athletic club today closed with Freddy Tompkins and Louie New, two local lightweights, to battle eight rounds in the semi-final to the Earl Mastro-Santiago Zorilla match, which was postponed from Sept. 10 to Sept. 23.

STAGG TO HAVE HEAVIER BACKS FOR HIS TEAM

Offensive hopes of the Maroon football team will rest largely on new players who give promise of brilliance but lack experience. With Hugh Mendenhall ineligible, no letterman is available for the back field, but Coach Stagg has high hopes for his ball carriers.

Errett Van Nice, who promised to be a sensation last year before injuries checked him, will be the ball carrying ace of the team. Van Nice, a rangy 180 pounder, is a clever runner with the best speed on the squad. He is also the best passer Stagg has this season, being especially good on long throws. Van Nice has grown so much during the year that he should be able to stand the battering this season.

The full back position appears to be clinched by Walter Knudson, a chunky 175 pounder whose work in spring practice was cheering to the coaches. Knudson hits with a punch that has been lacking since the days of McCarty, and he is a hard tackler. Knudson was on the squad last year, but lacked experience.

Joe Temple, former Oak Park full back, is one of the few promising sophomore recruits in the back field. He weighs 176, handles himself well, and drives hard. He promises to be a consistently effective player. Van Nice, Knudson, and Temple will be considerably heavier than the back field men Chicago had last season.

The quarter back position is an open fight, with "Inky" Bluhm, Glen Heywood, and Paul Stagg as the leading candidates. Bluhm has been learning the game for the last two seasons and has the edge in experience. He weighs 165. Heywood saw some service last year, but lacked experience to run the team. He weighs only 151, but is a fast man. Paul Stagg, son of the coach, had no high school experience, but has played with the freshmen for two seasons. He weighs 148.

One of the problems that the "Old Man" faces is to develop a punter. Mendenhall was the only consistent kicker on the team, and it will take hard work to groom some one for his place. It may be necessary to pull Capt. Pat Kelly into the back field for the punting.

Lane Rallies to Beat Tilden Eleven, 7 to 6

Tilden Tech, City league and interleague champion, was on the verge of opening the 1929 season with a victory over Lane at White City yesterday, but Buechler, the north siders' left half, took a pass from Adler and sprinted 30 yards for a touchdown with only three minutes of the game remaining. Adler then plunged over for the extra point and Tilden was defeated, 7 to 6.

Coach Harvey used his second team until the middle of the second period. Shortly after the regulars appeared Shemaitis circled end for a touchdown. The try for a point was wide. After Lane's touchdown the 1928 champions opened up a passing attack. With a minute to go, Conroy, who starred for Tilden, passed to Shemaitis and the latter ran 40 yards to Lane's 10 yard line before he was downed. The game ended before the Techs could put it over. Lineup:

ENGLEWOOD, 7; SCHURZ, 0.

Joe Pontevic, the young man who pitched Englewood to the baseball championship of the City league this spring, yesterday proved that he's just as handy on the gridiron when his team defeated Schurz, 7 to 0, in the opening game of the season for both at Normal park. Joe plunged over for a touchdown in the first quarter, which, with Capt. Mehaffy's drop kick for the point, provided Englewood's margin of victory. The south siders were within a yard and a half of another touchdown when the gun ended the game. Lineup:

ENGLEWOOD [7].		SCHURZ [0].

HURRICANES BEAT SANDS POINT FOR U. S. POLO TITLE

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Stephan Sanford's Hurricanes today became the new high goal polo champions of the United States, every member of the team playing brilliantly, the Anglo-Americans turned back the challenge of Tommy Hitchcock's Sands Point four in the final open championship battle, 11 to 7, with a burst of three goals in the closing period, finally and definitely pulling them away from the stubborn chase the Sands Point riders put up through the entire game.

The Hurricanes played up to the promise. From No. 1, where Sanford played his best game this season, to back where Bobby Strawbridge was more was a star, the Hurricanes [illegible] like mad. There was no stopping them. The long slim figure of one of America's former international[illegible] Watson Webb and the helmeted figure of England's best present day player, Capt. C. T. I. Roark, dominated between them they took care of Hitchcock and harassed him so that he was never able to swing his team into the sort of an attack it used to sweep into the final round.

The lineup and summary:

SANDS POINT [7]. HURRICANES [11].
W. Ave'll Harriman No. 1. Laddie Sanford
E. A. S. Hopping No. 2 Capt. C. T. I. Roark

STEEPLECHASE STAR TO MAKE DEBUT SEPT. 21

Sea Soldier Bought by Onwentsia Group.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sea Soldier, the steeplechaser purchased by a group of wealthy members of the Onwentsia club, has attracted much attention in his training lately.

He gives so much promise of becoming one of the foremost timber-toppers in the country his new owners are looking forward to his first appearance under the Onwentsia silks over the three mile course at Lake Forest on Sept. 21.

AUSTIN NIBLACK.

Few steeplechasers in America have a more interesting history than this agile jumper.

He is the only son of Man o' War bred strictly for steeplechase racing. However, several sons of the superhorse have developed into high grade steeplechasers.

Pays $5,000 for Man o' War.

When Samuel D. Riddle got his first look at the famous Man o' War at the yearling sales at Saratoga, he was not impressed. However, M. M. Maddox of Virginia, an enthusiastic horseman, was so persistent in urging Mr. Riddle to buy the son of Fair Play that the Philadelphia sportsman made the purchase for $5,000.

After Man o' War became the horse of the century Mr. Riddle did not forget the good advice he got from Mr. Maddox. As a result, Mr. Riddle invited Mr. Maddox to send Sea Name, one of the best steeplechase mares in Mr. Maddox's string, to be mated with Man o' War. Sea Soldier, the steeplechaser which has come to Onwentsia, was the result of this union.

When the members of the Onwentsia club were east for the spring races in Maryland and Virginia, Sea Soldier's easy way of taking the jumps and his tremendous speed and courage caught their eye. He was first in the big race at Whitemarsh, but met with an accident at Rosetree, a horse falling in front of him and bringing him down.

Ten Form Syndicate.

At Radnor he could have won by 20 lengths. However, Sea Soldier was a member of a team of three carrying the silks of one owner, and the owner decided to win with the horse he was riding.

The Onwentsia members were so enthusiastic about Sea Soldier's ability ten of them formed a syndicate and purchased the jumper. Members of the syndicate are Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Benjamin Leslie Behr, William McCormick Blair, E. A. Cudahy Jr., Charles F. Glore, Noble B. Judah, Donald M. Ryerson, V. C. Spalding, R. J. Thorne and Austin H. Niblack.

"We do not plan to make a professional out of Sea Soldier," Mr. Niblack declared yesterday. "We purchased him for amateur events, and he will run for cups and other trophies at the amateur meetings."

Training for 6 Weeks.

Sea Soldier has been in training for six weeks. His favorite distance is over a post and rail course of four miles. In his first race at Lake Forest he will be asked to compete over a 3-mile course, which is not his distance.

If there are no training or racing mishaps he will start in a race every Saturday over a period of seven weeks. This is a gruelling campaign, but the Onwentsia club members are confident he will come through with a fine record.

He has a number of eastern engagements, and while he may not be quite up to his best form when he makes his first appearance here on Sept. 21 his new owners are confident he will be at his best when he fills his engagements in the east.

$339,000 in Turf Winnings Go to Whitney

After Whichone had won the Futurity at Belmont yesterday the earnings of the Harry Payne Whitney stable for the year reached the total of $339,111. Only two owners have ever won more money in a single year on the American turf. The horses owned by the late James R. Keene won $397,342 in 1913. This record stood until 1923, when the Rancocas stable horses, headed by Zev, rolled up a total of $438,849. With the Pimlico Futurity, Kentucky Jockey club stakes, and several other rich 2 year old fixtures to shoot at this fall, the Whitney stable may hang up a new money earning record.

Jockey J. Parmalee, the leading rider of the Lincoln Fields season, had to cancel his riding engagements yesterday because of injuries he sustained by his fall on Blind Hills in the last race Friday. He will resume riding early this week.

Albert Sabath, prominently identified with the Hawthorne association, has announced he will assemble a stable to carry his silks during the winter season at the Oriental Park track in Cuba. He is endeavoring to get Jake Lowenstein of Chicago to train them.

Walter Taylor, who is training Mike Hall at Lincoln Fields for his invasion of England, received word yesterday that the crack gelding has been assigned 119 pounds for the Cesarewitch, the fall fixture for which he is being pointed. Palais Royal, the French distance runner, will carry top weight of 128 pounds.

Mose Lowenstein of Chicago, who trains the mighty Misstep, says it has not been determined whether the son of Upset will be retired to the stud at the end of this season or kept in training for another year.

LAPORTE PREP HURT.

Laporte, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Robert Prunsky, quarter back on the Laporte High school football team, will be lost to the team for the season as a result of a fractured collar bone sustained in practice.

WHICHONE WINS $105,730 PRIZE; HI JACK SECOND

are winning him trifles of money, and I couldn't find any one who could certainly say he was here today, although a lot of fellows from the press coop were trying to find him.

Other Big Races.

There were two other big races on the program of the day, the Grand National steeplechase and the Gold Cup, a two mile flat race, and the grand total of disbursements in the way of prize money for the day ran around $200,000. It is curious that in horse racing, a millionaire's game, they take on about such sum as $200,000 as though nobody ever saw $200,000. Old Tex Rickard used to guarantee the loser more than that in the prize fight business as a matter of routine financing.

Arc Light, a big, tough gelding, won the Grand National, coming up from the rear in the last furlong to pass Fairfield as they sailed over the last hurdle and straightened out over the flat, heading home. He was a 25 to 1 shot. The Green Tree horses, Jolly Roger and Fairfield, were so heavily backed as an entry that the bookies offered only 2 to 5 to win and refused to do any business whatever on the matter of their running second or third. They are Whitney horses, too, but the Green Tree stable belongs to another Whitney.

The big horses had to go twice around the park in the Grand National, jumping over barriers of shrubbery and troughs of water every so often and, although seven horses ran, only one fell down, which is unusual. Fairfield got into a personal race with Ruler in the first couple of miles and used up too much of his run and floundered in the last quarter. Jolly Roger also worked on Ruler and thus it was that in the last mile Arc Light was able to move up, passing Fairfield and Jolly Roger to win the first prize of $44,450.

Arc Light passed Fairfield as they went over the last jump and legged along very tired, but gamely, pulling away slightly as Jockey Baumann spanked him on the tail in the last few strides. He won by two lengths.

The third big race was the Jockey club gold cup, at two miles over the flat, won by Diavolo, a four year old chestnut colt, owned by Mrs. H. C. Phipps and Ogden Mills of Washington. He is something important in the treasury, I believe. This horse was a favorite, too, at 7 to 10 with no price quoted to place or show, but there were only four in the heat, as the financing could not be very liberal.

OLDSMOBILE RECOGNIZES THESE RESPONSIBILITIES TO EVERY OWNER

The ever-increasing owner loyalty for Oldsmobile may be traced directly to Oldsmobile's fair-minded attitude toward those who purchase Oldsmobile cars. For Oldsmobile does not rest content merely with building a good car. Oldsmobile goes farther—and assumes this four-fold responsibility to every Oldsmobile owner: to design progressively . . . to build faithfully . . . to sell honestly . . . to service sincerely.

To insure sound, progressive engineering, Oldsmobile has brought together a staff of engineers whose joy lies in accomplishment and whose ambition is to contribute some new advancement to Oldsmobile and, through Oldsmobile, some progress to modern motoring. Changes in Oldsmobile design are always made for the sake of progress—never for the sake of change alone. Back of these men are the complete facilities of their own fine engineering laboratories and the vast resources of the General Motors Research Laboratories and General Motors Proving Ground.

Oldsmobile principles of manufacture are expressed in the pledge that every worker follows, from the highest executive to the newest shop employee . . . "Anything short of my best is not acceptable." Faithfulness of manufacture results from allegiance to this ideal . . . faithfulness that means not only fine materials and exacting limits of accuracy, but careful, precise workmanship and rigid inspection.

Oldsmobile firmly believes that absolute honesty in selling and in advertising is the only sure road to long continued public favor. The public is thoroughly capable of judging both quality and value. And the public has conferred upon Oldsmobile the highest reward of merit—constantly increasing preference. Oldsmobile will not risk this priceless good-will by deviating, though it be ever so slightly, from the facts.

Oldsmobile has instituted a service policy that recognizes the equities not only of Oldsmobile owners, but of Oldsmobile dealers as well. Oldsmobile backs up its dealers by accepting responsibilities which are commonly left to the dealer, because Oldsmobile's interest in every sale goes far beyond the time of purchase. This policy is made possible by Oldsmobile's quality, dependability, and fine performance. And it contributes largely to the loyalty and enthusiasm of the mounting thousands of Oldsmobile owners.

To design progressively. To build faithfully. To sell honestly. To service sincerely. Four great responsibilities—recognized by Oldsmobile and willingly assumed in order that every Oldsmobile owner shall be a friend of Oldsmobile.

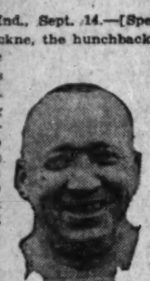
"FAIR, JUST FAIR," ROCKNE'S SIZE UP OF GRID CHANCES

Notre Dame Practices to Begin Tomorrow.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Knute Rockne, the hunchback-er of Notre Dame—he makes his rivals hunch-backed carrying the loads of football he cooks up for them—is deep in preparations for the 1929 edition of that popular serial entitled "The Fighting Irish."



KNUTE ROCKNE.

Mr. Rockne, like all good authors, is his own severest critic, and declines to enthuse over the forthcoming issue.

"Fair, just fair," said Mr. Rockne.

Loses Three Star Backs.

"How about these new half backs, especially this chap Schwartz from the south?" he was asked.

"Yeah, how about losing our whole backfield," he parried.

"Wasn't your last year's freshman team pretty hot?"

"Well, fair," said the coach. "Just fair. Johnny Niemiec was a good man. So was Johnny Chevigny. And Fred Collins was a good man. But all three are gone. You know they graduated."

The lines at the corners of the coach's mouth took a distinct downward turn, an indication that he was grieved over the departure of the trio.

"How about this Johnny Elder, the half back?"

"Fair," was the reply.

"Fair? Isn't he fast?"

"O, yes, he's fast enough. As I say, he's fair."

"Hasn't he equaled the world's record in the short sprints?"

"O, yes, Johnny's O. K. Quite speedy. In fact, I am counting on him as a key man. Now if we had Niemiec and Johnny——"

"This chap Brill from Philadelphia; wasn't he pretty flashy in the spring training?"

"Well, fair."

And that's as far as the boss of the Fighting Irish could be prodded.

"Later on," Rockne promised, "after I get a better line on the boys, and find out how they have been spending their time this summer, maybe I can give you something a little more definite."

"What has Capt. Johnny Law been doing this summer?" the coach was asked.

"Pushing bricks and mortar in a wheelbarrow," he replied.

Regular practice starts Monday. He expects the full squad to be ready for work.

Of last year's squad the most serious losses through graduation were Freddy Miller, captain and tackle, and George Leppig, guard, and the whole first string backfield, consisting of Brady, Niemec, Chevigny and Collins.

Draws From Four Sources.

To offset these losses, Rockne has four sources from which to draw men for this year's team, last season's letter men, the reserves, the freshmen, and players of the inter-hall teams.

The letter men comprise the following:

LINESMEN—Joe Nash, Tim Moynihan, John Lawn, Jack Cannon, Gus Bondi, Ted Towney, Dick Donahue, Frank Leahy, John Colrick, Ed Collins, John O'Brien, Tim Murphy, Manny Vezie, and Tom Conley.

BACKS—Frank Carideo, Jack Elder, George Shay, and Larry Mullins.

HOOVER WATCHES THE IMP TAKE PRESIDENT'S CUP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—President Hoover spent a little more than a quarter of an hour on the Potomac today to witness the second and deciding heat in the speed boat race for the President's cup which was won by Richard V. Hoyt, of the Columbia Yacht club of New York, in his Imp.

As was the case yesterday, the Imp had little competition from Gerald Holbrook's Jersey Lightning, which was driven by Captain F. C. Erickson, of Red Bank, N. J. The Imp's time for the fifteen miles was 20 minutes and 53 seconds, an average of 43.080 miles an hour, which is much below the time set in the Presidential cup race of other years.

C. Roy Keys' Carenaught, of Buffalo, driven by William Elliott, won the race for the secretary of the Navy's cup, completing the twenty miles in 27 minutes and 9 seconds at an average speed of 44.175 miles an hour.

PLEBE ELEVEN MEETS VARSITY AT ANNAPOLIS

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Engaging in the first scrimmage of the season under game conditions, relays of the Naval academy varsity players engaged the strong plebe team for nearly an hour and a half this afternoon.

The plebes gave an excellent account of themselves and made only a few substitutions during this time, while two complete teams opposed them with more substitutions from the big squad.

The back field of the first varsity on the field consisted of Komlhas, quarter; Toth and Castree, halves, and McCracken, full back. The running of Toth featured this part of the play, one of his runs covering forty-five yards and resulting in the only touchdown of the afternoon.

AUCHTERMUCHTY GOLF MEET WON BY W. S. CORBLY

Victor Shoots 77-81-76 for Low Gross.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

W. S. Corbly, whose home club is Glen Oak, won the twelfth annual Auchtermuchty, two day invitational tournament of the Oak Park Country club with a burst of golfing speed on his final round yesterday. Starting with a 77, Corbly slipped to 81 on his morning round yesterday but came back in the afternoon with 76 to win low gross for the 54 holes.

The home club members didn't do so well in winning prizes, but members of fourteen clubs shared in the prize awards which is some kind of a record. At that Brookwood got more than its share.

Terreo Low for 18.

Though not figuring in the awards, one foursome deserved at least a vote of appreciation for their loyalty. For the twelfth consecutive year the foursome of Dr. Lester F. Bryant, Oak Park; Dr. Sidney J. Knowles, Park Ridge; Dr. James A. Burrill, Skokie, and R. Lynn Roberts, Skokie, played the 54 holes of the Auchtermuchty. Each year since the tournament began this group has played as a foursome with not one of them missing a single tournament.

Among the other good golf players, L. D. Terreo, Brookwood, won low gross on the first 18 holes with 78; T. L. Gatke, Oak Park, won on the second round with 79, and Vincent M. Huntington, Brookwood, on the third 18 with 77.

Huszagh Wins in Class B.

R. L. Huszagh, Bob o' Link, won low gross in class B for the 54 holes with rounds of 82—89—84—255, and H. G. Edwards, North Shore, won in class C with 98—99—93—290.

The low net prizes were hotly contested, only seven strokes separating first and sixth on the 54 holes. J. J. Rutherford, Midlothian, won with 89—82—89—251—33—218. F. W. Miller, Oak Park, 27—51—222, was second and C. B. Hazelwood, Beverly, 262—39—223, third.

The list of prizes awarded follows:

Low gross 54 holes, class A—W. S. Corbly, Glen Oak, 77—81—76—234; class B—R. L. Husszagh, Bob o' Link, 82—89—84—255; class C—H. G. Edwards, North Shore, 98—99—93—290.

The Inquiring Reporter

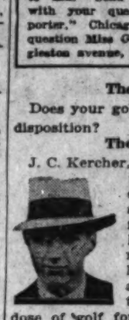
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Gertrude Dreifus, 7415 Eggleston avenue, was awarded $5.

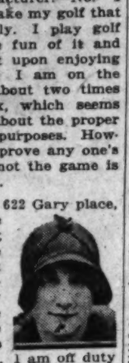
The Question.

Does your golf game ever ruin your disposition?

The Answers.



J. C. Kercher, 1236 Columbia avenue, manufacturer.—No. I don't take my golf that seriously. I play golf for the fun of it and I insist upon enjoying myself. I am on the links about two times a week, which seems to be about the proper dose of golf for my purposes. However, golf ought to improve any one's disposition; if it does not the game is not being played right.



Miss Rose Williams, 622 Gary place, cashier.—No. Just the contrary. I like golf; it's a wonderful game and I get a big kick out of it. I think everybody ought to play golf. It would take the kinks out of the cranks. One feels so refreshed after a game. I am off duty at 2 o'clock, and play a round in the late afternoon. I frequently play 36 holes on Sunday.

Harry Olsen, 1645 North Richmond street, insurance.—Does it! I am a wreck after I get through with 18 holes. I swear off the game for good every time I play, but the next Sunday I am at it again. The main thing that gets my goat is the women on the course. What do they do? Well, they just prolong the agony a couple of more hours.

Miss Marjorie Ashby, 7636 Greenview avenue, student.—It doesn't, because I don't play golf with that attitude. It is a pleasure to me and I make it a pleasure. It is bad sportsmanship to allow one's temper to be jostled during the game. I dislike seeing any one lose his temper over golf; it looks foolish and childish. I play every time any one invites me.

Paul Wingstrom, 236 North Clark street, Chicago Golf and Country Club Review—No. But sometimes my score gives me a jolt. Golf is a game that fairly lifts one up to the sky when everything goes right; at other times it is discouraging. But the possibility of making a great play and a memorable game spurs one on and makes the balance come out more than even. Ruined dispositions should have no place in golf.

Best to Have Dog on Duck Hunting Trip

BY BOB BECKER.

The crack of a shotgun roars across a marsh. A mallard duck circles over a bunch of noisy decoys and drops to hit the water with a splash. Out from a shore blind a dog, ears up and tail wagging, rushes into the water and swims to the fallen bird, takes it between its jaws, and paddles back to the blind to deliver it to a hunter.

This is the kind of "dog days" that are in the offing. August produces one brand, but the dog days that millions of sportsmen like are associated with flying water fowl, noisy decoys, and shots near a blind. It won't be long now.

Taking the leading roles in these autumn dog days which will begin with the opening of the duck season are Labrador retrievers, those husky, black fellows; springer spaniels—we have Horsford Hereunto being tuned up for his marsh work; Irish water spaniels, those happy-go-lucky workers with the queer hair cuts, and Chesapeake Bay retrievers, the big fellows, the "full backs" of the retrievers.

Sportsmen are learning that the use of a trained retriever is a conservation measure as well as a lot of fun. Last year there were days in the marsh when we derived a bigger kick from the retrieving of our springer than from the actual shooting. But quite aside from the show that a good retriever puts on, the use of such a dog is a distinct conservation measure in that he will trail, locate, and bring in dozens of wounded ducks that might otherwise escape the hunter.

Many of these wounded birds, unable to fly with the flocks that eventually move south, are left behind to perish. We recall one duck hunt a few years ago when two of us, hunting without a retriever, lost 11 cripples. With a good springer, Labrador or Irish water spaniel, every one of those birds would have been brought in.

INTRUDER WINS BENNETT TROPHY SEVENTH TIME

Fast Sloop Again Leads Jackson Park Fleet.

For the seventh consecutive year the O'Rourke brothers' Intruder can claim the Bennett cup and the championship of the Jackson Park Yacht club fleet. The fast "Q" class sloop turned the trick again yesterday by defeating Bob Williamson's Edith II., sailing Seawanhaka sloop, and George Buckley's Shalamar, leading yawl, handily, over a nine mile triangular course.

Intruder's victory marked the culmination of a year's sailing for the Bennett trophy. With the class championships decided, the qualifiers for the final race, one to each class, competed for the club title, under handicaps based on Seawanhaka racing rules. In yesterday's race, Intruder gave both of her rivals time and still finished first.

John O'Rourke sent Intruder into the lead at the start, and with the same type of breeze blowing which won Intruder the Lutz cup last week, the speedster had no trouble keeping ahead. Intruder's time for the nine miles was 1:39:06, nine minutes and two seconds ahead of Edith II. Shalamar trailed with a corrected time of 2:06:04. Intruder's crew during the race was John O'Rourke, skipper; William Whalen, Joseph Connell, Art Weil and John Leinert.

STAGE REGATTA

Twenty-four members of the Chicago Yacht club fleet staged a regatta of their own on Chicago's lake front yesterday, and turned in some of the fastest sailing in many seasons. A brisk northwest breeze sped the boats over a twenty-one mile course, stretching from Roosevelt road to Belmont harbor.

Heading southeast from the start, the racers made fast time over the eight miles of the first leg, and on the five mile second leg, with the wind abeam, the race committee's motor boat had trouble in keeping up with the fleeting yachts. The race was won on the eight mile beat home to Belmont harbor in the face of the wind.

The Sheridan-Vail syndicate's tiny "R" class sloop Arial turned in the best corrected time among Universal design boats, to win the Universal time prize for the afternoon's sailing. Ariel turned the star "Q" class sloop Siren by seven minutes and nine seconds, and set down the big "P" class Joyant scratch boat of the Universal fleet, on elapsed time, and by more than an hour, counting Ariel's handicap.

Fortune Trims Elizabeth.

Kimball and Railton's "R" class Nancy was only sixteen seconds behind Aerial past the mark in a close finish, while Hollis Potter's Calypso and Kales' and Harris' Jonnie followed at minute intervals. Samuel Dauchy's Varya and Bill Faurot's Fantome of the "R" class staged the afternoon's closest finish when Varya led Fantome over the line by three seconds.

W. G. D. Odd's Fortune outpointed Lynn Williams' Elizabeth in the schooner class by ten minutes, 3:24:38 to 3:34:35, while Julian Armstrong's Tecumseh was forced out of the race with a broken rudder.

10,000 ATTEND INDUSTRIAL MEET AT HAWTHORNE

An industrial Olympic meet which attracted 10,000 spectators and 500 competing amateur athletes was staged yesterday at the Western Electric Hawthorne works. Five teams of telephone makers representing the major divisions of the works, vied for the championship. Seven records fell in this battle of the spikeways and representatives of the Engineering organization emerged the victors, nosing out Clerical by only three and a half points. Engineers totaled 64½ points; Clerical, 61; Operating, 60½; Merchandise, 44½, and Technical, 43½.

Evelynne Hall, I. W. A. C. flash, proved the sensation of the meet, shattering two works records and grabbing individual honors with 17¾ points. She established new records in the 60 yard dash, which she stepped in 7 3-5 seconds, and in the 65 yard low hurdles, which she skimmed in 9 3-5 seconds. Adeline Rozhon leaped 4 feet, 6 inches to a new girls' high jump mark; Ruth Wright, University of Nebraska beat, jumped 15 feet 9¾ inches to a new mark; S. Barrows, Graceland college star, pole vaulted 11 feet 7 inches for a new high; R. Mann, University of Iowa, high jumped 5 feet 11¾ inches, and Operating girls ran the 220 relay in 29 2-5 seconds.

An eight pound shotput event for women, on the program for the first time, attracted attention. The event was won by Miss Georgiana Bilek, who heaved the iron pellet 29 feet 9¾ inches to establish a record.

C. L. Rice, vice president of Western Electric, opened the meet by welcoming the thousands of newcomers to Hawthorne to participate in the recreational program of the works.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The trustful business men who accept horse wagers on the New York and Florida race tracks where betting is forbidden by law but permitted by custom are reported to lose somewhere between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 every year in bad debts. Of course there is no way of knowing exactly how much they lose, for there is no clearing house. For the same reason there is no way of knowing just how much money is wagered in the course of a season's play, much of it on credit.

One of the leading financiers in this trade tells me that the losses due to nonpayment of bets amount to about

5 per cent of the total, from which one might reach the conclusion that the season's turnover is only $60,000,000 or $80,000,000. This seems a bit scant. Million dollar days are rather common.

There is a pleasant temptation to go on from there speculating in beautiful figures on the amount of money that is wagered legally and otherwise on the horses in this country in the course of a year's chancing. With Chicago, Maryland, Kentucky, New Orleans and all the minor centers of the game entering vast sums in the column and with a great unknown total of money flowing hither and yon along the telegraph wires, the turnover might be half a billion. Could it be a billion?

Awe Inspiring Sums on Brisk Days.

Some of these operators do business in awe inspiring sums on brisk days, but, of course, much of it is used money. One gambler bets it against another and he bets it back again. It isn't new capital; it is turnover. But how large is the cash basis? Much of it is professional money or gambling money, an isolated pool of wealth apart from the great seas of commercial money. It washes about in its own basin, now high on one shore, now on the other. With the flow of its own tide, there is a certain rate of absorption.

Gamblers, in funds, spend lavishly for wine, for big cars, clothing and luxuries for the families. A certain proportion of them are always in funds, so this drain is constant. Yet sea level in this flowing body of wealth remains generally the same, so I suppose the drainage is replaced by a constant equalizing trickle of new money, the professional gambler's percentage. Col. E. R. Bradley says this percentage is always operating against the casual player.

There is an odium attaching to the trade of bookmaking which seems unjustified in my observation. I find them to be a proud corps, sensitive of their credit, meticulous about their obligations and far more welched against than welching. One comes to picture the bookmaker as a ratty character with a plush vest, a horse shoe stickpin and a bleary eye.

Banker's Standing in His Own Sphere.

At Saratoga the one who booked my timorous shillings while they lasted had the outward appearance of a commuter, the mind of a cash register, and a banker's standing in his own sphere of business. I quite understand that bookmakers default now and again, but I also have heard of them coming back to pay off as soon as they could. Such defaults so atoned for cannot be classed as welching. Rather, I suppose, they must be given the milder epithet of business troubles, of a kind familiar in all lines. And, whereas a merchant may go through bankruptcy and come back without discharging his debts in full, the bookmaker must pay 100 per cent before he is reaccepted.

What is the annual bill of the U. S. A. for sport in all its costly ramifications? This is something the federal trade commission cannot hope to know. One first must determine what is expense and what is merely an exchange of money.

Certainly most of this gambling turnover is not expense. Nor can the cost of keeping stables be charged entirely as money gone away, for much of it deserves rating as investment. Golf is one of the most expensive sports in the country's bill for pleasure out of doors, with an enormous demand for money for dues, materials upkeep and service. Football and baseball drain off great sums in gate receipts.

But then it goes back to people as wages, for there is a workman somewhere for every patron or player in the American frenzy of games. The turnover, expenditure and investment must run into more than one billion, but Mr. Dawes himself couldn't isolate the cost of all this fun so inextricably is it mixed with useful commerce.

Sport in this country has become one of the great industries, employing more personnel than aviation, and the outlay for it in all its aspects must rank high among the items on the bill for living. By the way, as we travel through life, and as the bookmakers put it in their calm philosophy, the damn stuff is only money, anyway.

ESSEX the Challenger

ESSEX SUPER SIX

GREATEST IN PERFORMANCE . . .

SPEED—faster than any car ever built in its price class—Not just a fine drawn shade of advantage but a smashing big superiority that easily distances anything in this field. Its supremacy is not based on theoretical horsepower and specially adapted test devices. Essex speed is a real and usable quality—established on the road—established in records at better than 70 miles an hour, all over the country—established by stop-watch timing over measured distances—established by owners who know and constantly demonstrate that nothing can touch it at the price.

GETAWAY—here again the proofs are actual, from 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds—from 10 to 70 in 19.2 seconds. But more important is the value of Essex getaway in daily service. Its ability is so well known that everyone expects it to be first away at the signal "Go."

SMOOTHNESS—exclusive to the patented Super-Six principle, which no other maker can copy.

ECONOMY—never approached with like performance. You may expect 18 miles to the gallon and upward—many get more—in your Essex the Challenger. Important taxicab companies have chosen Essex the Challenger as exclusive equipment because its total of all operating expenses was the lowest in the whole motor world. To every buyer there is assured fuel and oil economy, durability, tire wear and low maintenance expense.

RELIABILITY—official tests, as well as the experience of 200,000 owners, with the lowest actual records of service cost, establish Essex the Challenger as the "Reliability Car of the Year." Two Essex entries with perfect scores, won the Grand Prize of the famous "Tour de France" reliability classic, against a large field of costlier American and European cars. No other car of whatever price level equalled the perfect record scored by both Essex entries.

GREATEST IN VALUE . . .

Combined with its supreme qualities of performance and reliability Essex the Challenger gives a completeness and a wealth of detail heretofore associated only with costly cars. You may select from a wide choice of color at no extra cost. Its riding ease is enhanced by 4 hydraulic shock absorbers. Double-action 4-wheel brakes give smooth, positive braking control. All weather control of motor heat is provided by smart, lacquered vertical radiator shutters. Air-cleaner, electric gauge for fuel and oil, starter on dash, safety lock and chromium-plated bright parts are further "extras" which Essex the Challenger gives at no extra cost. To add these features in a car of the Essex price class would cost above $100. IN ESSEX YOU PAY NOT ONE CENT EXTRA.

. . . it is naturally THE GREATEST POPULAR CHOICE

Biggest values, easy to see, easy to buy, easy to own, are responsible for the largest popular preference ever enjoyed by Essex, or any car in this price field.

The public itself pronounces it the greatest buy of them all, with more than 200,000 delivered in less than seven months. Before buying any car—just take a ride in Essex the Challenger.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

LATIN AMERICA SPEEDS BUILDING OF AUTO ROADS

Some Complete, Much Under Construction.

BY HAL FOUST.

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

Latin America is building automobile highways The southern republics are beginning to appreciate the full value of investments in good roads as we know them in the United States.

Even the Pan-American highway, considered by many as visionary a few years ago when proposed by the American Road Builders' association, is beginning to take shape with hundreds of miles completed, more under construction and most of the rest under survey.

PAUL BYRNE.

OCTAVIO DUBOIS.

The development may be viewed by the American motorist as offering new routes for tours of scenic and historical interest. It is seen by the economist as promising a large outlet for United States automobile factories. It is looked upon by the statesman as providing a closer bond between the countries of the western hemisphere.

Hoover States Benefit.

"The building of good roads that will link the Americas," President Hoover has said, "will not only advance the prosperity of these countries, but will bring them closer together through stronger bonds of understanding and mutual interest."

Octavio Dubois, president of the national highway commission of Mexico and also head of the Pan-American division of the American Road Builders' association, is encouraged by progress reports received from most of the countries farther south.

Mexico itself is engaged in a construction program that calls for the expenditure of $40,000,000 on new improved road systems during the six years that will end in 1934. One of the active contractors is Paul Byrne, president of the Chicago firm bearing his name.

Dollar Goes Farther.

"Mexico," said Mr. Byrne during a recent visit to Chicago, "has discovered that road building tends towards peace. Most revolutionary armies are recruited by the offer of regular meals. The Mexican government is recruiting, by the same inducement, armies of road labor.

"Labor is cheap and material is plentiful. A dollar goes four times as far as it does on roads in the United States. Dirt from excavations frequently makes excellent topping. Much of the rock has not been analyzed by geologists and bears no scientific name.

"The engineers in charge of the Mexican highway program are taking advantage of the pioneer work done in the United States thirty years ago and are avoiding our mistakes. We follow the so-called progressive type of road building, making all bridges and culverts and drainage ditches so that the highway can be widened into four traffic lanes in the future without a need for new structures.

Do Not Spare Expense.

"The American road builder is an artist by temperament, and the administration does not spare expense to get the best of everything. For example, I recommended a wooden bridge for a certain highway as adequate for traffic for the next ten years. The federal authorities wanted a permanent ornamental stone structure.

"I tried to argue that the wooden structure was so cheap by comparison with the stone that the interest on the investment of the permanent bridge would be great enough to pay for the building and maintenance of a wooden span for a decade. A permanent ornamental bridge, an artistic execution of the latest product of the science, was erected."

Most of the completed highways of Mexico radiate from its capital through the mountains rich in natural beauty, colorfully picturesque, and endowed with archeological specimens that rival Egypt's. The 150 miles from Laredo, Tex., to Monterey, Mexico, has also been completed, making the Mexican city only three and a half hours' automobile drive from the border.

Many Countries Active.

Señor Dubois in his correspondence with other Latin American countries received information that can be summarized as follows:

El Salvador—El Salvador will be one of the first countries to finish its section of the Pan-American highway. The country is already connected with Guatemala by highway and has little to do to link with Honduras.

Panama—Five million balboas [about $5,000,000] will be applied to a highway between Santiago and David, part of the intercontinental system.

Honduras—Taking the necessary preliminary steps.

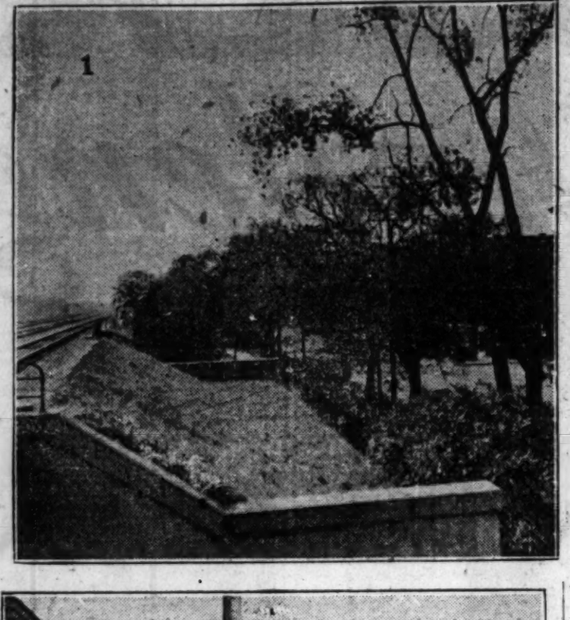
Guatemala—Giving preferred attention to Guatemala's link in Pan-American highway.

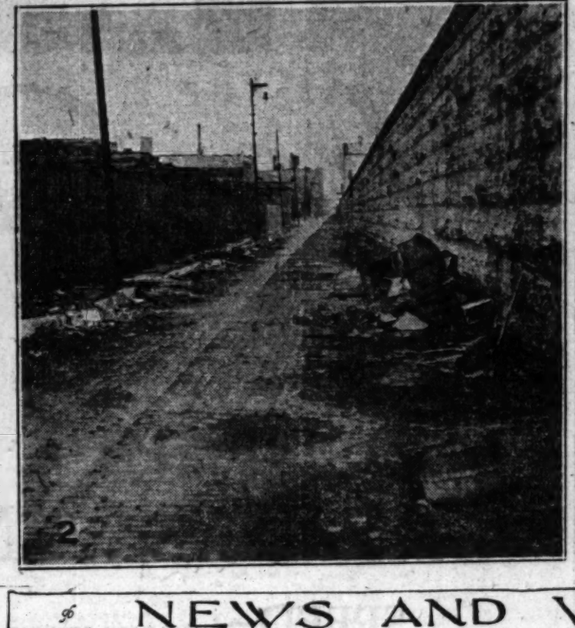
Costa Rica—Very much interested in this project of paramount importance.

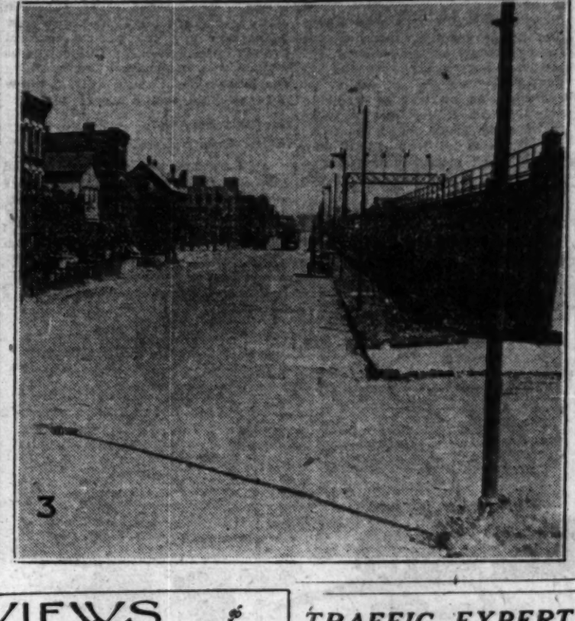
Nicaragua—Spending $180,000 a year on roads.

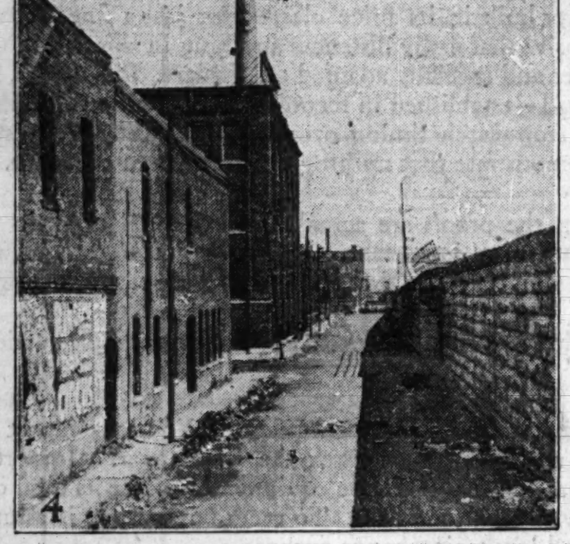
To get through these small countries has been considered the most difficult mileage on the route of the Pan American highway. The larger Latin American countries—Brazil, Argentina, and Chile—are well able to finance large highway projects and are doing so.

VIEWS OF NEW HIGHWAY ROUTE









One of the factors in the selection of the Austin-Kinzie route for the west side elevated highway was the comparatively low value of the property along the right of way. These photographs show typical views along the route. No. 1—Looking west from the Austin station of the Northwestern railroad, showing the parkway beside the embankment that furnishes room for the elevated highway without moving any buildings. No. 2—This shows the refuse on Kinzie street west of Leavitt street beside a lumber yard. No. 3—Here is Austin avenue looking eastward from Elizabeth street. Note the antiquated buildings. The elevated highway, abutting the railroad embankment, will make this valuable business property. No. 4—On Kinzie street at Paulina street, showing the little used alleyway with old factory buildings where the boulevard with continuance grade separation will make a modern business area.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Anent a letter appearing in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Sept. 1, complaining of a "speed trap" at the corner of Wilson and Western avenues, I would like to make the following suggestion:

If "Mrs. Miller" would take it upon herself to become more familiar with the various traffic regulations and particularly the one which commands a full stop when approaching through streets such as Wilson avenue it might aid her in the avoidance of "holdups" such as she mentions.

If holdups of this kind were extensively practiced on this corner many accidents might be avoided. May we recommend a policy which tends to a continuance of this practice. W. M. H.

71ST STREET SPEEDWAY.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Isn't it about time something was done to stop the speeding along the new boulevard on 71st street? With cars running wild, it is a dangerous experience to drive onto the street from any side street. Why not make this "Through street" with stop and go signals every so often?

RESIDENT.

TRAFFIC LIGHT NEEDED.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I would appreciate any influence your newspaper would have in the city toward putting a stop light on the corner of Sheridan road and Thorndale avenue. There are many children who must cross Sheridan road going to the Swift school located at Thorndale and Winthrop whose lives are greatly endangered by not having a stop signal to assist their crossing. I find there is no signal for a distance of nearly a mile. M. J. DOWNING.

ENFORCE LIGHT LAW.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I've heard and read of rackets, but never had the misfortune or experience of coming into personal contact with one until recently. Coming through Lake Zurich on Rand road, we were approaching the stop light and about fifty feet away from the corner we heard a police whistle. When we got to the corner another policeman came up and proceeded with the usual "What's the idea?" "Where do you get your drag?" "I oughta give you a ticket," etc.

Well, after he had finished we asked what's the matter. He then informed us we were driving without a tail light. [We had one when we left.]

By this time his confederate had sounded his whistle again so we were told to pull around the corner to the garage. We did so and lo! and behold! there were four other cars besides ours and while we were getting a bulb for the tail light two more were told to pull around the corner. M. S.

INJURED PEDESTRIAN WRITES.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I wish to suggest to legislators, through your paper, that all reckless or intoxicated autoists who run down and maim or kill pedestrians and try to run away be arrested and, if identified, sentenced to at least one year at hard labor in jail, with no option of a fine, or else have their license revoked.

I was perfectly sober on a Sunday afternoon when walking across North Wells street and Ontario street, but being blind in the left eye was hit by some yellow wretch and knocked senseless while he, or she, ran for it.

I am still suffering from a severely injured right leg so I make the suggestion. HARRISON T. HUGHES.

DETROIT AND CHICAGO.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—While visiting in Detroit I noticed an article in a Detroit newspaper which said that a Detroiter, after having driven on Chicago's Lake Shore drive, feels ashamed of his own city after getting back home.

But a Chicagoan, after having driven in Detroit, with its wide highways leading into the city, with its many good boulevards, and with its street car line streets wide and paved so that it is possible to pass a street car at all times—it makes a Chicagoan feel sorry for his own city when he gets back home.

ALFRED CHOIN.

ESCAPES TRAFFIC JAMS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The article "Record Holiday Traffic Jams Roads" in THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 8, is the plaint of the average owner of a high priced, high speed car—one who believes the public should provide him with a speedway—rather than the plaint of the taxpayer. I drove over the roads in the south part of the city and county on Labor day and failed to find any congestion at all.

We went over these roads in the morning and returned over them in the evening, most of the time at a speed above 40 miles per hour and congestion did not prevent us going 50 or more some of the time. I have had the same experience for the past six years, always propaganda by THE TRIBUNE for more and wider roads, but never having found the congestion described.

DAN T. AVENUE.

1928 LICENSE REPORTED

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Believe it or not, but the other day while driving down Elston avenue, I saw a car with 1928 Illinois license No. 1-210-731.

TAXPAYER.

WANTS AVONDALE SUPER.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—I note that a bond issue is to be placed on the ballot for the construction of a superhighway along Kinzie street to the city limits. I fail to see why this particular territory was favored in preference to sections far more worthy. I am one of the stranded ones on the northwest side who have been waiting very patiently for a solution to the transportation problem here. We did see a ray of hope before the Avondale avenue project was discarded. S. A. JACQUES.

THE UNMARKED ROUTE.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—It is very easy to see that you do not travel the Governor's highway often or you would not be giving the public such a bum steer. Otherwise you would have found a good outlet about a mile and a half from the cornfield.

We came from Momence via Kankakee in the pouring rain and had absolutely no trouble. We took Cicero avenue to Lincoln highway, then to Crawford to 111th street. DOROTHY OSGOOD.

NEWS AND VIEWS

A new line of Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods will be placed on display at local showrooms tomorrow. They are newly styled throughout, and are faster and roomier.

The V-type eight cylinder engines have been enlarged and refined to give more power and greater flexibility. Pistons have four rings, one more than heretofore, and the intake and exhaust valves are bigger.

Rear seats in all body models for the Cadillac chassis and in all open La Salles are wider. The bodies of the Cadillac seven passenger sedan and seven passenger imperial are longer by three inches.

Packard new models may be seen at Chicago display rooms tomorrow. They are characteristically Packard in appearance, although with subtle re- [illegible] There are no radical changes.

The new Packard has a gearshift with four speeds forward. Company officials say this helps in maneuvering the heavy car to meet the demands of modern traffic conditions.

There are three complete lines, thirty-three different types, and four different wheel bases, with prices ranging from less than $2,500 to more than $5,250.

Crowds continue to inspect the new Cord front-drive car on display at 7158 Stony Island avenue, 2451 South Michigan avenue, and 5246 Broadway. Harry Farrington, Chicago distributor, said the factory at Auburn, Ind., has stepped up production to a 1,500 a month schedule.

The Shaffer Oil and Refining company, makers of Deep Rock products, including "kant-knock" gasoline, has completed negotiations with the Ethyl Gasoline corporation and the combination is offering a motor fuel under the trade name of "kant-knock ethyl."

An Oldsmobile-Viking press announcement states that the cars are manufactured by contented workmen.

3,200,000 New Cars Sold to U. S. Drivers Last Year

A total of 3,220,000 new passenger cars were purchased by the autoists of the United States during the calendar year of 1928, according to revised figures of the Automobile Club of Illinois.

TRAFFIC EXPERTS EXPLAIN PHRASE AUTO CONGESTION

What is traffic congestion?

This question is asked and answered by the American Automobile association on the basis of a study of numerous definitions of the phrase by its research department.

"Traffic congestion," it says, "is that condition existing on the highway when the individual is unable to proceed at a desired or legal rate of speed."

There are numerous other definitions, the national motoring body points out, but none to be so universally accepted among motorists as a whole.

EXPERT PREDICTS 70 MILES AN HOUR ON CITY STREETS

Seventy mile an hour auto highways connecting Washington street, Boston, with Broadway, New York, and progressive traffic signals that will permit autos to proceed without stopping from one end of the city to the other, were predicted by Prof. Miller McClintock, Harvard traffic expert, in a recent address.

"Such highways are a necessity," Dr. McClintock continued, "if we are to have safer intercity motor travel and if we are to decrease the enormous economic waste caused by delays to cars.

"There is not a single highway in Massachusetts at the present time properly designed for auto traffic. All of them were built on a horse and carriage basis, with curves and gradients that are not satisfactory or safe for motor cars.

"What we need for greater safety is highways that will link great city centers on a high speed basis. They are coming, of necessity, in the future, highways on which it will be possible for motorists to make speeds in excess of 60 miles an hour with greater safety than they are now able to make 40."

BUS DIVISION OF A. A. A. PLANNING TO REORGANIZE

Anticipating that congress will enact legislation at the next session for federal regulation of interstate bus operations, the bus division of the American Automobile association will be completely reorganized with the view to serving new needs of the industry.

The A. A. A. says that the first step in this direction will be taken on Aug. 22, when bus operators and state association officers from all parts of the country will meet at the Hotel Stevens. Plans will be made to meet more effectively the changing conditions and progress of the industry.

Milwaukee Cuts Fatal Auto Accidents in Half

The intensive accident prevention work of the Milwaukee safety commission is pointed to as an example of the growing technique in dealing with this problem. Milwaukee's fatal accidents this year are just half the record of a year ago.

AIRPLANE WINGS TODAY ARE BIG SAFETY FACTOR

Scientific Study Removes Hazards.

(This is another in a series of articles on the subject of safety in aircraft. This article deals with airplane wings.)

BY ROBERT WOOD.

There was a time during the experimental stage of aviation when one of the chief sources of fear to the pilot lay in the instability of the wings of his carrier. This was in the era when the stability of aircraft was comparable to a berry crate, and the frail wings had not the strength to withstand the force of a severe wind or the wrench of sudden twisting.

Scientific study and long experience, however, evolved airplane wings strong enough to bear the weight that is intended for them to carry and sturdy enough to resist the force of air at great speeds. Wings no longer fail suddenly and with little reason from airplanes.

There has been only one recent case of wing failure. There was plenty of reason for that failure. Lieut. James H. Doolittle of the army air corps flew out of his wings while stunting at the Cleveland air races. The wings ripped off when the plane was in a power dive and traveling downward at 300 miles an hour with tremendous force against the wings.

Many Sizes and Shapes.

There are today almost as many different sizes and shapes of wings as there are sizes and shapes of airplanes. While they vary in efficiency, their safety is relatively uniform. Safety and efficiency came as the result of scientific research, and the purchaser of a licensed plane today is assured that these scientific principles are adhered to through the regulations of the aeronautics division of the department of commerce.

Before a plane leaves the factory it must first undergo severe tests, in which wings are loaded heavily with sandbags of a total weight several times that which the plane is intended to carry. The wings of a commercial plane are made to bear up under a weight 6½ times that of a normal load and naval planes are required to withstand a load of from 12 to 14 times the loan the plane is expected to carry. Failure in these tests means failure to secure a license for the plane.

Three Types of Airplanes.

Space here prevents an intricate discussion of the theory of flight. Suffice it to say that the wings support the weight of an airplane by its reaction on the air. The wing derives its lifting powers from a partial vacuum created on the upper surface of the wing and the force of air against the under surface. At flying speeds the air attains the density of water and thus gives the wings buoyancy.

There are three common types of airplanes—the monoplane, the biplane, and the sesquiplane, or the plan with a wing and a half. The lafter type is less common. The multi-winged plane permits more exterior bracing, although such bracing adds more surfaces for wind resistance. The thick monoplane wing, on the other hand, permits strong interior bracing. The semi-cantilever type used in the Bellanca and the Ryan Brougham permits a single, comparatively thin wing braced from the exterior with strüts.

The thick wing gives greater life to the plane and for this reason is desirable for large transport ships. Thinner wings are desirable for great speed and are therefore used in the smaller, faster planes—the pursuit ships of the army and navy and the fast pleasure craft.

Thick Wings for Transports.

The thick winged monoplane is favored by American designers for heavier transport work. The Fokker series is characteristic of this type of wing. However, the Boeing Air Transport company, largest operators of commercial lines in the west, fly biplanes exclusively. The selection of the biplane for use in the Pacific coast regions is largely due to the fact that the planes are required to fly at high altitudes, where the air is thinner, and therefore demands greater wing surfaces.

Thin air at high altitudes obviously decreases the lifting power of the wings and increases the distances and time required for takeoff. With a larger wing area the plane is able to counteract the decrease in the density of the atmosphere.

The biplane has an additional feature desirable for mountain flying. In case of forced landing the lower wing attached at the bottom of the fuselage and closer to the ground gives a cushioning effect on the air and permits slower landing speed.

More elastic airplane performance is expected to result from the perfection of the adjustable cambre. The adjustable cambre which now occupies the attention of aircraft designers, would make it possible to vary the contour of the wings so that on the take off when a rapid rate of climb is desired the wings could be given greater lifting force by increasing the contour of the airfoils and during flight when speed is desired the resistance of the wings could be decreased by reducing the contour. At present the load carrying ship is necessarily slow because of the greater thickness of its wing. The adjustable cambre would thus bring greater efficiency, speed and safety to the commercial carriers.

Stall Is Great Hazard.

One of the greatest hazards to flying is the stall which results in spinning. Spinning is caused by the reduction in lift as the plane looses flying speed and stalls. To counteract this and temporarily increase the lift, the slotted wing, first introduced by Handley Page, has been developed.

The wing slot produces an extra wing of small area which is projected automatically from the leading edge of the regular wing when the plane is about to stall. This produces a normal flow of air over the upper wing surface. The lift of the wings is thus continued and prevents spinning.

The slotted airplane wing remains controllable at all angles and answers the controls even when sinking toward the ground. The automatic wing slots are a protection against the spin and they achieve a notable increase in the safety of aircraft.

ONE WHEEL LANDING GEAR

This new Loening XO-10 two seated amphibion was designed for the United States army air corps as an experimental observation plane to incorporate the one wheel retractable landing gear and service test the new Wright "Typhoon" engine.

Motor Bus Service Now Connects with Airplanes

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Air-bus service may now be had from the Pacific coast to any point in the midwest, according to an announcement by officials of the Pickwick-Greyhound motor coach lines, with headquarters in this city. Persons may now board a bus at any midwestern town and be transferred to the Western Air Express passenger plane in Kansas City, Wichita or Amarillo, which will permit their arrival in Los Angeles 12 hours later, if plane is taken in Kansas City.

MIDWEST CITIES COMPETE IN AIR FIELD BUILDING

Seek to Draw Planes to Their Towns.

Indication that midwest cities are awakening to the commercial advantages of modern airports is seen in the announcement yesterday by Capt. Harold H. Ambler, vice president of Leonard-Macomber, Inc., Chicago airport engineers and builders, that the Chicago firm has been retained to survey and begin the development of airports at Rock Island, Ill., Muncie, Ind., Sioux Falls, Dubuque and Iowa City, Ia., and Janesville, Wis.

"The cities mentioned are sufficiently varied in population and wealth to give a good cross section of the airport situation," Mr. Ambler stated. "The Muncie project provides a good insight into what the average city is doing. The Indiana law provides for the appointment of municipal airport commissions. At Muncie a 160 acre tract of farm land north of the city three miles from the post office has been selected. The commission's president, Abbott L. Johnson, purchased the land and donated it to the city for an airport.

"Following the gift the city council planned a bond issue to make available $100,000 for the development of the airport, and this money will be forthcoming immediately after the first of the year. It will be used to prepare the land, to erect at least one 100 foot by 120 foot hangar, a club house or administration building and all other necessary buildings and equipment and to install lighting and night and day marking. It is planned that the ultimate development of this airport will include four 100 foot by 2,500 foot hard surface runways which will insure permanent all weather landing strips in eight directions.

"Although our survey of the Rock Island situation has not been completed, it is likely that this city will have one of the most complete and adequate airports in America. Rock Island will have an airport closer to the Moline post office than Moline's own airport. The Rock Island airport will be in the center of a population of more than 140,000 people and will probably cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. Naturally Rock Island is engaged in a friendly competition with Moline and Davenport to make an airport so attractive to pilots and passengers that it will be preferred and therefore gain the bulk of the passing business. Similar situations are to be found in almost every city. The airplane has so dwarfed distance that almost any city can, with a proper airport, swing much of the nation's air traffic to its confines and reap the benefit of passing or transient trade.

Airports as Community Centers.

"It is my belief that the airport of the future will be a definite community center, with an attractive club for aviators, a good restaurant and a good lunch counter. This administration building will have sleeping rooms for aviators and air tourists, concessions for entertainment and sale of all kinds of merchandise, office space for the air transport companies, and amusements. In each case we have provided a large and attractive observation platform where spectators may sit in comfort and watch the flying at night as well as in the daytime.

"The same is true of all that our municipalities are rapidly discovering that the airport is as vitally important to the city as is the railroad terminal. On July 1 there were 1,485 municipal, commercial and governmental airports in America and, according to the best figures available, there are actually plans and preparations being made for 1,174 additional airports."

On a site at Copenhagen, Denmark, costing $1,340,000 will be built a warehouse, vaudeville theater, hotel, garage, offices, and an apartment house at a total cost of $4,020,000.

AVIATION QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q. This city is to dedicate an airport on Oct. 13, and in connection I desire two things, viz.: The location of all airports in the middle west, and the names and addresses of the owners of gliders, with the idea of interesting them to appear at our dedication and give a demonstration. If you can give me the desired information I shall be very grateful.

A. M. BURTON, Grinnell, Ia.

A. On airports write to the department of commerce, Washington, D. C. On gliders write Reed Landis, 26 E. Huron street, Chicago, Ill.

Q. I am interested in aviation, but I am required to wear glasses. I would like to know to what government department I could inquire to find out whether I could pass the test or not. J. B. AMONENO, Chicago.

A. Write or telephone Dr. W. P. McCracken, Marshall Field Annex, Chicago, regarding physical examination for student pilot's permit.

Q. Would you please give me the name and address of the manufacturers of the gyroplane invented by Cierva and oblige?

L. F. Z., Lombard, Ill.

A. The gyroplane is manufactured by the Pitcairn Aviation company of Philadelphia.

Q. What are the age limit and education qualifications to join the army aviation cadets corps? Please tell me where I might receive more information on these. [2] Could you tell me where I might get information on life insurance for pilots. Also if it is possible for a student aviator at a class A aviation school. [3] I would like to know about how much a transport pilot's course would cost and how long it takes [4] Does the completion of the cobrse entitle one to take the transport pilot's examination?

H. S., Chicago.

A. [1] One must be at least 18 years of age and have 2 years of college training to enter the army aviation cadet corps. You may receive more information on this from either your local recruiting office or by writing the Army Air Service, Washington, D. C. [2] We suggest the usual sources for information regarding life insurance. [3] The transport pilot's training at a class A flying school will cost about $4,500 and will require about a year [4] Yes.

Q. What are the qualifications for entering the army aviation field at Kelly field, Texas? Where can I obtain a booklet describing the various courses in aviation, etc., given at the army fields? What is the cost of such a course? R. E. F., Chicago.

A. See other question in this column. There is no charge at the army flying schools.

Q. [1] Do all the propellers on a trimotored plane turn the same direction. If not, why not. [2] Which way is the regular direction of a single motored plane? T. V., Pontiac, Ill.

A. [1] The propellers all turn in the same direction. [2] The average propeller turns clockwise, figuring from the pilot's seat.

Reo announces a revolutionary new transmission with a silent second gear...!

You can shift gears at any time, at any speed—without grinding, without "feeling your gear in"!

You can shift from second to high at any speed—or from high back to second, at 40 miles an hour—easier than you can with any other car at 10 miles an hour!

You can go more than 40 miles an hour in second if you care to—as smoothly, as quietly, as silently as with the ordinary high!

This new Silent-Second transmission—the product of four years' research and development by the Reo engineers—the exclusive property of Reo—is available on no other automobile—and will not be unless and until Reo permits its use.

GET behind the wheel of the Reo Master Flying Cloud—and we promise you a thrill you've never had in any other car you ever piloted—yes, a dozen thrills—and one of them before you've gone a hundred feet!

You know the noise you always hear from the second gear of the ordinary car.

But listen to this second-gear—why you can scarcely hear it! The old second-gear grind you've been accustomed to isn't there! You hear no grinding, no growling—none of the old second-gear noise. This Silent-Second gear takes you along as smoothly, as quietly, as silently as the ordinary high!

And what a pick-up!

Steer this car into traffic. Nose right up behind a truck that's dawdling along at 5 miles an hour. Want to go around him? Flick that gear lever into second. Tap that gas pedal—and you'll flash ahead of him in one meteoric swish! Reo's new Silent-Second transmission gives you lightning-like acceleration where you need it! You can do things with this car in traffic that you can't do with any other car under the sun!

Slip up to a red light and stop. Then slide that gear-lever into second. At the first flash of green give her the gas—and you'll be up and away like a streak of light, leaving cars that were abreast of you a hundred feet behind! You'll be hitting 40 before the others can reach 15!

And at that speed—40 miles an hour—you can flip that gear-lever right from second to high without slowing down a tap—and without grinding, without clashing your gears! It just slips into high with one quiet "click" at any speed!

Let her skim along at 35 or 40—and make this amazing test. Throw out your clutch and just work that gear lever from high to second, back and forth, back and forth like a pump handle! You can do it with one finger. And all you'll hear is a "click," nothing more!

Try it on a real hill!

Start up the steepest hill you can find, with traffic coming down at you—and a milk wagon ahead of you. Just nose up behind him and go into second. You'll have to crawl till the coast is clear. But at the first break you get—step on that gas! That hill may be awfully steep—but you'll shoot around that milk wagon awfully fast! You can swoop over the crest of that hill at 40 or better if you want to—in second!

And when you start down a hill like that—a hill that drops off like a plummet—Reo's new second gear will be a revelation to you! Ordinarily you'd slow down before taking a drop like that—you'd want to take it in second. But with the ordinary car it's a lot of trouble to get into second. You have to slow down to 10 or 15 miles an hour to do it. So often you won't bother, you'll chance it in high—and perhaps ruin your brakes.

But start down that hill as fast as you like in the Reo! When you're ready, just flick that gear-lever into second—and you'll go down that hill at a crawl, or as fast as you care to! You can choose your own speed.

Reo's new Silent-Second Transmission is the most revolutionary engineering achievement that has happened in motordom for years. But it is only one of the things that make the Reo Master Flying Cloud a revolutionary car. See it—at your dealer's showroom. Drive it—and learn what a car this is!

If you now own a Reo Master Flying Cloud . . .

Your dealer can install the new transmission in your present Reo at a very nominal cost. Orders for the new transmission will be filled as rapidly as production makes them available—and in the order received. This one change will make your present Reo as up-to-date as the newest Reo on the showroom floor. Your dealer will give you full details.

New York and Chicago Race for Top in Industrial World

BOARD OF TRADE GIVES CHICAGO NEW STOCK MART

Post List of Issues; Deal Tomorrow.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago will strengthen its claim to financial supremacy in the west when its third securities market begins operations tomorrow. The Board of Trade yesterday announced the initial list of securities in which trading will start at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. While this list embraces only twenty stocks of fourteen corporations, the securities include those of several big middle west corporations. And the list will be added to as trading expands.

The advent of stock trading on the Board of Trade will give Chicago the same number of securities markets as now exist in New York. The western city will have the Chicago Stock exchange, the Board of Trade, and the curb exchange, while New York has its stock exchange, curb exchange and the securities department of its produce exchange.

Issues Worth Billions.

It is estimated that the total market value of securities listed on the three Chicago markets will be around $8,000,000,000. Naturally the great majority of issues and a preponderance of value rest with the stock exchange. But the curb exchange has shown rapid growth in the year or so of its existence and sponsors of the Board of Trade securities department believe it also will have rapid expansion.

The initial list of the Board of Trade embraces the following securities:

Company—	Shares to be listed.
Allied Mills	1,035,000 capital stock
Armour of Delaware	616,208 7% pfd.
Armour of Illinois	592,984 7% pfd.
Armour of Illinois	2,000,000 class A.
Armour of Illinois	2,000,000 class B.
Boston Packing Co.	20,000 class A.
Elec. Household Util.	399,858 common.
Gordon Investors	359,396 common.
Over Night	6,000 1st pfd.
Over Night	6,000 2d pfd.
Over Night	120,000 common.
Rising Corp. of Can.	1,660,050 common.
Wall Record'g Pump.	45,000 common.
Quaker Oats	180,000 pfd.
Quaker Oats	585,000 common.
Square D company	100,000 class A.
Square D company	100,000 class B.
	On when-issued basis.
Sundstrand Mach. Tl.	86,250 common.
U. S. Gold Storage	45,000 common.
William Wrigley Jr.	2,000,000 common.

Last Causes Dissension.

Announcement of this list brought another flare-up in the controversy between the Board of Trade and the stock exchange. The board's list contains the securities of four companies whose shares now are listed on the stock exchange; also of two companies whose shares are listed on the New York Stock exchange. The dual listings in the two Chicago markets are the preferred stocks of Armour & Co. of Illinois and Delaware and the A and B common stocks of Armour & Co. of Illinois, the common stock of Electric Household Utilities, the common and preferred stocks of the Quaker Oats company and the common stock of the William Wrigley Jr. company. The Armour and Wrigley issues are also listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Speculation was rife following the announce of the list as to whether the Board of Trade will take the offensive by deliberately trading in one of the issues also listed on the Chicago exchange in view of the request by issues holding seats on both exchanges that no such action be taken. These members pointed out that in view of the fact the Chicago exchange amended its rules to permit members holding dual seats to continue to do so as long as these members did not deal in stocks listed on the Chicago board it would be common courtesy for the board not to trade in Chicago stocks.

See Little Hope.

In the meantime some of those holding seats on both exchanges went into executive session for the purpose of trying to find still another basis on which the Board of Trade officials could be persuaded to keep the memberships of those on both exchanges from being in jeopardy.

The talk on the floor of the Board of Trade, however, indicated that there was little hope of such action being taken. One trader said he knew of two houses with seats on both exchanges who have agreed to deliberately trade on the Board of Trade in stocks listed on the Chicago exchange before witnesses. This was taken as notice that an open rift is being sought by the so-called younger element on the Board of Trade.

The older houses having seats on both organizations have agreed not to trade in Chicago stocks on the new security mart.

May Rile N. Y. Exchange.

There was also some speculation as to what action the New York stock exchange will take over the listing of its stocks by the board of trade. Although it has not been officially stated, some of the grain traders claim the New York exchange has assured the board that no objection will be made to listing New York stocks provided application for the listing has been made by the corporations concerned.

Nothing to indicate this action has been made public by the New York exchange and the talk in La Salle street was that if such action has not been taken, retaliatory steps from the New York exchange might come into the picture at an early date. One of these, it was said, would be to cut off

Map Tells Why They Are Ahead.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

It was inevitable, once the great valley and the plains between the Rocky mountains and the Alleghenies were settled, that Chicago and New York would become what they are—the largest and most important cities on the continent. And, more than any other centers on the globe, they seem destined to increase their influence as supreme centers of human activity.

Already Chicago stands unchallenged as the world's busiest inland city. Possibly it is the largest, if full effect is given the metropolitan area surrounding it. Already New York, within a radius of sixty miles, has a population equal to that built up by London in the many centuries since the conquest of Britain by Rome. In manufacturing, these American urban centers are far ahead of any European rivals. Even London's vaunted financial supremacy is passing, if indeed it has not already passed, to New York, with Chicago making tremendous strides in the same direction.

The wealth of the world is centered, admittedly, in this country now. The temperament of a people who could throw off the traditions of ages in Europe perhaps was as important in explaining this fact as were the immense resources they discovered. But the explanation of the greatness of New York and Chicago lies on the map printed here. It is a story of high land and low land, fertile soil and natural underground wealth, and more than all else a story of a trade route. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say of trade routes, although this story revolves largely about one.

East of Chicago to the southwest end of Lake Erie is a stretch of land that has no abrupt inclines. The black portion of the map represents land elevation of less than 1,000 feet above sea level. Note well the vast expanse of black spreading out from the lower end of Lake Michigan. Note, too, that solid black, except for the fairly straight lines representing railroads, continues eastward along the Lake Erie shores, and particularly on the American side. It is a comparatively narrow pass between the Pennsylvania and Ohio highlands and the water, but it is a lane.

Note next the passage south of Lake Ontario through the Mohawk valley, which meets the Hudson valley and which in turn leads almost due southward to New York. The Mohawk slips between high ranges, one to the north and one to the south. Just east of the Hudson, where the Mohawk joins it, stands a narrow but rough range of mountains.

A Water Level Route.

From Chicago to New York, then, is a fairly direct route that does not involve the climbing of any elevation more than 1,000 feet. For the most part it is a truly water level route, with the water tending to flow downward to the Atlantic seaboard. There are other routes from the great interior valley to the eastern shore, but none is so easy and few are so direct. Except from the extreme south, any reasonably direct road must lead across mountains that are both high and wide.

It may be well here to outline briefly another trade route; the continuation of the one mentioned. It leads across the Atlantic itself to Europe. One end is in New York, the other in foreign ports. For convenience a single point, Bishop's rock on Scilly islands, near the southernmost tip of Great Britain, has been chosen for distance comparisons involving the leading ports on the eastern North American shore.

To this point it is 2,934 miles from New York. From Boston it is only 2,759. Philadelphia is farther from Bishop's rock by 153 miles than is New York. Baltimore is more distant, by 307 miles, than New York, and Newport News farther by 184 miles than the metropolis.

ITS SECRET OF SUCCESS

These small differences in ocean distances are not particularly important in transportation costs. Why, then, is New York the greatest port, although Boston is a little closer and Newport News and Baltimore and Philadelphia only a little farther? The answer is in the ease and low cost of transporting goods to and from the interior valley, the big blace space on the map, by way of New York. If transport from Nebraska and Iowa and Michigan were as easy to any of the other ports it might have become as great. If it had been easier a century ago any one of those mentioned, had this advantage been its alone, could have been as large as New York now is.

As a matter of fact, New York was not always the principal port. After the revolution it was generally conceded that Philadelphia would have this honor. The same opinion carried over into the first quarter of the nineteenth century. As late as 1820 the population within the present boundaries of Philadelphia was greater than that in Brooklyn and New York combined. The reason for Philadelphia's leadership in those days is made plain on the map. New York's territory was limited by the mountain range to the west. So, too, was Phila-

The Truth About the Prohibition Killings

Maryland Case Starts Series of Fact Stories

By PHILIP KINSLEY.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The state of Maryland vs. Robert D. Ford et al, federal prohibition agent, for the murder of Lawrence Wenger in Harford county, Maryland, Nov. 19, 1924, presents a natural starting point for a review of famous prohibition killings.

This case settled the policy under which the United States government through the department of justice has come to the vigorous defense of all agents of the prohibition and customs unit who are prosecuted under state laws for acts committed under color of their office and in performance of their duties as rum sleuths.

It illustrates the method by which this policy has been carried out, the head on collision between a wet local community and a dry federal power, the theory of justification under which the dry killings continue, and the vast advantage to the accused federal agents of trial in a federal court. The agents who kill in their search for liquor violators are practically immune from punishment under this policy and method.

This story is taken from the court records in the Wenger case, which aroused such resentment in quiet old Harford county, Maryland, that it took the mandate of the United States Supreme court to snatch Ford and his fellow agents away from trial in the state court.

ONE OF 135 KILLINGS

The case is listed among 135 killings by prohibition agents in the Congressional Record of June 13 last. The report made by the prohibition department follows:

"Lawrence Wenger—Facts of the Case: On Nov. 19, 1924, Prohibition Agents Barton, Ely, Ford and Stevens were searching for a still near Madonna, Md. They found what appeared to be a still in the process of construction. The agents then placed themselves in hiding near the still to see if any one would approach the place.

"After some time a man came to the place. Upon ascertaining the presence of the agents he fled. The agents pursued him, firing their revolvers in the air in an effort to stop him. However, he escaped from them. A short time later, when leaving the place, they found the man who had fled, who was ascertained to be one Lawrence Wenger, lying dead from a revolver wound.

"Disposition of the Case: Agents Barton, Ely, Ford and Stevens were indicted by the Harford county grand jury, February term, 1925, on the charge of manslaughter. Agents acquitted March 6, 1927, in federal court, Baltimore."

There are several inaccuracies in this official report. The agents never admitted that the man who fled from the still, while they fired shots in the air, was the same man that they found dying a few hours later. They said that was the first they had seen of Wenger. This was a strong part of the defense. Some one else might have shot him, it was argued. Another misstatement is that the indictment was for manslaughter. It was murder.

Senator Tydings of Maryland, in a debate in the senate on June 19 last with Senator Brookhart of Iowa, drew a picture of this Wenger killing which was not quite true. He described Wenger as a simple farmer who was shot without provocation as he was driving his cows home from pasture. There is a gray line of truth somewhere between such a black murder as that made out by Senator Tydings and the white, accidental and justifiable killing that the prohibition department reported. The truth is sought here.

History of the Victim.

Lawrence Wenger was a young farmer, unmarried, the son of a thrifty German father who had left him two farms in the hills of Harford county. He had lived and worked on these farms all his life. He was the ordinary type of hill man, and his pleasures consisted of drinking moonshine now and then and attending the country dances. Liquor had been found in his house a year before, and he had been suspected of interest in a still which had been found on a hillside near his home, on property owned by another man, but which Wenger had to pass in going to and from his two farms. A warrant had been issued for him at one time, but it had never been served.

Now, under Maryland law it is no crime to make liquor, and nearly all the farms in these hills have their own stills, or at least keep liquor in the house. It is a misdemeanor to sell liquor, that is all. Wenger was a product of this environment. During the last ten or fifteen years many expert moonshine makers have moved into this county from South Carolina and other states, and stills were set up in the woods and swamps wherever a good hiding place was found. The farmer might know of it, might profit by it, and he might know nothing of it. There was one eminent church woman in the county who was horrified to learn that a still had been in operation on her property.

It is reasonable to suppose that Wenger knew this still was in operation, as it was on the path which he had to take to go from one of his farms to the other. There is testimony that he had helped roll a barrel uphill to the still. However, Harford county did not think he should be sentenced to death for this. He was unarmed, and he fled when he saw the federal men, and some one killed him. That remains a mystery. Under the federal laws he was a felon, seeking to escape arrest, on a par with a murderer or a robber. The agents had a right to shoot him under this theory.

Juror Discusses Case.

The federal law, as interpreted by Judge Morris Soper of the United States District court in Baltimore, when the case finally came to trial two years and five months later, was the bulwark of the defense in this case.

Dr. James William Cain, noted educator and former president of Washington college, Chesterton, Md., who sat on that jury, was one of the last to hold out for punishment of the federal agents, but finally yielded to an acquittal verdict because he felt he could not do anything else under the court's instructions.

"We could not find first or second degree murder or manslaughter under the instructions," said Dr. Cain. "It was evident that the judge considered these men [Wenger and two others] guilty of a conspiracy against the government, that an overt act had been committed, that they were escaping felons, and the officers had a right to shoot them.

"I noticed in listening to the testimony in this and another liquor case that the agents were utterly unscrupulous in the character of their testimony. They would ignore facts that they would naturally have observed and testify to facts that would lead to conviction or acquittal, whichever they desired."

"If I had been on that jury and governed by those instructions I would have voted not guilty," said Robert H. Archer, assistant attorney general of Maryland, who prosecuted the prohibition agents. "It was a good jury, and they would have convicted in a state court. The atmosphere of the federal court was all in favor of the defendants. George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon league, and a number of Methodist ministers and other drys were in court every day. Our witnesses were intimidated. They were not allowed in court without a copy of their summons, and you know how these hill men fear the law."

STORY OF THE CASE

Action in the case began about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 19 when Agents Ford, John M. Barton, Wilton L. Stevens, and J. Frank Ely, with William Trabing, their chauffeur, came riding out of the hills into Jarrettsville, seeking for a doctor. They had a desperately wounded man in their car. They went to several places and could not find a doctor, and finally reached Bel Air, where they found Dr. Armfield F. Van Bibber, who looked at the man and pronounced him dead. He had been shot through the back with a .45 caliber bullet, which had come out through his breast. It looked as if he had been shot while running.

Agents Are Arrested.

The agents were arrested by Sheriff I. W. Thompson. W. Worthington Hopkins, state's attorney, ordered them stripped of their weapons and locked up. At the inquest next day James T. Carter, assistant United States attorney in Baltimore, appeared and arranged for their bail, after the request of the prohibition director that they be released on their recognizance had been refused. The agents said they did not know who the man was. Mrs. Elizabeth Cook of Madonna identified the body as that of her brother, who had not been home since dinner the previous day.

A detailed examination was held before Justice of the Peace Jewis J. Williams. The stories told there conflicted with later testimony, and led to indictments of perjury and conspiracy, in addition to murder. The coroner's jury failed to agree on fixing responsibility, nine jurors believing the agents had shot Wenger, and three thinking that perhaps some unknown had shot him.

Prosecutor Hopkins prepared to fight the case hard and United States Attorney W. W. Woodcock and his assistant, Mr. Carter, prepared a petition for transfer of the case to the federal courts.

This petition has a long legal history. As first prepared the story of the agents was extremely sketchy. It assumed that the mere fact that they were federal agents accused by the state entitled their cause to protection by the federal government. It was amended twice, the last time by permission of the United States Supreme court, and the story of the shooting as told there stands as their final testimony.

Dry Agents' Version.

They were sent out on Nov. 19 by Edmund Budritz, federal prohibition director. Some one had told Agent Stevens that there was a still near the Wenger place. He was familiar with the country, a rough and wooded section, and was in charge of operations. They reached the farm at 1 p. m. on this day, and discovered the still in a secluded valley. There were nine empty mash boxes, a 50 gallon condenser, a thousand pounds of rye meal, a lighted fire, and men's working clothes, but no one was around. They go on as follows:

"Petitioners concealed themselves in the woods near the still and shortly thereafter they heard a noise which it was later determined was caused by the boiler of a still being rolled along a path over rocky ground.

"Barton observed a man approach

WHERE BULLETS FELLED WENGER

In this wooded spot in the hills of Maryland federal prohibition agents came across a still five years ago. When a man fled from the scene the operatives fired. An hour and a half later they found the prostrate form of Lawrence Wenger some 300 yards away. He died without telling who killed him. The view shows the demolished still in which Wenger was suspected of having an interest; in the background, the path through which the wounded man ran. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

delphia's. But the mountains were farther away and the lowlands back of the Quaker City much more extensive than New York's lowlands. New York virtually had no interior to back it up.

The Poor Relation.

New York, the state, had the status very nearly of a poor relation to the other seaboard states then. Boston, which had been favored with an English heritage, while New York's was Dutch, had in 1820 an overwhelming lead in manufacturing. Massachusetts that year made sixty-three million dollars' worth of finished goods, Pennsylvania eleven million dollars' worth, and New York, the state, seven million dollars' worth.

Besides, Massachusetts in 1821 exported as much merchandise as New York. New York's rise began with the year 1825. New York, the city, and Brooklyn together had by 1840 more inhabitants by 100,000 than Philadelphia. The Empire state's manufactures had grown to ninety-six million dollars, compared with seventy-four million for Massachusetts and sixty-four million for Pennsylvania. And the state's exports in 1840 were three times those of Massachusetts.

The plausible reason for this shift is easy to find. In 1825 New York completed the Erie canal. It brought reality to a great vision. The canal tapped the great lakes. It connected the one time Dutch city to the one low, easy pass to the west, an all water route then. It directed a new flow of traffic to the seaboard, a traffic that was only beginning to exist.

Back and Forth.

Instead of the paltry 10,000 or 20,000 square miles of good lowland that Boston and Philadelphia each commanded the canal gave to New York an entry to the middle of the continent. Henceforth the traffic that originated north of the Ohio river was to flow that way—down to the sea by the Mohawk pass. The requirements for the interior flowed back, after New York had manufactured them or handled them from ships that sailed the seven seas.

A history of Philadelphia, written in that city in 1884, had this to say of the upward sweep of the port of New York and the comparative eclipse of the author's home town in the fifteen years preceding 1840:

"Whatever the cause, the fact stands out that from the completion of the Erie canal New York became what Philadelphia had been, the commercial emporium of the United States."

Aye, and still is, so far as the eastern coastal plain and the Allegheny slopes above them are concerned. Philadelphia, great though it is, has the status of New York's satellite rather than its rival. The one equal of New York is the city at the foot of Lake Michigan, situated where a multitude of small and large and medium sized trade routes from the north and northwest, the west and southwest and the south tie together to roll down as one stream of traffic along the greatest of all inland trails to the sea.

Back to Colonial Times.

For the explanation of these trade routes from Chicago one must go back to pre-revolutionary history as a background. The Atlantic coastal region and the few habitable mountain acres—habitable by the standards of that time—constituted the thirteen colonies. The high Alleghenies held the colonists on the west. To the north, as late as the middle eighteenth century, were the unfriendly French. In the Mohawk valley were the fiercest of the Indian tribes, the Iroquois. And to the south were the Spanish, still nursing their dream of some day taking such riches from the Mississippi valley as they had taken from Mexico and Peru. It was not until 1819 that Spain ceded Florida to the United States.

Even after the British had taken Canada from the French the opening up of the interior was opposed by the former. The northern Indians still were a barrier. And although the Spanish were beginning to withdraw, the French still remained in Louisiana. Bold spirits among the colonists were forced to go through the mountains. Difficult as the terrain was, it was still the line of least resistance.

Forbes' trail cut through to western Pennsylvania. But the Indian menace halted colonization as far west as the nearly level lands in this direction. Braddock in 1755 made his attempt to open up the country. Still, no real progress was made until Daniel Boone and a few of his type, adventurous woodsmen, took over the Kentucky hunting ground of the tribes, driving them to the north. Once Kentucky and Tennessee were settled the tide of migration turned north even bfore it went on farther to the west.

Converge in Chicago.

Thus there was a converging of trails. All were aimed at Chicago. To reach the rich northwest from Kentucky the logical route was by the lower end of Lake Michigan. The importance of the location became manifest at about the same time New York definitely took command among the seaboard cities. Chicago's future greatness was certain when the railroads reached it.

The easiest way by rail to the west from New York was along the route that had been driven through the Hudson and the Mohawk valleys for the Erie canal, and thence along the Lake Erie shores and north of the rugged Pennsylvania and Ohio highlands. The waterway to the west was joined by a parallel line of rails. Other railroads tapped the mineral wealth of the mountains. And because New York and Chicago, as the big valley was more and more thickly settled, needed their coal and their iron—Chicago to process the valley's materials for inland consumption, and New York to process them for Europe and the seaboard—these railroads directed their lines, too, toward these cities.

NO EQUAL ON EARTH

Mark well those railroads. Note the joining of them at the lower end of Lake Michigan. It is a concentration of land carrying facilities that has no equal on earth. Mark how many of them, streaking through the blacker area that represents the 1,000 foot land, or less, swing in here. Note how thickly the railroad lines are clustered in the central dark area and how thinly they are scattered among the rugged uplands. Note how the water level route along the Erie shore and through the Mohawk valley is nearly straight and how it turns as it reaches the Hudson valley.

Even with this twist the lowland distance is little more between Chicago and New York than it is over the mountains. As railroads are built, there is no time advantage in taking the mountains rather than the lowlands to travel from one metropolis to another.

West and northwest of the black areas about the Mississippi valley are heavily shaded portions of the map. These represent lands that are 2,000 feet or less above sea level. They extend well west of the Omaha-Kansas City line. The elevation represents something more than just a figure. The end of the dark shading marks the limit of very heavy human habitation. For west of the 100th meridian of longitude there is little land that receives as much as twenty inches of rainfall annually, until the Pacific coast is reached.

The One Route East.

Note now how logical it is that this rich territory, the most favored of the world's great valleys, should concentrate its products in Chicago. The one practicable direct route to the Atlantic seaboard, if the high, broad mountain ranges are to be missed, goes to the lower end of Lake Michigan whether the shipment is made from Minneapolis-St. Paul, from Fargo or any other point in the northwest, or from Omaha, Kansas City, or even from St. Louis.

The last named city might well be the gathering point for all the territory south and southwest of Chicago, and Baltimore might well be its port—a greater one than New York—if distance to the seaboard and directness of route alone influenced the economic decision. But on the St. Louis to Baltimore road a great stretch of high mountains and hills must be crossed. Even west of Cincinnati there is high land. From Cincinnati to Baltimore are mountains of 3,000 or more feet in height.

St. Louis is not so large as Chicago for the same reason that Boston is not so large as New York. From Chicago to the southern coast of England it is closer by way of Boston than by way of Manhattan. The most nearly straight line would not take in the Hudson valley. It would leave the Mohawk to move directly overland to the Massachusetts port. But from Albany to Boston—Albany is not far from the junction of the Mohawk and the Hudson—the country is particularly rugged. To pierce the mountains required great engineering works like the Hoosac tunnel. It is not practical to send freight by the millions of tons along this route when the Hudson is available. St. Louis and Boston, accordingly, are both off the main trade route.

Of Long Duration.

This condition doubtless will last as long as the population of the United States is concentrated largely in the two areas with New York and Chicago as centers. It will doubtless last as long, too, as there is foreign trade with Europe and the other continents.

It is possible that a real seaway through the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence could mean that the territory south and west might call on the western end of Lake Erie for a port. One objection to such a seaway is that it would be closed to navigation for at least five months a year and impeded by fog the other seven. During the closed season the flow of traffic would still have to be as it is now, along the Chicago-Lake Erie-Hudson-New York rail line. There are other objections to the seaway, although it has the advantage of a shorter distance to Europe than by New York. Montreal is a little nearer Bishop's Rock than New York.

OTHERS ARE LIMITED

Along the present great route are other large cities than those mentioned specifically. Buffalo is a clearing point for shipments sent down the lakes. Cleveland has reason for greatness. It is near the stores of coal and iron in the mountains, but its development is hampered by a political boundary on the north and the same hills of iron and coal to the south. Detroit has the advantage of fine transportation from the Superior iron mines and from the coal fields.

All of them are geographically limited in ways that Chicago is not. Cleveland's good trade route on land is almost due west and due east. Its territory ends to the west as it meets the competition of the more favorably situated city, Chicago; to the north the political boundary, to the south the high hills. Detroit is a convenient clearing point for the products of its own state and for the southern Canadian peninsula. It cannot logically draw distributive trade from a line as far west as Chicago-Indianapolis.

This map was drawn to show that the good trade routes do follow the lowlands and that the mountains profoundly influence the way the routes go. A study of it demonstrates that no other inland city is so central to the whole productive territory that sometimes is loosely called the middle west, and at the same time so strategically situated on a great route to the sea, as Chicago.

No Limits Here.

To the north Chicago has no limitation in trading radius save that furnished by the political boundary. To the northwest there is a pass of no more than 1,000 feet elevation that extends all the way to the Arctic, noted on the map as the black arm winding from Winnipeg to Fargo and Minneapolis. Surrounding that arm is the rich land less than 2,000 feet above sea level.

The Illinois river is a natural dividing line between the railroads serving the west and the northwest and those serving the south. The white lines marking the railroads penetrating the agricultural lands west of the Mississippi and those to the east show that influence. They show, too, that all the products of the great territory west of the longitude of Lake Michigan and north of the line Indianapolis-Kansas City, extended to the Rockies, logically move through Chicago if they are destined for Europe or for the eastern United States.

River a Handicap.

Another factor, tending to throw traffic from points even farther south than Kansas City to Chicago on the way east, is the growing difficulty of crossing the Mississippi as it broadens on its journey to the south. At St. Louis and at Memphis are bridges that cost many millions of dollars each and are still regarded as engineering masterpieces. Below Memphis there are no bridges over the mighty stream. Rail traffic eastward from the southwest below that point must be ferried from one side to the other.

The lower river cities sometimes find that the big stream is an enemy rather than a friend. They are generally built on high land, but the surrounding territory often is covered in floodtime and serious interruptions to traffic occur. Lake Michigan in recent months has become so high that the shore line boulevards are sometimes impassable, but its clear waters have never risen, and so far as can be foretold will never rise, high enough to force even temporary abandonment of any rail line in or about the Chicago metropolitan area.

Near the Center.

How central is Chicago for an inland trade empire? From the city to the top of Lake Superior, whence come important shipments of minerals and other products, is the same distance as to northern Alabama. From Kansas City or Omaha it is a little farther, but not much, than from the first of the rugged Alleghenies to the southeast. It is almost as far to the Canadian border south of Winnipeg as to the Gulf of Mexico.

Chicago stands a little to the north and a little to the east of the center of the productive rainfall area in the United States west of the mountains. The ease with which coal and ore can be brought in has made the metropolitan district one of the three leading steel producing sections.

IN THE AGGREGATE

Stress has been laid throughout in this article on why New York and Chicago are what they are. No effort has been made to go closely into what they are in comparison with the other large cities of the United States and Canada. Those facts are rather well known already. Yet it may not be amiss to point out that their size is not to be measured by the population in their city limits, nor their real values confined to such small areas.

New York within a radius of sixty miles has some ten million inhabitants. Chicago has nearly half as many. No other centers begin to approach these figures. The sixty mile radius in the case of each crosses land in three states. A city is no longer, in the mind of the economist, merely an artificial designation of boundaries. It is the aggregate of all the people and all the activities that center in one favored section.

Trend Toward the Open.

The trend now in the country's two largest cities is for manufacturing plants to move out from the crowded downtown and near-downtown districts toward the suburbs and the open country. Power distribution has reached so near perfection that requirements can be supplied as well in the outskirts as in the middle of the metropolitan area. Chicago's plants are tending to move toward the edge of the switching district; New York's are crossing into New Jersey.

Cities of the future, it is almost certain, will be more loosely built than those of the past. Chicago probably will have reached out until all the shore of Lake Michigan will be built up. But at intervals will be open ground that can be used for recreational purposes and for the growing of perishable foodstuffs. The movement already is under way; there remains only the business of continuing it.

Chicago Is Second.

One more instance may be given to demonstrate the importance of the Chicago-New York-Europe trade route, which incidentally made England the great trading nation of the other side. Before the trade with the colonies developed the Dutch and the Spanish at various times far outstripped the British. The instance requires the use of statistics issued last spring by the federal government.

The figures show that the value of manufactures in the state of New York in 1927 was $9,406,000,000. Pennsylvania ranked second, with $6,715,000,000; Illinois third, with $5,386,000,000; Ohio fourth, with $5,230,000,000; Michigan fifth, with $4,244,000,000; New Jersey sixth, with $3,417,000,000, and Massachusetts seventh, with $3,317,000,000. The six leading manufacturing states are those which have access to the great route from west to east, the one that follows an elevation of less than 1,000 feet the whole way. Chicago is easily second among the cities in value of manufactures and is growing rapidly.

By Water and Rail.

At the lower corners of the map are insets representing New York and Chicago and their immediate environs. That of New York shows the preponderant influence of the water traffic and the harbor facilities. The Hudson separating the city itself from the New Jersey towns, is a serious obstacle to travel. So, too, is the East river within the city limits. Difficulties to internal movement have been solved only at great cost. Tunnels and bridges have cost many millions. Facilities for transfer of goods from ships to trains and trains to ships are good. It would be idle to say otherwise. But they are not so good and far more expensive both to build and to maintain than are Chicago's railroads.

So Chicago, although it has fine water transport on the lake, nevertheless has become known, and justly, as the great railroad city. For many miles from the lake shore in every direction there is no great water barrier to their spreading out. The Chicago river and its branches cannot be compared as trouble makers for the rails with New York's streams and harbor arms.

The Chicago map shows the intricate network of lines that have come in. All are joined by belt lines, represented in slightly exaggerated form on the large map by the white semicircles. The switching district is worthy of note here. It is a linking up of all the rails within an area extending from a point near Gary into Evanston, and far enough west to take in all the close western suburbs. Within this district cars of freight are handled on a low local rate basis and the traffic is so great that it comprises nearly 40 per cent of all freight movement. Road haul shipments bear the same rate to any point in this district.

Because it exists, firms have been able to follow the modern trend and shift their plants to the open spaces. Chicagoans are enabled by it to ship extensively among themselves. Local topography would form no obstacle to the extension either of the switching district or the metropolitan district. There is almost unlimited land to the west, the north, and the south for more building. Water supplies, also, are here for any growth in population that may take place, while New York is gradually approaching the limits of reasonably cheap water supply at the present per capita rate of consumption.

It is difficult to say what the future will bring to the two cities. The race for supremacy in America, which means the world, is between them alone. Within a few years another water route from the lower end of Lake Michigan to the sea will be opened. It will go south by way of the Illinois and the Mississippi rivers. With the looked-for growth in Caribbean trade, it may become a trade route comparable to the one that leads to the eastern seaboard and on to Europe. Hitherto southern trade has been overshadowed by the eastern. Whatever this new lane becomes, Chicago will have relatively the same position on it that it has on the great trade route to the east.

ing the still site from the north along a path which paralleled a brook that flowed between Barton and the approaching man. This path was on ground slightly higher than where Barton was concealed. The still site was up the brook and on the same side of it as Barton.

"The first man seen was preceded by a dog. Ford, Trabing and Ely also saw a man. They were on a hillside above the path along which the man was approaching, and across the brook from Barton. Ford and Trabing were together and Ely some distance to the rear. Stevens was in the brush on the same side of the brook as Barton, but farther away.

"The dog discovered Barton and began barking, warning the approaching man and those following with the boiler, and causing them to flee toward the north.

"Barton gave the signal and all began to pursue, Barton in the lead. After a short distance Barton observed two men disappear into the bushes and swamp west of the path. These men were not seen again. Barton observed one man on the path directly in front, attempting to get through a barbed wire fence. Barton ran toward this man, but he extricated himself and fled across the open meadow to the north, across a stream branch and through an open cornfield on a hillside. Barton abandoned the chase in the cornfield, and the others abandoned it in the meadow.

"Fired in Air, at Ground."

"Barton fired his revolver once after starting the pursuit and before observing the two men. He fired in the air to the northeast as he ran, for the purpose of signaling the fleeing man to stop. After crossing the fence Barton fired twice while in the meadow, aiming at the ground, and in the cornfield he fired one or two shots in the air, northerly. None of these shots was aimed at any man.

"Ford ran toward the point where the wire fence crosses the path. As he ran he saw a man who disappeared in the brush to the west. Ford slipped and fell. He then saw only the man Barton was pursuing in the cornfield. He followed. He fired three or four times in the air for the purpose of signaling that man Barton was pursuing to stop. He did not fire at this man, or any man, and did not observe shots strike a man. Stopping in the meadow, Ford fired twice in the general direction of a dog that was in the meadow, to drive him from the vicinity. He did not hit the dog or intend to.

"Trabing followed Ford and stopped near the center of the meadow. He saw only the legs of the man who approached the still site first, because of the low branches, and he had no weapon.

Fires in Direction of Dog.

"Ely followed after Ford and Trabing and saw only the lower portion of the man who approached first, and later the man pursued by Barton. He is not certain whether they were identical. He abandoned the chase when Ford stopped. He fired one shot in the direction of a dog. Stevens followed and fired no shot at all. Ford, Ely, Stevens, and Trabing are certain that no man they saw was Lawrence Wenger, while Barton is uncertain whether the first man was Wenger. No other shot was heard."

After the pursuit was over, the affidavit continues, the agents returned to the still and destroyed the materials. An hour and a half later they started back to the car and discovered a man wounded, lying beside the path, under a cedar tree, about 300 yards toward the south from the still site. None of the shots had been fired in this direction. He was conscious and remained so while they took him to the car a quarter of a mile away. He did not give his name. When asked who shot him, he said:

"I can't talk; leave me alone. I am dying."

They carried him to town, where he was found dead. The agents went to the state's attorney's office, and were placed in jail all night. They were released from jail, the petition states, "at the instance of the United States attorney for Maryland, acting in their behalf."

MURDER, SAYS GRAND JURY

They were indicted on Feb. 10, the Harford county grand jury reporting that these agents "feloniously, willfully and of their deliberate, premeditated malice did kill and murder Lawrence Wenger." The grand jury made this additional report:

"We deplore the fact that the federal agents appointed to enforce the Volstead act should conduct themselves in such high handed manner as has been witnessed in this county just a short while ago, when one of our citizens lost his life because of the fact that these agents were too free with their guns. While no doubt a good many of these agents honestly try to do their duty, we feel that a number of irresponsible men of low type manage to secure positions as enforcement officers, and we think that some effort should be made to get rid of this character of men."

A petition of 40 citizens had been sent to United States Attorney Woodcock declaring that the agents could not get a fair trial in Harford county. Supt. Crabbe of the Anti-Saloon league said that the entire resources of his office were at the disposal of the agents, and criticized Harford county officers for lack of coöperation in prohibition enforcement generally.

Other Versions of Shooting.

In the meantime Thomas H. Robinson, attorney general of the state, who lives in the county, had interested himself in the case, and when Judge Soper on Nov. 23 issued his first habeas corpus writ taking the case away from the state, he began the legal battle to hold the trial in Bel Air, the county seat.

The defendants were free on bonds of $10,000 each while these legal moves were being made.

James Patterson and Abe Woods, employés of Wenger, gave versions of the shooting which differed materially from those told by the agents.

Patterson was the only eyewitness, according to his story. He and Woods were suspected of a direct interest in the still and were scored by the court for having run away after the shooting. They are ignorant men, farm workers, hill men who have always used whisky, probably made it, and are intensely suspicious of the law and all its works.

Patterson and Woods had been working at corn husking for Wenger for several days. On the day of the shooting they all had dinner at noon together in the Wenger home, where Mrs. Cook, Wenger's sister, did the housework.

Patterson knew Agent Ely from other encounters with him. He also knew Stevens, who lived in the county.

After dinner that day, he said, he and Woods, Wenger, and a boy, Ralph Woods, started down the path that leads from the home Wenger farm to the second farm, over a waste land and rough hillside. The path goes through what is known as the Carver farm.

"Woods was working at a still he was putting up," Patterson said. "He had a large barrel he had to roll up a hill, and he asked me and Wenger to help him roll the barrel, which we did. The barrel was empty and there was no whisky about the place. The dog was barking loud and Wenger said he would slip down and see what it was barking at. When he got near the dog he saw a man with a leather coat on and heard him and Stevens say to Ely:

"'There he goes now—shoot the ——; don't let him get away.'

Both Shot at Wenger.

"Ely and the man with the leather coat both shot at Wenger, and he ran and I ran. I think Wenger dropped shortly after. I had two shots through my coat that I was carrying. I was not interested in the still, neither was Wenger. I saw Ely shoot at Wenger. I have seen Stevens and Ely at dances with Wenger and they knew him." In federal court Patterson did not tell of Woods' interest in the still and Wenger at the barrel and he confined the shooting to Ely.

Woods testified:

"The four of us started for the other cornfield. We heard the dog barking at some one over the hill. I asked Wenger to go over there and see what the dog was barking at. He hesitated and walked over out of my sight. Patterson followed him after a piece and Ralph and I sat there at the old tub. I heard a shot and they hollered:

"'Kill the ——; don't let them get away.'"

"Bullets were cutting close to my head and I ran to the fence, let Ralph and Patterson get through, and from there we took wings. Bullets were cutting me close."

The boy told the same story.

None of Them Armed.

None of these men was armed.

Patterson and Woods were so frightened they did not show up for more than a week.

Patterson admitted there had been a raid by federal officers at the Cook place two years before, and that some whisky had been found in the house. He said that Wenger told him the night before he was killed, while they were milking the cows, that he heard some one was going to start up a still on the Carver place. It was a common thing in the neighborhood.

Stevens testified that he had arrested two men in the raid on the Wenger-Cook place two years before, but that he had never seen Wenger alive. There was a warrant for his arrest after this earlier raid, he said, but it was never served. He said he did not shoot at all, that Ely shot at a dog, that there were no arms on Wenger.

Ely testified at the coroner's inquest that he had shot at the dog after the man he had seen had gone out of sight. He said no one shot at the agents.

Shot at Man, Says Drys' Chauffeur.

Trabing, the chauffeur, was not armed. He was with Barton and Ford. At the inquest he said he was with Barton and Ford.

Q.—Were they shooting all the time they were with you?

A.—They were shooting directly at this man going up the hill.

Trabing said he saw the feet of a man through the brush and Barton cried:

"Go get him, boys."

He saw Barton and Ford chasing a man in overalls.

When he got back to the still fifteen minutes later Ely and Stevens were there. On the way back to the car Stevens suggested taking a short cut. They had gone a little way when Stevens stopped and said, "Here is a man lying here." The man said:

"Let me alone. I'm dying."

This suggestion of Stevens for a short cut played an important part in the trial. The prosecution contended that Stevens and Ely, after shooting Wenger, had carried him down to the place where they later pretended to find him. It was argued that the way Stevens led the group was not a shorter but a longer way to the car, and that he must have known Wenger was there.

35 or 40 Shots, Farmer Says.

John D. Henson, a farmer, had been working with two colored men at tree cutting in the woods nearby. Henson said he heard 35 or 40 shots, that he went up to the hill, and three men were there. One man, Barton, was lying on a pile of rails, exhausted and ill. One agent asked Ely where he had been, and he said he had been back at the still all the time.

Charles Bobbitt, one of the Negro workers, said:

"I was working on a tree when five men came through the woods. They asked me questions and kept on toward where the still was found. They hadn't been gone long when I heard a pistol shot and then a whole lot more. I heard some one shout, 'There he goes! Kill him!' and I saw a man running along the edge of the woods, bent over like he was hurt. Two men were chasing him and firing their pistols. The man cut around a corner of the woods and crawled into a bush. The two men lost track."

Ely said that he had shot at the dog after the men had gone out of sight. Barton testified he saw the man first and yelled to Ford to get him. Then he saw two or three men.

"Both Ford and I shot," he testified at the inquest. "I fired several shots myself. It is an ordinary occurrence to shoot when we raid a still in the woods like that."

Q.—Did you shoot at the man? A.—No, sir, up in the air.

He did not know where Ely and Stevens were. They told him they had been shooting at a dog.

Ford said he shot seven or eight times.

Trabing was sure in court that the man who approached the still was not Wenger. Judge Soper was curious as to how he knew this when he had seen only the feet of the man through the branches. Trabing explained that the man coming to the still had on rubbers and that Wenger did not have any.

TAFT RULING FAVORS DRYS

On March 12 the state of Maryland moved to quash the removal writ on the ground that the allegations did not disclose the facts entitling the agents to transfer to the federal court. This point was upheld by the United States Supreme court, which permitted, however, another affidavit to be filed, which was held sufficient. Another objection to the writ was that it constituted an interference by the United States court with due administration of justice in Hartford county, contrary to the constitution of the United States. This point was held not good by the Supreme court. The ruling of Chief Justice Taft on this constitutes the basis for the legal stand of the government today in all these cases.

The protection of prohibition agents from state prosecutions rests, the court said, on the act of 1833, enacted in the days of attempted nullification of revenue laws in South Carolina and extended during the civil war to those charged with collecting internal revenue.

The court asserted that even if the judicial code did not specifically exempt prohibition agents, they were brought within the protective section of the law by clauses in the national prohibition act setting out that they "shall have all the power and protection in enforcement of the act which is conferred by law for enforcement of existing laws relating to the manufacture and sale of liquor."

Use of Word "Protection."

"We have no doubt," reads the opinion, "that the word 'protection' was inserted for the purpose of giving to officers and persons acting under the authority of the prohibition act in enforcement of its provisions, the same protection of a trial in the federal court of state prosecutions as is accorded to revenue officers.

"Congress not without reason assumed that the enforcement of the national prohibition act was likely to encounter in some quarters a lack of sympathy and even obstruction, and sought by making section 33 applicable to defeat the use of local courts to embarrass those who must execute it.

"The constitutional validity of the section rests on the right and power of the United States to secure the efficient execution of its laws and to prevent intereference therewith, due to possible local prejudice, by state prosecutions, instituted against federal officials in enforcing such law, by removal of the prosectuion to a federal court to avoid the effect of such prejudice."

The court further declared that it must appear by direct averment that the prosecution for whatever offense has arisen out of acts done by the officers under color of federal authority and in enforcement of federal law, and he must exclude the possibility that it was based on acts of his not justified by federal duty.

State Cases Never Tried.

Under this system, then, the local United States attorney, as was done in this case, must investigate and report that federal protection is warranted by the facts. Then the attorney general's office in Washington considers it mandatory to authorize the defense.

The court held that there was no ground to remove the trials for perjury and conspiracy from the state courts, as an agent could not commit perjury in performance of duty. These cases were remanded to the state court, but have never been tried.

The attorney general's office fought against the granting of a new writ, under an amended affidavit, after this decision was filed Feb. 1, 1926.

It was not made mandatory, it was argued, for the court to allow a third petition for removal and "the state of Maryland stands ready in its own tribunals to give these petitioners a fair and impartial trial, upon the merits of their case, and to protect them in all their constitutional rights."

"In none of the former applications," it was stated, "had the petitioners disclosed that they fired any shots at any time. After the Supreme court pointed out the way for them, they now set up the fact which shows it very probable that they are responsible for murder, because there are no facts set up in the petition which establish any right on their part as federal officers to fire guns—it was done neither in performance of duty or in self-defense."

Judge Soper denied the state petition, and the trial began in Baltimore on March 1, 1927. Mr. Woodcock defended and Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Archer prosecuted. The prosecution sought to pin the killing on Agents Ely, Barton, and Stevens. The case rested largely on the story of Patterson, the fact that the agents fired the only shots that day, and the death of Wenger. The government brought in many character witnesses for the defendants, including a former United States attorney, the captain of the Baltimore police, and the surveyor of the port of Baltimore. Ely was particularly fortunate in such character witnesses, as his brother, the Rev. Charles D. Ely, Methodist minister, testified that "his standard of integrity is as high as mine."

Says Witnesses Saw Killing.

Mr. Hopkins said that Wenger was killed by Ely and Stevens and that Barton saw it.

"Wenger was shot in the back at close range," he argued.

The United States attorney asked the jury not to "put the blame for this unfortunate killing on these poor, underpaid agents. If there must be blame place it on those officials who sent them there to carry out the provisions of the law."

Judge Soper said in part in his instructions:

"This case is of more than ordinary importance. A human life has been taken and agents and officers of the United States are charged with responsibility for it.

"There is evidence in this case on the enforcement of the national prohibition law. That is a matter which is a constant source of discussion in the community, if not throughout the country. I have no means of knowing, no interest in knowing [but the attorneys had] what the views of you individual gentlemen may be as to the wisdom of that act. It will be wise for us all, so far as humanly possible, to dismiss from our minds any feeling of prejudice we may have on that subject.

"The case has one other peculiarity. This is a case where the state of Maryland is on one side and certain officers of the government on the other. Yet it is being tried in a United States court. The reason for that is that the defendants availed themselves of an act of congress which has been on the books since 1833."

Who Did the Shooting?

He went on to explain how this came about and then said:

"The only difference is that it is tried here instead of there, and you gentlemen have been selected, I presume most of you from the city, rather than the body of Harford county."

"It has been established here beyond all controversy that Wenger met his death from a bullet wound which entered the back and passed through the body. It is also a fact that there was shooting on the day, prior to the time the man was found, and the only shooting the evidence shows was done by these officers.

"One of the questions to be determined here, if any of these men shot him, who did the shooting? The fact that a man is present when a crime is committed does not necessarily make him a party to it. It is not necessary for the state to show that a defendant actually fired the shot, but it must show at least beyond a reasonable doubt that if he did not fire he had something to do with it. Did he aid, counsel, encourage?

"Is It Murder?"

"In addition, ask yourselves if there was a shooting by these defendants, whether it was done lawfully, because there are certain circumstances under which it is lawful and is not murder for an officer of the law to take the life of an individual.

"First, was the deceased engaged at the time in the commission of a felony?

"Second, was the shooting necessary to prevent his escape?

"You must determine whether Wenger was guilty of a felony. It is a felony for two or more to conspire together to commit an offense against the United States, and do something in furtherance of it.

"We have here the charge made that Wenger, Woods, and Patterson were in a conspiracy to set up a still and manufacture intoxicating liquor. If they agreed to do that they violated the national prohibition act, also prior laws of congress, and to do that and try to carry it out is a felonious conspiracy.

"There was some apparatus for use in distilling, three iron or steel barrels connected, an open hearth furnace with a fire in it, and some thousand pounds of meal, a character of stuff which furnishes sugar and other material, which if allowed to ferment forms a malt for the distillation and manufacture of whisky and alcohol. There was in the neighborhood a 500 gallon container such as to be suitable to hook up with the steam producing apparatus.

Lawful to Kill Felon.

"Two of the men who have testified here and who were, according to their testimony, with Wenger on this occasion, came down from his home with him to the scene and nearly reached the still. They ran away when approached by officers. Their explanation is that they were afraid of being shot. They stayed away. Patterson for something over a week and Woods over two weeks, without communication with the prosecuting authorities, although they had evidence that, if true, was strong evidence of the murder having been committed, and although the man who had been killed was their friend and employer.

"The suggestion, of course, is that they kept out of the way because they were afraid of being charged with an offense. It is conceded that there was a still at this place the year before, to the knowledge of the brother-in-law of the deceased. This paraphernalia lay directly in the path one ordinarily would take in walking from one Wenger farm to another.

"If the officers saw the men approach under circumstances which would lead them to suppose that the men were guilty of crime, and if it was their duty to arrest them, they were justified in making every effort to arrest them.

"It has been the law for many years, hundreds of years, that if an officer is endeavoring to make an arrest of a felon, and the felon flees and the officer cannot arrest him in any other way except by taking life, it is lawful for the officer to do so. I do not mean to say that it is his duty to shoot, but it is my duty here to give you the law as to what follows, what are the legal consequences, if an officer does shoot in order to apprehend a fleeing felon, and the law is perfectly clear that if a man is a felon and he cannot be stopped in any other way, his life may be taken.

"The officer is not obliged to stop and take counsel with himself as to whether he may not be able to come back some other time and arrest him.

"He is not obliged to stop and hold any such debate with himself. That is the time to take the man, and if the necessity exists that he cannot take him in any other way, he may lawfully use violence, and, if necessary, he may shoot.

Reviews the State's Theory.

"The state theory is simple. Four men approached the site of a still. They were engaged, according to their testimony, in a lawful enterprise, that of husking corn in the morning, and were going down to the lower Wenger farm either to husk corn or to see if the corn there had been destroyed by cattle.

"Wenger was in front, Patterson behind and Woods followed. Patterson is the only eye witness. He says that when Wenger got to the site of the still, not far from the mash box, Stevens called out, 'Kill him,' and Ely rose up and, being only ten feet from the man, shot him. At that time Wenger was walking to the right of Ely and had no premonition that the agents were in the neighborhood. He offered no resistance and was not endeavoring to escape, was merely walking to the lower farm, and had not a moment's warning. Patterson then turned to run away, very much frightened.

"As to what happened thereafter the state advances the theory that Ely and Stevens took the wounded man and carried him 400 or 800 feet down the path and left him on the ground to die. Then they came back and rejoined their colleagues and spent an hour breaking up the barrels and other material. Then they picked up the man and took him to Bel Air under the pretense that they did not knew he was there, but had accidentally discovered him.

Question of Accident.

"There are certain points in corroboration of the theory. Woods testified that Wenger was in advance of the group. The suggestion is made that it would have been impossible for Wenger to have been shot accidentally by one of these agents, because the place where he was found was 700 or 800 feet from the place where the escaping men were last seen, and the state says that a man so wounded could not have doubled back over this rough ground to the place where he was found.

"The point is made in the testimony as to why the agents did not return to the auto by the same route in which they came from it. Their testimony is they started toward the fence, and Stevens recalled them, said a shorter route was down another path. It is suggested that Stevens and Ely had in mind visiting another still but as they did not tell this at the inquest the state says this tends to show they knew Wenger was down that path. It is also suggested that Ely's whereabouts were not accounted for part of the time and he had an opportunity to dispose of the body.

"If you find Patterson to be believed and the shooting took place as what is your duty?"

The court discussed degrees of murder and said that under this story the defendants could be guilty only of first degree murder. This testimony, if true, would hold Stevens and Ely only, and the other three defendants must be acquitted.

Court Lauds Drys' Witness.

"You cannot disregard the testimony as to the good character of the defendants," said the court. "Consider the credibility of the state witnesses, the fact that the evidence tends to show they were engaged in an illicit enterprise. Consider whether, if engaged in corn husking, they would have run away and secreted themselves. The jury may ask itself the question, why, under the circumstances, they did not come to the front properly and charge the murderers with the murder of their friend. If they were engaged in the illicit distillation of whisky then they were falsely on the stand. It is for you to decide whether to take the testimony of one or two men who were interested witnesses, against five defendants, also interested witnesses.

"Is there any evidence that the five men had any prior design in their mind when they went to the still to take human life? There is no direct testimony. It is for you to decide whether two men, who have borne good reputations and have no personal enmity against Wenger, shot him down brutally in cold blood, without provocation, and then secreted him and left him to die.

"If the story of a brutal murder, as told by Patterson, is not true, how did this man get to this place wounded, and must not the agents have been responsible?

"One possibility is suggested, that he was one of the men who ran north to the fence and turned to the left, and in some way was able to get down to that place, or was carried there by his colleagues.

The Judge's Conclusion.

"If you believe that the men did flee north and he was one of those escaping and did escape, the rule of law applicable is that if he had been guilty of a felony, in a conspiracy to violate the liquor laws, the agents had the right to take his life to stop him.

"If the explanation is that he was shot by one of these men shooting at the dog, it would be a killing done as the result of a careless and unlawful act, a manslaughter. It would be necessary to find which bullet killed him. If not, the case falls. It is not the province of the jury to say that they will convict all of a group because they think some one of the group may have committed a crime. If you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that any one of the men killed Wenger, then it is your duty to acquit them all, even though the manner of Wenger's death is still a mystery. I do not believe the jury has got to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that Wenger, Patterson, and Woods were guilty of a felony. If they have reason to think they were guilty of a felony, they must give the benefit of that to the defendants."

The jury took this case on March 5. They remained out for four and a half hours. At first they were eight to four for punishment of the agents in some manner. On the jury were several prominent Baltimore citizens, such as Dr. Caln, Henry Rapp, vice president of the Clifton Savings bank; George B. Donaldson, treasurer of the Emerson Morgan Coal company, and Benjamin F. Kenney, assistant treasurer of the Central Savings bank. They were bound by the law as set forth by the court, and they finally found that they could not fix any punishment.

LONDON STOCK TRADERS WATCH WALL ST. EVENTS

New York Takes World Lead.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The city's financial atmosphere is becoming clearer and brighter. London's investing public again is becoming aware that there is a stock exchange in its midst.

There was considerably more movement and excitement. The bank rate abruptly refuses to go up and the pessimists have been confounded by the favorable change in the aspect of the monetary situation. The continual cry of "wolf" has recently become so monotonous that no notice is now being taken of it.

Sharp fluctuations were witnessed in several trans-Atlantic and home securities; the ease with which prices recover from the depth of depression in buoyancy forcibly demonstrates the strong technical market position.

Wall street is becoming an increasing factor in the influence of the London markets. Its recent upward movement in oil shares equally influenced the continental bourses and London. Professional operators here are obviously much more concerned regarding the position of American centers than the day to day developments of the monetary situation.

London Watching Wall Street.

Wall street movements are now interesting nearly every investor and trader. Both London's financial and daily newspapers are devoting greater space to the American markets and expanding lists of share prices greatly, several of them printing daily features containing hints for investors in American and Canadian markets.

The suddenness of the recent rapid changes in sentiment has rendered the markets more attractive to the professional element on the spot than outside speculators, who are still moving cautiously and confining their attention to the class of shares which have weathered many financial and political crises.

Business in general is certainly broadening, although to a modest extent, and in most departments the upward movement is predominating. A powerful factor in restoring the present cheerfulness is the more bullish attitude of New York, reflected in the recovery of a number of trans-Atlantic specialties, although late street dealers may show reactions. The shares of many companies which have recently been the subject of adverse rumors have recovered sharply on the reassuring statement regarding the earnings and prospects of dividend disbursements.

The bears have been active during the recent slack times, but they are getting nervy now that business is getting into stride again.

Steel Industry Better.

Energetic efforts are being made to restore the iron, steel, and coal industries, which show promise of success, eventually to bring a beneficial effect all around.

It is the opinion of some that the gold efflux to New York will be checked for some time longer by the artificial discouragement of gold exports from London to the United States, though it is doubtful whether this discouragement can be effective if the dollar continues to move against London.

No improvement in the foreign exchange is likely as long as the present monetary stringency abroad, particularly America, continues, or until the bank rate is raised.

Some well meant suggestions were put forward in certain quarters that the fiduciary issue of the Bank of England be increased by $100,000,000. It was argued the present emergency is one that the framers of the last currency and banknote act had in mind in giving that bank such power. But an increased fiduciary issue would not move the foreign exchanges in London's favor and if it brought a condition of inflated credit, which might well occur, the sterling would depreciate still more and further measures would then be necessary to check the gold drain.

PARIS PRICES MIXED

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Firm conditions prevailed Monday at the opening of the Paris bourse. Favorable advices from Amsterdam regarding the Anglo-Dutch oil stocks and the firmness of the New York Stock exchange influenced the market favorably, but it became irregular later in the day and trading remained quiet.

Already restrained Monday, the public apparently restricted its purchases Tuesday, being afraid to hold for the predicted forward movement promised during the next few days. Overnight selling orders by the provinces caused weakness and a further decline in the level of prices.

Further Liquidation.

Further profit taking occurred Wednesday and prices continued a downward tendency. The weakness of Wall street the previous day made an unfavorable impression in Paris and the professionals declined to liquidate. This can be explained by the fears of a decision in the Bank of England rate, although the international issues, particularly those of the London and Paris markets, were notably firm. A better tone was evident Thursday. Demands were stimulated by the realization which had rendered the market weak during the past few days.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France showed an increase in the gold holdings of $3,000,000 and notes in circulation decreased $27,500,000. Commitments on sight also showed an important reduction.

Better conditions prevailed Friday, which consolidated the position of the market. Resistance predominated throughout the session and the close was satisfactory, with a pronounced resistance on the curb of oils and rubbers.

Battle Front in Power Tiff Is Extended

New York, Sept. 14.—The battle for supremacy among great financial interests in the public utility field was extended to a new front today. On the heels of an announcement that the Morgan interests had achieved a strategic position in the east by a union of power companies along the St. Lawrence river came a proposal by the new Public Utility Holding corporation to merge several large public utilities on the Pacific coast.

The Public Utility Holding corporation is sponsored by Harris Forbes & Co., investment bankers, and the American Founders and United Founders corporation interests. By this move these powerful interests enter the race recently started by several big utilities companies to acquire and unite public utilities in the middle and far west. Now the Public Utility Holding corporation, which is among the five largest holding concerns in the country, is offering an exchange of stock to the Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas and Electric and Pacific Lighting companies.

Basis of Exchange.

The plan of exchange follows:

For each share of Southern California Edison common, two shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and one detached perpetual warrant to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For each share of Pacific Gas and Electric common, two shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For each share of Pacific Lighting common three shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For two shares of Portland Electric common, three shares of Public Utility common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For each share of the National Fuel Gas common, one share of Public Utility common with warrant attached to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

Whether these exchanges are accepted, however, is problematical. R. W. Miller, executive vice president of Pacific Lighting, has advised all stockholders to carefully consider the advantage of maintaining their voting identities in a corporation whose stock was listed on the New York stock exchange "thus insuring regular and regulated statements of earnings and capitalization." He added that there was no means of knowing what price the new stock would bring, in the event of large deposits, until after a public statement of the deposits had been made by the Utility Holding corporation, showing how much stock of each individual company had been deposited in exchange.

Morgan System Expands.

The achievement of the Morgan interests in acquiring the Long Sault Power site on the St. Lawrence river was in conformity of the theory held in Wall street that when these interests enter a situation, they usually make their control sweeping and complete. It is estimated that about 30 per cent of the waterpower resources of New York state are now in the hands of the Morgan superpower system. The remaining 20 per cent is said to be sites of only secondary value.

There is still a mystery in the minds of Wall street observers as to when J. P. Morgan & Co. decided to enter the public utility industry in a large way. The Mellon interests of Pittsburgh were in the field long before the Morgan interests showed their hand. They are controlling factors in the United Gas Improvement company.

The General Electric company and the United Gas Improvement company formed the Mohawk Hudson Power corporation to control utilities and power plants in the Albany area. Mohawk Hudson soon became interlocked as to control with the Northeastern Power corporation, and the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power corporation.

Smith Blocked Project.

These three power organizations remained in a state of interlocking control without actual merger for some years. In this period, the General Electric company, the Aluminum company and the Du Pont interests formed the Frontier corporation to develop a power site of 2,400,000 horsepower at the Long Sault rapids on the St. Lawrence. This project showed every sign of materializing in 1926, when Alfred E. Smith, then governor, effectually blocked this attempt to develop the power site by private interests.

It was not, however, until this January that the Morgan interests publicity entered the situation. Then the United Corporation was formed, which, with Morgan backing, speedily acquired holdings in the Mohawk Hudson Power corporation.

Federal Reserve Reports Where 1929 Business Is Best

CONT'L-CHICAGO TAKES NEW HOP IN BUYING RUSH

Investment Issues Lead Market.

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

Continental Chicago corporation, the investment company sponsored by the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, was the outstanding feature of a strong close on the Chicago stock exchange yesterday. The price shot up 4¼ points to a high and close of 38½ after sales of more than 12,000 shares during the two hour session.

As the closing gong rang there was a mad scramble around the post at which these certificates were traded in. Brokers clamored with orders to buy 7,000 shares at 90. There were no offers to sell at this price and by noon there were transactions on an over the counter basis at 92.

Northwestern Bank, another new bank holding corporation, advanced 2½ points. Insull Utilities Investment was off a point and Chicago Corporation eased a fraction. Lehman Brothers, a new investment trust, was initially traded in at between 116 and 117.

Keystone Steel Moves Up.

Keystone Steel led the general list with a five point jump, coupled with a renewal of the rumor that negotiations for a merger with Continental Steel are to be announced on Tuesday. General Theater Equipment was up four points. Anticipation that Art Metal Works will introduce new novelties to be put out for the Christmas trade and that sales and earnings in the last quarter will reach new heights as a result of the holiday business brought a two point jump in that issue. Electric Household Utilities was up three points.

Raytheon led the radio division with a jump of 6½ points. Grigsby-Grunow was one of the most active of the day and closed 1¾ higher on the estimate of B. J. Grigsby, president, that sales for the first half of the company's fiscal year, which started June 1, will equal, if not exceed, those for the entire preceding fiscal year. He said that sales for the current month will be around $9,000,000.

Other Issues Are Irregular.

Caco was up 1¾ and U. S. Radio touched a high of 40. National Union Radio was fractionally lower on small sales. Sonatron Tube, which is being exchanged for National Union, was unchanged.

Noblitt-Sparks led the automotive list with a gain of a point. Week-end profit taking in Bendix Aviation and the Houdaille-Hershey issues brought declines of a point each in these stocks. Auburn Automobile advanced five points on small sales and Ainsworth Manufacturing was down two points, also on light trading.

Earnings of Ainsworth for the first half amounted to $698,755, equal to $4.43 a share on 157,000 shares of outstanding stock. Comparative figures for last year were not available.

Kirsch common, of which there are 168,055 shares listed, was not traded in. The directors of the company omitted the quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share due on the stock at this time. Parker Pen and Hormell were up a point or so, while Libby, McNeill & Libby lost a point. Commonwealth-Edison advanced two points on small sales and North American Light and Power was up a point.

Rosenwald Home Finance Plan Taken Up by Bank

Continuation on a permanent basis of the plan of Julius Rosenwald to finance small home owners without the grief of excessive rates which have prevailed on second mortgage real estate loans was announced yesterday by the Personal Loan and Savings bank along with the organization of a second mortgage real estate loan company. This company will be financed through the sale of 5,000 shares of additional stock to the stockholders of the bank at $200 a share, the benefits of the subsidiary accruing to the stockholders of the bank. Stockholders of the bank will meet on Oct. 14 to take action on the proposal to increase the capitalization.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS RISE ON GOOD DEMAND; CONT.-ILLINOIS LEADS

Good buying was noted in the Chicago bank stock market last week, with Continental Illinois Bank and Trust the most prominent. The demand for these shares lifted the price 125 points to a record high at 1020, but profit taking forced it down to a close of 955 bid, offered at 960. Central Trust Company of Illinois dropped to sales at 685 and later rallied to 692 bid, 697 asked. A good tone was noted in National Bank of the Republic and it improved slightly to 240 to 242.

First National, after early sales at 890, rose to 900 bid with limited offerings at 904. Twelve hundred was again bid for State Bank of Chicago without attracting sellers. Foreman National was wanted at 1240, but little interest was noted on the selling side. Union Bank was dealt in between 430 and 434. Peoples Trust and Savings was 5 points better at 527 to 532. Offerings at 1035 for Northern Trust were in evidence. Harris Trust sold at 1060.

CITES GROWTH OF INVESTMENT TRUST FUNDS

The total amount of investment trust funds in the United States at the end of 1929, will be at least $3,000,000,000, according to a survey just completed by Lawrence Stern & Co., Chicago investment bankers.

During the first eight months of this year the survey shows more than $1,500,000,000 was invested by the American public in investment trust shares —an amount considerably larger than the total of $1,000,000,000 which had been placed in investments of this type during the entire history of the investment trust movement in the United States running back more than thirty-five years.

In 1928 investment trust offerings were 12 per cent of the country's total stock issues; in the first six months of 1929 they were 41 per cent; in July of this year, 60 per cent, and in August, 87 per cent. In spite of this very rapid growth, it is the conclusion of the survey that the field for investment trusts is practically unlimited, and that "the large volume of capital currently being placed in such companies represents the broad swing of a major change in financing methods rather than the overdoing of one particular type of security."

To Announce Terms of Canadian Chains Merger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 14.—Plans for completing consolidation of the Dominion Stores Ltd. and Loblaw Groceterias Company, Ltd., of Canada, will be announced within a few days, Robert Jackson, president of the former company, stated today: "The management of Dominion Stores," he said, "has come to an agreement in principle for the underwriting of the proposed merger. The coördination of the two largest chain grocery companies in Canada should result in substantial economies in operation and be in the interests of the public and the stockholders of both corporations.

Western Capitalist Group Forms Hawaiian Airways

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 14.—Formation of Hawaiian Airways Co., Ltd., by a group of western capitalists and aviation executives including William Bibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, was announced today. The company plans airplane service between the principal points of the Hawaiian islands. The airways company plans a daily schedule from Honolulu and Hilo to all principal points of the islands.

UTILITIES GIVE N. Y. CURB MART A STRONG TONE

Merger Plans Give Life to Trade.

New York, Sept. 14.—Revival of bullish activity in the utilities as a result of further merger developments and rumors of impending consolidations gave the New York curb market an appearance of strength in the early dealings today.

Later the market became irregular as week-end realizing by traders increased and bears put out short lines. As on the "big board," however, the outstanding changes were on the upside.

Niagara Hudson Power Strong.

Niagara Hudson Power was a feature of the utilities as the result of an overnight announcement that the Morgan company had contracted to acquire St. Lawrence river power sites from the Mellon interests and other upstate properties to round out its control of the New York state power institution. In addition, the stock was placed on a 10 cents quarterly dividend basis. On strength of these developments, the stock gained more than 2 points.

Activity and strength of United corporation on the big board resulted in a big demand for the warrants, which sold up 1⅝ points.

Other Utilities Advance.

Other strong features of the utilities were Electric Bond and Share, American Cities "B," and United Gas Improvement, which advanced in sympathy with the new stock on the big board. Italian Superpower, United Light and Power, Shawanigan Water Power, National Electric Power, and Insull Utility Investment.

Aside from the utilities, Goldman Sachs Trading provided interest with a run-up of 8 points.

MAY COMBINE 3 ENGINEERING DEPARTMENTS

New York, Sept. 14.—Plans are under way to merge the radio engineering department of the General Electric company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company with the engineering department of the Radio Corporation of America, it was learned today. However, officials of none of the companies would comment on the development.

Gerard B. Swope, president of the General Electric, authorized the statement that he knew nothing about it. General Harbord, president of the Radio corporation, also withheld comment. As far as could be learned the move to merge the three radio engineering departments is still in the preliminary stages. General Electric and Westinghouse were two of the leading organizers of the Radio corporation and General Electric is its largest stockholder.

Shares of Minn. Bank Shoot Up on Merger Story

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Stock of the Metropolitan National bank, which bid 180 ten days ago today bid at 350, with none available at that price on the Twin City stock exchange. Information circulated in financial circles here that the bank is to become affiliated with the Northwestern Bancorporation has caused the stock to skyrocket. The stock is not listed on the exchange here but is traded in. Metropolitan stock, bid at 180 last week, started its climb a week ago, passing 200 last Saturday, climbing to 250 by Thursday, after a two day setback, going to 330 Friday and reaching a bid of 350 today.

Bond Issues Largest Since June Record

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—New bond offerings this week were the heaviest since the week ended June 21. This week's total reached $127,695,000 compared with $140,396,000 on that date, and compares with the high of the year of $190,362,700 for the week ended March 15. Last week's aggregate of bond financing was $11,191,000 and that of a year ago, $100,396,000.

Six major issues were marketed this year, headed by the issue of $50,000,000 Shell Union Oil corporation 5s which were offered at par. The next largest issue was that of $20,000,000 City of New York short term notes, which mature in November and December, 1929, and the third issue was $15,500,000 Northern Indiana Public Service company 5s, brought out at 94, to yield 5⅜ per cent.

Big Municipal Issues.

Two other large municipal loans were offered to the public—viz.: $11,000,000 State of Illinois Highway 4s, on a 4.40 per cent basis, and $10,650,000 Chicago sanitary district 4½s, priced to yield from 5 to 6 per cent.

No foreign loans were included in the week's total, although a banking group headed by J. and W. Seligman and company and the National City announced the granting of a $5,000,000 credit to the Republic of Peru.

The single piece of railroad financing consisted of an issue of $3,775,000 Chicago and North Western Railway 4½ per cent railway equipment trusts, priced to yield 5⅛ to 6 per cent.

How Weeks Compare.

The offerings of bonds by groups of this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Industrial	$ 52,000,000	.....
State & municipal	48,920,000	$10,191,000
Public utility	18,000,000	1,000,000
Railroad	8,775,000	.....
Totals	$127,695,000	$11,191,000

The heavy amount of new bond offerings was made to the accompaniment of heavy stock financing, of which a substantial amount represented common and preferred stocks of investment trusts and holding companies. Several large bond issues are understood to be about ready for offering.

B. & O. ROAD ASKS DISMISSAL OF RIVAL'S MOTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad today asked the interstate commerce commission to deny the motion by the Delaware and Hudson railroad for dismissal of the application of the Baltimore and Ohio to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railway.

Several years ago and during the recent hearings, L. F. Loree, president, offered to buy controlling interest in the road at the same figure set by the Baltimore and Ohio. In its brief filed today the Baltimore and Ohio declared that its control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh would eventually save not less than $1,000,000 a year in operating expenses.

"There will be a more extensive and intensive use of existing facilities and equipment," the brief said, "especially in the greater use of the Baltimore and Ohio box car equipment in supplying the admitted need of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, and most importantly in the greater use of existing facilities in the establishment of a new short line between Chicago, New York and New England."

New York Silver Bullion Market Activity Subsides

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The silver bullion market was comparatively quiet here today, following the spectacular selling in China yesterday, which sent prices here down ¾ of a cent to the lowest level since 1915. The price this morning was 50.34 cents an ounce, a drop of ⅞ of a cent from yesterday's closing quotation. Local quotations were on a parity with the London price of 23 5/16d, off 1-16d. Bullion brokers were of the opinion today that the Chinese speculators, who yesterday unloaded their holdings and sold 30,000,000 ounces short, would soon have to buy silver back. Increased production of silver, mainly in this country, was stated to have been a main factor in yesterday's decline.

Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($1,615,347,000), an increase of 12.4 per cent was shown.

HEAVY U. S. GOVT. FINANCING IS DUE TOMORROW

New York, Sept. 14.—Monday will be a heavy day in banking circles in view of the quarterly government financing and the final income tax payments for the year which, together, will represent a turnover of close to $1,800,000,000. Inasmuch as the payments actually due Sunday cannot be made until Monday, the turnover is one day late this year, but in effect the operation is identical with those of other years.

The government meets one issue of maturing treasury certificates with the proceeds of another and with income tax receipts pays interest on its debt due at this time and retires a portion of its debt. The government financing will account for approximately two-thirds of the turnover as income tax collections are estimated variously as more than $500,000,000.

The government has just announced the allotment of $549,707,500 of the new 4¼ per cent certificates of indebtedness, of which $104,274,000 will represent exchanges of the certificates of indebtedness maturing tomorrow. The amount of the maturing issue is $510,000,000. In addition the treasury will retire $100,000,000 of its 3½ per cent notes as a continuance of its program of retiring outstanding debt piecemeal. Interest due Monday on government debts is estimated at $65,000,000.

The total is put at 38,274 long tons. In July consumption reached a total of 41,528 tons, while in August, 1928, the rubber manufacturers consumed 42,925 tons of the raw commodity.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Sept. 14.—Honors in today's short stock market session fell to the bull crowd in spite of the unusual heavy week-end profit taking and renewed pressure against some of the leaders.

Buying was of a highly selective character, with a coterie of erstwhile neglected issues stepping forward, some of them briskly, and leaving a long line of recent favorites to fall back from lack of support—a change in the general tenor of operations which has been becoming more and more pronounced for several days.

The upshot was a rather jagged-looking column of closing prices, with changes ranging all the way from losses of four and five points in such recent pets as Western Union and Worthington Pump, respectively, to a gain of 31 points in Commercial Solvents. As a rule, however, price movements were confined to narrow ranges, wide swings being few and far between.

Specialties Are Pushed Up.

Besides Commercial Solvents—the "big cut-up" of the market for several days now—the star performers of the day were Case Threshing Machine, which rushed ahead for a net gain of 15 points; American Machine and Foundry, which was shoved up 13 points on a small turnover; Auburn Auto, which cut loose in characteristic fashion with a 5 point jump; Stone and Webster, up 7; Louisville and Nashville, up 4; Granby Mining, up 6¼, and National Biscuit, up 5 points.

Store stocks came off their perch before the day was over and May Department, Macy, and others of the group which forged ahead in such spectacular fashion yesterday, slid back to the minus side of the line. Selling in this division, however, was mainly in the nature of profit taking.

Speculative interest in the power and light group was stimulated afresh by overnight news of the latest deal involving the acquisition by the Niagara Hudson Power corporation of the Frontier corporation. United corporation, Consolidated Gas, American Power and Light and West Coast Utility, in addition to Stone & Webster, were in the spotlight.

Big Developments Expected.

The new development in the Morgan system was accepted as supporting the widely held belief that things are moving rapidly under the surface in the utility field and that other highly important announcements may be looked for in the not too distant future.

United corporation, which is sponsored by the same interests as Niagara Hudson, advanced to the highest levels since the stock went ex rights, but realizing slowed down its pace along with that of the rest of the division in the last half hour of trading.

The oils were brought forward in the last hour as the light began to soften, and Standard of New Jersey, which had been the headliner of the group all week, was run up for a further gain of three points. The

WHEAT VALUES DECLINE HERE IN ORDERLY STYLE

Bearish Argentine News Induces Selling.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat values were on the down grade yesterday from the start on selling induced by more favorable weather in Argentina, but the decline was orderly, and the finish at net losses of 1¼@1¾c. Winnipeg was 2¼@2¾c lower for the day. Scattered liquidation was in evidence in corn due to the failure of the market to respond to the recent government crop report, and the finish was ¼@1¼c lower. Oats lost ⅜@⅝c, while rye was ⅞@1¼c lower.

Drought reports from Argentina were the main factor in causing an upturn in wheat values early in the week, with scattered rains toward the last causing a reaction, with the finish ½c higher to ½c lower, as compared with a week ago. Corn finished at a loss of ½@1¼c for the week, with oats ¼c higher to ¼c lower, and rye, ¼@1¾c lower than a week ago. Lard declined 12½@25c and ribs 15c for the week, while bellies were 10c higher.

Rain Helps Argentine Wheat.

Cables told of rains in parts of the provinces of Cordoba, Santa Fe and Buenos Aires, with cloudy weather in other parts of Argentina, but it is generally expected that it will be some days before the actual extent of the precipitation and the amounts will be available, and its effect on the wheat crop can be determined. Some cables indicated that the rainfall was insufficient in some areas but the Buenos Aires market closed 1¾@2⅜c lower for the day, with Rosario off 2⅜@4c while flaxseed in Buenos Aires, which made a sensational advance earlier in the week, was 15@18¼c lower, and at the finish showed a drop of nearly 40c from the recent high point.

There was rather persistent selling of wheat futures here by houses with eastern connections, but the northwest and cash interests were moderate buyers, and offerings on the break were steadily absorbed by other commission houses. In some quarters there was a disposition shown to pay more attention to the domestic situation, with attention called to the improvement in the cash basis. However, congestion now prevails at a number of eastern lake ports, with a large fleet of vessels already tied up owing to lack of room in elevators. The seaboard reported a slow foreign demand. Liverpool closed 1¼@1½d lower on selling induced by the more favorable weather reports from Argentina.

Light Frost in Iowa.

Light frost was reported in part of the Iowa corn belt, and had some effect on values, but the weekly forecast indicated temperatures somewhat above normal, and toward the last the market eased on increased local and commission house pressure. No rain of consequence is expected during the week. Private crop reports showed decidedly irregular conditions of growth over a wide area. Outside trade was light and the market rather easily influenced. Buenos Aires corn closed 1c lower.

Commission houses were fair buyers of oats on resting orders and prevented any material decline in that grain. Rains in Argentina are expected to improve the outlook for the new crop in that country. Rye was influenced mainly by the action of wheat and prices averaged lower.

Rubber Company Sales at Peak, President Reports

William O'Neill, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, said the company closed the third quarter with sales at the highest point of the year. While August was the company's peak month for sales in 1928, sales in August this year have been 20 per cent greater.

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE

Niagara Hudson featured a firm Chicago curb session yesterday. This issue opened a point higher and finished with an advance of 2⅛ points in a heavy trade. Greenebaum came back a point from Friday's slip and Temple A, General Realty and Associated Gas and Electric were up a point or more. Wisard was active but little changed following announcement of an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents.

MOST of the 80,000 clients of The Financial World's Threefold Investment Service consider our Bargain Lists of undervalued securities worth far more than our yearly subscription price.

These Bargain Lists are published only as conditions warrant. Each list is made up of a carefully selected group of ten or twenty dividend-paying stocks, all listed on the New York Stock Exchange, whose outlook for increased earnings makes them attractive from the standpoint of safety, income yield and profit possibilities.

These Bargain Lists are always awaited with keen anticipation by our subscribers because in the past they have proven highly profitable to anyone who has observed the fundamental principle of diversification. Almost 90% of the securities recommended in our past 24 Bargain Lists now show handsome profits to our subscribers.

We are publishing herewith a complete record of our past twenty-four investment Bargain Lists because they show conclusively the advantages of buying a diversified list of stocks carefully selected by an unbiased set of investment counsellors who have no other interest than to make their service profitable to their clients. We sell no securities of any kind.

We wish to add that the Investment Bargain Lists are only a small part of many of the valuable features of a year's subscription. Each weekly issue of The Financial World contains an expert review of the current outlook for business, interest rates, securities and other subjects of vital interest to the investor. In addition several complete analyses of undervalued securities appear in each issue of The Financial World.

The Financial World has emphasized for twenty-seven years that the road to financial independence is not through get-rich-quick or fly-by-night promotions, not through tips, rumors or gossip, not through blind and reckless speculation. The sound policy of seeking out substantial and growing values for its subscribers is the secret of The Financial World's uniform success in helping readers to build up substantial estates. In each weekly issue it points out to you basic values (with future possibilities) that are the keystone of "estate building" investments.

Free to Every Subscriber—A Monthly Investor's Reference Book

An extra feature that most subscribers consider indispensable is the investor's monthly reference book which is sent free to every subscriber. This is called "Monthly Appraisals of Listed Stocks."

Besides other valuable investment information this pocket reference book gives earnings per share, prospects, dividend rate and prospective dividend changes of over 1,000 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. We also give our own rating of A, B, C or D to each stock in the book.

The third feature of our Threefold Investment Service (price only $10 yearly) makes an appeal to every investor who at times is in a quandary as to whether to hold, buy or sell a particular security. Each subscriber has the privilege of securing our opinion by letter about any individual security at any time simply by enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope with each inquiry. Every inquiry must be confined to a single security.

HOGS RECOVER MORE OF RECENT SHARP LOSSES

Medium, Weighty Kinds Score Biggest Gains.

Hogs recovered 10@25c more of the recent sharp loss, medium and weighty kinds again scoring the sharpest advance. The practical top reached $10.50, although order buyers were offering upwards to $10.55 for fancy selections late. The general average advanced 15c at $9.95, highest in ten days, with medium and heavy hogs selling within 25@50c of top quotations. A week ago top heavy hogs sold 90c under the extreme top for light.

There has been a sharp revision of quotations during the last two weeks, due to the earlier marketward movement of spring pigs at a time when farmers were caught holding more of the last crop than is usual for this time of the year. The general quality has been fairly good for some time, although offerings on some sessions carried burdensome supplies of pigs and underweights averaging less than 160 lbs, which were a drug on the market. These kinds lost 75c to $1.00 during the week and finished $1.50@2.00 below two weeks ago. Stronger weight light declined 50@70c since a week ago. Medium and weighty hogs started the week lower, but reacted when the proportion of 250 lb averages and heavier commenced dwindling and finished 25@55c above the previous Saturday.

All Classes Recover.

With the exception of hogs, all classes of live stock fully recovered from the recent sharp setback. Hogs also ruled higher at the extreme close, but the week's general average at $9.65 was lowest since February and below any corresponding week since 1924. The average in 1924 was only 25c below last week. Larger supplies of light hogs and the second smallest shipments since September, 1928, were the weakening factors. Outsiders bought only 14 per cent of arrivals, against 26 per cent a year ago and 29 per cent two years ago. A decline of 1@3c in fresh pork loins added to the depression. The larger proportion of light hogs brought the week's average weight down 9 lbs at 246 lbs, the lightest since the middle of June.

Cattle receipts last week were the largest since January at 54,000, but barring a lower opening, prices ruled higher all week, closing 50@75c and in spots $1.00 above a week earlier. The general average price at $13.75 was 20c above the preceding week, which was lowest since the middle of April. According to packers, beef was easier to move at steady to strong prices and at the close showed slight gains. The close of the vacation season was partly responsible for the improved demand for meats all over the city. Eastern demand was also broader, outsiders taking a total of 16,500 last week, including feeders, against 13,179 the previous week.

Sheep Receipts Immense.

Lamb prices gradually moved higher in the face of the largest receipts since October, 1928, during last week. The general average for the week at $12.95 was 15c above the previous week, when prices averaged lowest since January, 1928. Prices a year ago averaged $14.55 and the five year average of corresponding weeks stands at $14.35. Extremely dry weather is forcing thousands of range lambs to market too early. A total of 80,000 arrived from the west, against 60,500 the previous week and 43,500 two weeks ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 25,000 cattle, 37,000 hogs, and 28,000 sheep, against 27,616 cattle, 39,484 hogs, and 33,269 sheep a week ago, and 25,370 cattle, 26,249 hogs, and 30,544 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 61,000 cattle, 105,000 hogs, and 110,000 sheep, against 65,073 cattle, 92,136 hogs, and 115,986 sheep a year ago.

BOND MARKET PRICES MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

Buyers Ignore Advice to Get In on Bargains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 14.—There was not much of interest to the week-end bond market, prices moving within a narrow range, with numerous issues which have been more or less active during the week inclined to sag. There was enough buying, however, to register some fair sized gains and keep the closing list from being anything worse than irregular.

The failure of the bond market to perk up in response to the week's outpouring of expert opinion to the effect that the real bargains in securities are now in bonds, since stock prices are at such high peaks, has been something of a disappointment to the wise ones of the street.

Secretary Mellon was one of those to advocate bond buying in discussing the heavy oversubscription of the treasury's $500,000,000 issue of 4¼ per cent certificates. Roger W. Babson, who predicted a stock market crash similar to the slump in Florida land values, was optimistic on the outlook for the bond market.

But buyers are still hesitant and prices of corporation issues are near the lows for the year. Government securities are relatively better, but have shown slight strength.

In the trading today, irregularity in the convertibles gave the market a mixed appearance. American I. G. Chemical 5½s were down and International T. and T. 4½s more than 4 points. Alleghany corporation 5s were firm. American International 5½s were fractionally higher. Trading in United States government securities was negligible.

U. S. Still Gets Reduced Mail Rate, Economist Says

New York, Sept. 14.—The government is still receiving reduced rates from the movement of mail, material and troops in return for the granting of land to railroads when they were constructed, according to Dr. C. S. Duncan, economist of the Association of Railway Executives. He pointed out that in 1876, Congressman Holman of Indiana caused to be inserted in an appropriation bill a clause which provided that railroads constructed with the aid of land grants by congress on condition that mail should be carried for 80 per cent of the compensation otherwise authorized by the bill. This 80 per cent rate still applies to 13,366 miles of railroad, Dr. Duncan said.

HEDGE SALES IN COTTON

Hedge sales against purchases of cotton in the south were an important factor in the market yesterday. They offset scattered trade buying and covering by shorts and made a lower range. During the early trading prices were off around 20 points. Selling was also encouraged by Liverpool closing 1 to 2 points lower with spot sales 5,000 bales, and by rains in the eastern belt and in southern Texas. A high barometer, however, gave promise for better weather for the new week. Trade reports in the main were more favorable with prices of cotton goods strengthened.

Closing trades were at the lowest of the day, futures off 30 to 45 points in Chicago and 29 to 35 points in other markets. Spots lost 30 points with a large trade, New York being 18.70c, New Orleans 18.25c, Galveston 18.45c, and Houston 18.50c, sales at the latter market being 11,606 bales, at New Orleans 10,376 bales and New York 800 bales. BOARD OF TRADE GIVES CHICAGO NEW STOCK MART ticker quotations from New York to Board of Trade houses.

The board announced it will trade from 10 a. m., to 3 p. m., one hour later than in Chicago, and New York. This was taken as a plan to continue trading in stocks listed in New York and Chicago after the close in those exchanges. The regular hours heretofore for grain trading from 9:30 a. m., to 1:15 p. m., will continue the same.

BOARD RENEWS TRADING

Stock trading on the Chicago Board of Trade was started in 1887 with special memberships being provided. For a time a fair business for those days was developed, the main interest being in securities handled in New York. For a short period the business rivaled that of the local stock exchange which in the early days did not handle more than a few hundred shares, and the printed list did not take up more than an inch of space in the newspapers.

Activity in the grain market, which was more attractive to members of the general speculative public throughout the world, lured traders from stocks into grains, and they forgot all about the possibilities of trading in securities on the board until last year, when Ray O'Brien, one of the largest wheat traders, conceived the idea that with the New York exchange handling 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 shares a day, Chicago might develop another stock market. The idea was not received favorably at first but later it grew.

Frank G. Logan, founder of the brokerage house of Logan & Bryan, but now retired, made the first trade in stocks on the board of trade in 1857 and has sent in the first order for stocks to be traded in tomorrow.

How Board of Trade Started.

In 1848 a few progressive, energetic pioneers conceived the idea that a business organization was what Chicago needed most. The first meetings were in a little room on Dearborn street near what was then South Water street and now is Wacker drive. For a number of years it was more of a civic body, with a little trading. Its growth was slow but steady. In the early '60s it had its quarters on the second floor of some old brick buildings at La Salle street and Wacker drive. Nearly every business man in Chicago was a member of the board of trade. They gathered at noon, talked business and passing events and lunches on crackers and cheese.

In the latter part of the '60s the board of trade moved to Washington and La Salle streets, remaining there until 1884, when traders marched into the building at Jackson street at the head of La Salle street. They stayed there until the first week in December, 1928, when they abandoned the old quarters for the temporary structure at 453 South Clark street.

Plan Further Expansion.

On May 1 next it is expected that the board of trade members will take another march to the new permanent quarters at La Salle and Jackson streets. Officials of the board say that when housed in their new quarters, facilities for trading in securities, as well as grain and cotton, and possibly wool and other commodities for future delivery, are expected to be taken up and developed.

It is the aim of officers of the board of trade to develop a security market that will eventually rival that of the New York Stock exchange. President Arnot says: "We have the traders, the facilities, the wires, the news tickers, and everything that is possible to give the trading public the best service in the world." He predicts that the board of trade is to enter on a new era of prosperity.

ROCKEFELLERS AND EMPLOYES "MAKE" MILLIONS IN MARKET

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Employés of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey have been enriched to the extent of more than $41,000,000 by the recent sharp advance in the stock of that company. Likewise, the wealth of the Rockefeller interests and other large holders of the stock has been swelled by many millions of dollars through the same advance.

Under the two previous stock purchase plans of the Standard of New Jersey employés bought about 900,000 shares at an average price of not more than $37 a share. Calculated on the basis of $80 a share, at which the stock sold on Wednesday, these holdings had an aggregate value of more than $72,000,000 and showed an appreciation of fully $38,000,000 since the original subscriptions were made.

Besides those purchases employés of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, under the third stock subscription plan which was started on Jan. 1 of this year, have acquired about 85,000 shares at an estimated average cost of $50 a share.

Golconda Lead Mines passed the dividend on its $1 par stock. Huttig Sash and Door company passed the quarterly dividend on its common stock. United Cosmetics Shops passed the quarterly dividend of 2½ cents a share on its stock.

NOTE SLACKENING OF ACTIVITY IN STEEL MARKET

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—In many lines, trade operations in the steel market were showing signs of a rather unfavorable position, with new business a disappointment and the movement against contracts decreasing. The U. S. Steel coöperation statement of unfilled tonnage showed a decrease beyond expectations.

Only a moderate inquiry has been reported in the copper market. More urgent needs were evidently supplied by the active buying movement which developed toward the end of last month. Demand which had previously tapered off became quieter after publication of the August statistics.

The situation in the tin market hardly showed any change, with trade dull and price fluctuations narrow. While the price basis for lead was firm there was a rather disappointing trade demand. Recent heavy purchases were estimated to have taken care of most of the consumer's needs for the time being. A fair business was reported for zinc without, however, any change in the price situation. Ore also was unchanged.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

HOME OUTGROWN, DISUSED ATTIC COMES TO RESCUE

Family Saved from Moving by Remodeling Job.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[Home Builders' Editor.]

Every one who owns a home knows that problems of some sort or another frequently arise. A good house needs careful attention and should be kept in good repair.

Often after a certain number of years it may need to be remodeled in order to conform to new standards of beauty the family has acquired, added usefulness, or to furnish more rooms for a growing family's requirements.

Here is what one woman did when she found that the family was outgrowing the home.

Her problem was a common one. She was faced with selling and building, or buying another, or enlarging the one she had. So she chose the surer and more agreeable alternative and by converting the old disused attic into a large and commodious combination bedroom and study added the necessary extra space to the home the whole family loved.

I am going to quote her words. They are brief, but they tell a vivid story of how she solved her domestic problem in a simple and inexpensive fashion.

One Woman's Story.

"When we bought the bungalow in which we are now living," Mrs. Leonard of 8131 South Elizabeth street, Chicago, writes, "it was ample for all our needs and so satisfactory in every respect that we vowed we were settled; to move no more.

"But our family grew, as families do, and last year we found that we simply must have another bedroom to accommodate our oldest son, a high school student.

"The mere mention of moving brought a storm of tears and protests from the whole family, and it was when the oldest boy remarked, "Gee, I'd rather sleep in the attic than have to move" that our big idea was born.

"Our attic, though large and airy and well floored, had hitherto been merely a storage room for discarded articles of all kinds, or at most a place to play in on rainy days. But now, by using a good grade of insulated wall board, my husband, who fortunately had worked at the carpenter trade, built a comfortable and altogether charming room.

"It was a combination study and bedroom, large enough to hold not only a bed and a chest of drawers, but a writing desk and chair and a comfortable reading chair and lamp as well, and a large low stool.

Built-in Book Shelves.

"The walls are painted a deep buff and the panel strips old ivory, while spread and hangings are of durable but cheerful green gingham, with a tiny black thread running through it. Black sateen pillows trimmed in the green gingham complete the decorations.

"The floor is covered with inlaid linoleum in green and black, with a couple of small hooked rugs for warmth and coziness. Built-in book shelves at one end provide space for books and a small closet with hooks and a rod for hangers contains the boy students' clothes.

"And so we have settled the question of room. We have added to our home a room that can be very comfortable, used either as a bedroom, sewing room, a nursery, or a maid's room.

"We have improved our home and increased its value thereby, and, best of all, we need not think of having to move away from the place we have grown to love."

Here Are Essentials.

Of course there are several definite needs an attic must have satisfied before it can play any satisfactory rôle as extra room in the home.

One is thorough insulation that it can be easily heated in winter and kept endurably cool in summer.

Another is a good substantial flooring. A third is adequate window space to admit plenty of light and air, and the fourth includes adequate heating for the cold months.

A fifth necessity might be mentioned as being comfortable access to the attic from the floor below.

Sometimes stairs are built especially for this purpose. Again disappearing stairs are installed—a much less expensive piece of work, and eminently satisfactory. These stairs can disappear into the ceiling and in no way interfere with the hall or bedroom. When closed one type reveals only a neat panel visible below. By letting this panel part way down from the ceiling ventilation can be greatly aided.

Attic Use Is Economy.

Plain efficiency and economy point to the utilization of attic space in a home.

An extra bedroom to accommodate guests is a luxury many families cannot afford because of the fact that their families have grown too big for their house and an extra room built on is too expensive a proposition to consider.

Again, perhaps a basement is not adequate for the hanging up of family washings. A clean attic, even though it is not converted into living quarters if it is given easy access by means of the modern disappearing stair, can furnish abundant space for the proper drying of clothes.

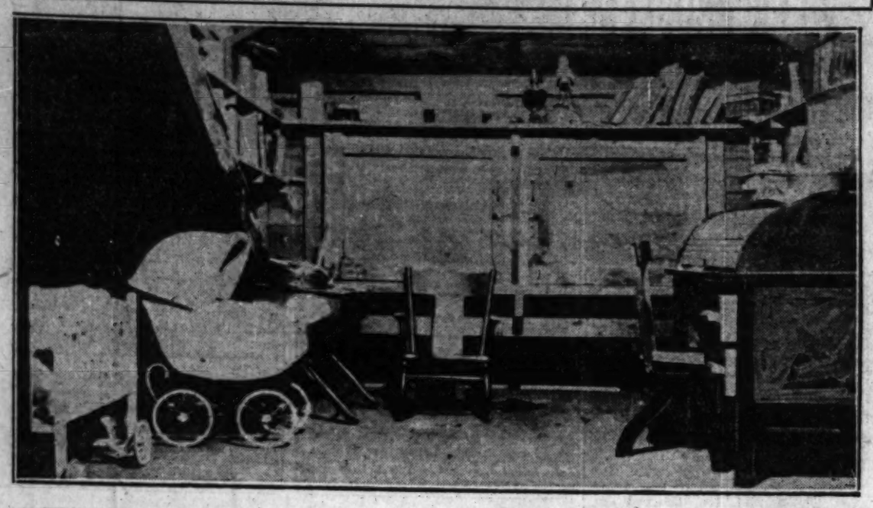
As a sewing room for the busy mother in a family, an attic is sufficiently far away from the hum of things to afford continuous effort without disturbance. Then, too, if it is made into a sewing room work can be left where it is from one afternoon to another without conflicting with other furnishings and other peoples' demands on the space it occupies.

A Den for Father.

Cedar closets are being installed in attics, where furs and winter garments can be kept safe from the ravages of the moth.

Or as a den for father, or a play room for the boys or a nursery for the kiddies, the attic presents a half a score of uses, relieving the lower part of the house of overcrowding, perhaps, and giving just that extra amount of space which has been "needed for so long."

AN UPSTAIRS NURSERY



When family conditions demand more space for nursery needs this corner of the remodeled attic is converted into room for baby's things.

WALL BOOKCASES IN REMODELED ATTIC

Bookcases in the wall form another corner retreat in this remodeled attic and help add comfort and charm to a part of the home long in disuse.

SOME WAYS TO BATTLE ATTACKS OF OLD WINTER

If last winter it seemed to you that there were definite heat losses through the glass of your windows and through the wood panels of your exterior doors, around the edges of your window sash and around door frames as a result of poor or hasty construction, there are remedies for each and all of these troubles.

Storm sash and storm doors can reduce the heat loss through your window glass and exterior doors. Weather stripping can correct the heat loss around the edges of the window sash and outside doors. Caulking all joints around window and door frames can help materially in keeping out air infiltration around window and door frames. These are small ways by which the effects of weather extremes can be mitigated.

Besides these spots, the roof and attic space, unexcavated places, and the basement walls can also be given adequate insulation and protection against extravagant heat waste after the house is built.

House Without Modern Bathroom Inconceivable

A modern house without a modern bathroom is as inconceivable these days as a 1930 model limousine without a self starter.

BUILD FIRST FLOOR OF CONCRETE, REDUCE FIRE PERIL GREATLY

Watch your basements this coming fall that the accumulated store of odds and ends, fuel stores, oily rags, magazines and papers do not result in a fire.

Because so many blazes start in basements and work their way upwards, a definite firestop, such as a concrete first floor, means that the owner is assured a big protection from fire.

The same principle—namely, the concrete first floor—can be applied with the same success in a small residence as in a big skyscraper or hotel or hospital. The construction is simple and requires less vertical space than an ordinary type of floor.

Over these concrete floors which are structurally sound, the upper surface may be finished in any fashion desired. Any kind of conventional and attractive wood flooring may be used without danger of distortion or displacement. The same is true of tile or linoleum. Or, if desired, the upper surface may be concrete, polished, stained and "patterned" to produce handsome effects.

More and more the first floor of the home is coming in for that maximum of attention which it deserves. Three functions of this floor are being definitely recognized: that it should be strong, nonsqueaking, attractive; that it should tie the frame of the house securely together and minimize possibilities of warping and settling; and that it should be fire resistive. This last function is a newly recognized function—but an important one.

INSTALL A BAY, HAVE FLOWERS ON WINTRY DAYS

Flowers in the winter time add immeasureable cheer in the home.

One home owner writes in that she has already removed a lower sash in her dining room window from its usual groove, set it out one foot from the house on a shelf, framed it in place and then glassed in the sides and top with small and inexpensive window panes.

In this way she anticipates keeping the little bay filled with flowers this winter—flowers warmed from the heat of the house when winter winds wax cold.

It goes without saying that such a shelf should be strong, rest on good brackets and be at least one and a half inches thick. To frame the sash in place finished strips of one by two inch lumber can be used and little mouldings nailed over the framing will take the side and top glass in—just as one puts glass into a picture frame. If all work is heavily puttied with a mixture of paint putty and well fitted the results should be satisfactory.

For severe weather double sashes and double glazing will protect the flower bay adequately.

Picture or Two Now Being Hung in Modern Kitchen

Since the kitchen has emerged into a decorated place in the home, no onger drab and uninteresting and hard to work in, it is being given, on occasions, a picture or two—to add to its general hospitable atmosphere.

AN INCINERATOR IN HOME GIVES FIRE PROTECTION

Provides Easy Method of Rubbish Disposal.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Incineration devices in the last few years have been manufactured in so many different types, that there is incineration for practically every family need, and to fit almost every family purse.

The practical advantages of adequate incineration are too generally known to need any lengthy discussion. The disposal of all household waste through a hopper door in the kitchen or pantry or in the basement, is a tremendous aid in domestic work, an eliminator of many disease germs which come in the wake of poorly disposed of garbage and rubbish, and a valuable assistant in the lessening of fire risks about the home.

Recent estimates go as far as to say that 65% of all fires occur in residences and about three quarters of these fires originate in the basement. While not all of these basement fires start from lack of proper incineration the old time basement stacked high with constantly accumulating trash of all kinds was a fertile field for the starting of fires, big and small.

A Household Necessity.

Now proper incineration in the home is taking its place as a household necessity along with adequate heating plants, generous electrical provision, laundry tubs and bathroom equipment. And the old time garbage can on the back porch or in the back yard is a rapidly disappearing blot on the family home.

Every homeowner has a wide choice of adequate incineration.

Devices to accomplish this are manufactured in types preëminently suited to installation in the new home or the home undergoing extensive remodeling. They are offered at reasonable prices for the already built home.

There are two distinct types—the non fueled type whose first cost is the only cost and the type which is fueled by gas, coal or oil.

Of Many Varieties.

The gas burning types are of many varieties. They can be installed in kitchen or basement, operated by manufactured or natural gas. The cost of operation of such an incinerator would be small indeed considering the service it renders.

Coal fired incinerators may also be placed in kitchen or basement and are sometimes combined with the hot water boiler.

Those incinerators which employ the combustion principle fall into three classes, the portable, the built-in and the wall type.

One of the extremely popular types of incinerator on the market today consists of a brick combustion chamber, with fire brick lining. It is usually put in a home under process of building, but it can be put in an already built home if there is a 12x12 inch flue in the kitchen or a 16x16 inch flue where one wishes a second story hopper. Where there are no such flues the burner can be fed from the basement.

Placed in Basement.

This combustion chamber is placed in the basement of the house at the base of the regular chimney. It comes in different sizes for different family needs and a receiving door in the kitchen or pantry opens into the flue which serves as a fallway for household waste. A match lights the incinerator and the waste burns without escape of heat, smoke or odor. Tin cans even and bottles and other non-combustibles are flame sterilized for removal with the ashes.

Blue prints for the brick work and other parts of the installation are so clear and simple that a brick mason can build the burner.

The estate of Charles A. Chapin has purchased two buildings at North Franklin street and Institute place from Kate E. and Harold W. Jeffery for a price in excess of $300,000. Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers. One of the properties is at the southeast corner of North Franklin street and Institute place. It is 100x216 feet, and is improved with a seven story building. The other property is across the street at 216-20 Institute place, 60x100 feet, and is improved with a five story building.

Frederick W. Proudfoot, an attorney, bought the building at the southwest corner of 53d street and Blackstone avenue, 150x160 feet, from Mrs. Estella G. Leonard at an undisclosed consideration. The building is three stories high and contains twenty-nine apartments. The property is free of incumbrances.

Selz, Schwab & Co. have leased 100 feet of frontage adjoining on the north of their present large establishment at the northwest corner of Market and Monroe streets. The property acquired embraces the premises at 126-134 Market and was taken under a lease running for 199 years from Robert A. Law and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Ware. A six story and a four story building are located on the land. It is stated the firm plans ultimately to erect a sixteen story building.

Keebler & Co. have leased for Augustus A. Karg and John W. Horter to Fred Potthast the double store and basement, 48x90 feet, at 10 and 12 East Madison street, for five years from May 1, 1900, at a rental of $20,000 for the term.

PLAN ADDITION TO CHILDRENS' HOME ON PRAIRIE AVE.

Plans for the construction of an addition which will double its capacity appear in the offing as the result of the purchase by Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial of the property at 2414-22 Prairie avenue from the Chicago Title and Trust company. The land, 100x180 feet, is improved, with an old house which is now used by the memorial association for a Thrift house for the sale of odds and ends similar to the White Elephant on the north side.

Mrs. Roy O. Neirem, president of the association, states that next year plans will be made for a drive for funds to erect the addition. She estimates that $350,000 will be required for the building and equipment. It is proposed to start with a two story structure which may be enlarged as required. Since the world's fair the memorial has been caring for 125 mothers and children daily.

Leaky faucets cause high gas bills!

Don't blame the gas man when your gas bills are high. Get to the real source of the trouble—leaky hot water faucets.

Every day millions of gallons of hot water are wasted in homes, apartments, etc., water heated by gas that cost real money and disappeared down the drain without being used.

This great waste is absolutely unnecessary. Thousands of wise owners have found the way to avoid such expense. They rarely complain about high gas bills or kick about constant faucet repairs. They have solved their problem and now repair leaky faucets with the same ease that they put in a new light bulb when an old one burns out. No grief—no unusual expense—no inconvenience.

positively cure this condition

By using Chicago Faucets, leaks can be stopped more quickly and cheaply than in any other faucet. Every Chicago Faucet has a removable unit, only two parts of which—a Monel Metal seat and a hard rubber washer ever need replacing. To change either is a very simple job—actually as easy as putting in a new light bulb. The seat or washer cost only a few cents, can be changed in a few moments, and the faucet is as good as new. There is positively no wear on the faucet itself, therefore it cannot wear out. Ten, twenty, fifty years from now it will work as well as the day it was bought. Economical and serviceable for the life of any building.

FARM AND GARDEN

FARMER SECURES RELIEF PULLING HIS BOOT STRAPS

Frank Keller Makes Most of Every Market.

BY PAUL POTTER.

It may be said of Frank G. Keller that he has done the impossible. At least, it is figuratively true that he has pulled himself up by his own boot straps.

Keller went into debt sixteen years ago to buy 83 acres of good DuPage county, Illinois, farm land at $140 an acre. Many others have been so obligated, but few have experienced the misfortune of having a fire come along just a week after such a contract and wipe their farm almost clear of improvements.

The means he used to get out of such a dilemma are an object lesson in how to make a small farm produce its best without sacrificing its future work and regardless of the lean crop years.

Much Careful Planning.

"It could never have been done without a lot of different products to sell," he allows. But behind this modest statement were many hours of careful planning, a liberal sprinkling of good judgment, and making the most of every market opening at his command. Keeping a fine herd of Guernsey cows to utilize the grain and silage from the farm also brought a premium price for its quality milk production and insured a steady monthly income. But the heavy principal and interest payments on the indebtedness were also hammered down with fruit, poultry, a few hogs, and the products from a well kept garden. Today, with the farm title all his own, Keller still has a farm whose resources haven't been exhausted from the years of strain.

Of special interest to a visitor at the Keller farm today, are the acre of grapes and about the same amount of raspberries and currants, in liberal bearing after four years of culture. The older apple and plum trees, one notes, are being replaced with younger fruit trees. In between these apple, peach and cherry rows, strawberries are paying their way.

The grapes were set in the spring of 1925. This year they are loaded with an estimated two tons of Early Moores, Concords, Wordens, Agawams, and Moore's Diamonds. Clinton grapes, with wild grape tartness from earlier ancestry, approach the size of Concords under Keller's care. With something close to a dollar a basket of 17 pounds, the present market, the grape land repays its owner's foresight and treatment handsomely.

Rich manure from the dairy barn was used so liberally on this grape land that Mr. Keller had difficulty in plowing. It was allowed to rot well, then disked and harrowed repeatedly until a fine seedbed was secured. The young grape plantings were set in holes dug ten feet apart and most of them grew well from the start. Dead vines were replaced, until he had a nearly perfect stand, and it was easy to cultivate by tractor power at low expense.

Keeps Ground Well Covered.

"I aim to practice clean culture and keep the ground well covered with a dust mulch," he explained. "But last season was too much for me. The weeds got in during the early wet spell when it's worse than useless to work this clay land. However, I intend to cultivate well after the grapes are marketed and fall rains are past. This summer drought followed rain and the ground went from excessively wet to a dry, baked condition. Even so, there was moisture underneath, plenty of humus below the surface, and the roots of the vines must be down there deep enough to have something to work on or we wouldn't have this good crop. If I had the straw to spare I'd put a heavy straw mulch all over the grapeyard."

The Latham is Keller's favorite raspberry for commercial production, yet he also has set out the King, another red variety; Columbian, the large luscious purple sort; Cumberland and Plum Farmer of the black types. He expects to replace these with Lathams as replanting is necessary or the acreage is increased. It is hardy against weather and disease, and his customers seem to prefer them.

Location on a paved highway has undoubtedly been a factor in Keller's marketing program. With market milk netting around $1.60 less shipping costs, he gets $2.35 a can of 8 gallons right at the farm. In a good year he expects an acre of grapes and other small fruits to bring $200. Tomatoes pay well, and in favorable years he thinks nothing of $50 net from a small patch.

Sweet Corn Furnishes Revenue.

Sweet corn furnishes additional roadside revenue, with larger city markets nearby in case of a surplus. Hundreds of dozens of ears are sold each year at 25 cents a dozen. Even at an average of 15 cents a dozen, two or three acres of sweet corn pay for Keller's enterprise. The ears and nubbins that ripen make good feed for everything on the place—cows, pigs, or chickens. "They're all crazy for what little we have to husk in the fall," he adds. Every basket of grapes sells at his roadside stand.

Besides his truck farming Keller credits improvement in his dairy herd production, and some opportunities to sell his animals of known production records at good prices, with what I earlier spoke of as "pulling himself up by his boot straps." Incidentally, few in his neighborhood have failed to attend some of the record sized spring fruit pruning demonstrations held by state extension leaders and the county farm bureau at the Keller place. Some say they go to learn the orchard business. But others seem to have a lingering memory of Mrs. Keller's doughnuts.

His Vineyard Heavily Laden

TWO TONS OF GRAPES TO THE ACRE.—One reason why Frank Keller, Du Page county farmer, has been successful is his willingness to repay his soil for the bounteous crops he exacts in toll. When this acre of grapes was set out, it was all his tractor could do to plow under the load of fertilizer on the clay loam land. Four years later he reaps the reward, with nearly every temporary vine trellis groaning under its share of grapes.

Lowly Carrot, It Seems, Finally Comes Into Own

Bunched carrots, turnips and beets, once confined to the home garden, have become of large commercial importance in recent years, reports the United States department of agriculture. The carrot, for example, regarded heretofore largely as a tid-bit for city horses and as a soup ingredient, has jumped in production from 3,184,000 bushels in 1923 to 6,628,000 bushels in 1928.

The rapid increase in car lot shipments and consumption of bunched vegetables during the last ten years is ascribed to improved production and marketing methods involving standardization, modern refrigeration and fast transportation from producing areas to city markets. These fresh products, as in the case of all vegetables, are now in the markets the year around. Consumption has been stimulated also by the better appreciation of vegetables in the diet.

WASH MILK UTENSILS.

A dish rag is a fertile medium for the growth and multiplication of bacteria, yeasts and molds. Dish rags are an important source of contamination as far as milk utensils are concerned. Milk utensils should always be washed with a good stiff brush instead of a dish rag.

ST. LOUIS PLANS POULTRY EXHIBIT WEEK OF OCT. 14

The St. Louis-National Poultry show will be held Oct. 14 to 19 as a division of the National Dairy exposition. All hens will be judged for standard points and production. A turkey show is being also arranged under the sponsorship of the St. Louis Butter, Egg, and Poultry exchange. The Missouri State Poultry show has been merged with the St. Louis event and T. W. Nolan, director of the Missouri State Poultry Experiment station, who has been secretary of the state show, will be general superintendent at St. Louis.

The egg show will be in charge of R. M. Elkins of the Missouri State Marketing bureau. Judging contests for college students and vocational agricultural students and demonstrations by teams of 4-H club boys and girls will be conducted. Ten specialty clubs will hold their national meetings at St. Louis during the show.

BLUE GLASSES ON BOSSY MAKE HER GIVE MORE MILK

Dairy cows at the University of Nebraska agricultural school are looking at the world through blue-tinted glasses—and giving more milk.

Upon direction of Prof. H. P. Davis, windows in the cattle barns were painted with a calcium composition as a foil to flies. The insects dislike the semi-twilight thus created, while those that do venture in are kept under control with sprays.

Blue glasses mean happy cows, Prof. Davis avers, and contented bovines mean more milk. Some of the cows like the blue tinted windows so well, in fact, that they try to lick off the calcium.

Blister Beetle Raids Gardens, Helps Farmer

The blister beetle, which causes the farmer so much difficulty to tomato and other garden crops, is his friend in the alfalfa field.

The beetles prefer to lay their eggs in the nests of the grasshoppers. The tiny grubs which hatch from these eggs feed on the grasshopper eggs. Encourage the blister beetle to spend their time in the alfalfa.

CONTROLLING WILD GARLIC.

I would like to know a good way to get rid of wild garlic in my pasture. I have been told that this weed is giving my milk a bad flavor and odor. G. H. N.

REPLY.

Wild garlic will quickly taint cows' milk and render it unfit for market. It is necessary to remove cows from such pastures four to seven hours before milking to eliminate the odor and flavor entirely. If you can plow up the pasture this fall, and again early next spring, do it. Then plant corn or some other crop that takes cultivation. Grazing with live stock, especially sheep, as closely as is safe without permanent injury to the pasture, will help if you can't plow the pasture. Write to the U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a copy of Leaflet 43-L, called "Wild Garlic and Its Control."

HOW TO GET MOLE.

We are being annoyed by some kind of a burrowing animal that people tell me is a mole. It makes a long furrow just enough underground to uproot our grass. I have watched for a long time but never see anything. How can we kill or capture this pest? My dog started digging but didn't get anything. E. W. D.

REPLY.

Undoubtedly you and the dog would have been disappointed, no matter how long you waited for Mr. Mole. He digs a ridge and then goes down deeper for a rest. Ever see one? They're one of the few blind animals that always live underground. I can remember as a boy being set to work cutting potatoes, and inserting a bit of strychnine or other poison in a little pocket of each spud segment, fastening the lid of this pocket back on with a piece of toothpick. We then opened up Mr. Mole's subway passage in two or three places, put in a few potatoes, and closed them over with dirt again. Your lawn will need to be rolled later this fall.

CHOLERA TO HOG AS TYPHOID TO HUMANS.

We have heard some talk in this neighborhod about outbreaks of hog cholera in some parts of Iowa. Is this true, and if so, how is the situation? A. R.

REPLY.

There have been a few isolated cases of hog cholera, the dread disease of all hog raisers, reported in eastern Iowa by the secretary of the Eastern Iowa Veterinarians' association. They are bad enough that control measures are being taken through that part of the state, and the state department of agriculture is also lending a hand. Farmers who keep their premises clean, inoculate their pigs, and keep all hogs not so treated off their farms need have no worry about cholera.

RATS CAN DO A LOT OF DAMAGE.

What remedy do you suggest for getting rid of rats? They seem to be thick underneath my corn crib. F. L. M.

REPLY.

When farmers get to the place that rats will leave their corn cribs like they are said to leave a sinking ship, we can forget about the eternal vigilance they require. The best way to handle the situation is that proposed by F. D. Butcher at Ames, who says to first put out a selection of foods to try their appetites, such as meats, cereals, fruit or vegetables. When they have indicated which bait is best liked, poison some of it and put it out in the evening, when the poultry and live stock will not get near it. When some have been poisoned, it may take time to try out another bait on them. Mr. Butcher has written a bulletin, No. 153, "Rodent Pests of Iowa," which can be secured from the Extension service, Iowa State college, Ames.

Chilling Helps Keep Fall Apples Longer

Fall varieties of apples, such as Grimes and Jonathans, which are placed in storage, should be chilled as soon as possible after the fruit is removed from the trees. If the fruit is exposed to warm temperatures for a few days after harvest, its storage life is reduced by several weeks.

EMPLOYERS TO STUDY FIVE DAY WEEK PROBLEM

Building Association in Drive for Members.

BY THOMAS WREN.

With important labor issues confronting the national building industry, plans for an extensive membership drive have been completed by the officers of the Building Construction Employers' association of Chicago.

EDWARD M. CRAIG, a recent major operation at the Presbyterian hospital. He said the most important issue deals with the five day week problem, which was requested some weeks ago by labor representatives of Chicago's 110,000 building workers.

Announcement of the membership campaign was made by Edward M. Craig, the executive secretary of the Builders' association, who is recuperating from

It was said the officers of the Building Trades council hope any contemplated inauguration of the five day week will alleviate to some extent the unemployment in the ranks of the building workers, skilled and unskilled.

Mr. Craig said it is difficult to conceive how a week of forty hours instead of the present forty-four hours will erase any of the unemployment that may prevail.

Anxious to Reduce Costs.

He pointed out that the building public is anxious to cut construction costs. He stated that estimates of the United States department of labor place the cost of labor at approximately 60 per cent and that of materials at about 40 per cent of construction expenditures.

Sub-trade units of the Building Construction Employers' association, said Mr. Craig, now have the five day week problem under consideration and a meeting of the parent body of builders with representatives of the Building Trades council is expected to be held within a week or ten days.

Mr. Craig announced an expansion of the builders' exposition, which occupies the second and third floors of the Builders' building at Wacker drive and La Salle street.

Aid to Home Builders.

"This exposition is operated under direction of the Construction Employers' association," he stated. "Its purpose is to aid persons contemplating building, architects, building contractors, and building material interests. These construction lines are keystoned in the Builders' building. The average man or woman planning to erect a home or any other type of building seems to worry mostly over the building material problem, both exterior and interior.

"To the average person these materials present a sort of an abstract quality. The establishment of the exposition has helped this condition. Accompanied by an architect, or building contractor, a person today may visit the exposition free and select his heating apparatus, plumbing materials, kind of brick, roofing and any other kind of material needed for home construction. The listings of the material exhibits in the display booths are so diversified that they range from materials suited for bungalows to the skyscraper type of construction."

ON ROOSEVELT ROAD

This eight story store and cooperative manufacturing loft building is announced for 639-49 West Roosevelt road by Dr. Henry J. Mann and Samuel M. Priess. B. Albert Comm is architect. The structure will have six stores, with the seven upper floors devoted to light manufacturing. The total cost of land and building is placed at $750,000 by the architect. Lawrence Monberg made this picture.

OWNERS' REAL ESTATE BOARD IS ORGANIZED

Announcement is made of the formation of an organization to be called the Owners' Real Estate board, with headquarters in the City Hall Square building. Officers are: President, A. Thomas Flood, formerly with H. O. Stone & Co.; vice president, J. Elroy Lundy, and secretary, Thomas J. Dwyer. Laurence M. Fine and Robert E. Melick are attorneys for the organization. It is stated the board was formed to promote the interests of property owners. Study will be made of the taxation situation in Cook county.

CLOSE 7 LEASES IN NEW TWENTY STORY BARCLAY

Seven leases are reported by the O. E. Tronnes organization in the new twenty story Barclay apartments at 4940 East End avenue, designed by B. Leo Steif. The following families have taken space: Maxwell Landis, Paul H. Jones, Samuel Pruyn, Frederic Lewis, Clayton D. Barrett, W. I. Bell, and Frances Birmingham.

ST. ELIZABETH'S NEW HOME TO BE 11 STORIES HIGH

Northwest Side Hospital to Enlarge.

Hospital facilities on the west side are to be increased considerably by the enlargement and rebuilding of St. Elizabeth's hospital—occupying the entire block on the east side of Irving Claremont avenue between Hirsch and Le Moyne. This location is a block east of Western avenue and a block south of North avenue and is directly between Humboldt and Wicker parks.

Construction is starting immediately on the center part of the building and a wing to the south. The center will be eleven stories high and the wing nine stories. A little later another wing, seven stories high, will be put up. And finally the present building will be wrecked and an addition built to the north which will make the entire structure symmetrical.

The cost of the development, including the equipment, is estimated at $350,000.

Designed by Hermann J. Gaul & Son, the architecture of the structure will be of modern feeling in which vertical lines will be given emphasis. The facades on the street sides will be finished in stone, while the rear portions of the edifice will be in brick.

When the immediate construction program is completed the institution will have a capacity of 360 beds, while ultimately there will be 600 beds.

It is planned to have the interior of the structure resemble an apartment hotel rather than the usual hospital. The decorations and furnishings of the rooms are to be made as homelike as possible. Practically all rooms will have either a bath or a toilet adjoining. Bathrooms will have tile wainscoting with plumbing fixtures in colors.

St. Elizabeth's hospital was founded about forty-seven years ago through the efforts of Bishop Feehan. It is operated by the Poor Hand Maids of Jesus Christ, with headquarters at Donaldson, Ind. Sister Baptista is sister superior and Sister Alphonsine is her assistant. Dr. Martin G. Lebo is chief of the medical staff.

WIEBOLDT BUYS ROSENBERG CO. IN EVANSTON

Will Be 4th in Group of Department Stores.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Another significant step in the expansion program of the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., was taken yesterday when the big Chicago organization stepped over the northern city limits into Evanston and purchased the Rosenberg store, one of the university suburb's largest and best known establishments. This fulfills a prediction made in this department on Aug. 25 that the Wieboldt chain of stores was to be expanded northward across the Evanston line.

WERNER A. WIEBOLDT.

The Rosenberg acquisition will be No. 4 in the Wieboldt list of stores. An interesting coincidence in this transaction is that both the Rosenberg and the Wieboldt organizations are in their 46th years and plans are under way, it is announced, for a joint celebration of their combined 46th anniversary later in the fall.

The Rosenberg store organization and policies are to remain intact, Mr. Wieboldt states. Harry M. Rosenberg and Ira Rosenberg, formerly president and secretary and treasurer respectively of the Evanston store, both become executives of the Wieboldt organization. The present name, however, will be discontinued and the store will be known as Wieboldt's.

Store to Expand.

The big Evanston establishment occupies a three story building at 812-24 Davis street, on the south side of the street in the block between the right of way of the North Western and the North Shore lines and Sherman avenue. The present store has a floor area of 85,000 square feet. It fronts 166 feet on Davis street.

In addition to this building the property adjoining on the east, a three story structure with 106 feet of frontage on Davis street, has just been acquired by the Rosenberg Realty trust and will be used as an addition to the present Rosenberg store. The building has 46,000 square feet of floor space, which means the Wieboldt Evanston store will have a total floor area of 131,000 square feet.

Another step in the acquisition of the Rosenberg store at Evanston by Wieboldt's was taken during the last week when the Rosenberg organization purchased the fee under its building at 812-24 Davis street from Charlotte Sargent Smith and Thomas B. Smith of Winnetka for a stated $275,-000.

In buying this land Rosenberg's exercised an option which existed in the lease of the property by the store. Both the present Rosenberg store property and the building adjoining on the east, just acquired, have been leased by the Rosenberg Realty trust to the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., for a long term.

Statement By President Wieboldt.

Werner A. Wieboldt, president of Wieboldt Stores, Inc. made the following statement regarding the purchase of the Evanston establishment: "The Rosenberg store is so well and favorably known on the north shore that its present personnel, as well as the store policies, are to remain intact. Not only will there be no changes, but those principles and practices which have given the Rosenberg store its standing on the north shore, in fact have built Rosenberg's, are to remain in effect.

"I feel that Rosenberg's will mean much more to the people of the north shore because Wieboldt's are bringing the advantages to be had from being a part of a $25,000,000 volume organization. Included in these advantages are notable savings in centralized buying, advertising, deliveries etc. and the enlargement of several departments and the addition of several others."

Founded By W. A. Wieboldt.

W. A. Wieboldt founded the first of the stores which now bear the name of Wieboldt back in April of 1883 at what was then 605, Indiana street and which is now 1532 Grand avenue. In the spring of the following year he moved to the southwest corner of Milwaukee avenue and Paulina street, across from the present Milwaukee avenue store. It was then known as the Lion store.

In April, 1906, he moved across to the present location and the name was changed to W. A. Wieboldt & Co. This store has been enlarged several times, the largest addition being erected in July, 1922, back of the Milwaukee avenue unit, with considerable frontage on Bauwans street.

The north side store, on Lincoln avenue, near Belmont was founded in December, 1912 and also has been enlarged several times. The midwest store, on the west side, at Ashland, Madison and Ogden, was opened to customers in September, 1925.

Wieboldt's No. 5 store, as told about and pictured in this department on August 25th, will be a $4,000,000 project covering an entire block of frontage on the south side of 63d street, extending from Green to Peoria street. The building will be seven stories and will be one of the city's largest and most modern outlying department stores.

Boul Mich May Be Stripped of Greenery

Is Upper Michigan avenue, between Ohio and Oak streets, going to lose what has been called one of its greatest charms as an unusual and distinctive shopping boulevard—its attractive bits of greenery on each side of the drive, between curb and sidewalk? This question was asked THE TRIBUNE by a reader who has been in many of the large world centers and has seen most of the great metropolitan shopping thoroughfares. He pointed out that in most great cities grass, shrubs, trees or flowers are considered such an asset to an important street that everything possible is done to safeguard them.

ALEXANDER FYFE.

This query was brought about by the recent tearing out of almost the entire strip of parking lawn between Huron and Superior, 173 feet of frontage, to be exact, in front of the new building nearing completion at the northwest corner of Huron and the boulevard, and the installation of a bare stretch of concrete; also the wiping out of 122 feet of frontage of grass parking at the northeast corner of Superior and Michigan, and the substitution of concrete in front of the new Chapin estate building. A third replacement of concrete for grass, on a smaller scale, is on the west side of the boulevard, just north of Ohio street.

The answer already has been made by the Lincoln park board, which has gone on record as agreeing to permit property owners to tear out the parking lawn, which is the property of Lincoln park, whenever application for such a move is made, and to fill in with concrete.

"I'd like to see grass all along the boulevard," said Alexander Fyfe, a member of the Lincoln park board and chairman of the boulevard committee. "But business constantly is increasing along upper Michigan avenue. We've found in some cases where owners wanted to do away with the grass strip entirely that a narrow walk of concrete along the curb answered the purpose of caring for motorists who wanted to shop.

"In several cases we've persuaded owners to have a low fence put around the parking, made of cement posts with chains. The park board installs these at cost.

"It's been a constant fight to maintain what grass we have on boulevards. Last spring some architect wanted all the grass in the parkway between the two traffic lanes on Lake Shore drive removed and gravel substituted. We had to fight to save it."

The suggestion has been made to Mr. Fyfe and may be taken up by the park board, that even if business eventually may force the abandonment of the strips of lawn along Michigan avenue, the planting of shrubs along the parking would both beautify the boulevard and keep pedestrians and motorists from walking across the grass areas, for several years at least. Quick growing shrubs would represent but a small investment and would add much to the attractiveness of the avenue.

REALTY BOARD MEMBERS' DRIVE CLIMBS TO 130

The Chicago Real Estate board reports that it has received its 130th application for active membership based on the new temporary reduction in entrance fee from $200 to $50, good until Oct. 1st. President Albert W. Swayne has announced a special welcome to applicants at the September monthly meting of the board next Wednesday evening. A buffet supper will be served.

Start Work on North Shore Station at Howard Street

The Howard Street Station trust, headed by William J. Scown, president of the W. J. Scown Building company, has started work on a station on the north side of Howard street, at the "L" crossing which has been leased to the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee R. R. for use as a terminal for fifteen years at a term rental reported to be $136,000. At the end of the term the property goes to the interurban line. In addition to waiting rooms it will have two stores. The cost is placed at approximately $50,000.

Form 79th and Halsted Property Owners' Assn.

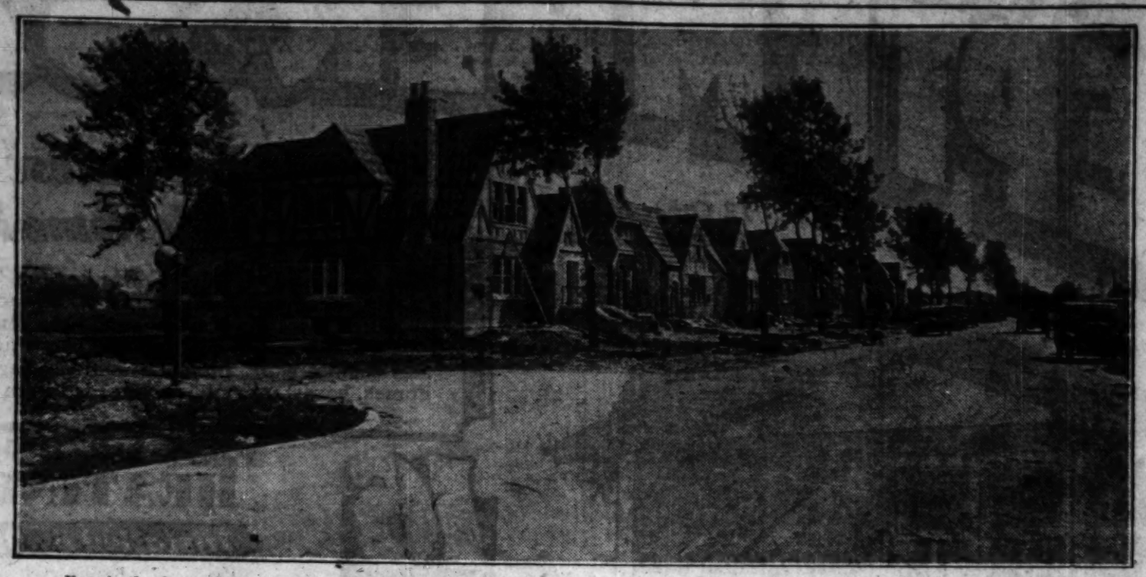
Announcement is made of the formation of the 79th and Halsted Street Property Owners' association to promote the interests of establishment in that vicinity. Lisle G. Sutton, formerly with Mark Levy & Brother, has been appointed manager. The organization reports that the Loblaw Groceterias, Inc., has leased a store at 7728 South Halsted and that the Wyle Hat company, Crown Shoe Stores, Inc., and the Martha Washington Candy company have taken stores at 7933-35 South Halsted.

Large Floor Space in Peoples Store, Roseland

An additional 25,000 feet of floor space will be added to the Peoples store, 11301 South Michigan avenue, with the taking over of two buildings to the south of it, according to James R. Gately, president of the company. Remodeling is going on now with plans for a men's and boys' department with separate entrances for each.

"This will make the Peoples store," Mr. Gately said, "the largest department store south of the loop."

SECTION OF SCHORSCH COMPANY DEVELOPMENT



Here is the first unit of a home development which Albert J. Schorsch & Company have under way in West Portage Park. This unit consists of twenty-five homes and may be seen on Oak Park avenue north from Belmont avenue. Ultimately the community, which is to resemble an English village, is to have 600 homes. Axel V. Tieson is architect.

600 HOMES TO RISE IN WEST PORTAGE PARK

English Village to Cost $12,000,000.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A community reminiscent of a village in Old England which will ultimately include 600 homes is now under development in West Portage Park by Albert J. Schorsch & Co. Members of the firm state that when the enterprise is completed the investment in land and building will approximate $12,000,000.

MISS MARY SCHORSCH.

The property embraced in the development is bounded on the east by the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railway, on the south by Belmont avenue, on the west by Sayre avenue and on the north by Roscoe street. Across the street to the north at the western end is Shabbona park.

The property—consisting of eighty acres—was acquired over a period of three and a half years through Catino Brothers. Some of the land purchased was subdivided in the early 80's and has been lying idle in some instances for forty-five years.

Each Home Different.

Each home in the community, which is now designated as Schrosch's Village, is to be of a different design, thereby contributing a mite to the making of Chicago a better looking city. Axel V. Tieson is architect for the builders and he has looked to the British Isles for his inspiration.

The first section of the development, consisting of twenty-five homes, is now nearing completion on both sides of Oak Park avenue, north of Belmont avenue. Foundations for another group of fifty are being installed and other groups will follow. It is anticipated that the entire 600 houses will be finished by 1933, though should conditions warrant all can be completed in a year or so.

All the houses are being built to sell at a moderate price. The builders say that they are incorporating a large number of features usually found only in the more expensive residences because they are building on a mass scale which permits them to save considerably.

Old World Influences.

Taking a look over one home. It is of English cottage design—as are the rest. Stucco and half timber work lend their part in giving the English atmosphere. There is a high pitched roof, a dormer window, chimney pots and other old world wrinkles. The front elevations of all the houses will be finished in multi-colored face brick, with deep returns on the sides. Corner houses will have face brick on all the exposed elevations.

Concrete porches, with wrought iron railings, winding stone walks, too, will play their part in adding to the attractiveness of the development.

Encroaching somewhat on Mrs. Bargelt's province, we take a look on the inside of a typical home. The entrance and doorways are arched. One finds many conveniences in the living rooms, such as built in bookcases, ample guest closets at the door, etc.

Has Business Block.

The bathroom is full tiled, with an arched alcove shower. There is an electric heater built into the wall and there is an abundance of mirrors. And the kitchen is colorful, with a cabinet finished in bright tints. There is a ventilating fan over the stove, a built in ironing board, a broom closet and other features finding favor with the feminine world.

The community is to be served by an attractive business block, also of English design, which has not been completed. This structure is two stories high and will accommodate a number of retail shops and later a bank. It is located at the northeast corner of Belmont and Rutherford.

Discussing the developers, the Schorsch company was organized in 1911 and has built some 2,000 residences. Members of the firm include six brothers and one sister. Albert Schorsch is president, Louis is vice president, Anton is in charge of material buying, Frank is in charge of construction, Martin is sales manager, and Theodore is credit manager. Miss Mary Schorsch is secretary and treasurer. The oldest brother, Anton, is forty-six, and the youngest, Theodore, is twenty-five.

INGLESIDE AVENUE DEAL.

The three apartment building at 5131 Ingleside avenue, lot 50x120, was sold by Grace Hurter to M. B. Becker.

WIEBOLDT BUYS STORE

This is the Rosenberg department store at 812-24 Davis street, Evanston, which has just been purchased by the Wieboldt Stores, Inc. It will be No. 4 in their group of merchandising establishments, but will be the first Wieboldt suburban store.

BUILDING PACE STILL LAGGING IN SUBURBAN AREA

The general slump in building activity throughout the country is noted in the Chicago suburban area where the volume for the first two-thirds of this year was 32 per cent behind the figure for the same period of 1928, while August of 1929 trailed August of 1928.

S. W. Straus & Co. have recently completed a survey of building conditions among the leading towns in the Chicago district. This survey shows the building total for 1929 to be $51,949,245 as against $76,768,416 for 1928. The period is the first eight months both years.

The total for August, 1929, was $4,785,765 as against $8,847,882 for August, 1928. The total for July, 1929, was $6,934,757.

The following suburbs made gains in the August-August comparison: Chicago Heights, 20 per cent; Downers Grove, 18 per cent; Elmhurst, 6 per cent; Geneva, 58 per cent; Glencoe, 12 per cent; Glen Ellyn, 2 per cent; Highland Park, 219 per cent; Joliet, 1 per cent; La Grange, 117 per cent; Libertyville, 293 per cent; Niles Center, 193 per cent; North Chicago, 58 per cent; West Chicago, 16 per cent; Wilmette, 25 per cent, and Hammond, 49 per cent.

The drop in building is noted throughout the entire nation, and is not confined to the Chicago district.

Boat Motor Company Moves Plant Here from Freeport

The Spinaway Boat Motor Company, Inc., has moved its plant from Freeport—where it has been located since 1912—to quarters on the ground floor of the building at 2419 West 14th street. The firm—of which Howard F. Leopold is president—has leased space 150x75 feet.

New Section of Morrison Hotel to Be Ready in 1931

The new section of the Morrison hotel, which will be the fourth addition, will not be ready for guests until May 1, 1931. The original announcement recently by the hotel management was that it would be completed by Nov. 30, 1930.

Nineteen Apartments at Dickens-Nebraska Sold

The nineteen flats at the northwest corner of Nebraska and Dickens avenues were sold by the Foreman Trust & Savings bank, trustee, to August Reimann.

LIGHTS GLOW ON 3D RAIL DEPOT AT GLEN ELLYN

What is claimed is the first instance of flood lighting of a suburban railroad station in this part of the country has just been installed at Glen Ellyn by the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad at the suggestion of the Glen Ellyn plan commission. The station, designed by John Archibald Armstrong of Chicago, has the reputation among railroad officials, according to Vice President Hal Lytle of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin, who had the flood lighting installed, of being one of the most attractive edifices of its kind in the country.

HAL LYTLE.

This station, by the way, also was secured for Glen Ellyn through efforts of the village plan commission. Plans had been drawn for a typical boxlike station, similar to those on the elevated lines. The Glen Ellyn plan commission urged that these be abandoned and something combining beauty with utility be erected. The railroad shelved its stock plans, turned to Mr. Armstrong for a design which would fit in with the architectural development of the suburb's business section and the present station resulted.

HYDROLATOR

Is Your Hot Water System "Sick?"

Does your hot water heating plant keep every radiator uniformly hot? Can you heat your home comfortably without running the boiler temperature way up? If not, your system is "sick" and the one sure cure is a HYDROLATOR. This device forces the water to every point where it's needed, almost instantly. Overcomes traps or restrictions; no fear of any part of the system being neglected.

Less Fuel—More Heat

The HYDROLATOR reduces fuel consumption and insures maximum efficiency in hot water heating and domestic supply systems. As the water returns to the boiler at only a slightly lower temperature than when it left, less fire is needed to maintain proper heating temperature. Have a HYDROLATOR installed. Results assured. Call your heating contractor or write us for full installation details.

REVIEWS FIND BUSINESS STILL AT GOOD PITCH

-Year Bids Fair to Set New High Records.

New York, Sept. 14.—Although there has been a lull in some lines, the pace of business at the end of the third quarter of the year is an active one and the final quarter of 1929 is approached with the confidence that, taken as a whole, the year will be one of the best from the industrial and commercial standpoint in the nation's history. There is no semblance of a boom, rather the record has been one of sustained and even demand for goods and services. Cooler weather, and the inquiry for autumn requirements, have featured general trade during the last week.

Reports by telegraph from the federal reserve districts indicate a remarkable even state of trade throughout the country. Conditions in the agricultural districts, although generally unsettled because of the extended drought, are improved because of the higher level of agricultural commodity prices, partial compensation, at least, for the lower output now anticipated, particularly for wheat and cotton. Building construction work throughout most of the districts is sluggish, amounting to a recession of about 25 per cent over the same period last year. Practically all districts report improvement, gradual but sustained in the volume of retail trade.

Car Loadings High.

An outstanding feature this week was the statement of car loadings, which established another new peak reflecting a very rapid rate of distribution of goods of all sorts. The total for the year to date shows a gain of 4.6 per cent over 1928, with a corresponding gain in railroad earnings, generally. It is significant that the increases should be shown in all geographical sections of the country.

A moderate lull has developed in iron and steel operations after a summer of extraordinary rapidity in production in which most of the existing records were broken. Steel plant operations now are at about 90 per cent of capacity. The exceptionally good state of the railroads and their needs for new equipment of all sorts leads to the belief in the steel trade that an upturn in the inquiry for road requirements is at hand. Metal markets were hardly as active as in the previous week. Copper appears stabilized around 18 cents per pound.

Automobile Outlook.

Automobile manufacturers are mainly engaged on new models and the outlook for the industry is reported by its leaders to be favorable. There is an excellent demand for low priced cars at present. It is believed that the introduction of new models will provide a stimulant that will be reflected in increased sales this autumn.

One of the satisfactory developments is the apparent stability of commodity prices of all sorts. In the index maintained by one reporting agency of 81 important commodities the prices of 53 were unchanged last week while the losses and gains of the others were about equally divided. Many considerations received a great deal of attention last week, because of their bearing on the automobile business. Credit continues extraordinarily high, although the fact is to be taken into consideration that it is the season of the year of the greatest, and that the maximum demand is likely to be expected within the next two weeks or so. With renewed stringency in the call market, stocks generally were unsettled last week, and in the main lost ground. The fact that the federal reserve banks are participating in the bull market to a very large extent is now evident from the weekly statement and there is no important lack of commercial credit. The continued expansion of brokers' loans remains the principal disturbing factor in the general money situation.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—COTTONSEED—Market was dull and barely steady, closing unchanged to 5 points lower. The weakness of cotton and grains promoted local pressure and scattered evening-up for over the week-end. The buying power was unusually light and scattered. Sales 2,500 bris. Prime crude, 7.65½c; prime summer yellow spot 9.00c; Sept. closed 9.25c; Oct., 9.38c; Dec. 9.48c; Jan. 9.52c; March 9.60c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Cotton goods markets were firm and unchanged today. Large mill units reported a fair business for the week, some popular priced worsteds were in good demand. Spot raw silks were strong-er here on higher yen exchange and in moderate call. Burlap futures reacted, advancing 10 to 15 currency points, with spots and afloats unchanged to firmer.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—SILK—Raw. Futures closed firm; sales, 1,100 bales. September, $5.10; October, $5.08; December, $5.13. Open market quotations [60 day basis], Shanghai steam extra B, $5.20@5.25. Canton double extra A, 14-16s, $3.90@4.00. Japanese crack extra, $5.25@5.47.

METALS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—METALS—Nominally unchanged.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—LEAD—Steady at 6.70c. ZINC—Slab, steady at 6.80c, $6.80.

BANKRUPTCIES.

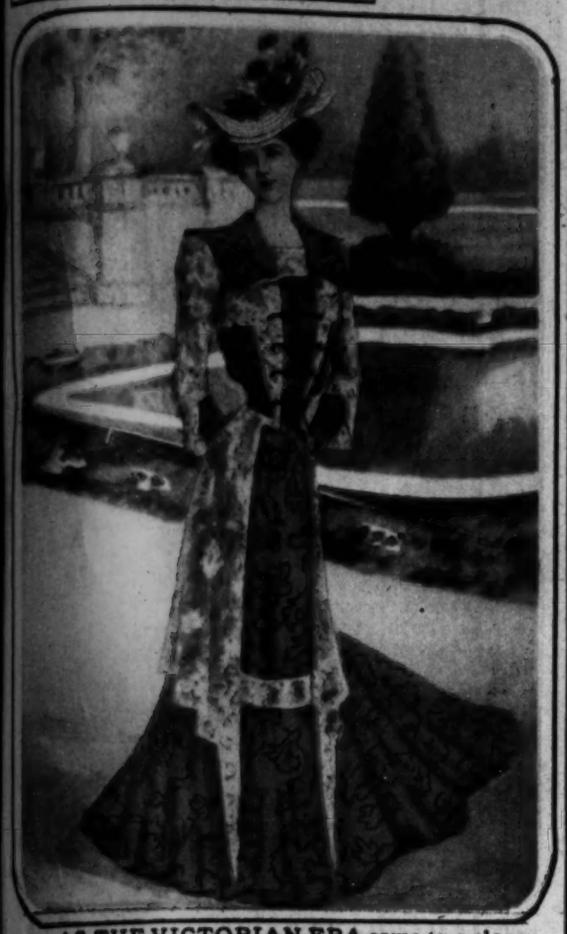
Fashions, 1901 to 1915



AS THE VICTORIAN ERA came to a close, when the twentieth century was young, long and more or less graceful lines were the mode. This 1901 model starts off the sixth chapter in our pictorial history of fashions.

TRAINS of both length and magnificence were an essential part of 1902 evening gowns.

WASP WAISTS, which had had their inning in 1888, came into vogue again a quarter of a century ago.

CURVES were pronounced, but the figures well covered, when the women of 1906 donned their walking garb.

FASHIONS IN 1907, as revealed in Julius M. Price's "Portrait of a Lady," exhibited at the Royal academy in that year and at the Paris salon the following year.

IN MICHIGAN AVENUE, and in Bond street, Fifth avenue, the Rue de la Paix, Unter den Linden, the Corso, and the Prado, these dresses were familiar sights in 1910.

AFTERNOON TEA, or perhaps it was a meeting of the Ladies' Aid society. At any rate, the time was 1910.

DEBUTANTES of 1911 were thus elegantly attired for the parties that brought them out.

RAKISH HAT and draped skirt were noticeable features of the street attire of 1912.

TRIMMED IN FUR, the 1913 suit achieved the dolman effect, and the hat achieved something else.

THE SLIT SKIRT, with vest and peplums, came over the horizon in the summer of 1914. So did the war clouds.

FEW FRILLS marked the full-skirted tailored model that made its bow to the public in 1915. And skirts were beginning to be shorter.

ANKLES were beginning to show a bit more when the jumper dress had its day in court in 1915.

(Illustrations up to 1913 from "Dame Fashion," by Julius M. Price.)

NEXT WEEK: HOW THE GREAT WAR CHANGED WOMEN'S FASHIONS

It Looks, Feels and Wears Like the Finest Imported Topcoat

The Knit-tex Coat

MANY men who are accustomed to wear expensive clothes hesitate to buy a Knit-tex Coat because the price is only $30.

But if you will try on a Knit-tex Coat you will have a really pleasant surprise. The cloth has that nice, soft feel and appearance and drape that you are accustomed to see in the finest of imported fabrics.

The coat itself when worn has the style and smartness and distinction that are demanded by the best dressed business men of America.

It is so warm that it can be worn ten months of the year and it is drizzle-proof. Yet it is so light in weight that you hardly know you have an overcoat on your shoulders.

You can pack it in a grip and it won't wrinkle. And it will outwear the average overcoat three to one.

But be sure to look for the Knit-tex label. Unless the label is in the coat it is not made of the genuine, guaranteed Knit-tex cloth.

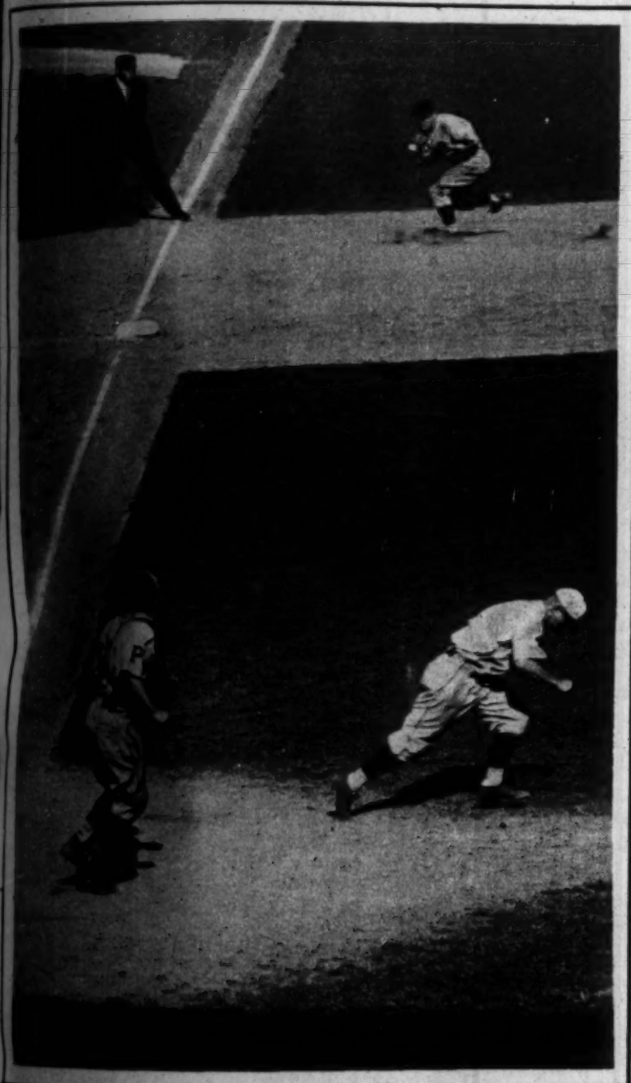
THE WORLD'S MOST EXCLUSIVE BEACH, they say, is Eden-Roc, at Cap d'Antibes, on the French Riviera. There king and commoner, but only the most ultra commoner, do their sun bathing. King and accepted commoner—but not many even of these, for only 200 can be accommodated at Eden-Roc. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



"ACTION! CAMERA!" Hollywood's familiar cry would have been appropriate here, except that the play was real, not staged. It took place in a fierce battle between the Giants and the Pirates. The unusual action picture shows a hot drive being grabbed by Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh third baseman, from the bat of Chick Fullis, New York outfielder, who is already tearing toward first. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

ALL SPRUCED UP in spruce veneer, girls of Hoquiam, Wash., take a dip in the Pacific in the last, or latest, word in bathing costumes. The thin strips of wood are easily adaptable—and pliable.

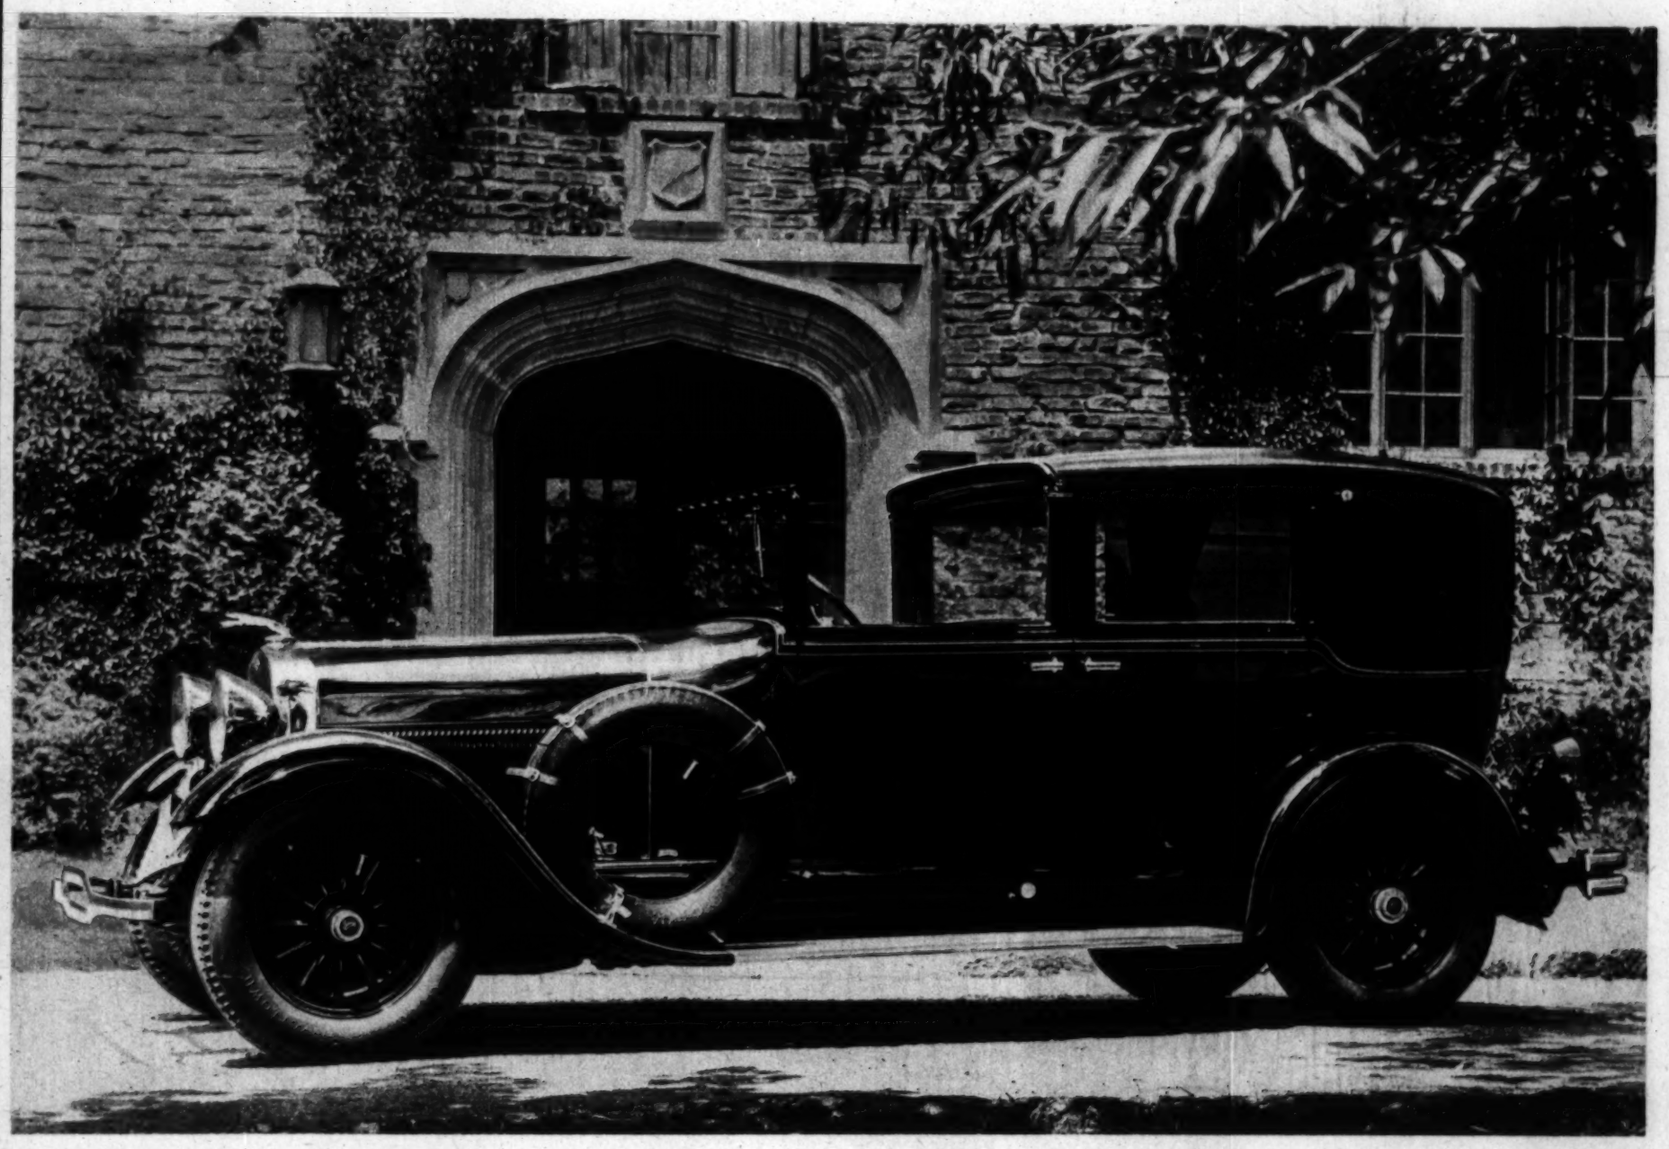
THIS INTERESTING GROUP consists of Mrs. Margaret Talmadge, Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge and her new husband, Townsend Netcher of Chicago, and, at ease on the pillow, Norma's leading man, Gilbert Roland, who looks just like Jack Gilbert.

THE LINCOLN KEEPS FRESH THE ENTHUSIASM OF THOSE WHO KNOW IT BEST



The Brunn all-weather semi-collapsible Cabriolet is an ideal chauffeur-driven car for town and social uses

UNDOUBTEDLY a special relationship exists between the Lincoln owner and his car.

One senses this in his attitude toward everything that goes with motoring. He has a confidence in his car that extends to every detail of motor, chassis, and body. Style and safety, endurance and comfort and speed—he finds, day after day and year after year, in his Lincoln. And he believes—with the conviction that comes with experience—that the motor car he drives is as fine an automobile as his money could buy.

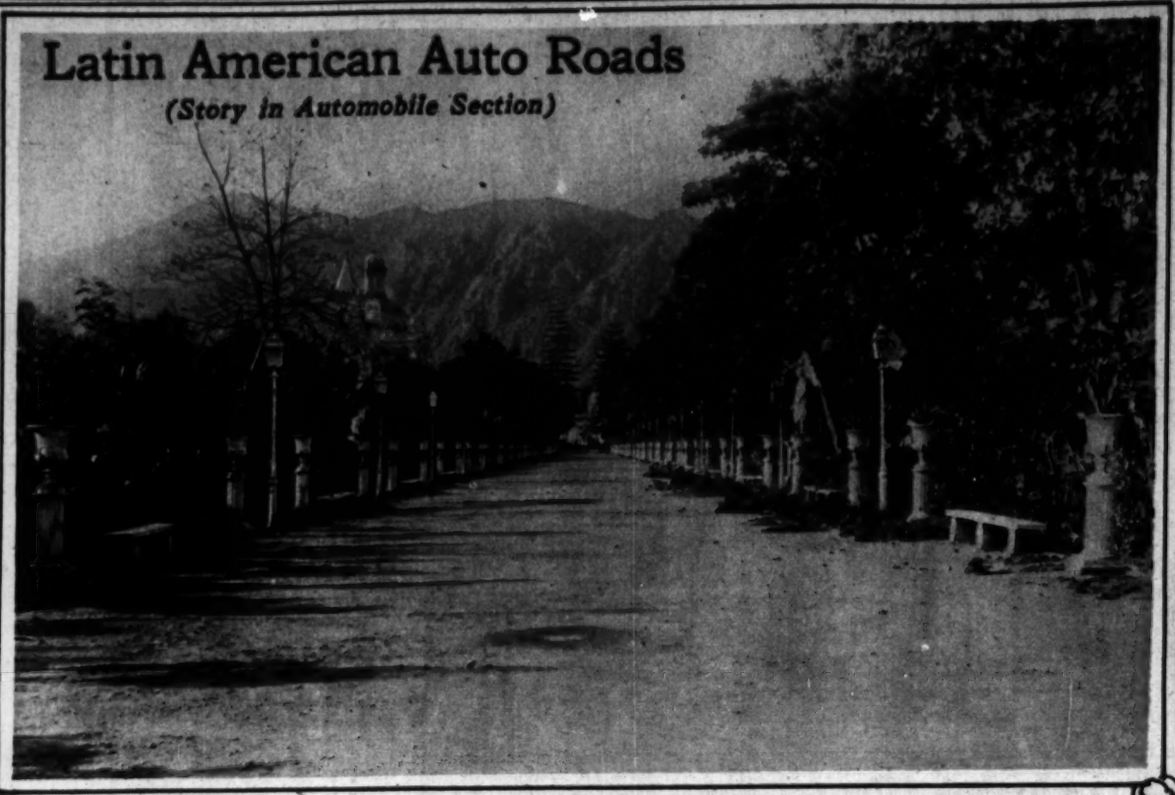
It is natural that the Lincoln should inspire this feeling in those who know it best. Its quiet beauty, its smooth power and its enduring strength are the results of the sincerity and intelligence with which it is made. Precision operations that range in delicacy to one-fifteenth of a hair's breadth are rigidly maintained in the making of its separate parts and in the assembly of the car, as a whole. No higher quality of basic materials or engineering skill could go into an automobile.

Because many thousands of miles of service matter little to such a car, Lincoln owners remain Lincoln enthusiasts. Years of familiarity increase their appreciation of the Lincoln's well-balanced excellence. Its unfailing performance is more and more impressive. The enduring style of its custom coachwork becomes fully evident. . . . And as they continue to drive it, this motor car assumes a satisfying and personal value that has been growing from the first day of their ownership.

THE LINCOLN

Latin American Auto Roads

(Story in Automobile Section)



A BOULEVARD IN LIMA, PERU, which should certainly be a part of every motor itinerary in South America. It doesn't look like a speedway, but it would be a pleasant lane to loaf the motor and enjoy the scenery.

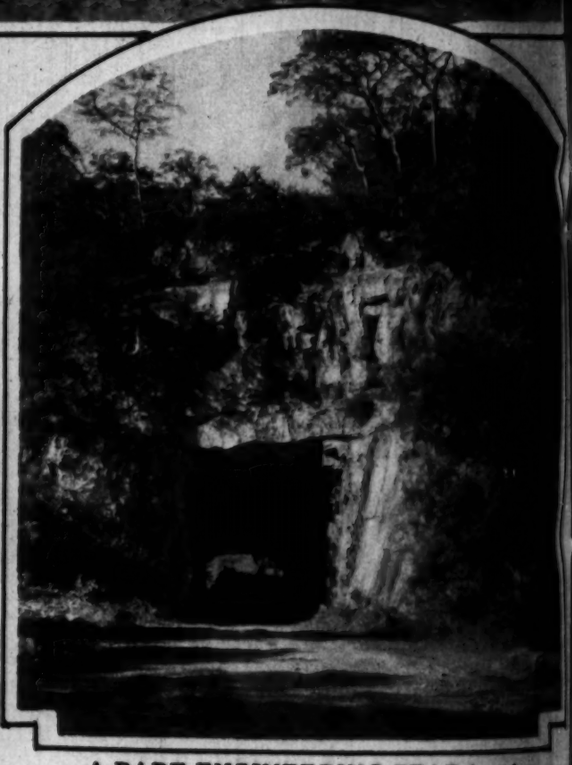
ON THE SEASHORE OF CHILE—This stretch of highway extends from Vi del Mar to Concon on the west coast of South America. In the summer (when it's sum there and winter here) it should have its advantages as a recreational drive.

UP HILL AND DOWN IN VENEZUELA—This modern pavement extends from La Guaira to Caracas. Apparently a sportive course for the motorist who likes a thrill.

ARMIES OF PEACE—The pay roll of the road builder is more attractive to the Mexican peon than the muster call of ambitious generals. Besides, the highways will do more to revolutionize Mexico socially and economically than any political movement.

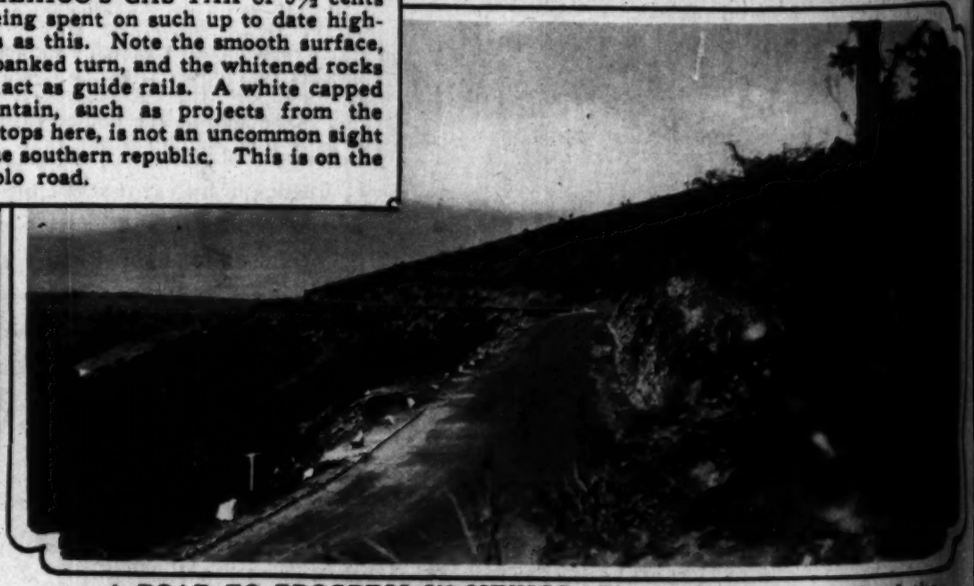
PASO DE LAS TERMOPILAS is a cut on the new highway connecting Mexico City with Acapulco on the west coast, one of the best natural harbors in the world. Note the heavy vegetation, home of the parrakeets.

MEXICO'S GAS TAX of 5½ cents is being spent on such up to date highways as this. Note the smooth surface, the banked turn, and the whitened rocks that act as guide rails. A white capped mountain, such as projects from the tree tops here, is not an uncommon sight in the southern republic. This is on the Pueblo road.



A RARE ENGINEERING FEAT found on the new highway from the west coast of Mexico to the capital.

TWENTIETH CENTURY HIGHWAYS lead through historical settings. This four lane superhighway is near Pachuca, Mexico. The domed structure resembling an astronomical observatory looks like the work of the ancients. Without any information, one might guess that the weathered curb and wall were built by the conquistadores.



A ROAD TO PROGRESS IN MEXICO—The administration south of the Rio Grande considers highways as important as schools in reviving the country from its three centuries of suppression. There aren't any traffic jams on these beautiful pavements, but the government believes autos will supplant pack trains with the building of the new driveways.

...pack up and go! say hundreds of people like you and me, every winter. ...see if the Taj Mahal really is the most beautiful building in the world ... ...see a mosque-full of white-robed men rise and fall to the chant of Allah's name ...

Let's see those mystery halls of the Forbidden City, and ride on panoplied elephants, and hear the Hawaiians sing "Aloha" as our ship sails out.

Hundreds of people like you and me are going ravin' round the globe—laughing, thrilling, seeing, learning. You don't have to know a dozen languages, and need no iron constitution. You don't need much money. $1000 can see you through, on the "cream-ship" Empress of Australia.

Two months before you catch your winter's cold. Arrives at the Riviera when the season is in full swing. Gets to the Holy Land in time for Christmas Eve in Bethlehem ... to Cairo for the gayest New Year's Eve in the world. Visits India and Java at their cool season ... Japan in plum-blossom season. And slips through the Panama Canal in time for Easter at home. No other voyage like it!

Right off you feel a sense of security and welcome, under the all-powerful Canadian Pacific flag—especially in those romantic lands "East of Suez, and West of the Rising Sun." You can spend a magic night in the desert ... Egyptians dancing with gold bangles, Bedouin story-tellers, Hindus throbbing tom-toms. You can penetrate fantastic India ... see Benares and Calcutta and the sunrise over Mount Everest.

You can lunch in one of the King of Siam's palaces, be guest at a Ball in Hong Kong, and have tea in the garden of a Japanese gentleman. Everywhere, you are welcomed and privileged, as guest of the world's greatest travel system.

You'll hardly know you're on a ship, so spacious and modern is the Empress of Australia.

And you needn't hesitate to come alone. You'll find plenty of congenial souls on board ... young and old, frivolous and serious ... in the priceless camaraderie of cruise life.

Ashore, private cars and special trains take you for a thorough look-see at everything. Then you've time to visit the missions ... golf on strange courses ... shop for gorgeous embroideries and carvings and jewels at ridiculous prices. Not once do you taste the labor and disappointments of ordinary travel.

Tonight you will hear the music of the world, and catch a breath of its palpitating life, if you listen in on Quin Ryan's program. Give way to your wanderlust. Find out how gloriously possible this world-experience is for you. Right now, make a note to come in and talk it over with us. Or write for the complete cruise story. It's high time to start planning. Rooms are already being selected. Get out your pen and write that note, now.

INA CLAIRE wears a lounging costume here. It is of petal pink satin. Though attractive and feminine, the whole idea of this outfit is c-o-m-f-o-r-t!

OLIVE BORDEN steps out in this town costume when she goes to shop. It's of red crepe de chine. The blouse is cut in bolero effect, and a new note is sounded in the wide red hemstitching on collar, cuffs, and handkerchief.

TWEET, TWEET! Paul Whiteman baring his heart to you! Large heart, nicely tailored, isn't it? The press agent insists he is just registering love.

LADY IN A PEACOCK GOWN would be a fitting title for this photograph, don't you think? The lady is Irene Bordoni, who is just completing her first talking and singing picture. "Paris" is the name, and the film is an adaptation of the stage vehicle.

Comedians

By W. E. Hill

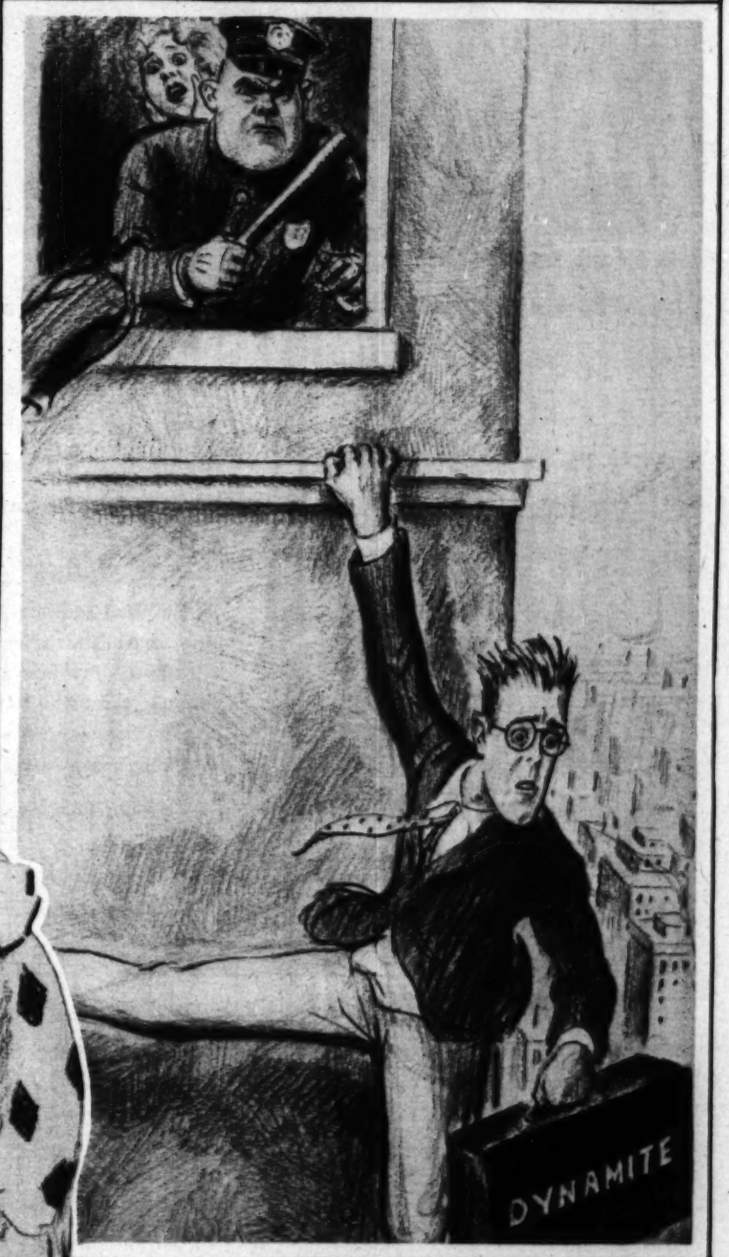
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Vaudeville. Even such high class musical artists as the brothers MacDoyle, "the college troubadours," are not above comic relief now and again. "What's that pill box I see your sweetie carrying 'round with her?" asks Eddie after the second chorus. "Oh," Bert answers "that isn't no box of pills, that's her costume for the ice man's ball. She's going dressed to represent Scotch hospitality!"

Amateur Stuff. The Agony Centre drama group are giving "Putting Pep in Grandma" in the church parlors and the comedy relief is handled by Mr. Milt Luby, who works at the teller's window of the Agony Centre First National bank. Milt plays the part of "Seth Punkinseed in Love with Mandy Perkins, the Hired Gal." Tomorrow the Agony Centre Courier Journal will give Milt a swell write up and say that "his sense of comical situations was both mirth compelling and unctious."

The Comic Broadcaster. "Folks, this is Victor Whittlesey announcing and I just wish you could be here in the studio with me and see the beautiful girlie who's here beside me (squeals from the girlie). It's Mme. Sophie Crankcase, the Ohio prima donna, who's going to sing for us. Her first number will be 'Jelly-Roll' from 'What Ails Hoffman.' Oh, I beg your pardon, folks, that's a mistake. I should have said, 'Barcarole' from 'Tales of Hoffman.' Victor Whittlesey announcing. Please stand by while Mme. removes a clinker from her eye."

The Nut Comedians. Roscoe Flit and Bates Roach have been drafted from the burlesque circuit and are nut comedians. (A nut comedian is a comedian who can make believe he takes a flea out of a chorus girl's ear without it having anything to do with the plot, lines or lyrics). This is the first act of the new musical show, "Hazelle," and shows Mrs. Preston Van Sneezer's Spanish fete on her estate at Westberry, Long Island. Two gentlemen burglars (played by Messrs. Flit and Roach) arrive in the midst of the chorus girls and boys and are mistaken for the Duke of Dishwater and his valet. "I've got a pain in my neck," says the Duke to Mrs. Van Sneezer. "Why don't you have violet ray on it, Duke?" inquires the lady. "Oh lady," says the duke, pushing her in the face. "I never seen the girl even!" and so it goes.

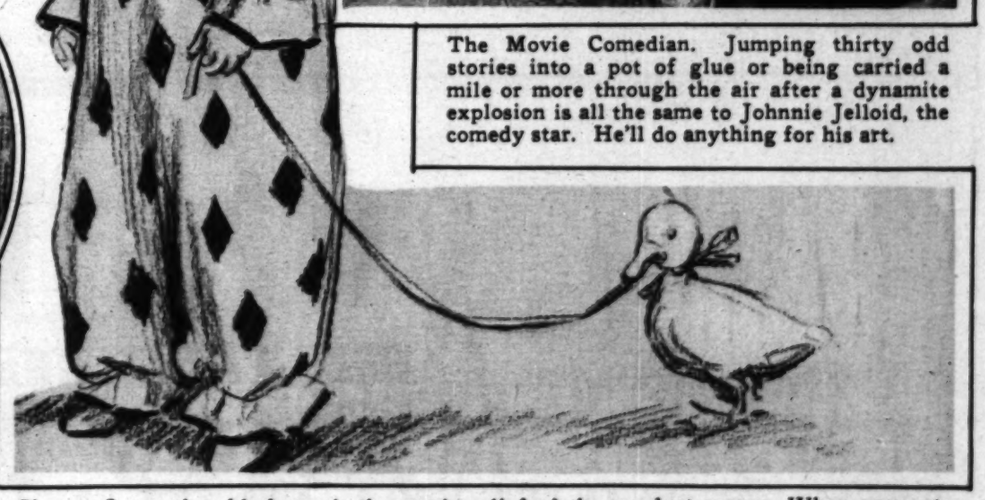


The Movie Comedian. Jumping thirty odd stories into a pot of glue or being carried a mile or more through the air after a dynamite explosion is all the same to Johnnie Jelloid, the comedy star. He'll do anything for his art.

The Band Leader. Meet Heinie Heeney, the leading spirit of "Heinie Heeney's Louisiana Leathernecks." Heinie is very comic and his great sex appeal and his droll way of kidding the boys in the band after each selection make him an ace among band leaders.

The High Brown Revue. Mose, the comic relief of "The Dixie Babies" revue, is about to lapse into a sad song all about a faithless seal brown beauty.

Back Stage. "Hey, what the hell do those dumb bozos think this is, a funeral parlor? I didn't get a laugh today even with the Scotch jokes! This is a terrible town to play to!"



Circus. Jerry, the old clown, is the comic relief of the sawdust arena. When you get tired looking at the bounding Pinellas or the prancing O'Dares it's a great relief to watch Jerry and his tame duck. Jerry has been in the business 40 years.

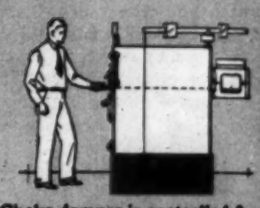
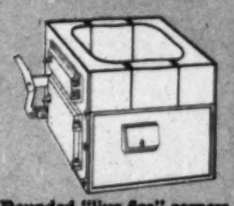
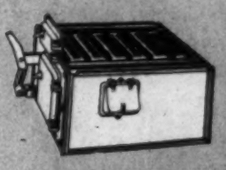
The Weil-McLain Jacketed Boiler combines beauty, convenience, operating economy



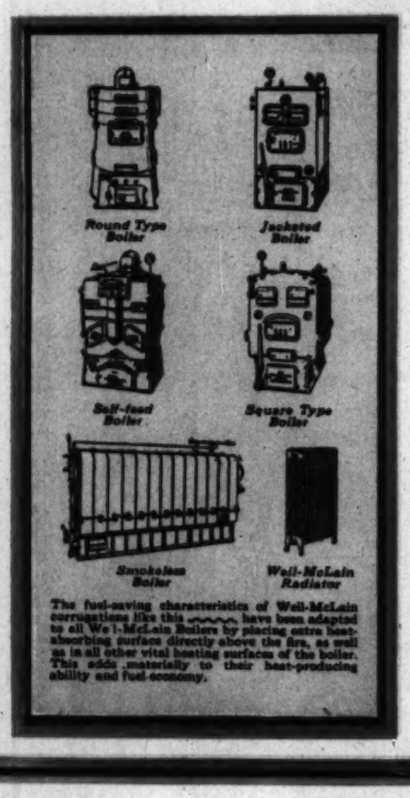
Choke damper is controlled from the front of boiler



Rounded "live fire" corners in the fire box



Unusually high ashpit



The fuel-saving characteristics of Weil-McLain corrugations like this ..... have been adapted to all Weil-McLain Boilers by placing extra heat-absorbing surface directly above the fire, as well as in all other vital heating surfaces of the boiler. This adds materially to their heat-producing ability and fuel-economy.

TRIM, jacketed in enameled steel, symmetrical of line, the Weil-McLain Jacketed Boiler embodies a new measure of colorful beauty to harmonize with modern basements. It also offers many advanced operating conveniences, together with well-known Weil-McLain ability to give more heat and save fuel. . . . . .

Scientific combustion saves fuel

In the Weil-McLain Jacketed Boiler you find two distinct reasons for scientific combustion. First, all grates within the fire box are shaking grates; second, this feature, combined with rounded "live fire" corners in the fire box, assures a clean, bright fire at every point, and ends costly waste of fuel into the ashpit.

Added heating surface absorbs more heat

Realizing that it is of little avail for a boiler to produce a great volume of heat only to be wasted up the chimney, Weil-McLain has incorporated in this boiler the basic principle of more heat-absorbing surface, particularly above the fire.

Balanced back-and-forth fire travel ends chimney waste

As a final safeguard against waste, this Weil-McLain Boiler has a balanced back-and-forth fire travel, which cannot short-cut to the chimney under any condition. The hot gases, under all conditions, must travel through all the heating surfaces in the boiler. Another reason why this boiler assures warm rooms and fuel economy.

Owner's convenience

In this boiler you will find convenience features never before combined in a single boiler. For example, the choke damper is conveniently controlled from the front of the boiler. There is an unusually high ashpit. There is automatic draft regulation. Added combustion space and extra fuel-carrying capacity mean lengthened firing periods. And the boiler, from every standpoint, has been designed to make possible minimum firing attention.

Other superiorities

The Weil-McLain Jacketed Boiler has a thoroughly insulated jacket. It has large flue spaces, generous water spaces, and extra large lower nipple openings. Outside tie rods permit individual assembly of the sections. Two washout plugs and a skimming plug are conveniently located. Provision is made for hot water coil and indirect water heater.

See your heating contractor

There are Weil-McLain Boilers to meet all needs. For complete information, see your heating contractor. Address our nearest distributor for new booklet. Weil-McLain Company, General Offices, 641 West Lake Street, Chicago; Factories and offices: Michigan City, Indiana—Erie, Pennsylvania.

Weil-McLain Boilers meet modern fuel preferences

Weil-McLain Boilers have been designed, not only for the efficient burning of the fuel you have been accustomed to use, but with forethought for the burning of oil; or of coke; for the smokeless burning of soft coal and the use of smaller sizes of hard coal.

YOU CAN SLEEP "Like a Child"

Puts REST into SLEEP

YOUTHFUL bloom . . . a clear, fresh, rested appearance . . . the famed "school girl complexion" are not always a matter of years as much as the natural result of complete relaxation of both nerve and body tension when sleeping. Sleep which comes after a complete let-down of nerve tension and relaxation of the body muscles, renews nature's physical energy, because then you really sleep. ¶ Medical authorities give as an effective prescription for health — the necessity of proper, quiet rest when you sleep. Likewise, they will tell you that you can sleep and not thoroughly rest.

To get real rest—you must have complete relaxation, proper support and correct body position when sleeping.

These very rest-producing features are secured perfectly only when the mattress is specially designed for and adjusted to the box spring—and equally important, the box spring must correctly support and cushion the mattress to get the luxurious softness, which induces restful sleep.

Grandmother's feather bed, a relic of by-gone days but remembered as about the softest thing on earth, at that time—where you "could sleep like a child"—has all its good features retained in a Burton Perfect Sleeping Unit.

There is built into these sleeping units such sleeping comfort that you will be amazed at how rested you feel in the morning—how much the mind and body will truly enjoy this surprising comfort. In patterns of exquisite beauty to harmonize with bedroom decorative schemes—all eyes surrender to their tasteful style.

Perfected by one of America's largest organizations, that, for thirty-two years as a manufacturer of custom made bedding, has carefully studied the factors that give the human body the most perfect rest.

The best furniture and department stores everywhere can supply you.

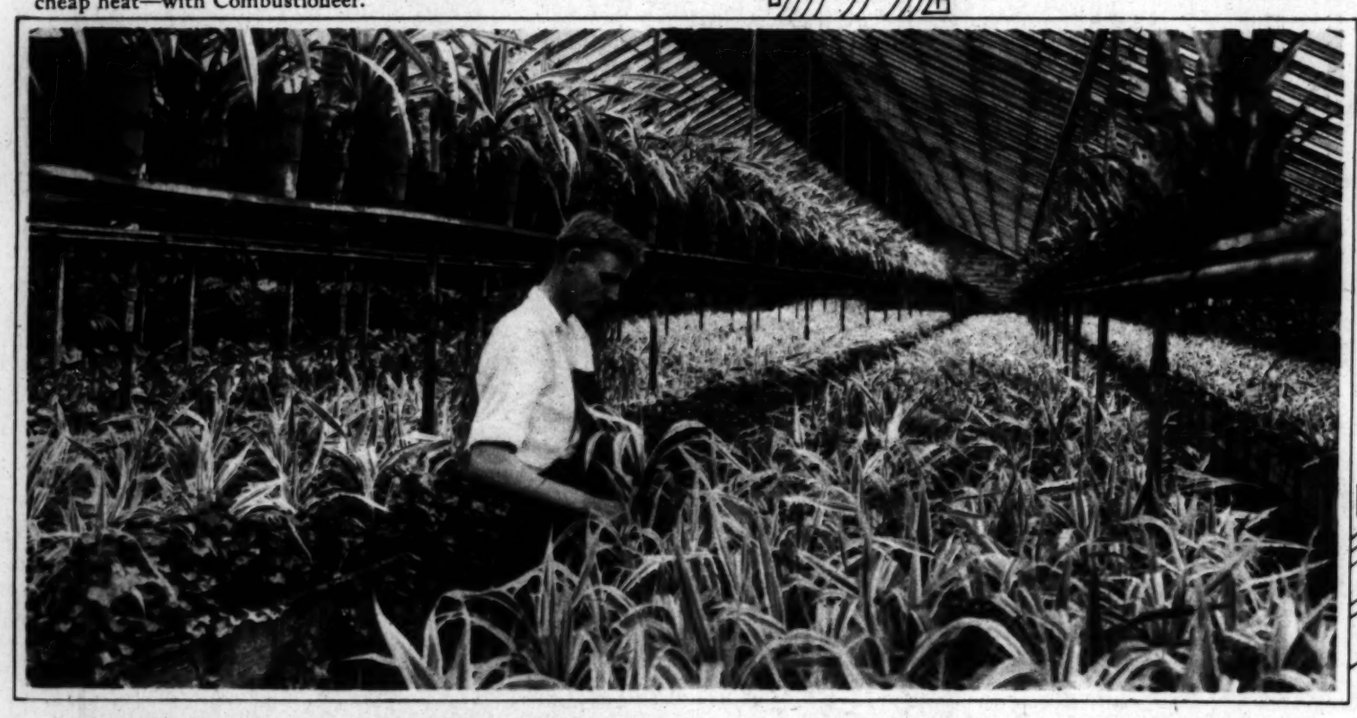
THE GREAT NEW ERA IN CHICAGO is a cleaner, smokeless one, thanks to scientific heat . . . particularly Combustioneer automatic coal burner which not only burns the cheapest fuel in the world . . . but burns it WITHOUT SMOKE. The Old Dearborn Bank Building, 203 North Wabash, managed by Ross and Browne, is only one of the buildings in this picture now saving from 15% to 50% in fuel cost—eliminating smoke—enjoying complete automatic control of heat, hot water and steam.

Combustioneer gets as much heat from $5 worth of screenings as the oil burner gets from $9 worth of oil. More heat than hand-firing gets from $8 worth of highest grade mine run coal. Smokeless heat. With boiler and hot water control 100% automatic.

CITIES FAMOUS FOR INDUSTRIES THAT PAY A PROFIT, like Detroit for instance, are points of popularity for Combustioneer. The Detroit Motor Bus Co., with five vast garages, has solved the problem of automatic smokeless heat that is also cheap heat—with Combustioneer.

BUSINESS HAS WINGS! The Beardsley and Piper Co., Chicago, has been quick to catch the modern trend in transportation. Their executives regularly use air travel in their foundry machinery business. And they've been just as quick to catch the modern trend in economizing on the cost of steam for manufacturing. Like hundreds of other Chicago concerns, these folks burn screenings and save 15% to 50% on coal. Smoke is banished from their sky. Factory flow is smoother because no man or machine ever has to wait for steam. All because of Combustioneer.

SHE TRUSTS HER LINGERIE and finer things to the laundries these days because their methods are modern! And one modern improvement laundries are capitalizing is the new automatic way of burning coal—the cheapest, safest, most reliable fuel in the world. Bon Ton Wet Wash, 6718 South State; Webber's Laundry, 1421 N. Wells St.; Grant Wet and Dry Laundry, 1753 W. Grand Ave.; Mueller Bros. Laundry, 2139 S. California, are a few Chicago laundries who will tell you how Combustioneer saves money.



IN THE WORLD OF FLOWERS, WHAT NAME IS BETTER KNOWN than Wittbold? Any florist puts a premium on steady, even boiler pressure that maintains uniform temperature. And the Geo. Wittbold Co. has found a way that's cheaper than oil, gas, coke or anthracite. Cheaper than any hand-fired coal. "With boiler capacity rated 24,000 sq. ft. we get 30,000 sq. ft. for hours at a time." There's economy! 25% over capacity. "We burn Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois screenings with perfect satisfaction. No smoke—stacks cleaner than they ever were before."

BETWEEN NOW AND APRIL YOU MAY WASTE MORE THAN AUTOMATIC FIRING COSTS

NOT ONCE, but scores of times has Combustioneer Automatic Coal Burning paid for itself in one heating season . . . Ask the Coonley Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Think of it! The complete cost of installation returned to you in a few short months in money saved on coal. As a bonus for your investment you get years on end of smokeless automatic heat that costs less than hand-fired coal. Automatic heat with the ONE fuel that will never give out. The ONE fuel that is 100% safe. The ONE fuel that you're now used to using and about which you are well informed and skilled in buying.

Don't let an opportunity like this go by. Let our engineers give you the facts free. It is worth while to have them survey your heating problem if you never buy . . . A phone call—Crawford 4220—or the coupon brings more details FREE.

THE NEW MODE IN EXERCISE is keeping many a factory working nights. The Sherwood Brass Co., makers of the exerciser shown in this picture, are enthusiastic boosters for Combustioneer Automatic Coal Stokers. Who wouldn't be enthusiastic when a car of coal lasts two weeks longer—when the smoke inspector takes you off his list—when machinery and men never have to wait for steam.

CLEAN MILK means the dairy has used a lot of live steam keeping machinery sanitary. And live steam costs money and plenty of it. Chicago milk companies like Hinckley Milk Co., Model Dairy Co., 2007 18th Place, Selcik Dairy Co., 1602 Union Ave., are a few who praise the cleanliness and economy of Combustioneer automatic coal burning. Why not? When a ton of screenings makes the same steam they used to get from high priced lump, who wouldn't be happy?

WHAT DO YOU THINK it costs an apartment hotel to clean wall paper, drapes, rugs, etc., after a winter's heating season in Chicago? That's why it is worth money for apartments to have Combustioneer heat! Bernard Hotel, Costello Apartments, 6901 Oglesby; Devon Arms Hotel; Eddystone Homes; 1430 Lake Shore Drive Bldg., and scores of others advise Combustioneer for beating the smoke nuisance—and providing automatic heat and hot water for actually less money.

Imported Furniture Becomes Practical

Imported furniture can seldom stand the American climate. Scholle's importations, however, receive a thorough course of kiln drying after reaching this country, and are assembled by our skilled cabinet-makers. The beautiful reproductions of historical European pieces shown by Scholle thus have the sturdiness of domestic creations. Sallow, Dingy Skin made Lovely —Coarse Pores become Fine— It corrects oily skin, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

Creamed Magnesia clears the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow skin to radiant clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try. It's Guaranteed!

No More Ugly Nose Pores

DENTON'S CREMED

Facial Magnesia

Makes poor skin lovely—keeps fine skin fine

NOTE: Do not hesitate to try this marvelous skin treatment at once. Thousands of delighted women have written they could not believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions.

Chicago's finest stores, department stores, furniture stores, neighborhood stores, instantly realized last Spring that this new type of Rug, Gulistan, would mean everything to luxury-loving families . . . and the enormous success proved them right.

They knew that in the Orient the internationally famous House of Karagheusian had made for years great numbers of the world's most beautiful Oriental Rugs.

They knew that in Karagheusian's American plants they had been trying for years to machine-loom American Rugs that would be truly as lustrous and luxurious as their Orientals.

And they knew that Karagheusian had done it.

Think of the facts. The sheen is the same as that of a thousand dollar Kashan Rug, the same picked wools are especially imported from the Near East and China, the wearing-power exceeds that of popular-priced Oriental Rugs, and the fabric has been demonstrated by actual test in the "Times" Model Home at Hartford, Conn., to emerge revealing hardly any signs of wear, after 83,000 people had trod and retrodden it.

Card 13 tells the murderer's name!

For ten years Lillian C. Ford has been one of the literary editors of the Los Angeles Times. She has written articles on economic questions and a number of short stories, and collaborated with Mr. Luther on "Card 13." From the combined names of the two, "Luther Ford," comes the name of the author of this splendid serial.

Many short stories, two novelettes and a novel or two are among the various literary achievements to the credit of Mark Lee Luther, who divides his time between interesting places abroad and his native America.

IN THE TRIBUNE'S thrill-packed new serial, "Card 13," by Luther Ford, the mystery of who killed Tony Gilmore is solved by the dead man's friend, Arthur Raneleigh, with twenty cards. "Card 13" turns the trick, and solves a riddle that had the whole town talking when handsome Tony Gilmore was shot in front of his Hollywood home! Vivid, vital, holding you to the last word. . . . "Card 13" is a mystery story of rare perfection!

"No more slow dissolving soaps" say 212,960* answers from women

"We've found Super Suds a new form of soap that gives instant suds . . . washes clothes whiter . . . gets dishes sparkling clean . . . in far less time."

NO more waiting for suds. No more heating water extra hot to get chips and flakes to dissolve. No more half melted bits of soap sticking to clothes and dishes.

For here's a wonderful new soap that dissolves 100% . . . instantly. A soap that gives you all the rich soapy suds you can use . . . the minute you turn on the water. A soap that works in water 10% cooler than other soaps require.

This new soap is called Super Suds. It is not chips, nor flakes, nor powder. But soap in the form of tiny hollow beads. Beads with walls four times thinner than the thinnest chip or flake you ever used.

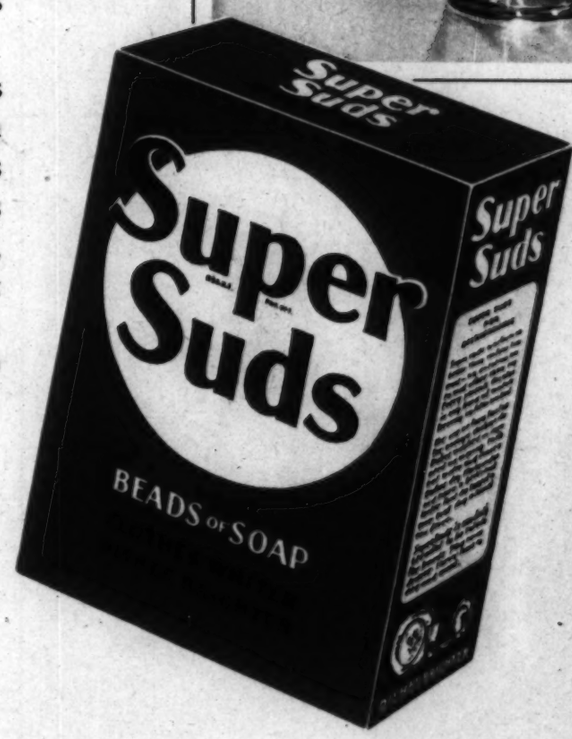
Why women prefer bead soap

Dissolves instantly. Because of its tissue-like thinness, Super Suds dissolves instantly. No stirring, no waiting. And note how suds form all through the water — not just on top. Swift, active "underwater" suds. Just as the test pictured at the right shows you.

Speedier washing. These energetic underwater suds wash dishes faster . . . clothes whiter . . . because all the soap gets to work instantly. None of it remains undissolved—no soap wasted. Thus with Super Suds you get super cleansing power.

Easier rinsing. Because Super Suds always dissolves 100%, it is the easiest rinsing soap on the market today . . . Super Suds leaves clothes sweet, clean and soap-free, in actually one less rinse than other soaps require. In dishwashing, Super Suds rinses away completely in one hot rinse, leaving dishes so clear that they will drain dry to sparkling brightness. You don't need to wipe them.

Get Super Suds today. Use it for dishwashing, for laundry. For all household cleaning where you want ease plus speed. You will find it keeps hands soft and white, because it dissolves in water just comfortably warm. 10 big cups of soap for just ten cents.



Please Make This Test

Put a teaspoonful of Super Suds in a glass; a teaspoonful of any chip or flake in another. Now fill both glasses half full with water cool enough to be comfortable for hands.

Instantly, every bit of Super Suds rushes into rich soapy suds. Instantly every drop of water becomes creamy with soapiness. While in the other glass gummy chips float undissolved or sink to the bottom, dissolving slowly.

This is the way these two soaps act in your dishpan. This is why Super Suds cleans with such amazing swiftness.

Smart Americans Inspire Paris Chic

Women of the Western World Influence Continental Mode-Making; the Result, a New Fashion Silhouette of Marked Distinction.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS. — (Special Correspondence.) — Everywhere around Paris, if you understand French, you will hear murmurs and in proletarian circles they sometimes become shouts—about the American invasion. While the most striking evidence of this from-the-west wave of ideas and articles and humans is to be found in signs along the boulevards advertising all sorts of American products and productions, there are subtler and more powerful instances. America is taking a hand at French mode-making. Not, however, in the usual way, by actually mixing in the mêlée of pins, cloth, and scissors. The American invasion of fashion in Paris is not by the professional buyer route either. It is victoriously evident in the pride that French couturiers take in creating for the beautiful Americaines who come to them for French chic. They are, more and more, creating clothes that are, in this way, American inspired. The result is Paris costumes with a naturalized American grace. It is far easier for the average American woman to get clothes over here today, because of this, than in the past when she was forced to try adapting her different anatomy and esprit to purely French fashions.

The long shadow that the new silhouette of fashion is casting forward into the coming fall has a character that can be recognized as of and for the American woman, although it is distinctly by the French creative genius.

Famous women, of every nationality, adopt this silhouette, which has been particularly adapted to some of our nationally known American women. This is the line that is a real Venus line. It is found in Paris clothes by grand couturiers, plainly designed for our long limbed Venuses from the U. S. A. The short-legged Latin woman is the one who has to have such clothes adapted for her. This is the grande mode of today in Paris, and one that looks ahead to the future, and it is at this moment being seen in smart French resorts, worn by those American women of the grand chic who inspired it.

Like many of the most successful French fashions this particular style makes an evening debut, although certain of the more radical couturiers are launching it for afternoon. Dresses that are created in this silhouette have no fullness, and no particular flares, although they are made with skirts which are often very wide around the hemlins. The bodice is usually quite long, and follows the lines of the figure, but not too closely. Bodice is here used tentatively, because the new extra long silhouette is often found in one piece frocks, and a waistline is usually indicated to show the division. The waistline may be placed high, or on the hips, but there is always much more skirt than waist in the proportion of the frock. Paris makes these long line frocks for her American-ideal clients in all kinds of evening fabrics, but amongst the most favored are the two extremes of very supple and very stiff materials. Stiff satins, moires, and taffeta-failles are fabrics that are worn by many of our smartest women. In the vaporous tissues georgette comes in for an important place, being preferred to chiffon by many. Tulle, and net, the latter in fishnet and filet, are liked by some of the most distinguished Americans in Europe, and particularly when they are made into slender line frocks. Mrs. Irving Berlin is one famous American woman who came to a Parisian designer for her clothes. The first model shown on this page is a dinner dress of peach-bloom georgette and lace which Molyneux made for Mrs. Berlin. In this frock there is charming evidence of that long slender line which the American figure glorifies, and which in turn glorifies the American figure. The lace can be removed, revealing the georgette bodice which fits close and long around the hips. The real waistline is not long, however, but very much higher then we have seen for some seasons past, and is indicated by the white leather belt. The skirt has an even hemline, and although it gives a long clinging line it is slightly flared in effect by the stitched gores which characterize it.

Another well-known American woman who loves nice things is Mrs. Edsel Ford. Molyneux designed for her the evening dress shown in our second sketch. This designer loves the inspiration of the tall dignified woman and some of his finest creations are for her. Witness the black georgette dress in question which is not only loveliness in itself but adds dignity to the dignified as well. The encrusted bands of georgette accentuate the charm of svelte hips, and, here's a secret, a dress like this has been known to make women with hips not quite so svelte look like shadows of their former selves. Each of these georgette strips has an end which turns into a panel with separately cut gracefulness, and three tails flow right out of the encrusted bits and hang just off center down the back of the frock, giving it that added length which we can't bear quite to relinquish.

Having had his inspired way with georgette, Molyneux proceeded to do something quite as beautiful with taffeta faille. Our third sketch shows another evening frock which Mrs. Edsel Ford chose for her very own. It is of pure white, the purest clearest white in the world, and the little belt is placed high at the normal waistline. There is no trimming whatsoever, but the miracle of Molyneux' drapes which start just above the left hip and curve down to embrace the right hip and the lower portion of the back, gives this dress all the individual charm possible. There is a crispness and freshness about this model which suggests Jack Frost and snowlike coolness, but it's just the gown to complement your summer tan (real or artificial as the case may be), to the very highest degree.

Another important American woman is Mrs. Felix Doubleday, and another material which the grande couture considers extremely important for evening wear is tulle. Our fourth sketch shows what that divine designer, Lucien Lelong, thought of tulle when the equally divine thought of Mrs. Doubleday came to his mind. It was he who dressed her in this appealing black tulle frock which he called "Penitence." The penitence part of it must be for those women who have to do without it. This model too is simplicity in the extreme, except for the sophistication of beautiful line which nothing can imitate. The hips are closely fitted in the black tubelike tulle, and a black leather belt is placed high at the bit higher than normal waistline. There is a bunch of several black and white satin blossoms grouped on the left shoulder, the luminous quality of the petals repeated in the satin bands which fit the hips and are masked by one sheer layer of the black tulle. This is the sort of dress which makes all kinds of suggestions to you as far as its accompanying jewels are concerned, and Molyneux suggests carved crystal as the proper complement to black.

Mrs. Irving Berlin, one of our smartly dressed compatriots who comes to Paris for her clothes, chose this dinner dress in peach-bloom georgette and lace from Molyneux shown at the extreme left.

Molyneux designed this dress in black georgette for Mrs. Edsel Ford. It has no trimming except self bands whose ends become gracefully cut panels on the left-hand side. Shown second.

Taffeta faille as pure as the driven snow, and clever hip drape make this Molyneux model which Mrs. Edsel Ford has chosen, and which is sketched third.

Last, Mrs. Felix Doubleday wears this black tulle dress which Lucien Lelong designed.

Paris Snapshots.

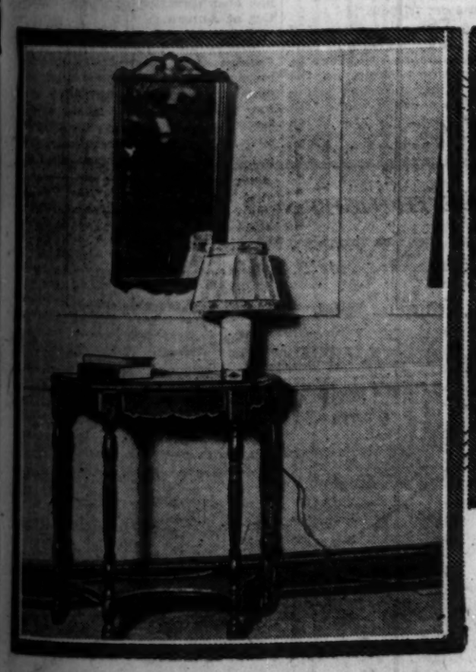
Safety chic is provided by smart French handbags, which are closed like a safe, with a dial, combination and everything.

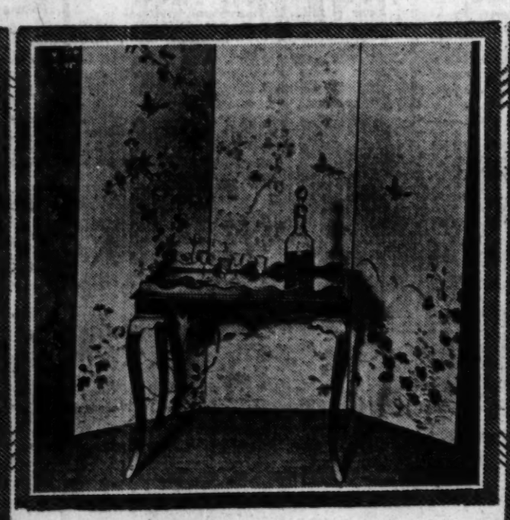
Martial et Armand are showing necklaces and bracelets that are half red coral, half crystal, with earrings that are also half-'n-half—one red, one crystal white.

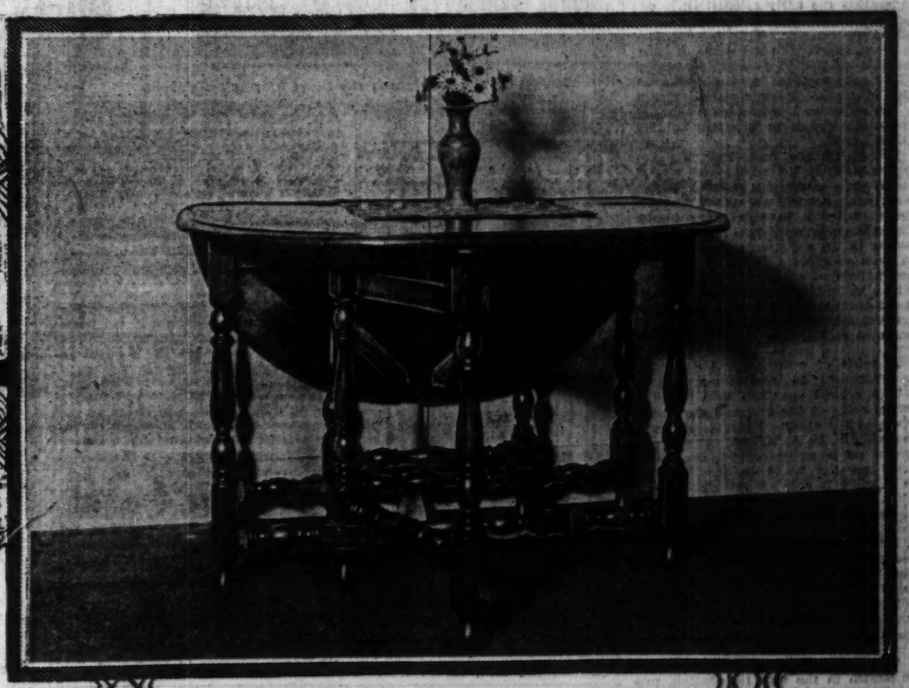
Nicole Groult has found a new place to plant the smart floral accompaniment to the smart evening gown—it is placed at the back of the right hip, and three large vari-colored flowers are the rule.

We will see less of the ladies when the winter evenings come around, for the latest Paris evening gowns have very modest decolletage and little sleeves covering the shoulder cap. Suzanne Talbot is responsible.

Attractive Tables Serve Many Purposes







By Edith Weigle.

ON one of my recent jaunts to the American Furniture Mart I was impressed with the large number of artistic tables that are being put on the market. There seems to be one for every purpose, and several left over. With so many good ones available at reasonable prices there is no longer the faintest excuse for some of the heavy, clumsy atrocities of another era. No matter how slender the bank account, you can procure something you will take great delight in because of its beauty and practicality.

Of course the gateleg table is a standby. We have had it in our homes for years and years and will continue to buy it. The reasons for its long popularity are its attractive qualities and its adaptability. It is a fine, conservative style that is perfectly safe to purchase, and it fits into many schemes of decoration. Because of its drop leaves it takes up little room and therefore is a boon to the small apartment dweller. It may be used in the living room and also as a dining table, and it looks equally attractive under a colonial mirror in an entrance hall. I think there are more uses for a gate leg table than for almost any other type I have ever heard of.

The one shown today is of mahogany, but it may be ordered in walnut or maple or almost any wood one can mention, so great is the demand for it. Its price ranges with the workmanship and the material This one is extremely reasonable.

The little console table pictured is also inexpensive and is quite charming with a lamp and several books, or a low bowl of garden flowers. The mirror above it is simple and good in design and would be appropriate to hang over it, as in the photograph.

This table is in walnut, but may easily be had in mahogany or other woods.

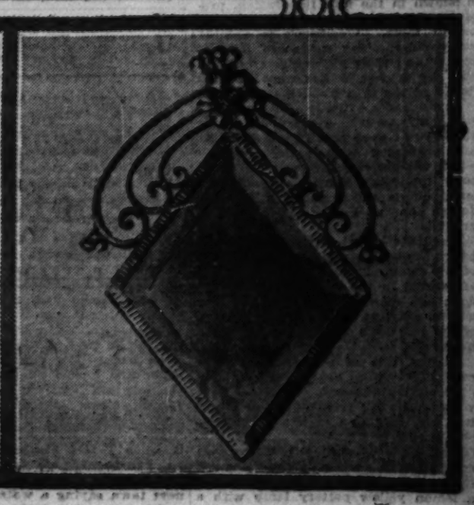
The little serving table shown before a most attractive screen is the acme of grace and delicacy. Notice the beautiful curve of the legs and the scallops around the top of the tray. Its glass surface makes it practical as well as pretty. This article is made of the best materials and its excellent workmanship speaks for itself.

It would be very nice for afternoon tea, or for after dinner coffee, or cocktails. The screen behind it is made of an imported paper in pastel tones of rose, yellow and green. I think it is quite Japanesey and lovely.

We make a jump to Italy when we look at the small black and mosaic tile stand shown above. Isn't it stunning? And I wish you could see it in the Florentine colors that make it so appealing—the mellow greens and blues and oranges and yellows that are repeated in the decorative knight's head in the center. This, of course, is just the thing for the outdoor tea-house, or the terrace, patio, or garden. In the winter it will bring color into the sun porch.

The urn or jardiniere I had photographed is a glorious shade of blue, decorated with golden festoons of flowers. It is imported from France. I have seen small boxes for cigarets of the same ware and it never fails to appeal because of its strikingly beautiful shade.

The mirror is also imported and is of a dull silvery metal. It seemed to me unusual and delightfully different because of its shape and of the curving ornamentation at the top. It would be just the thing to catch a ray of light in a dark hall or corner of a room.



MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

THE USEFUL RADIO.

It must be nice to have one's beau
Announcer on the radio. . . .
'Most any time one could rejoice
To tune right in and get his voice.
'Twould prove he's on the job.
How pat
To know just where the boy friend's at!

INFALLIBILITY.

Her voice is rough; her manner tough;
Her wit, though fresh, is canned.
I thought her crude, which goes to prove
I failed to understand. . . .
Her clothes are scant; ideas, too.
Her perfume over strong. . . .
But then, she is a modern, so,
Of course, she can't be wrong.

No soul who lived before the war
To wisdom has a claim.
They should be hustled from the scene
While youngsters run the game.
Bad art, dull books, or blundered acts
To ancestors belong.
Youth, let alone, is always right.
What's modern can't be wrong!

THE LASS WHO WAS NOT LEFT BEHIND.

Our small bay was still and blue
When a sail came slipping through;
All the town went running to the quay.
One tall sailor at the bow
Set my eyes and cheeks aglow;
He looked down across the rail and tossed a smile to me.

In the dusk he came ashore,
Near our sleepy tavern door,
Lingered on a while to hold my hand.
To be truthful and concise,
I was kissed exactly twice
Ere the bell insistently recalled him from the land.

Out his ship went with the tide.
As I watched its lights I cried. . . .
Until now I never knew a kiss.
So I haste to pack my grip—
Give this quiet cove the slip:
Off to seek a shipping port that's busier than this.

Furnishings of the Colonial Period

After All, Nothing Makes a House More Like a Home than the Comfortable and Appealing Furniture of Our Ancestors

By WillElla de Campi.

POPULARITY in certain types of furnishing and decoration waxes and wanes as the years come and go, but from generation to generation the early colonial style remains always dear to the hearts of American women. This fact is due in great measure to the sense of comfortable informality and simplicity which predominates in nearly all colonial interiors. They clearly bespeak a homelike and affectionate quality not easily found in interiors of any other period.

Today we are describing the entrance hall, living room, and dining room of a charming colonial house. Next week we will tell about the bedrooms upstairs in this same house. Though there may not be as many rooms in an apartment as there are in even so small a house as the little one portrayed today, the rooms here, which individually appeal to the apartment dweller, might serve as examples for the furnishing and decorating of her own rooms.

A spirit of welcome and cordiality is expressed in the entrance hall, where arched openings lead into the living room at one side and the dining room at the other. Paper with scenic medallions in tones of copper and green on a putty colored ground is used on the walls in the hallway. Woodwork is painted putty color. The only pieces of furniture are a simple settee placed against the stair-wall, and a handsome console table with a mirror hanging above. The mirror is flanked by brass side lights. On the console table there is a copper bowl filled always with a bouquet of mixed flowers. Carpeting for the hall and stairway is of plain tile de negre chenille.

The living room, a portion of which is shown in the first illustration, presents a spirit of hospitality and excellent taste. Woodwork is painted putty color. The walls are a trifle lighter and their plainness is relieved only by a few fine silhouettes and flower prints with black mats.

As the room extends across the full width of the house, there are triple windows at each end. Glass curtains are dispensed with entirely. Scalloped wooden cornices, painted putty color, top simple hangings of old fashioned chints which shows a flowered design on a light copper colored ground.

Exquisite floral arrangements enhance the beauty and homelike quality of the room. There is a crystal bowl of flowers in the center of each window sill. Another bouquet on the mantel shelf is doubly lovely because of its reflection in the mirror hanging behind it.

At the side of the fireplace is a comfortable wing chair upholstered in deep copper colored cloth of a coarse weave. Beside it stands a wrought iron reading lamp with a parchment shade and a little tray attachment. Opposite the wing chair is a love seat covered with glazed chints. A small tip-top table beside the love seat holds a lemon yellow pottery lamp with a yellow accordion plaited book linen shade, bound in green and copper color. A light copper colored screen with a green edging is decorated with flower prints.

Against the wall, across from the fireplace, is a sofa with a slip cover matching the window hangings. End tables hold a pair of lamps and smoking accessories. In one corner of the room is a secretary desk with a Windsor chair. This group is lighted by a wrought iron lamp with a parchment shade. Another Windsor chair, with arms, stands near one end of the sofa. Sidelights and fireplace equipment are of brass. Colorful hooked rugs are scattered on the floor.

In the dining room, at the other side of the hall, a delightful old floral paper is used on the walls. The woodwork here, too, is painted a pretty color. Cupboards decorated with the shell motif have been built into two corners, as shown in today's second illustration. The lining of the cupboards is a cool blue, which makes an excellent background for a collection of mellow old pieces of French, English, and American pewter.

Between the cupboards is a triple window set in a bay. On the wide sill there is a bowl of graceful gold fish. This is flanked by a pair of blue pottery urns filled with ever hardy holly ferns. Curtains at the windows are of yellow linen, banded with blue and green.

On the floor there is an all over patterned rug, indistinctly figured in brown and putty color. Sidelights are made of pewter. All of the furniture is maple, blending in beautifully with the general color scheme.

Dream Leads to Dog.

A friend had asked permission of our small son to take our water spaniel with him on a trip. My husband was rather displeased about it when he came home and found "Rags" gone, as Don was rather forgetful. Sure enough, when Don came home that night, he had forgotten to bring Rags back. We put "ads" in the paper and looked all over town, but couldn't find her. On the fifth night I dreamed that she came to some one's back door hungry and very tired from running. My husband laughed about it when I told him my dream, but you can imagine his surprise the next day when a lady called up from the next town saying a water spaniel answering our description and bearing our license number had come to their house that day, hungry and tired. We went right over there, and it is hard to tell which was the more pleased, the dog or my husband. Rags is eight years old and a very good hunting dog.

Warned of Catastrophe.

Some years ago my favorite brother went to South America as a mining expert. One night, [I was in England at the time] I had a terrible dream and found myself sitting up in bed, perspiration streaming from me. I had heard my brother call me, by name, three times.

A month later I received news that he had been killed by a piece of falling rock when in a mine and that his companions had heard him call my name. I had been so impressed with my dream that I had made a note of the exact time when I was awakened by my brother's voice and found, allowing for differences in time, that I had heard his call at the exact moment when he had died.

Good Manners at Home Essential

By Helen Bartlett

Superficial Politeness, Put On for an Occasion, Is Utterly Transparent to the Intelligent Observer.

It is the aim of this department to serve as a practical guide in problems of everyday etiquette. Self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Miss Helen Bartlett, Sunday Department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

IT IS surprising that so many feel that good manners are not for the home circle or the business circle—that they're to be dropped behind home and office doors, when, as a matter of fact, it is in our daily contacts with relations and intimate friends that we're apt to show to the greatest disadvantage. Superficial politeness, assumed for an occasion, is utterly transparent to the intelligent observer. Unless courtesy is inbred and constantly displayed even under the most casual circumstances, it is not real courtesy.

Rude parents probably have rude children and though some well mannered parents may be so unfortunate as to have ill mannered children, as a rule home atmosphere and training is reflected faithfully in the offspring. Good manners at home are particularly essential because they make the wheels of domestic life go smoothly and because the ability of a family to live in an atmosphere of courteous harmony is a test of its politeness under all circumstances.

Table Manners Important.

Table manners are important; from the time the baby is able to feed himself they should be drilled into him. At meals punctuality goes a long way in a family group toward promoting good humor and so does that golden rule—that topics of conversation should be general, not personal.

Respect of the privacy of others is equally important—and this extends to their affairs as well as their time. Letters, and all comment on them, belong to the person to whom they are written.

Closed doors should be respected—knock if you must enter. The little sister sitting in when the older sisters entertain their beaux is awfully funny in the comic strip; but the

A respect for other people's possessions in a home where little sister isn't reprimanded for her bad manners.

A respect of other people's possessions should be inculcated in every member of the family. Among growing children this can be a point of friction that brews violent storms. The civility of asking before appropriating even the most trifling of others' possessions should be strongly advocated in homes, even where the most easygoing companionship prevails.

Quarreling Is Uncivilized.

Bickering or quarrelling in a family is uncivilized. Husbands and wives should be extremely careful both at home and when out together, but they should be doubly careful in the presence of their children. Neither parents nor children should be funny at the expense of each other, nor take nor borrow belongings. Fair play, self-control and unselfishness practiced at all times will create an enviable atmosphere of peace in the family circle.

Answers to Etiquette Questions.

"Should a divorced woman wear her rings?" L. M.

A divorced woman can continue to wear her rings; most divorced women do, unless they get their own names back. If she should happen to hate her former husband she'd probably hate wearing any gifts of his, but if a reminder of the past isn't unpleasant she would continue to wear her rings. Her own feelings about the rings should guide her disposal of them.

"What is the etiquette about sending out announcements of a secret wedding? E. K."

When they desire to make the news known they may send out announcements in the ordinary form. After a long time, though, it seems to me better taste to let the news get about gradually than to send announcements such as are sent immediately after conventional weddings.

"1. Does the bride's mother wear a long sleeved dress at a home wedding in December? Does she wear a hat? 2. Are invitations addressed to younger members of a family? 3. Is it correct for the bride's father to wear a dark business suit instead of a tuxedo? 4. Are children invited to the reception? 5. How are wedding gifts acknowledged and how soon after receiving them should acknowledgment be sent? V. R."

1. A long sleeved gown would be best for the bride's mother. She does not wear a hat. 2. Individual invitations are sent to the grown members of a family, not to children. 3. "Tuxedos" are never correct for weddings. If the wedding is small and informal the bride's father may wear a business suit, but if the bride wears a veil the men should wear formal dress. For an afternoon wedding this would be formal afternoon wear or the compromise costume described several times in this column. If the wedding is a formal evening one, full evening dress is worn. 4. No, children are not invited to the reception, but if close relatives wish to bring their children they may. The children should be of a responsible age, however, not little tots. 5. Gifts are acknowledged by notes of thanks, written by the bride and sent out as fast as the gifts come in, if possible.

"I am a widow of 35, have no family and plan to marry. The wedding will be quiet but I wish to send out announcements. How should they be worded? E. B."

The correct form is this:

Mrs. John Barton Baily
and
Mr. James Huntington announce their marriage on Monday, the tenth of June.
Evanston, Illinois.

But some women, and men too, feel strongly about the incongruity of having the woman use her title, that is, her former husband's name, on the announcement of her marriage to another man. They insist that the woman's name read "Mrs. Helen Baily." This is not correct, strictly speaking, but is frequently used.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Suits Make a Highly Colored Narrative

Wide Range of Woolens and Bright Tones Are Going to Create a Jolly Autumn Season.

By Lolita.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Anybody who can tell the difference between a suit and an ensemble ought not to be wasting her talents on private life. She is entitled to at least the post of St. James.

Frankly I admit that such subtlety of intellect is quite beyond me. Often I stand in front of an autumn costume with the gaping jaws of a rustic in the presence of the bearded lady of the circus. All I know is that there is a skirt with matching wrap and a blouse of contrasting material.

Call them what you will—these autumn creations—they are new and surprising. One of their chief charms lies in the wide range of woolens employed. Chief among these is tweed, but even that falls in specific information. What, in fact, does one mean by tweed in this year of the fashion gyrations? Is it feather woven or jersey woven? Is it nubbed or flecked? Is it highly colorful or demure of aspect? These and a hundred other questions have to be asked concerning just this one type of woolen suiting.

Speaking in general there is a pronounced tendency in present day woolens toward the nubbed and flecked effects. Also, do we find many of the new suits bright as a hippodrome set. Dahlia shades—those rich reds sponsored this year by Patou—the fashionable bottle and emerald greens; the vivid blues—all these have come to relieve our blacks, browns, and navy blues.

The beautiful intricate Rodier materials are exploited in many of the more costly suits. So for formal wear is broadcloth, especially black broadcloth. Velvet is another smart avenue of suit expression. And with these is a fitting representation of twills, reps, and covert cloths. Kasha weaves are also among those present. Altogether, Fashion is ready to humor you in any little fabric preferences you may have formed.

All this does not refer to our text. That which constitutes the puzzling element in the suit situation is the length of the jacket, for many of these "jackets" are in reality coats. Thus a number of the new Paquin suits incorporate wraps which are seven-eighths lengths. The fact of it is that the wrap of your new suit may be short or it may be long, as something you have to translate from Latin.

In form it is equally protean. Many of the longer coats obey the new dictate of a raised waistline and a molded bodice. Paquin, for example, finishes a number of the seven-eighths wraps just mentioned with a belt, either complete or partial. But as against these here is a formidable array of jackets and coats that swing loose and unbelted from the shoulder.

Furs are as capricious as the jackets which they trim. Side by side in one collection you encounter a brown suit set off with black seal and a brown suit set off with reddish fox. In other words, the classic encounter between the long and the short of it in furs is not by any means settled. Both formal and informal suits waver between the two.

In saying this, however, one should not be unmindful of the stellar rôle played by black astrakhan this season. One of the most beautiful imported suits of black broadcloth I have seen is trimmed with this short pelt. And similarly is astrakhan functioning on a group of exclusive Parisian coats of identical material and color.

But before dismissing the autumnal moods of the jackets let us not forget a few significant innovations. Among these is a kimono or raglan sleeve occasionally introduced by the French creators—among others Schiaperelli. Still another adventure in contours is supplied by Renee in a new group comprising many wool velours and velveteen models. These are bloused into a molded hip band and are frequently accompanied by blouses, either tuck-in or tunic, of ottoman silk or silk crêpe.

Every year there is one prevailing blouse idea. Today nearly every style expert just returned from Paris is full of themes of the satin blouse of tuck-in persuasion. These blouses going under the eclipse of the popular yoked skirt supply one of the drastic novelties of the tweed suit or ensemble.

When it comes to more formal types the vogue of the tunic blouse must be reiterated. Here, too, the chosen material is frequently satin, but in this province of the blouse the dominion of this fabric is threatened by flat crêpe, by ribbed silks, moiré and any number of novelty weaves introducing a touch of metal.

Wide is the gamut of the autumn sports suit. Suppose that we start with Jane Regny, who frequently makes the skirts of her sports costumes dipping perhaps five inches in the back, and proceed from her to more conservative interpretations. If we do this we are bound to be confronted, not by any revolution in silhouette, but by an emphasis on bold colors startling to us who are timid of soul.

No, one dare not be color-shy, this year. Don't entertain the idea of a brilliant orange and green sports costume as the elderly spinster entertains the one beau of the village—by moving away off to the other edge of the sofa. For the pastel tones are more or less discountenanced this season. Therefore, go out and buy your sports apparel with the heart of a lion.

A good example of such daring effects is supplied by Chanel. This eminent French creator shows suits illustrating all that latitude of spirit in jacket lengths which I have dwelt upon so feelingly. Chez Channel the wrap may be the usual jacket length, cardigan length or three quarters. For these suits in sports versions she is partial to all sorts of colorful diagonal and wavy lines and still she continues her trick of making the blouse of the suit fabric, varying the effect by a contrasted direction of the stripes.

But the main blouse resource here is either satin or tricot and in this element of the costume she finds opportunity for those bold contrasts of color just described. A gray tweed suit with a brilliant fruity red satin tuck-in blouse, an orange suit with a white satin blouse—one may multiply such vividness ad infinitum and still have more room for conversation. Chanel, by the way, diversifies her tuck-in themes by straight jumpers executed either in tricot or satin. These latter frequently button down the front.

One of the outstanding notes of interest in the new suits is the fashion, introduced in Paris this year, of matching culottes. Still another is that of the matching millinery. Thus the famous house of Worth showed this year in connection with their tweed suits accompanying tweed hats. Aside from such definite repetition of the cloth in our bonnet we find the vogue of flat hats ministering to the general cause of suit harmony.

When the suit be trimmed with some pliable flat fur, this trimming is often echoed in one of the numerous new millinery models using encrustations of fur, often upon a felt background. The cause of the matched accessory may be furthered still more by a muff of the same pelt. Incidentally, one must mention again the fact that the autumn is filled with sets consisting of hat and muff.

Today we have sketched a number of fall suits revealing some of the current suit theories. At the extreme left is a street costume composed of one of the new Rodier materials. This has as the predominant color note that bottle green which is being so widely featured, and its weave is elaborated by a suggestion of metal. This metal is repeated in the bands decorating a satin blouse of a very light tint of green. With these tones the fitch trimming of the jacket forms a perfect alliance.

The second suit is a golden brown tweed under the loose fitted jacket of which is concealed a tuck-in blouse of beige satin. An interesting reflection upon the present day treatment of fur trimming is cast by the shaped border and cuffs, together with the high standing collar of brown squirrel. A hat of soleil matching the fur indicates the new sharply turned back brim balanced on the other side by a lengthened brim.

A good illustration of how the fashionable pin stripes and wavy stripes, so prominent in the fall collection, may be turned to the greatest possible advantage is demonstrated by our third sketch. Here is a navy blue woolen material with a pin stripe of white, and before we are through with mention of that material let us not omit the prominence of navy blue this season. On every side we find witnesses to this vogue in suits, coats, and frocks.

But to go back to the manipulation of stripes. You see the counterpoint effect going on in an inset band of the jacket and further in the inset front panel of the skirt. But the greatest opportunity for variety is offered by the skirt yoke, which, as you see, is a constant play between contrasted directions of the stripes. Black caracul is administered to the loose jacket in narrow bands. The costume is completed by a tuck-in blouse of white satin. A navy felt bonnet shows a brim of white felt.

Our final model is an exceedingly tailored one with conventional short jacket nipped in at the waist. It chooses beige tweed interwoven with bright orange and selects as its complement a tuck-in of striped woolen material showing alternate stripes of emerald green, orange, and beige. The scarf matches this blouse and the hat of brown felt echoes the bindings of dark brown on the jacket.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Large sketches—The beautiful alliance of fitch and the new street color of bottle green is illustrated in a suit of Rodier material employing a thread of gold in its weave. The blouse of light green satin is trimmed with the same gold. Next, a golden brown tweed set off with squirrel conceals a tuck-in blouse of beige satin.

The third model shows a navy background with white pin stripe adroitly contrasted as to direction in both skirt and jacket. Bands of black caracul and a tuck-in blouse of white satin complete the picture. Next, a tailored model in beige tweed flecked with orange is bound in dark brown and complemented by a tuck-in blouse of striped woolen matched by a scarf.

Accessories. Left—That the blouse as well as the jacket may be belted is indicated in a blouse of flat crepe trimmed with shaped pieces.

Right—The pull gloves with side openings show modernistic appliques in three tones. Two buckles finish the strapping on a bag of beige suede with appliques of brown leather.

Treating a Common Beauty Ill

The Cause of Halitosis Must Be Found; Then It Is Usually Simple to Cure It

by Antoinette Donnelly

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It is suggested by a well known medical man that the very tendency in people to refrain from discussing such subjects as disagreeable odors of body and breath leads to a greater number of victims. The theory is that discussing the subject under becoming circumstances, of course, would lead to enlightenment and, in many cases, simple measures of remedy would be sufficient.

Sensible people, the medical expert says, should familiarize themselves with the conditions that provoke unpleasant odors, and if questions must be asked to obtain information, they should be asked frankly and eagerly.

Of the unpleasant odor of the breath, our authority says it is a condition from which every one suffers at some period of life for a short time, and in some degree fairly often, so that one making inquiries need not feel himself a social outcast. The subject, studied and treated by the bureau of public health service at Washington in one of its valuable pamphlets, suggests four main causes of halitosis, namely:

First—unhealthy, diseased, or unhygienic conditions of the mouth and nose; second, certain diseases of the lungs; third, the use of alcohol and tobacco; fourth, toxic conditions, particularly those affecting the digestive tract, including all grades of autointoxication and even simple indiscretions in diet.

Illness Provokes It.

Acute illness provokes a temporary halitosis. In any illness, it is advised that the mouth, teeth, and tongue be kept scrupulously clean, otherwise serious, even disastrous complications may follow as a result of the neglect of this measure. If the patient is too ill or too young to attend the cleansing of his mouth and teeth, it must be done for him.

"As causes of halitosis," our authorities report, "diseases of the nose and of the nasal bones, chronic catarrh of the nose and chronic inflammation of the tonsils are noted and these affections should lead one to consult his physician without delay."

In the majority of cases, however, the cause need be sought no further than the mouth. Such conditions as tartar on the teeth, septic gums, and decaying teeth and food particles left in the mouth are prime offenders. Food particles should be removed from between sound teeth even, and if this cannot be done with a brush, and often it cannot, dental floss should be used, and a mouth wash or rinse should close the tooth brushing performance. Particles of food often lodge in the crypts of the tonsils, and, decaying, give rise to halitosis.

A condition of the mouth, suspected to be an associate of pyrrohea, and described as an inflammatory affection of the mucous membrane of the mouth, is a frequent cause of halitosis. There are many causes of inflammation of the mouth, we are told by the surgeon general of the public health bureau, but the simpler ones are a jagged tooth, a rough filling, a broken or ill fitting plate, or a small portion of an extracted tooth left under the plate.

Pyorrhea, or that condition in which pus pockets form around the roots of the teeth, is a common cause of halitosis, and a condition which will lead to serious consequences if neglected.

Other Causes.

"When no local condition exists which would account for the condition of the breath," we are informed, "and when there is no acute or chronic systemic disease present, it will be found usually that halitosis is due to some disturbance of the digestive function. Among such disturbances may be mentioned dyspepsia and the fermentation in the intestinal tract of partially digested food. Furthermore, it will be found often that halitosis is due to the fact that the alimentary canal does not function with that degree of regularity and sufficiency which is so necessary to our well being."

A cause upon which, indeed, there might well be felt a sensitiveness anent admission is—overeating. It is a real and a common fault, our health authorities report. When over-indulgence in food is associated with insufficient exercise and this is further complicated by loss of sleep and neglect of other hygienic measures, the effect is much increased.

What happens, as described in the health bureau's pamphlet, is, in the first place, that the digestive organs do not complete the process of digestion. Improper, even poisonous, substances, are absorbed in quantities too great to be changed in the liver into harmless substances. These must be eliminated from the body, and when the other excretory organs, including the skin, are overworked, the lungs are used in the process of elimination and the breath is exhaled charged with malodorous compounds.

Locate the Cause.

The remedy? Locating the cause, first. If it cannot be done alone, the help of a physician and dentist should be solicited. If there exist unhealthy or diseased conditions of the mouth, the nose or the tonsils, these conditions must be corrected by your physician. If there exist diseased conditions of the teeth or gums, these must be corrected by the dentist. Systematic disease, naturally, must be presented to the physician for relief.

"Let us suppose," says the bulletin, "that none of these conditions exist but that halitosis is still present. Ignoring tobacco and alcohol, for obvious reasons, it may be said that the treatment of halitosis, when not associated with actual disease, resolves itself into scrupulous care of the teeth and careful attention to the diet, and to other hygienic measures, avoiding excesses in eating, especially of proteins, particularly when taken with excessive quantities of starches and sugars. Substitute for some of your meals such articles of food as fruits and vegetables, particularly the citrus fruits and lettuce, tomatoes, slaw, celery and other like substances. Take plenty of outdoor exercise and plenty of sleep and a daily bath."

The true preventive, then, is to keep oneself physically fit, for the sufferer from halitosis usually experiences vitality, energy and efficiency away below what they should be. They are not necessarily sick persons—but they are not thoroughly well persons, either. Not as happy as they might be, and their happiness is in further jeopardy from the ostracism that is likely to befall them if the halitosis goes on uncorrected.

Makes Silk Slips.

I make adorable skirts from the silk slips belonging to wornout dresses. I dye the silk, if desired, and trim the bottom either with ecru footing or a ruffle of the material.

They are much cooler than an extra slip when the dress and its matching slip are too transparent, or for wearing under a dress that has a bodice top to the skirt. C. B. R.

Saved Letters.

A wealthy boss I worked for many years saved every letter sent to him. As only one side had been used, he would cut them as they were folded—each letter making six pieces of scrap paper. These were kept in an oblong baking pan on his desk.

He was always well supplied with scribbling paper and never bought a pad while I worked for him.

A Millionaire's Economy.

An elderly woman, a millionaire, would always wait till Concord grapes got cheap before she bought any, and then would save all the seeds, wash and dry them for the janitor's children to use in their bean blowers on Halloween. I call this economy in the first degree. J. L. W.

Planned for the Child's Comfort

Mrs. Bevans Tells How to Make a Chair and Table Easily at Home.

Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

AMONG my possessions at camp is a treasure. Some day I am going to give it to a museum—the Housewife's museum [when there is one].

This treasure is a frying pan. It has a special kind of hollow handle which is stamped plainly "cold handle." It was this stamp that made us buy it. And it is this stamp that makes us keep it because—you use it for your bacon or scrambling your eggs and the handle becomes and remains—frightfully hot. In fact, being of a trusting disposition, the first time I ever used it I had to choose between dropping it instantly on the floor full of sizzling bacon, or getting a badly burned hand. "Cold handle," indeed!

Some man invented it, I suppose, for women to use, as is the case with practically all household equipment. Women, who are the only ones who know their intimate household problems, should take a hand.

What made me think of this was some modern little children's furniture that I was shown the designs of not long ago. It was beautiful but was not built for the general every day, all-around uses of an almost-baby. It was designed by a man. Women who are mothers should take a hand here.

What was true of these beautiful designs is true of much of the little children's furniture. It is often dainty, often appealing, but when you come to consider the chairs and tables especially, they are not eminently fitted for this all-around, every day, knock-about, varied and hard usage to which a child puts a table and chair. Now, if you want to buy these for looks and for occasional use, all right. But do have something that answers all the other purposes.

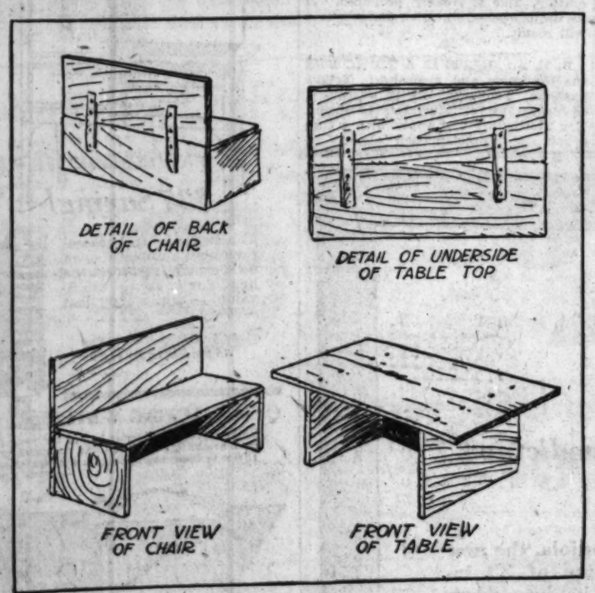
A Seat From Boxes.

Unless your shopping experience is different from mine you won't find a chair and table that fills all little child's needs. You might have it designed by some one who knows both children and furniture—but would be difficult and expensive.

So, instead, why not make it yourself? Or if your men folks are "handy men," turn the simple job over to them. The directions follow:

Although later I carried out this design with better materials and workmanship, the first table and chair I worked out with boxes, getting my inspiration from the fact that the very young man they were made for, when he was in the kitchen always sat on a small wooden box that groceries were delivered in.

Because this original plan will bring the chair and table within the means of any one at all, I will give the design in terms of boxes, though it could be carried out by a cabinet-maker in a more finished way. At the time this set was made the little boy was about 3 years old, so those are the measurements that will be given.



The box for the seat was sixteen inches long, ten inches deep and eleven inches high. It was used lengthwise. The front and bottom were knocked away, making a place for small feet to tuck under.

For the back of the seat a piece of twelve inch wide planking was used. A piece was cut the length of the box—sixteen inches. This was held in position by using two short lengths of stripping nailed on like cleats—as shown in the sketch.

How to Make a Table.

For the table was used, also lengthwise, a box of similar proportions but about two inches longer, two inches wider, and five inches higher. Your child may need a little different height. It will depend on the proportions of his body.

The front and base of this box were knocked away. The table top was made of two lengths of the same twelve-inch boards that we happened to have in the yard. These two pieces were each 28 inches long. The edges that meet should be planed so they meet without a crack—important sanitary detail! These were nailed together with two short strips of wood on the under side, spaced so as to clear the box foundation when it is nailed on.

That is all—and any point not clear in the description can be understood from the sketch.

The dimensions you need may not be exactly the same as these given, but you can vary them a little to suit your baby's size. Remember that three things must be right: the height of the seat from the floor, the depth of the seat from front to back, and the height of the table above the chair.

To test for these three points, let your toddling baby sit down comfortably on the chair with his feet on the floor. Put your fingers under his legs in the bend of his knees. The tendons and muscles under there should now be soft, that is, relaxed. Now push up the table. He should be able to rest his forearms on it without hunching or drooping. Try out your boxes this way before you begin work.

Sandpaper the Lumber.

Now, as to finish. Most boxes or lumber need sandpapering to prevent splinters getting into the children's hands. Also corners and edges should be sandpapered so they are well rounded. A sharp corner is a danger to small children. Of course the more sandpapering you do the better your job and the better it will take paint or stain and varnish.

It is well to finish these two pieces in such a way that the child can use the table for anything with comfort and freedom from reproof, because it can be easily washed.

As to color—if the set is to be used in a nursery you will probably want it painted a light color. If it is to be used in the living room soft greens or blues or even black, look well with a band of color on all the edges. If you have a flair for decorating and a knack with the paint brush you may want to enhance its appearance with a design of some sort. But whatever you do, make it washable. Remember it is primarily for use. Waterproof varnish is a great ally, and should be the finishing touch.

Its Merits.

Finished—the little set has these virtues: It is solid and not easily tipped. The chair has length because a small child likes to move around freely on a seat. The top is large enough for a child to spread out large picture books, large sheets of paper and crayons, to play with blocks or the smaller toys and to use for his cozy little luncheon or supper.

For the house with cold or draughty floors it is invaluable, as a child can really play on it.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel,

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

WOMEN who are looking for a dress that is different from the ordinary, and has decided chic, will find it in pattern No. 2776. It has the important scarf neckline, the latest thing in a design for all day wear, made of one of the lovely silk crêpes. It affects princess lines through the molded bodice and flaring skirt that shows the novel up-in-the-side movement. The sleeves are full length and made close fitting by means of a dart up the outside.

This won't be a difficult dress to make—on the contrary it should be easy and most interesting. The bodice is cut in two parts and the front is slightly shirred at the normal waistline, giving a swathed effect there, while the lower edge is cut long at the right side, curving up to a point a little to the left of the center. Of course the skirt at the top is cut to fit this irregular line, sloping out quite sharply towards the bottom, resulting in a very graceful circular shape. The skirt at the back gores out slightly at the lower edge, but the effect is quite straight. The bodice at the bottom is, of course, long on the right side, sloping up to meet the front at the left.

The collar is laid in a couple of plaits at the ends, the plaited jabot being attached to the right end of the collar. The diagonal line of the neck gives a dressy appearance to the dress. For size 36 the dress at the bottom measures about 1⅞ yards. Made of one of the printed silk crêpes, with the scarf of plain crêpe, this dress would be just the thing for afternoon tea or bridge. Georgette crêpe, chiffon, crêpe Elizabeth, and crêpe satin are suitable fabrics from which to select.

Pattern No. 2774 is for a dress that copies the older mode in the double tiered skirt belted at a normal waistline. The simple bodice with bateau neck trimmed with an applied band having loose hanging ends is quite a favorite with the younger generation. And it is no wonder, for while it is girlish it is also smart and sophisticated. The full length sleeves are gathered at the wrists and set into narrow, fitted bands.

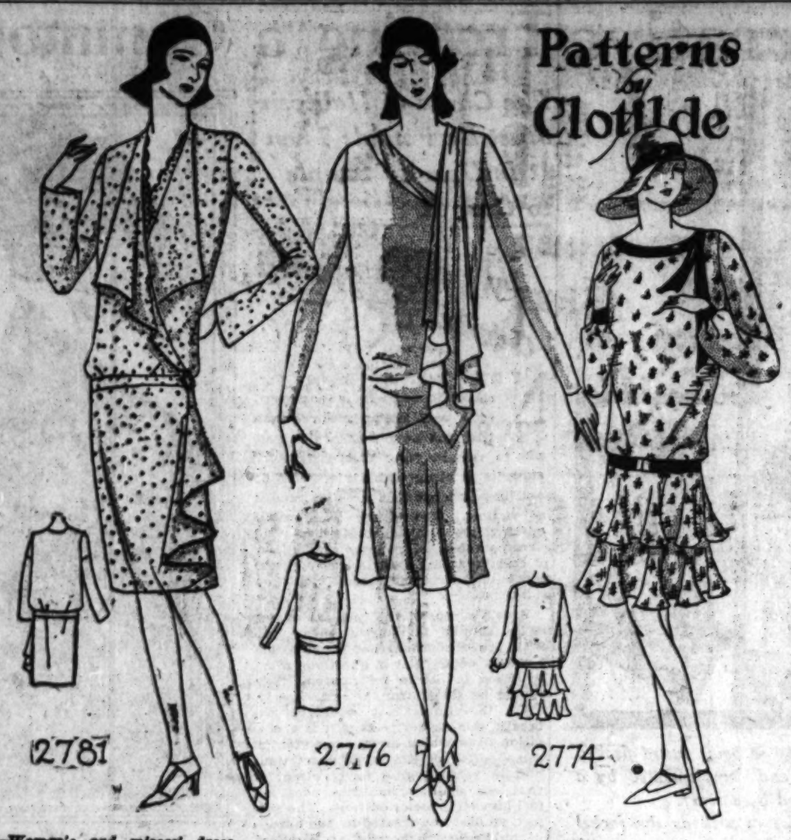
Notches on the ruffles and skirt show just how they are to be put together, and picoting or binding will be the way to finish the lower edges.

The neck band must be carefully handled in putting on, so as not to stretch it. It is seamed at the shoulders and these seams pressed open flat. After it has been seamed to the neck, clip the seam edge at close intervals all along before turning to the right side. Take time to turn in the lower edge of the band evenly and baste down carefully, for any irregularity will show. Then stitch close to the edge.

Navy blue silk crêpe with tiny white polka dots, using plain navy silk crêpe for the contrast, will be both serviceable and pretty, and wool crêpe, challis, taffeta, crêpe de chine, and organdy are all of them suitable materials.

Pattern No. 2781 is a smart model which will surely appeal to many women. The waist and skirt each with a straight, plain back are joined at a low waistline. The front of the skirt closes in surplice fashion and has jabot revers that fall from the shoulders. These are gracefully shaped and will add greatly to the chic appearance of the dress as a whole.

A clever plait arrangement in the three piece, wrap around skirt, forming a cascading drapery, contributes to the animation of the hemline. One piece, full length sleeves, slightly flared at the wrists, and a narrow belt of the dress material, complete the dress. Where the jabot ends at the waist line an ornamental buckle is sewed in place, and a scalloped linen or chiffon vestee completes the neck finish. This is a dress that can be worn on the street, or for informal afternoon affairs; and georgette crêpe, plain or prinaed silk crêpe, Canton crêpe, and crêpe de chine are among the suitable materials.



2781—Women's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 40 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch for the vestee.

2776—Women's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material.

2774—Junior's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 40 inch material with ⅛ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

FRIEND IN NEED

If You Have Outgrown Clothing and Shoes, Why Not Send Them to Children Who Are Poorly Clad?

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

By Sally Joy Brown.

WITH September half gone and the children at school, the promise of autumn makes us all realize a new season is here! It is a season of happiness for most of us—renewed zest for work—and it is also a season for preparation for winter—and that is where our chance to create a lot of happiness arises!

If you have children in the family undoubtedly you found when you got out their school clothes that some of the garments had been outgrown and new ones had to be bought, so they were outfitted and trudged off for another year with their books and exercises.

Meanwhile what have you done with the outgrown clothing and shoes? Here is one thing you can do—it will mean a lot and meet real worries and problems! While your children are marching away to school happy and well provided for throughout the city there are any number of girls and boys who have not been able to start back for lack of clothing, or who are going but very shabbily clad. In fact, their parents, fathers, many of whom have been ill, and widowed mothers are utterly unable to provide for them.

Now won't the hats, shoes, and clothing your children have outgrown be just the thing for these less fortunate children? Among them must be many garments which your children have outgrown before they were worn out. Frayed edges can be turned in, perhaps, and a good garment made for a younger child—half soles on shoes with good uppers can still give a lot of service. Almost any family in comfortable circumstances has something that will help. So you see there's a lot we can do—and with articles easily spared. Won't you write and let me know, then, what you can give, and we'll get a flying start toward keeping the children well, happy, and comfortable for the fall and winter?

Mother Wants Canary.

"Do you think you could secure a canary for a young mother who has just lost her 2 year old daughters? She has so many doctor's bills and the funeral expense does not allow her to purchase any but the barest necessities. She will give it excellent care.

"MRS. C. W."

Isn't there some person that has a lively singing canary they would like to pass on to this brokenhearted mother to dispel her loneliness? She would be most happy to have it and it would cheer her immensely.

Baby Buggy for Two.

"Do you know of any one who has a large, strong baby buggy they are no longer using, that will hold 2 children? My husband has been ill in bed and there are 7 children in the family to be cared for so you see I cannot afford to buy one. I will be most grateful to any one who can help me.

"MRS. W."

Now that your children have outgrown their own baby buggy I know you will be happy to assist Mrs. W. with a baby carriage. She is a worthy little woman and is not strong enough to carry them about.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work by Clotilde

The Spanish Sailor Is Back Again and with It Comes a New Angle for Wearing Smart Hats

THE Spanish colorings have been so strong in millinery in Paris for the last two seasons that they have begun their trend over here, and with them bring the Spanish straight rim sailor hat, which every woman just adored when they were in vogue. These sailors come in black for the background, while the trimming is in red or red and yellow.

The hat shown is of black felt and has two cut ostrich pom-poms, one on the right side on top of the brim and the other underneath the brim. The top pom-pom is in yellow, while the other is red.

The brims of the sailor are made in two widths, two and one-half inches wide or three and one-half inches wide. The side crown is four inches deep and the top of the flat crown measures eight inches from front to back. Felt is about the only successful material to make these sailors of, as straws get floppy from wear and dampness, even though they are wired.

This sailor is not to be worn pulled down over the eyes, but is given that tilted line which is characteristic of the Spanish, either masculine or feminine. This line offers one of the most radical changes in millinery that has been noted for a long time. Hats of recent vogue have been made with the regular brims, one side draperies and cut over the eyebrow effects—all with a tendency to produce a slanting line, so the sailor is quite the first daring step to produce a tilt over the right eye.

Little matador turbans made of red or yellow tricot banding are shown, but are not considered as practical as the trimming touch of the Spanish colors on black. Wide black lace used on dressy hats has a tendency to imitate the Spanish mantilla also.

What Your Birth Date Tells

By Nathalie Aldrich.

IF YOU WERE born between or on Jan. 20 and Jan. 28 in any year whatsoever, you have some of the characteristics of both of these months, Capricorn (January) and Aquarius (February). You are from a numerological standpoint a mixture of the qualities belonging to the numbers 10 and 11.

This cusp is considered the chief business cusp. The men born on any of these days, in any year, have exactness, method, ingenuity, and cool headedness in calculation and performance. The volatile temperament of Aquarius is beautifully balanced by the steadiness and accuracy of the January influence. Women of this month can speculate to advantage, build, keep boarders, in fact, run any kind of establishment with ease and success.

Philanthropic work is much sought by these Capricorn-Aquarian people; but they soon tire of anything that causes them to neglect their own affairs. There is sometimes considerable selfishness at this point, with great pride in social and intellectual triumphs. These people are sometimes generous in what might be called a spasmodic and eccentric way, sometimes giving a great deal where others do not donate at all, and again withholding where others do give. Their business ability, together with their marked ideas about economy, as a rule, insure them plenty of money.

They are definitely talkers, and they love to entertain.

The birthday of the person, together with his name as a whole, will show other gifts besides these basic birth-month ones, and will designate which can be followed with the most successful results.

February.

People born between Jan. 28 and Feb. 19 in any year come under the astrological sign of Aquarius, the water bearer, and numerologically under the number 11. It is a human, rational, obeying, speaking sign, with higher attributes of soul and memory.

It is said to be both the weakest and the strongest of the signs. Its people can be either creatures of impulse, without equilibrium, blown about by every wind and every doctrine, or they can rise to great heights of strength and usefulness. The earth has now entered the Aquarian age, and unusual and noble things are expected of the Aquarian or February people.

The Aquarians have a remarkable gift for healing which can be expressed by them in different ways—by their voices or by their touch, or by the effect of their kind hearts. They are said to be more able to control the insane than those born at any other time.

The people of this month are given to making engagements which they have no intention of keeping, and of saying things which they actually do not mean. Highly strung nervously, they possess good judgment, keen intuition, and a pleasing, rather hypnotic eye.

The Aquarian is an excellent judge of human nature, succeeds in politics, is a convincing speaker, and has a fine and most redeeming sense of humor. He is ambitious to acquire and possess knowledge, and is well fitted to present and teach it, through the fields of writing, lecturing, or direct teaching. Beyond everything is he interested in making continually a new beginning, and in doing everything in a different way.

February-March.

People born on or between Feb. 19 and Feb. 25, in any year, are influenced partly by Aquarius (February) and partly by Pisces (March), astrologically speaking, and are, according to numerology, under the numbers 11 and 12.

They are peculiar people in that they keep their business engagements most conscientiously and live up to their obligations with clients and customers, and yet have little conscience about social promises. They are usually honorable people and intend to carry truth and justice into everything they do, but, being obliging, they make many promises they do not wish to actually carry out, and when the time comes they simply stay away from the social affair, feeling that it makes no difference to any one, that they will not be missed, that no one will care.

They are good-natured people, usually well dressed with good taste, though sometimes their almost inordinate love for color leads them into some startling combinations.

These Aquarius-Pisces born are fond of talking about their achievements, and are not apt to tell of their failures, disappointments, or troubles.

There are some quite heartless coquettes born during this time, and there are many unhappy marriages among the Aquarius-Pisces. When happily married, these people are among the most joyous in existence.

The Careless Rider.

By Eleanor Jewett.

Perhaps there are some little men
Who ride the sky by night,
With stars for lanterns in their hand
To light them in their flight.

Perhaps there are some little men
Who tame the wind for steed,
And ride the calm and ride the storm
With the stars a'flame, at need—

Perhaps there is one little man
That drops his lantern down,
A shooting star! but he must weep
Where he rides above our town.

When my brother Donald was 3, he had his first pair of B. V. D.'s.

"Am I a big boy now, Mamma?" he asked.

My mother assured him he was.

Later in the day she heard him ask some of the boys if he could play baseball with them. They told him, no, he wasn't big enough yet.

"I am, too!" he yelled. "I've got my big boy underwear on!" C. C.

I sent my son, Earl, on an errand to Uncle Fred's home. Upon his arrival there he called to him and uncle answered, "Yes, I am coming."

Uncle thought he had gone home, but instead he was still at the screen door and finally grew tired of waiting and pleadingly said, "Won't you please say 'Come in'?" W. B.

Mother asked Ted: "What do you mean, talking to your sister that way?" Ted, a little abashed, replied: "We're playing I'm a traffic cop, ma." D. D.

My husband bought our little son, Franklin, a new red coaster wagon for his birthday, and the little fellow hastened out to try it on the cement walk. Mrs. Jones, a childless widow, who lives in the middle of the block, resented the encroachment of families with children, and telephoned to me that under no circumstances would she stand "for the rattle and racket past her door again."

The little fellow was sitting on the lower step of the front porch with the wagon beside him, a few mornings ago, when a car stopped at the curb. A man leaned out and called:

"Sonny, can you tell me where Mrs. Jones lives?"

"Her lives there," pointed Sonny, "but I wiss her didn't."

THE OTHER MAN'S WIFE

by RONALD MILLER

Destiny Decreed That John Stevenson Should Fight Side by Side with the Man Who Married the Girl He Loved, and That Only One of the Two Should Come Back Alive.

"Damn sniper got me," he muttered, still smiling.

WHERE girls were concerned John Stevenson had always lacked wisdom. That's how the shrine where he kept his private idols came to be dedicated to the image of another man's wife.

Her name was Joan. Whenever Stevenson looked directly into the face of his dream, he saw grave, delicate features, and under a halo of brown hair, blue eyes dancing to a tune that mystified him.

This sentimental trouble began one evening at Long Island country club several months before Joan's marriage. He had known her a week, had played tennis once, gone swimming once, and just danced once with her.

Some one cut into his dance, so he came out to smoke a cigaret in the dark of the veranda. As he stared across the golf course where the fireflies were winking, he got a glimpse behind the curtain of his secret shrine.

They were gone, his earlier little goddesses—the pale madonna with the dark hair who had always stood on a pedestal, and the warm golden Eve who had taught him the sweetness of clay. High above their twin altars he saw the grave face with the dancing eyes, just as it had looked five minutes ago in the ballroom when Joan slipped from his arms with a parting glance.

Naturally Stevenson never said poetic trash like that, even to himself, for he was tall and husky, with light hair, gray eyes, and excellent health. But he felt that way, just the same.

Back in the ballroom he recaptured Joan. The party was brightening up—paper caps, colored streamers, toy balloons—but not for Stevenson.

"Let's get out of this mob," he said. "These amateur comedians make me sick."

"Why so glum, Steve?" asked Joan with that same funny look.

Ten days before he had caused extreme pain to the house committee by organizing a riotous track and field meet on the fairway of No. 1 hole at 3 a. m., moonlight. But now——

"I get tired of all this nonsense," he said.

From which it is plain that Stevenson took his love seriously—a tactical blunder, even in the summer of 1916.

Seriously—and silently—he continued for the next week to swim and play tennis with Joan. At times he felt that some vague understanding existed between them, mostly when she walked with him alone talking of casual, impersonal things.

Under one of these spells, he kissed her one night at the door of the summer cottage where she lived with her mother. It was a solemn sort of kiss, concealing violent excitement. Of course, he didn't say anything—just waited for whatever might happen.

Joan, herself, remained silent for some time. Finally she said, "Steve, you're funny."

Back he went into his shell. What did that mean? He couldn't see her face. "Good night," he said, and walked away to think it over.

WHEN he returned to his law work in New York at the end of the second week he was still wondering. He tried to laugh at himself and think of other things, with no success. Well, he would see Joan again when she came back to town for the winter.

From Florida a month later came a letter. Joan asked for the title of a book they had discussed. The light gossip that followed carried again a suggestion of intimate understanding. The impression was so vivid at first that Stevenson started an impulsive reply, heading it simply "Joan." He hesitated, read the letter again, and could find no definite words to support his impulse. A third reading, and the illusion had vanished, leaving nothing but gracious informal phrases, used to fill out and soften a bare request for information. Surely, the blue eyes would have danced in mockery if he hadn't checked his blunder.

His answer was cool, almost abrupt. He heard no more until he received the announcement of her wedding in Miami. Nothing more to laugh at now. The first stab of pain was so sudden and sharp, he grew numb and faint. Then his throat began to throb, and a blinding ache came behind his eyes. When common sense came back he found himself lying face down across his bed.

He picked the card up from the floor. The man's name was George Bellew, a man he didn't know. Somehow this dulled the keen edge of reality.

And so, for a time, the curtain before Stevenson's secret shrine remained drawn, and the altar fire smothered to ashes.

Then came the war. Stevenson, experienced in the guard, became a captain. Three days before sailing he attended a brilliant hotel dance, where all but the older men were in uniform. In camp he had discovered that drinking had a disconcerting way of breaking down his own private discipline, letting visions creep into the dark of his quarters; but this night he felt safely surrounded by music, crowds and lights, so he drank thirstily, laughed a lot, and held the girls he danced with scornfully close.

As the evening hurried on, the orchestra began playing patriotic airs. People packed around the dance floor, talking, singing, creating an atmosphere tense and hysterical. Stevenson's head felt jumbled. He found a seat in a quiet corner. Pictures of the future formed themselves of fragments he had read or heard from men who had been in the trenches. He tried to see himself in those pictures.

Slowly he realized he would not escape even there the tormenting doubt, the uncertainty he was leaving behind. He knew it would pursue him like a gnawing curiosity, making him want to come back, making him a coward.

THE need to see Joan once more gripped him like a desperate hunger.

Her apartment was ten minutes away. He jumped up—she must be, she had to be in town. He found a telephone book, and called her number. Then waiting—waiting—waiting—must be the wrong number—what did I say—wait for three more rings—hello—hello.

A faint click, then a voice that sent fear singing out of his heart. She was there!

"Hello, Joan. This is John Stevenson."

"O, hello, Steve." The voice betrayed no astonishment. "This is a nice surprise. I heard you were going over, and wondered if I'd run across you before you left."

"Yes, sailing in a day or two. Say, Joan, can I come out to see you for a minute? Just want to say hello to somebody before I go."

"Surely. Glad to see you. I can't offer you anything to drink, because the sideboard's dry and I haven't got the keys to the family cellar. But come along anyway."

In the taxi on his way uptown, the sense of that old undercurrent in everything that Joan said was upon Stevenson stronger than ever. He had been deliberately refusing to think of Joan's husband until she had managed in her last little speech to recall his existence and to indicate that he was not at home.

Why had Joan referred to him at all? And why had she avoided his name? Had she been trying gently to discourage the midnight call? Stevenson's thoughts tangled up. He wished he had not had so much to drink.

Joan opened the door of the apartment. Her friendly smile without a trace of question steadied Stevenson and dismissed unspoken his vague words of explanation.

"It's nice to see you," she said, simply, leading the way to a big lounge in the sitting room. "I have been reading about your fine record in the papers."

She went on discussing his commission, asking about his life in the army and the prospects overseas, telling him of mutual friends who were in the service—a perfectly natural conversation, if it had not been addressed to a man who had rushed up at midnight to call on another man's wife.

As the minutes passed by, Stevenson began to grow tensely conscious of the things Joan's easy gossip so deftly avoided; his reasons for coming, her marriage her husband, herself, and her personal life—the very things they would talk about, except for the baffling shadow between them, as if a dark intimate cloak covered them both yet concealed each from the other.

An angry impatience at this girl flared up in him. He had come to read an answer in her eyes—indifference, scorn, anything that would settle his nerve-breaking doubt. Yet she sat there, calmly spinning an elaborate veil between them. He rose to go, avoiding her glance. She followed him into the hall, where he was gazing around uncertainly.

"I don't think you wore a hat," she said.

He turned abruptly. There it was, that dance of blue eyes. How well they seemed to understand his bareheaded rush to see her and to mock at it! Groping like a blinded fighter, he reached for Joan, caught her in his arms, bent her head back savagely. With the look of a man striking an enemy, he kissed her. She made no move, no sound. For a blank of time he stood tense, living only in the lips that pressed hers.

Still she did not struggle. He raised his head, hunting her eyes. They were closed. He stepped away, dropping his arms.

"Joan" he called, eager for revelation. "Look at me!"

But she covered her face with her hands, standing like a statue, blind, cut off from him.

"You're going away, Steve," she said in a low toneless voice. "Good-by."

Stevenson turned and walked from the apartment without looking back. That was why, when his ship sailed for France three days later, the vision of blue eyes that danced was overshadowed by the memory of a blind, unanswered kiss and the picture of a girl with her face bowed in her hands.

. . . living only in the lips that pressed hers.

CAPTAIN STEVENSON, C company, ——th infantry, —— division, sat in headquarters in a little village near Toul late one evening, sorting over routine orders. During the last four months memories had grown dim. The spotlight of war, fixing the eyes of new soldiers sharply on the road ahead, left the past a dream and the distant future beyond imagination's range. Weeks had gone by since Stevenson had given Joan a deliberate waking thought.

The reminder was abrupt. He picked it up from the pile of documents in front of him.

2d Lieut. George Thatcher Bellew transferred to C company, —th Reg. Inf., —— Div., etc.

Stevenson looked at the paper incredulously, reading it over, examining the indorsements, the dates, the typewritten names and numbers, as if he thought some one had sent it to him for a joke. Then he cursed long and bitterly. This couldn't be sheer accident. And yet there were only two people on earth who could know what a ghastly mistake it was.

That night Stevenson lay awake in his billet tormented by fragments of memory, all the more vivid for having been so long suppressed. That last kiss! Had Joan really been indifferent to it? She might have turned away. He had been a fool to run from her, when another word, another kiss, might have forced revelations—final dismissal or an avowal of love. Perhaps even surrender. He clung savagely to this thought. What difference would it have made? What price conventions or character or virtue or whatever you wanted to call it, when everything was upside down and millions of men, good and bad, were getting killed? In all the vast confusion one thing, at least would have been settled, and he would be able to meet on equal terms this man who thought he owned Joan.

What difference would it make when the chances were that one of them, possibly both, would never go home? He would see to that. They couldn't fight each other, but he could force this man to fight it out with him against the enemy. The luckier man might live to go back.

Perhaps the arrival of Bellew wasn't such a bad thing, after all. Stevenson played sullenly with this idea.

The next day Bellew reported for duty.

"Hello," he said, breezily, when they met. "I've heard a good deal about you from people I know. I thought it would be nicer to have a captain who knew the same kind of people I do, so when I came over as a casual, I looked you up and pulled a lot of wires, and here I am."

Stevenson's first glimpse of Bellew brought a sharp feeling of disappointment. He didn't know what he had expected of Joan's husband; he had never formed a definite image of him. Now, he realized he had been waiting to find in the man an explanation of Joan's marriage.

What he actually saw and sensed in that first brief meeting evoked contempt. Bellew was handsome enough, with pleasant easy manners and quick wit. But there was a slackness about his mouth and a dull sameness about the expression of his eyes.

"He's got his mind on himself all the time," thought Stevenson.

His thoughts swung abruptly back to Joan. Why had she married this man—she who looked out at the world in such a cool, amused, appraising way? Did she believe in him? Was he the type she really liked? A sudden flash of intuition set Stevenson staring into the distance. He saw again the image of Joan with her face buried in her hands. For the first time a profound tenderness toward her swept over him.

Always he had thought of her as self-possessed, aloof, mistress of her destiny. Now he seemed to see only a gallant, sensitive, generous girl—just the one who would be betrayed by impulsive sympathy, by pity, by the pleading of a weakling.

"She tolerated me when I behaved like a damned dull fool," he said to himself. "And she may feel sorry for this fellow. But, by God, she can't love him. I know that."

Strange, how close he felt to Joan now, and odd that he had never really understood her until he had seen the man she had married—the man he despised.

It was then he realized he could never carry through the idea he had nursed the night before. He caught a glimpse of himself, the captain, returning safely when the war was over, leaving Bellew, the second lieutenant, dead in a French grave. Then, indeed, would the other man have won. How hard those blue eyes would grow and how those lips—the lips he had kissed—would curl in scorn.

No, whatever else happened, George Bellew must live to go home. Otherwise, Joan was lost to him forever.

Once more an otherwise sane and cheerful young man was overcome by solemn ideals and seriously planned a private intervention with fate. Without a single misgiving, he began to wonder how much trouble he would have keeping Bellew out of danger.

A WEEK later a rumor spread that the regiment was moving up into a quiet section of the lines near Seicheprey. Captain Stevenson recommended Lieutenant Bellew for a trench mortar school.

"They want an officer from this battalion," he said to the major, "and Bellew's just arrived. We can spare him."

So Bellew was absent while his company was learning the niceties of sniping, barbed wire, night raids for prisoners, and the art of living in trenches under fire.

Bellew returned a few weeks later, when the regiment had gone back into reserve.

"He's no good with trench mortars," Stevenson told the major later. "One of them blew up at the school and killed two men. Bellew saw it and he's mortar-shy. Can't blame him much, but I'm afraid his trouble is catching. I wish you could recommend him for artillery liaison. He speaks French."

So Bellew was away again when the regiment, moving into action further westward, engaged in minor attacks and counter-attacks and received its first lesson in barrage work.

One thing Stevenson was thankful for: he could have no official scruples over contriving Bellew's absence. The company was better off without him. Even Bohn, the close mouthed first sergeant, couldn't help showing his scorn of the man.

When the French artillery support was replaced by American gunners, Bellew returned to his company. He was arrogant, talked with the condescension of a man who had had a wider experience of war than mere infantry officers, and babbled in his cups tales of women who had favored him. Stevenson, who would gladly have choked him with his bare hands, defended Bellew when the major wanted to "send that pup up front and let him tell it to the Germans."

"The company's all right without him," he said. "He's used to this special detail work. If some one has to do it, it might as well be Bellew."

So it happened that through the summer months of 1918 Lieut. Bellew was on detached service, a few days in one place, a few weeks in another, while the regiment fought, hung on, rested, fought, hung on, and rested, its numbers dwindling, then swelling again with replacements. Stevenson, the first excitement of battle worn away, grew lean and haggard, touched by the bitterness of war, of which infantry commanders get more than their share. It required the strong stimulant of actual fighting to stir his spirit. Between times, he lived in routine apathy, performing his duties with the efficiency of a machine. Joan became a familiar ghost haunting unnoticed the shadows of his thoughts.

At last came general orders canceling all leaves, countermanding school assignments, recalling special details. Bellew returned to the company, and stayed. He spoke of his varied missions as if they were tributes to uncommon ability, calling himself "the best trained officer in the whole damned A. E. F."

To this Stevenson was indifferent. He thought of Bellew only as a man thinks of a message he is pledged to deliver, though he knows it has no value.

A NIGHT march along the edge of a black swarming tangle of noise that marked a road. Then a nerve breaking halt in the dark, waiting for God knows what, while the dim flashing roar from the blacker blackness beyond seemed to close in louder and brighter on every side, showing glimpses here and there of mushroom hatted shadows moving in apparently hopeless confusion. At last came one of them with orders.

"Follow B company . . . north . . . over the hill . . . north . . . front line . . . about two kilometers . . . don't crowd . . . shell fire. . . ."

The word passed along. Stevenson led the way over rough ground, the straggling, invisible company held together by the night born need of familiarity, the dread of strangeness, stronger than any discipline. For an hour company followed company over a long slope and down into a valley filled with shell holes and half dried mud.

A runner waited at the head of a communicating trench.

"C company, this way," he called in a muffled voice, starting ahead through the shallow ditch.

As soon as Stevenson had seen to the distribution of his company along the front line trench, he sought out Bellew.

"You know the artillery," he said. "Find the P. C. dugout right away, get the phones to working, and stay there. I'll give you runners if you need them."

"I know the game all right," Bellew replied. Stevenson thought he detected a note of relief in that voice. It probably wouldn't be very hard to keep him out of trouble.

NEAR dawn the roar of a barrage broke out from the rear. Ten minutes later a double roar told of German batteries going into action.

Coming out of the dugout, Stevenson ran into the major, who held him by the arm and shouted in his ear.

"New orders from division. . . . When we get out of here, we're going up there to stay. . . . Occupy first line German trench . . . hold it . . . make liaison right and left with B and D companies . . . out again at first hour . . . next objective is second German line . . . that's where we stay tonight . . . take everything with you . . . never mind P. C. here . . . battery runners report every wire out . . . phones no good . . . fire on paper schedule . . . hope to God those damn gunners get it straight . . . remember . . . first hour . . . out you go again. . . ."

The major vanished once more in the dark. Stevenson went from post to post, giving his lieutenants the new orders. Back in the dugout, with half an hour to spare, he found Bellew nervously manipulating his phones by the light of a candle. Sergt. Bohn looked on.

"Never mind those," he said, watching Bellew's face impersonally, as if he were studying a mechanical problem. "Wire's chopped to pieces. The artillery is going to fire on straight schedule. You go up with us."

Bellew looked up excitedly. "Aren't they going to fix the wire, for God's sake? What in hell are those damn shell dodgers doing back there? What in hell is the use of training an officer to handle gunfire and then sending him out foot slogging with a rifle in his hand?"

The captain glanced at Sergeant Bohn, and nodded toward the entrance. Bohn went out. Bellew's voice was rising sharply.

"Shut up, Bellew, and listen to me" Stevenson cut in. "Before long you'll be glad you had a chance to get out of here. After we clear out, the supports are coming in, and the Boche is going to hammer these trenches to powder behind us. I have an idea that they'll let us into their first line without much trouble, and then try a counter attack with our retreat cut off. Our second hop off will beat them to it. Meanwhile, here's where you come in.

"Off to the right there's a heavy patch of woods. They'll probably keep a few snipers and machine guns in there to enfilade their own first line after we arrive. At ten minutes to zero, you take Bohn and twenty men and sneak ahead into those woods."

AT the look on Bellew's face, Stevenson interrupted his crisp instructions and lowered his voice, talking faster with the tone of a man who wants to persuade rather than order.

"Listen, Bellew! That open ground between here and the second German line is going to be the most unhealthy spot in the world for the next two hours. But in those woods, if you get into them in ten minutes, they won't expect you. Your cover will be as good as theirs." As he heard the almost pleading note in his own voice, a vision of Joan flashed across his mind, a scornful face, full struck by the insult that had missed the man who crouched by the flickering candle. Stevenson spoke an apology into the darkness behind him:

"Besides," he said, "that detail in the woods needs a man with a good head. You've got ten minutes to get ready. Come on."

Outside he picked up Bohn and the first twenty men he could find. "Stay in those woods and follow through when you see the second attack start. Be sure to clean up as you go. Keep a watch overhead for the men in the trees."

Bellew was now eager to be off. As the American barrage began to roll forward, the party crawled out and vanished in the direction of the darker mass that marked the outline of the woods. Ten minutes later the general attack opened. Just as Stevenson had expected, the first fierce blasts of machine gun and rifle fire soon died down. When he reached the German trench it was empty. Most of his company came through safely. The enemy's evident welcome was ominous.

By the time Stevenson had reorganized his line, it was daylight. He peered behind him toward the trench he had just left and which the supports must now be occupying. It was hidden by clouds of grayish black

He found Bellew nervously manipulating his phones.

Women vote overwhelmingly for new, safe, no-wringer EASY Washers

SALES DOUBLED last month.

Two new EASY Washers—both equipped with the famous, safe Damp-Dryer in place of the old-fashioned wringer—both selling at the lowest prices at which any no-wringer EASY was ever offered—are revolutionizing the washing machine business.

Demand for these sensational new washers has far exceeded anything in EASY'S history. In the few short weeks since they were announced, women by the tens of thousands have turned to this safe, modern method of washing.

Think of it! At a cost no greater than that of ordinary washers, these new washers bring you extra safety—extra speed—extra convenience—extra gentleness. And you can have these extras on your favorite style of washer—either suction type or agitator type.

The modern way

The EASY Damp-Dryer which replaces the wringer on these new washers is much more simple to operate than a wringer—also infinitely safer, faster, easier, gentler. It damp-dries clothes—ready for sun-drying—by a natural law known as centrifugal force.

Photoplate—No broken buttons

This simple law of nature can be illustrated by dipping a handkerchief in water. Now hold the handkerchief by one corner and whirl it rapidly in a circle. Watch how the water flies from the handkerchief.

EASY extracts the water from your clothes in the same way. You merely transfer a whole tubful of clothes from the washing tub to the basket inside of the damp-drying tub. Then close the lid and turn a lever. As the basket whirls, the water leaves the clothes just as it flies from the handkerchief you whirl in your hand.

In less than two minutes, without any effort on your part, the water is whirled out of this big batch of clothes—ready for the line-drying. Bear in mind that while clothes are being damp-dried, another tubful can be washed, for wash tub and Damp-Dryer operate independent of each other.

This famous EASY method puts absolutely no strain on fabrics. There is no squeezing, twisting or pulling. The clothes rest easily and do not move as the basket revolves. Nothing moves but the water as it comes out of the clothes.

Extras at no extra cost

In addition to greater safety for you and your clothes, the no-wringer EASY Washers offer these extra advantages over wringer type washers:

Eliminate slow, tedious hand-feeding, piece-by-piece, into a wringer.

Line-drying in the sun is speeded up because the Damp-Dryer takes out more water than wringing does.

Clothes are left evenly damp. The hems do not drip. In bad weather, the clothes can be line-dried indoors for ironing the same day.

Bulky things like blankets and feather pillows that will not go through a wringer are perfectly damp-dried by this method. Clothes come out free from deep, hard creases, ironing is easier.

Rinsing also can be done right in the Damp-Dryer without handling the clothes until ready for sun-drying.

All water is emptied for you by a power pump. No water to lift or carry.

Free trial offer

See for yourself what an amazing improvement these new no-wringer EASY Washers are over ordinary washers. Try one without investing one penny. Then if you like it, you can pay for it on EASY terms. Call your EASY dealer today—he is listed in your telephone book—for a free demonstration.

[EASY Washers are also supplied with 4-cycle gas engine for homes without electricity.]

$99.50 f. o. b. factory Buys a genuine wringer-type EASY WASHER

Suction Type no-wringer EASY

This new, improved model is more compact. Many inches shorter and lower than any previous no-wringer EASY. Can be used in the smallest kitchens. Handsomer in appearance. Safety controls are even simpler than before. An 8-pound washing capacity as compared with 6 pounds for most washers. Three suction cups move up and down and around—sixty-six times a minute—flushing air, soap and water back and forth through the clothes. Entire texture of clothes is thoroughly cleansed in an incredibly few minutes.

Agitator Type no-wringer EASY

The new EASY single vane agitator produces unobstructed action of water and clothes. It secures the ideal "roll over" movement that is so tremendously efficient and yet so gentle. Corrugations in agitator base give added washing speed. Thus, EASY offers the tried and tested agitator washing principle but with improvements of outstanding value. An 8-pound washing capacity—2 pounds more than average. Controls are simpler and fewer than those on any wringer type washer.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Onions May Be Delicious When Correctly Cooked, and Did You Know That They Needn't Have Any Odor at All?

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

ONION harvesting has its glamours, and the better one knows her onions, or the better he knows his onions, the more entertainment she or he may find in this remarkable vegetable. It would be delightful, but possibly not practical, to quote what such ancients as Theophrastus, who knew "divers sorts of onions with their syr-names of the places where they grew." It seems also that Pliny, living at the beginning of A. D., knew his onions too, some that were lesser, and some that were greater, and some that were round and "divers" that were long.

The most entertaining item of all in these old books is the list of medicinal uses which onions have had through the centuries and even to date. I can remember that when I was a child, sliced onions baked in sugar were used as a remedy for colds, and in a three hundred year old book I find that they were roasted in the embers and applied to boils, while the juices were combined with numerous concoctions and applied with a feather to rheumatic limbs, and all that.

An Onion a Day.

No one can say how old the statement is about the onion a day that keeps the emblem or symbol of sickness away, but onion therapy is certainly at least 2,000 years old, and at some of the great periods when the world has been ravaged by pestilence and plagues, the onion has been depended upon for its antiseptic and disinfectant qualities. On this account we may believe that it has kept whole races of people alive through centuries of unhygienic living, the idea being that the onion eater may laugh at germs. Children used to wear a chaplet of onions—just imagine it—for the various and sundry diseases of childhood. Really we could make out a long catalogue of semi-medicinal adjectives which may be truly applied to the onion. It is hygienic, antiseptic, prophylactic, somnorific, and an invaluable laxative because it is mild and bland.

The services of the onion in cookery are infinite. It is a leading flavor, great supplementary food substance, and serves as a main vegetable dish. There are ways of cooking it that will keep it from being objectionably pungent and penetrating as to odor, and in subduing the odor, we save its food values. It can be an excelling dainty, if daintily prepared. Its uncareful use by unesthetic people accounts for its being considered a vulgar vegetable.

Some of the notable travelers of the world have declared there is nothing so good a substitute for meat as the onion. In such meatless regions as upper Egypt, travelers have lived for days upon nothing but raw onions and some dried rusks. Across the Mediterranean, to the north, I have seen enormous rounds of fresh bread covered with cooked onions so as to make a sort of shortcake, and great sections of these sold to people who ate them from their hands where they stood.

Many Varieties.

The person who would become expert in detecting slightly varying qualities in foods, might study the onion—old and new, Spanish, Bermudan, South American, Texan, red, white and brown, etc. There are noticeable differences in the onion family, and we may use a different sort during every month in the year and then be no more than keeping up with the market. Any onion grown with skill, and cooked almost straight from the garden, gives a dish greatly superior to what most of us today know.

Accomplished cooks call for their shallots, chives, leeks, white boiling onion and so forth, according to the work they have to do—with fine discriminations in using each and every sort. The silver skins, old or new—when they are called "new boiling onions"—are considered best for boiling, while the yellow are used for frying. The button onion is used for pickling and candying, as is the tiny pearl. For baking, stuffing, stewing and frying the Spanish is favored, but an large and mild onion can substitute for it.

For glazing in meat stock the small Bermudas, and another and smaller flat onion seen often in Italy, are best. The leek is used for soups and as a vegetable. The shallot dry is used for innumerable seasonings and the chives for salads, but Robert Louis Stevenson, who wished the onion first to flourish in his garden, described it as "rose among roots, the maiden fair, wine scented and poetic soul of the capacious salad bowl." Some of us would give that place to the garlic, illusively present in our salad bowls.

On Cooking Onions.

Nice ways of cooking the onion are not too well known and coarse ones are too prevalent. The onion is particularly like tea, in that it can be made dainty or objectionable by the amount of heat applied to it for any given time.

In the first place, it is necessary to remember that the most highly characteristic element in the onion is volatile. It readily escapes, too readily for our eyes. This element makes an onion when it is cooked mild and sweet and its stiffer part—called good digestive roughage—when given the same treatment is as smooth as glycerin. But this latter element is almost universally made rather coarse while the volatile element which escapes so readily escapes faster and more thoroughly when the onion is heated, with loss of flavor to the cooked onion.

We cook onions in a number of ways is to leach out of them all their sugar and precious solubles. A lot of boiling water will in five minutes give onions a flat scent which shows what has happened. Their sugar, which makes them delicious of flavor, is easily dissolved out. Often their delicate clear color becomes gray. To save these things use but one water and little of it and be careful to have the cooking gentle. Fried onions can easily be as stiff as straw from too much heat.

Subduing the Odor.

If the onions are gently cooked, or steamed, or simmered done they will give off but the slightest odor, and that not of the well known objectionable type, and even this can be obscured by using dried celery leaves. But note this, while a bit of celery leaf will obscure the odor of many onions, cooking on the other hand one onion in with a large amount of celery which has come to a strong boil will smell up strongly above the celery. We cannot say it over too many times—cook gently. It pays in both quality and agreeableness.

Some one, perhaps a long while ago, said that you should not cook onions in a covered kettle, so thousands of people have kept on saying you should not. But the only way to cook them with a tiny bit of heat, and in a short time and at the same time preserve what is in them most precious, is to use a covered kettle, not covered instantly, but soon. Remember that volatile flying, and if the kettle is open things that can fly will fly out. A recipe which directs the cooking of onions in three or four waters is really unhumanitarian. With each dilution of the onion are solubles and with these thrown away go virtues, until the onions have had all their life lamndered out of them.

And let us emphasize this fact in another way. Onions will cook in a shorter time in a little water, close covered, than in a great deal, boiling hard, in an open kettle. Here is the explanation, and the reason why onions may even be cooked with care without any water at all and be the sweeter for it: They contain 87 per cent of water and when this is gently heated, while the tissue is not stiffened, it expands and turns to steam. This expansion bursts the vegetable cells so that they become far more tender than when they are cooked in a huge bath of water, actually drowned in it. Of course, they must be closely covered, or this steam will escape and not do this work well.

Odorless, Tearless Handling.

Onliony hands are a waste of spirit, and of mental energy. We can prepare one onion for a sauce or a whole boiling of onions, if we will be necessarily careful without getting this effect. The important thing is to avoid breaking any of the layers or of touching with our fingers any cut part. It is the escaping juice that makes our hands smell. When we are slicing an onion a knife wet in cold water largely prevents the spattering of the juice. The board on which we cut the onion should also be rinsed off with cold water. And with the help of that valuable kitchen accessory, the white paper napkin, we can cut an onion in fine pieces without getting any juice on our hands.

Besides this, do not bend over the onion as you cut down. Many people do this unnecessarily when in preparing food and when eating it, as well. As it is accounted bad table manners, in the second case, so is it bad cooking manners, in the first.

To cut up an onion with the aid of the napkin hold it in the left hand, and as the onion is sliced, hold the slices together until the whole bulb has been cut. If you let each slice fall off as you cut it, you will soon be shedding tears, the juice from the cut surfaces will almost surely get on your fingers, and last and last. When you get nearly across an onion in slicing it you will find it easier to slice the uncut part if you reverse the bulb and cut from out in, as you did on the other side. The cut slices held together firmly will give you a grip you can get in no other way.

If, instead of just slicing an onion, you wish to cut it into a lily or into many small pieces, cut it across as above—always toward the root—then turn and cut across at right angles to first cuts—in no case quite through. Spread apart now and you get the lily, or cut through these two sets of cuts, parallel to the stem and root, and then let it fall into bits. One can soon get the knack of doing a thing like this. This latter way is an excellent way of preparing onion salads, seasonings like salad dressings or for a salad ingredient, or for onion soup or for a smooth mass of fried onion. Small onions merely cut in quarters are excellent for stews.

Boiled Silver Skins.

When onions are to be boiled it is never best to cut off much of the tops and bottoms, since when this is done they more readily cook to pieces, and when carefully cleaned we need not cut at all.

Wash the requisite number of white boiling onions in cold water, rub off the loose skin and pick off the rest from the stalk end. Sometimes the whole skin may be rubbed off easily. Do not break any layer which is often quite thick and meaty—and juicy. The pungent juice is glazed into it by its silky or enameled surface. When these enamels are not broken one may pass one's hands around, as it were, to let any one who is willing take a sniff and see for themselves that they are odorless. This is providing that you have not cut off top nor tail, and that you have kept the onions and knife wet with cold water. The dry top stalk may often be pinched off, and some of the roots, well brushed, may be pulled off but on the whole left rough.

Now that the onions are ready to cook, drop them into boiling water enough barely to cover, leave uncovered till any ancient air is pushed out, cover utensil and cook gently for one-half to three-quarters of an hour. Take up, pour in colander, and, using a knife and fork, pull each onion away from its root end, which will often fall out when the onion is tender. Snip off the other end and remove any deformities. Then put onions on a buttered plate, pour over them some seasoned butter, and finish under the broiler or in a hot oven. Remember that if gently cooked the least possible odor will escape, and that some dried celery leaves added will modify this so that it will not be thought of as an onion odor. Have you ever noted the odor from a marvelously fine vegetable soup cooking? There is onion in it, but the odor of all is sweet and agreeable.

Boiled Yellow Onions.

The skins of yellow onions which have been well dried and carefully stored will often rub off entirely and will not scent the hands. Pull off any other bits without injuring soft layers. Brush the root thoroughly, pour boiling water over to sterilize it, and rinse the onions immediately before putting them to simmer. They will lose a little of their shade in the boiling water, and so seem more like white onions. A bit of resistant skin may be left on. Cook like the white onions in a little water and with cover, but be careful not to cook them until they fall to pieces. In such a case the centers will be dragged out by the heavy root end. Test after half an hour of gentle cooking. Finish like boiled silver skins.

The "common" yellow onion when so cooked is good enough to go with the Thanksgiving turkey, or to be served as a hot appetizer dried out, after it has been cooked and trimmed of root, under the broiler with a seasoning of butter and other items to suit. What is there really to hinder the frequent use of this wholesome and inexpensive vegetable?

THE OTHER MAN'S WIFE - By Ronald Mill

smoke, the pocked and mangy ground between, lashed and torn by the giant whipcracking of shells.

Ahead, near the top of the slope, barely a hundred yards away, lay the second German line. From beyond it over the ridge rose a cloud of grayish white smoke from the American artillery fire, cutting off the German supports.

BETWEEN the gray black and gray white curtains the irony of war had for a moment set a stage of comparative peace. The two lines faced one another, each hemmed in by the other's wall of bursting steel. Neither could retreat; neither could get help. The intervening space, now flicked only by the occasional bullets, must see a fight to the finish. The first side to walk out into that space would buy at frightful cost the attacker's advantage. Stevenson looked at his watch. Seven minutes more.

Twenty feet away, a private who had been crouching in the bottom of the trench to rewind a dragging puttee, toppled over gently. Stevenson saw a bullet hole in the top of his helmet, and glanced quickly along the trench toward the woods.

"Snipers on the right," he called out. "Keep out of sight of those trees."

Where was Bellew? He had forgotten him. He hadn't cleaned up, anyhow. Maybe he was—no, he couldn't be killed. He was in those woods to keep from getting killed. Wounded, maybe? That would be the best way out—a light wound to keep him out of action and not bother other people. Bohn could clean up alone.

He jerked a look at his watch. "Ready!" he yelled, and put his whistle in his teeth. Five more seconds ticked. The blast from his own lips sounded far away. "Come on!" he yelled, and scrambled out. A man behind him started to run forward. "Walk, don't run!" shouted Stevenson, reaching out his arm.

The mechanical riveting clatter of machine guns ahead seemed to have nothing whatever to do with the men who were stumbling and lying down here and there.

"Keep moving. . . . Leave that man alone. . . . Close in there. . . . Walk, don't run. . . ."

Stevenson shook his head clear, and glanced behind. They had gone about twenty-five yards. It seemed a mile. Looking ahead, he saw German helmets moving around, bobbing up from the trench. They're running away. No, they're coming out on this side. They're coming toward us. That's against the rules. He laughed foolishly.

ABOUT 150 men of C company lay scattered in the shell holes beyond the second German trench. The defenders' counter attack had crumbled. Not a moving gray uniform was in sight. The shell fire had died down; rifle bursts alone, like echoes of the battle, showed the enemy was still alert near by. Most of the shooting came from the woods to the right.

Stevenson, with short scrambles from hole to hole, was edging over in that direction—a blood stained, helmetless, ragged figure that brought concentrated bursts of fire every time it dodged into the open. Another figure broke from the woods to meet him. Twenty yards from the trees both dived into the same shell hole.

"Where's Bellew?" asked the captain.

"Back in there," answered Sergeant Bohn. "We got half a dozen men left. The woods are full of Heinies. Most of those that got away from you are hiding in there now and there was plenty others to start with."

"Where are they? Up front? Did you clean out back there?"

"No. They're scattered all the way back to our first line. Bellew was afraid to stir 'em up. Said they were too strong for us. Insisted on worming through them and getting help to go back later. We tried it and most of us got shot in the back."

"Bellew hit?"

"No, he didn't get shot. He followed along the edge of the trees. Said he'd keep liaison with you. I guess he's keeping it over there now in the deepest hole he can find."

Stevenson paid no attention to the sergeant's tone. "Round up all the men you can get out here," he said, "and bring them into those woods. I'm going through to see what's happened to B company on the other side. When we get contact, we'll mop up together."

HE jumped up, ran the remaining distance to the woods, and crawled into a ruined abris, evidently built by German machine gunners from boles and branches cut down by shells. He was listening for the direction of the shots stirred up by the sergeant's dodging roundup when he saw a brown form darting from tree to tree through the denser woods further in. He recognized Bellew and called his name. Bellew saw him and waved his left arm. It was dripping with blood.

"I'm going back," he shouted. "Got a blighty." There was a smile on his face.

"Come over here," Stevenson called back, but Bellew shook his head. As he dropped his arm, big drops of blood fell from his fingers. He dodged away again, and disappeared from sight. Stevenson scrambled up and ran after him, fumbling for his first aid kit. He caught Bellew and dragged him down behind a big tree.

"You'll bleed to death, you fool, before you go two hundred yards," he said, ripping at Bellew's soggy sleeve.

Bellew's eyes were bright, but his head nodded like a drunken man's.

"Damn sniper got me," he muttered, still smiling. "Just missed my head. Lucky wound. Go to Paris. Sorry to leave you."

"You stay here, you idiot," said Stevenson, "until we can clean up back there. They'll get you next time."

"O, they wouldn't bother to shoot a wounded man." Bellew laughed foolishly. "Now, if it was you, captain."

Stevenson was leaning over, twisting the bandage around the lieutenant's arm, when he heard a sound like the sharp striking of two fingers across the palm of the hand. Bellew slumped. A tiny hole in his forehead began to turn red.

THE citation came months later. It read as follows:

To Captain John Stevenson, Company C, —— Infantry, for unusual bravery in action near Blairneau, Sept. 3: After gallantly leading his men in the general advance and attaining his objective only at the cost of bitter hand to hand fighting in which he himself took chief part, he entered Blairneau Woods at the head of a small detachment of survivors, and killed or captured a superior force of the enemy which was holding up the general advance at this point. During the course of this action, although twice wounded, Captain Stevenson kept the men with him under cover, advancing himself with a rifle into exposed positions to bring down the more dangerous of the enemy's snipers.

Stevenson looked straight before him as the cross was pinned on his tunic. This was the dregs of all the ironies. Blind rage masquerading as courage. Bitter death-seeking desperation set down as self-sacrifice. And he couldn't refuse without more heroics. How could he explain about the killing of Bellew? He saluted, and turned away. The ceremony was over.

On the way back in the transport Stevenson kept to himself. He couldn't stand the continual talk about the joys of getting home that made up most of the conversation of the other officers. Against his will, over and over again he was forced to review the long line of circumstances that had ended in tragic fiasco.

Why hadn't he let events run their natural course? By what right had he undertaken to meddle with another man's life? All that business of protecting him had been arrogant nonsense. Left to himself, Bellew would probably have come out all right. Even at the end, in those woods, he would have had a chance if he hadn't been stopped. No sniper would have got him if he kept moving.

"They didn't get me," Stevenson said to himself.

By this time he had persuaded himself that he had virtually killed Bellew with his own hand.

On board were some shell shocked cases. One of the medicos in charge talked to him at length about the "subconscious mind." In his oversensitive condition, it made a deep impression on Stevenson. Possibly his was a case of imperfectly suppressed desire.

Once he had certainly welcomed the prospect of Bellew's death. Was he actually trying to save him when he pulled him down behind that tree? Perhaps he had really been afraid Bellew would escape.

When he tried to think clearly about it, he suspected his memory was playing him tricks. Everything about it was muddled, tasteless, indifferent.

One thing was sure, and he clung to it. For him, Joan was lost. This gave him some purpose and direction. Wander as he might otherwise, he had the bitter certainty of one impassable road. Leaning on the ship's rail the night before landing, he caught the far away glimpse of a lighthouse. It was like Joan. To the keeper of that beacon it must be a warm living thing. To him out here, it was an impersonal, unheeding point of light, a measure of impenetrable distance.

Stevenson had feared he would to meet her, and he did—at two months after landing. The awkwardness of the encounter seemed to the tragic images that stood between them.

"O, hello, Steve," she said. "It's good to see you again. I read about your deeds of valor. D. S. C., isn't it?"

(My God, why did she have to use that tone? Have a little mercy. Those eyes! Let me off. Let me go!)

"Yes," he replied with a constrained made smile, "they picked my name out of the hat, too."

They went in to dinner separately. She was five seats away on the opposite side of the table, where he could easily see her. He sat there feeling dull and ridiculous. Far away a voice talked nonsense—his own.

After dinner, just as he had made up his mind he could no longer stand the torture of watching her at a distance, nor the worse torture of nearness, she came toward him.

"Will you see me home?" she said. "I'd like to talk to you about a lot of things. You look so strange since you came back."

(Get up and rush out, quick! There's a th end. Go. Get out. No. Fight it first. Can't stand this everlasting wondering. Get it over with.)

"Glad to," he answered. "I want to talk things over, too."

As he said it, Stevenson decided he would tell this girl all the bitter things he was hiding. He would veil those blue eyes once and for all with the shadows that haunted him.

JOAN'S apartment was much the same as he remembered it. Refusing to sit down, he walked until she had put away her wraps, and then without offering her a chance to say anything, he told his story.

He told it monotonously in a low voice, walking back and forth with his eyes on the rug, his measured steps fitting its rhythmical pattern, keeping his words from running away. Joan sat on the lounge, relaxed, making no sound, her head moving slightly from side to side as her eyes followed his face.

Stevenson spoke as if he were reciting something he knew by heart and were wearily annoyed at having to repeat it again. It was so hopelessly obvious, why should he be made to explain? He mentioned Bellew's name as little as possible and lied smoothly about his record.

"So I've told you all this," he said, when he had finished, "because I thought you had a right to know what a ghastly mess I made by trying to interfere in your affairs. You don't have to say anything, please. Some other time, perhaps."

He moved toward the door, unwilling to risk even a formal good-by. At the hall door came the irresistible impulse to look back.

Joan was standing up, watching him with that old expression that seemed to waver between tenderness and mockery.

Softly she came toward him. Without a word she put her arms around his neck, and kissed him. At the touch of her lips, Stevenson drew back. With eyes wide, he looked at her, frightened, unbelieving. Then with a sound like a grunt of pain, he crushed her against him.

After a time, Joan leaned back against his arms. The blue eyes had grown darker, steadier.

"Steve," she said, smiling, "you're just told me the most wonderful love story I ever heard. I want to live it through to the end."

He didn't know quite what she meant, and he couldn't understand her smile at all. But this time he didn't care.

tells, in next Sunday's Tribune, the amusing tale of Myrtle and her ultra-modern romance. . . . A deft and humorous short story by one of the master writers of our day:

MYRTLE AT SIX A. M.

My Best Party

Tell us about the nicest party you ever attended and we'll pay $1 for each letter printed. Address Parties, Chicago Tribune.

A Real Color Scheme.

Here is what we did for my small daughter's birthday. We lived in a bungalow at the time and I felt that I had room for twenty little guests if I managed carefully.

First I gave particular attention to my color scheme. I used pale blue and pink and covered little nut cups with pink and blue tissue paper. I covered the lights with pink and blue crêpe paper. Of course there was pink ice cream. And I had pink frosting and blue candles on the cake.

After lunch the children sat down on the floor in a circle. We played "button, button, who has the button," "Simon says thumbs up," and similar games amid gales of laughter. Then children played "ring around Rosy," "drop the handkerchief." After these games the children were seated in the circle and a high school girl told them stories after which we had the children do some dramatic work. We had them do the boy who called: "Wolf, wolf," once too often; "Little Red Riding Hood," "Jack be nimble, Jack be quick," and several others. My reward was happiness in the pleasure of the little folk. J. T. T.

They Met at the Barn.

I received a card telling me I was invited to attend a hobo party, that I was to wear the oldest clothes I could find and meet them at a certain friend's barn.

When the time came I was there, and we were given a tin cup and a pail.

We started marching up alleys and byways, stopping at every hobo's home and asking for a handout.

By the time we were through begging we had a great supper collected.

We then marched about a mile from town and ate our meal, but returned home to sleep. L. M. B.

St. Patrick's Day Party.

The nicest and most enjoyable party I ever attended was on the 17th of March. The invitations were printed on green shamrock shaped cards.

As we entered the home of the hostess we were greeted on a sun porch decorated suitably for the occasion. The ceiling was beautifully trimmed with green twisted crêpe paper covering the entire surface. In the very middle hung a green Japanese lantern decorated with colored roses. A porch was suitably furnished with St. Patrick's day novelties, such as several green shamrock pillows, which adorned the wicker furniture.

The evening was spent in playing bunco with large green dice. I was fortunate enough to win the first prize, which was a lovely green bed lamp handsomely decorated with tiny satin shamrocks. The consolation prize, which was received by another of the guests, was a box of St. Patrick's day chocolates.

The lunch which was served had all the pure St. Patrick novelties, among which was the green table linen, green ice cream, and a white angel food cake with the inscription, "Happy Birthday," on it in green icing. L. L.

Prison Party.

A "prison party" ranks first among the parties I have attended.

The windows of the house were barred with black paper. As each guest entered black balloon balls were chained to his ankles, he was given a number and his finger-prints were taken. Charcoal silhouettes were made and, later in the evening were used as the basis for a guessing contest.

Refreshments were served on bare board tables lighted with tallow candles. Numbers were used for place cards and miniature handcuffs were given as favors.

At the close of the evening, each prisoner was "pardoned" and so allowed to go home. E. F.

In a Gypsy Camp.

I recently returned from Conference Point camp on Lake Geneva, Wis. Our recreational leader entertained us highly with her parties. The one that stands out most vividly in my memory is a Gypsy party. The invitations, illustrated with a gypsy caravan, ran like this:

Time, the old gypsy man promised to stay,
Put up his caravan just for today.

The assembly was arranged as a gypsy's winter quarters with green boughs, a tent, and a roaring campfire about which we gathered to have our fortunes told. On the wall was a large clock with golden hands. The evening was divided into golden "hours." The first hour, play hour; the second, story telling hour; the third, dance hour; the fourth, song hour; the fifth, refreshment hour, and so on.

For the games, our leader taught us several foreign ones that she has found. A Persian egg race, a Spanish form of "going to Jerusalem," and the Japanese squeeze were among them.

It was an exceedingly successful party, as it entertained some two hundred girls, and kept them happy, amused, and busy. E. A.

Her every feature speaks of dainty femininity! See how the BEAUTY BOB brings out the personality of lovely Valeria Raquier, now appearing in Ziegfeld's "Whoopee."

"Hair that fairly sparkles with new life and lustre!"

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

The LONG NIGHT

by FRANK R. ADAMS

In Retrospect:

THE steamship Rangefinder, bearing Prof. Eric Dahlstrom and Judge Cavendish on an arctic voyage of exploration, has been wrecked and is drifting in the ice. The captain disappears. The mate, Bill Dayne, kills Dahlstrom to gain possession of a phial of radium. Stephen Hard, war correspondent, is dispatched with a relief plane by Mike Levens, managing editor of the New York Chronicle. Hard drops by parachute to the ship and there is struck down senseless by Dayne. By dirigible arrives a second relief party, led by Eve Dahlstrom, the explorer's daughter, and including Leroy Collier, whom Eve has promised to marry in return for financing the expedition; Christopher Brinker, Scandinavian newspaper man; Karl Maussler, a German mechanic; Herbert Beverleigh, John Gael, and Dr. Waters. The dirigible is compelled by storm to cruise away, leaving the party aboard ship. Hard is charged with the murder of Dahlstrom and is informally tried, with Dayne as judge and Eve as jury. Eve pronounces him guilty and he leaves the ship without supplies. Dahlstrom's dictaphone records, taken to New York by Collier's dirigible, reveal Dayne as the slayer. Radio brings the evidence to the ship. Dayne ends his life. Eve sets out to find Hard. Part of the men follow, but are summoned back to the ship by gunshots.

INSTALLMENT X.

A Sea-King's Pyre.

THERE was no one on deck, so the returned party straggled into the cabin.

"What's the matter," demanded Gael, the first English speaking man to arrive.

Judge Cavendish and the doctor were there alone, the ship was still in its accustomed frozen berth, and the cabin light burned tranquilly on.

"Be quiet," said the judge. "There is a blanket broadcast coming in over the radio. We got the first one thirty minutes ago, ordering all surviving members of the Dahlstrom Arctic Exploration expedition together with the rescue expedition to stand by."

"What's the message?" asked Collier, who had entered in time only to hear the last part of the judge's speech.

"We don't know, yet."

"Ladies and gentlemen," began the radio, "all radio stations, all amateur wireless operators, all commercial transmitters will now get off the air by request of the New York Chronicle to broadcast a message to the S. S. Rangefinder frozen in the ice somewhere about latitude 82 north, longitude 47 west.

"Here is the message formulated by the editorial staff of the Chronicle, approved and indorsed by the President of the United States. Stand by: To all surviving members of the Dahlstrom expedition, together with all members of rescue parties and to all aviators stationed or outfitting inside or near the Arctic circle, the following instructions are issued: Tomorrow at approximately twelve o'clock noon, Greenwich standard time, an attempt will be made to locate the position of the S. S. Rangefinder. At that hour all available aircraft will assemble at the map position of the ship when last seen. That position has already been given, but we are repeating it now. Latitude 82 north, longitude 47 degrees west. In order to make it possible to locate the ship in this final attempt to rescue the party, the captain of the Rangefinder or whatever officer is in command, is hereby instructed to set fire to the ship at twelve o'clock noon tomorrow, Greenwich standard time.

"The owner and publisher of the Chronicle offers a reward of ten thousand dollars to the first aviator to locate the Rangefinder. All aircraft will carry extra supplies of flares with which to signal and assist in the work of rescue.

"To synchronize all activities we are now giving you Greenwich standard time. It is exactly two o'clock, one minute, eighteen seconds a. m. Note that this is not local time. The attempted rescue will be made tomorrow at noon or approximately thirty-four hours from now.

"In order that there will be no misunderstanding, this entire message will be broadcast again immediately and also at half hour intervals during the night."

The voice ceased speaking for a moment. Then the announcer began again.

"Everybody take all this down," ordered Collier, "so that we can check the mistakes and set every watch. Gael, you attend to the ship's chronometer."

WHEN the announcement was completed the members of the party devoted a few minutes to the discussion of ways and means. Even while they were talking a terrific booming and grinding from outside set up. It rendered conversation almost impossible.

"It's lucky this didn't happen while that message was coming in," said Dr. Waters. "We couldn't have heard a word of it."

"That's the ice shifting," said Brinker, who had read more about arctic conditions than the others. "It would be most amusing if it should open up and let us through just like a stage trap right when there looks to be hope."

"Stop croaking," admonished Collier.

"But I wasn't. I was merely thinking how silly it was for us to have been quarreling about Miss Dahlstrom when the jolly old Arctic ocean might gulp us down any minute."

"What's that about Eve?" asked the judge. "Where is she?"

The members of the party who had just returned looked blankly from one to another. For the moment her situation had been relegated to second in importance. Now it was restored to the "urgent" pigeonhole in their minds.

"She got away from us," said Collier. "We couldn't catch her. Then we heard your signal shots and came back."

"But only temporarily," said Brinker stubbornly. He got up as if to go out once more.

"I say the party doesn't separate," ordered Collier. "Just when we've got a chance to rescue we can't be scattered all over the Polar regions. Sit down."

BRINKER did not immediately obey, so Collier pushed him down. "I brought you here, didn't I? I did you a big favor and I expect you to do as I tell you to."

When he had quite finished speaking Judge Cavendish got up, put on an extra sweater or two and slipped his parka over his head.

"What's the idea?" asked Collier.

The judge looked up from wrapping his reindeer boots.

"The idea is that if nobody else is going after Eve I am. You didn't bring me up here. So far as I know I don't owe you anything. Hold anybody else here that you want to but Eve is the daughter of my best friend. Try to stop me from going after her."

"And me," said John Gael.

Brinker said nothing but got up to follow them out.

Collier motioned to Maussler to remain while Beverleigh and the doctor after a moment's indecision decided to stay by the fire a few minutes longer.

The crashing and grinding of ice was more ominous as the doors were opened but the three men filed out closing the companionway and hatchway after them.

When they were gone Collier hit the table with impotent childishness "That's gratitude for you. I hope to God they never come back."

The other two men looked at him in some amazement and then turned to each other. The German said nothing.

"You fellows are the only friends I've got." Collier looked them over appraisingly. "And I don't know as I think so damn much of you."

Silently Beverleigh and the doctor began to put on their furs.

"Sinking ship, eh? Good luck to you, rats. I hope you drown."

As the doctor opened the door to go out Judge Cavendish came in. The noise outside had been so great that those in the cabin had not been able to hear footsteps on deck. Gael and Brinker followed.

"What's the idea?" asked Collier. "Did you decide to wait for warmer weather?"

"No," returned Gael, shortly, "but the ice has opened up in a water lead a hundred yards wide all along the west. There isn't a chance to get across until it closes."

"And it has begun to snow," said Brinker, the last man in. "Those tracks will be covered inside of an hour."

The party settled down in grim hostility to await the arrival of that noon thirty-four hours away.

Eve's sledge journey into the absolutely unknown frozen desert was the first thing she had really enjoyed since she had found her father dead in the cabin of the Rangefinder. Like the man ahead of her on that trail to nowhere in particular she, also, did not care where she was going or whether she ever returned. Life seemed about equally precarious whether she went ahead or back and the path forward was at least the road of freedom. She could choose the right or the left as she wished; back on the Rangefinder she would have to do as Roy decided. Not that Eve was not amenable to reason or the influence of others but she had lived long enough and variously to rebel at the jurisdiction of those whom she did not respect. She was glad to be on her own if only for a short self-satisfying interlude.

The dogs were not easy to handle with their leader gone. The number two dog picked up the idea but he required constant guidance. For that reason they did not make quite as good time as they might have. Time was the essence of the chase because Eve had no idea how long the fine weather might hold. The dogs, too, would only be good for a short time also because she had not brought food along for them. It had to be a dash and not a slow race.

Strangely enough it did not occur to her that even if she won, if she found Steve, it might be embarrassing to take him back to the Rangefinder. She did not, perhaps, fully appreciate the mainspring of Roy's character even yet, did not completely comprehend that a wound to his vanity was unforgiveable. If she thought at all about the reason for her quixotic dash from safety out into the arctic night after Steve it certainly never occurred to her to attribute it to having made a choice between the two men. And in her straightforward way she would expect every one else to realize that she had gone after Steve simply for the sake of her own conscience, her future peace of mind. She had sent him away. It was up to her to bring him back if possible. She had gone off without telling the others because she had been fully aware that they would not have let her go if she had told them. Her feeling toward Steve was strictly impersonal, at least according to her own interpretation. She admired him but if he aroused any other emotion at all in her bosom she would have classified it as a slight animosity. The man was so cocksure, so ineffably right with his own ideas. Like herself, he was detached from pain and minor emotion by the code of the adventurer caste. Whatever feeling he might have was, like her own, buried so deep that few people were destined ever to find it.

And being so sure of her attitude toward Steve she had no reason to think that any one else would misinterpret her actions. If she found him she would bring him back, apologize as sportingly as possible ("My error, sir. Sorry I tried to kill you") and then take up life as she had left it, including the rather boring engagement to Roy Collier. A bargain is a bargain, you know, no matter if the consideration is only a mere trifle like the rest of your life. But perchance she would not get back to pay that debt. Well, that was not such an unpleasant prospect either.

Carry on!

Just like Steve before her she found the going surprisingly good. No open water leads, no high pressure ridges, no insurmountable drifts. She made about four or five miles an hour which was almost as good as she could have done in broad daylight.

Eve had been out four or five hours before she stopped to rest the dogs. During that period she ate sparingly of her supplies and drank a little water from the canteen which she carried next to her body to keep it from freezing. She refilled it with snow.

While she was sitting on the edge of the sledge nibbling on a biscuit a snow flake struck her in the face.

She looked up. Clouds were coming up from nowhere in the sky. The moon was still brilliant but would be engulfed in a few minutes.

Obviously if she were going to do any good she would have to move fast. pups, mongrels with a strain of Newfoundland in them and they were just

She took off her outer furs and stuffed them down the tunnel.

So she got up and urged the dogs to renewed activity. They were good as ready to go on until they dropped as she was. There were only five of them but they were big fellows, half wild and all wooly. They yelped as they got under way and then steadied down to another pull.

A swirl of snow came across the ice and struck Eve in the face. She looked down. Steve's tracks were being filled up. "Got to hurry, boys."

She ran beside the dogs urging them on.

The moon disappeared. The snow came down, first in slanting, stinging machine gun fire and then later in great swirls of flakes that were soft but stifling.

She couldn't see. Caution and common sense counseled her to stop but she went on, telling herself that perhaps she was going in the right direction, that she might find him.

AND then suddenly the dogs halted. She went forward to see what was the matter. There he was, standing looking stupidly at the team.

"Hello," she said.

"Why, hello," he replied. "I never thought to run across you here."

"It's a small world," she told him, "but not quite so small as it might seem because it just happens that I was looking for you."

"O, yes," he said vaguely. "You needn't have bothered."

Then he stopped to laugh. "Of course you are only another hallucination that I'm having but you seem fearfully real and I'm rather surprised to have one that is able to talk. The others just make signs."

He was still talking when his knees crumpled up under him and he slipped down into the snow.

Eve found her whisky among the supplies and forced an undiluted drink between his lips.

"You'll have to get up," she said. "You can't lie there."

"O. K.," he agreed. "What'll we do?"

That was a problem. Eve realized before she proposed it that she could never get him back to the ship. He was too tired to walk that far and if she put him on the sledge without robes he would simply freeze to death. He had a little false energy from the stimulant now but she knew it would not last long enough for the entire trip. She must get him into a shelter of some sort until he could have a chance to rest.

"Take another drink," she ordered, "and then help me."

"Help you what?"

"Build a snow house."

"Always glad to oblige but I'm sorry I didn't bring my own dollies along."

"I mean an Eskimo snow house."

"O," and then he said vaguely, "It seems to me that I've heard that no one but an Eskimo can do that."

"I learned how from Eskimos." She showed him the way to use the snow knife to cut the blocks of snow from a drift while she, herself, tramped down a circle rather high up on a snow ridge.

Hampered by his numb fingers and the blinding storm it took them quite a while to complete the house but finally it was done with the chinks all plastered up and a tunnel leading under the drift to the inside. Eve told him to crawl in and after unharnessing the dogs and fastening them on a crude tieline, she followed, bringing with her the waterproof tarpaulin cover from the sled and all the supplies.

Steve was pretty weak now and awfully tired. She looked him over with a flashlight and he grinned at her.

"I don't know why you did all this for me," he said "unless you wanted to save me for some more horrible form of execution."

"Execution?" replied Eve blankly.

"Yes, for your father's murder."

"O," she said,, "I forgot to tell you about that. I found out you didn't do it. But go to sleep now. I'll make all necessary explanations when you wake up."

SHE spread the tarpaulin on the snow and made him move over on to it and sit beside her.

He sighed. "All we need now is a banging radiator and this would be just like a kitchenette apartment. They're just about this size."

"We won't need any radiator," she told him "Not after a few minutes."

"We'll be dead I suppose?"

"No, we'll be warm." She took off her outer furs and stuffed them down the tunnel leading to the outside. "You will have to do that, too, or you'll perspire and your furs will freeze later."

"Do you mean to say that it's safe to take off——"

"Anything you like," she replied. "The Eskimos sleep in these houses without any clothes at all."

It grew warm in the igloo just as Eve had predicted that it would. And it was dark, absolutely so except when she switched on the electric torch and that was too precious to use except for an emergency.

Steve's voice trailed away as his half dreamed thoughts superseded his articulate ones. This was utterly ridiculous, he told himself drowsily, to be so comfortable there in a little snow hut in the middle of the arctic. Why, it was actually much pleasanter here than it had been on shipboard. He could not understand it, could not understand anything, why he was there, why she was there, why he was alive even, but it did not seem to make any difference. Existence, the propinquity of a woman from whom he would ordinarily have fled, were all blurred into a pleasant warm mess of feathers into which he could feel himself pleasurably sinking.

His head would stay up no longer. He was sunk.

In swaying from the perpendicular he had inadvertently leaned against her shoulder.

"Sorry," he said and started to raise himself up. But sleep overtook him and his head slipped down to her lap.

He slept there for hours.

Not a sound came from outside. The worst blizzard of all time might have been raging for all they could tell from inside their shelter.

Eve, braced against the wall of their castle, dosed fitfully herself for a while and then she, too, slipped down to a more comfortable position.

AT the foot of the mooring mast of the G N 16 at King's Bay in Spitsbergen, Capt. Sachs looked aloft at his airship swinging impatiently in little quarter circles and pulling at the ring in its nose.

His chief engineer mechanic, Holzmann, unmistakably a mechanic even in fur clothes, stood beside him.

Capt. Sachs had a verbatim copy of the famous message of the New York Chronicle beginning:

"To all surviving members of the Dahlstrom expedition together with all members of rescue parties and all aviators stationed or outfitting inside the Arctic circle, the following instructions are issued, etc."

He knew the message by heart but he referred to it automatically and shook his head. "The plan is good," he said in German, "but how can they know in New York what the weather will be up here? A little snow, a little fog and all is lost."

"But we go, Hein?" questioned the mechanic. He knew the answer.

"Of course we go. You ask foolishness."

Holzmann had been loading fuel for his engines all night so that the order did not catch him unprepared. The rest of the crew was already on board. The captain went back to the shelter which had been constructed as temporary quarters for the ground crew of the G N 16 and compared his watch for the fiftieth time with the chronometer which had been installed in a slightly heated glass case with a solid standard. (Clocks and watches tend to run slow in the arctic.) He came out again and glanced over toward the hangars occupied by the equipment of the Norwegian military atrol. Men were just beginning to run the planes out of the sheds and to clear the runways.

"It is necessary," he muttered, "that we start several hours before those fleet birds."

He and his mechanic engineer climbed the mooring mast and boarded his command.

The motors were started and as soon as the airship gained enough headway to hold her own against the wind, the moorings in the air were cast off and she rose almost directly upward, turned lazily in the air and started with the gale at her back into what looked like the absolute dark.

LIEUTENANTS NEPSTEDT, Jensen, and Fors were having an early cup of coffee in the improvised mess hall at Kings Bay.

Jensen looked over toward the empty mooring mast of the G N 16, which was brightly illuminated.

"Grandmother Sachs is getting an early start," he said with a grin.

"He has to," replied Nepstedt, swallowing a piece of hard bread hastily. "With that old gas bag of his he'll be lucky if he gets there by noon and I suppose ten thousand dollars would come in as handy to him as anybody."

"But he hasn't a chance. Even if he does get in the right neighborhood," argued Lieutenant Fors, "it takes that freight train of his five minutes to turn around and one of us can do a dozen circles and cover ten square miles while he is dawdling around a city block."

Other flight officers dropped in. Nine planes were to start and the flyers had made a pool among themselves to go to the one who first located the Rangefinder. They were sure that it would be one of their own expedition but in the event of the discovery being made by an outsider, the pool was to be divided among the ones of their own number to be first, second and third back to the base with the news.

AT Point Barrow, in Alaska, Albert H. Pitkin was having breakfast with the postmaster.

"All ready to go, Al?" the government official said.

"Practically. I'm going to load four or five extra flares and a Very's pistol for signaling. The oil for my engine is being heated right now and Johnny Inyoughi and his crew of sleeping beauties is shoveling off the last hundred feet of my take-off. I wish I had an extra pair of skiis in case I break these that I have with a forced landing. But I don't know where I could get 'em so I'll have to take a chance."

He gulped the last of his coffee.

"So long. Keep tuned in and I'll send you an occasional message and let you know what time I'll be back to dinner—if any."

Pitkin was an explorer not a pilot. His plane was being flown by Carl Hansen, an ex-airmail pioneer.

At the approach of his superior, Hansen climbed into the cabin plane.

"Let's get going," he said sticking his head out through the door. "The wind's against us and this is going to be a thousand mile ride."

"O. K."

Pitkin climbed into the cabin and slammed the door. At a signal from the pilot the mechanic on the outside twisted her tail. The plane started down the runway and took off into the teeth of the wind.

AT King's Bay the first of the Norwegian patrol took the air at 5:15 a. m. The second plane was still on the ground at the end of its runway and dived into a snow bank head first. Nobody was killed, but the plane was wrecked. Numbers three, four, and five got away. The motor on number six stalled just off the ground and she crashed. Number seven refused to start at all although it got away later and eight and nine lifted in succession and shot up between the black velvet curtains of the night.

Lindblom at Dalrymple rock in Baffin's bay, inspected his plane and decided that it would make this one last trip before falling apart.

There was no fumbling about his takeoff. He had been doing it too often of late. His plane rose at the first try and he slipped into what seemed to be almost a well trodden path to the north. It ought to be familiar to him. He had been over it every day for over two weeks.

ON board the Rangefinder the instinct to survive unfted the members of the party once more into a working coalition. There was a good deal to be done before they took this last gamble with their lives by setting fire to the ship.

All the supplies and equipment were carried out on the ice. This store included canvas, tools and whatever materials might come in handy in case the rescue failed to come off and they would be obliged to resume life under ever more precarious conditions than heretofore. They knew as well as any one else that a fog or a blizzard just at the wrong moment would render the entire rescue project absolutely futile.

Under the practical guidance of Maussler who was familiar with the requirements of flying craft of all kinds, a sort of landing field for aeroplanes was cleared on the ice. There was no telling in what form help might arrive, if at all, and it was necessary to be prepared for any eventuality.

Getting even a moderately large space clear was a tremendous task and would not have been possible at all in time except that the equipment of the Rangefinder included a considerable supply of dynamite by means of which they were able to remove the more ponderous obstructions. The limits of the field were marked with kerosene soaked torches which could be lighted if occasion arose.

Then, on their improvised field, they marked out a runway beginning on top of a high drift, to give a plane a good start and to make sure of a takeoff in the limited distance that they were able to smooth down in the time at their disposal.

The supply of oil was divided. Enough to last them for several weeks was put on the ice with the rest of the supplies, the balance was distributed in cans in various parts of the hold of the Rangefinder ready to be dumped and lighted simultaneously at the hour appointed by the radio broadcast.

Judge Cavendish, who was not strong enough to do any of the really strenuous outside work, busied himself about getting the effects of his friend, Eric Dahlstrom, ready for transportation—if there should be any.

He asked the other men to move the dead scientist's body out on the ice to be taken back with the rest of them.

"Don't be foolish," growled Collier. "We can't carry back any extra weight like that."

"Eve would want it," said the judge.

"Would she? I guess she's got the main thing that she wants so I would not worry about the rest. She has forgotten all about her father and we might just as well. I wish he had been in hell before I ever heard of him."

REBUFFED but not convinced, the judge made an effort to move the frozen body himself.

Christopher Brinker came upon him in the forehold.

"I'll help you," he offered sympathetically, "but I'm afraid Collier is rather fearfully right this time about trying to carry the body back. It would be foolish to carry extra weight when it may mean our lives."

"But this is my friend," Judge Cavendish began.

"I know." Brinker was as sympathetic as if the older man had been a child. "There must be a better way, though."

He paused and turned the matter over in his mind while he smoked a cigaret. "I've thought of a most amusing and useful idea. What do you think of this? A man with a name like Dahlstrom must have had Scandinavian ancestors the same as I have, and you know as well as I do that a real Scandinavian would rather burn up with a ship than stay alive on dry land. Why in the old days, a good Norwegian or a Swede would walk a mile to get on board of a burning galley rather than die in a nice comfortable bed. You can't give a Northlander a better funeral than to burn up a vessel under him. Why not put brother Dahlstrom up on deck forward and head him toward the horizon so he can see the first rays of the sun when they break over the edge of the world?"

Judge Cavendish thought it was a wonderful idea. "Why," he said to Brinker, "do you ordinarily clothe your shining mind in trash?"

The Dane was embarrassed. "You have to these days," he replied with a shrug. "Besides it isn't my idea. I read about it somewhere."

"So did I," said Judge Cavendish. "But I didn't apply it."

The two of them together managed easily enough to get the body up on deck. Stretched out on a forward transom and covered with the ship's flag it was dignified and not particularly depressing.

"Eve would like it this way," the judge decided, surveying their handiwork.

Collier made no objection to the ceremony.

NONE of the members of the party had slept since the radio message came through. They were all too excited for one thing, and for another there was so much to do in the way of preparation that there was scarcely time to complete the job even by working incessantly.

It had been an anxious period, too, on account of the weather. Snow had fallen a great deal of the time and the sky was overcast. Under those conditions it seemed highly improbable that their signal would be seen at all, and they were of two minds as to whether to light it or not. They left the radio receiver turned on and one member of the party constantly on watch near it in the hope that some further instructions might reach them.

But after about 6 a. m. no more signals of any kind came through. This was to be expected, however, as conditions for long distance broadcasting are negative during daylight hours—and it was daylight in New York.

At 10:30 or thereabout the snow stopped falling and the clouds began to clear away. Little trapdoors of moonlight began opening up in the sky. It might be only a local condition or it might indicate a general clearing over the entire area. All they could do was hope.

At 11:45 all the members of the party gathered on deck with lighted torches.

Judge Cavendish, at the forward end of the transom, opened the worn ship's Bible and began:

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away ——"

His voice was scarcely raised above the ordinary conversational pitch, and yet it threaded a golden woof through the thundering background of the restless ice.

When he had finished and closed the book the other men departed to their various stations and touched their blazing torches to the oil soaked fuel that had been piled in a dozen sheltered spots above and below decks.

Then they climbed over the side and standing on the ice at a safe distance watched the mounting flames destroy the only shelter within a thousand miles.

[To be concluded.]

Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to neglect ourselves when we have been warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, headaches, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than to the things which we leave undone.

Some things, people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative that's used in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

The wonderful product known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in his many years of practice at Monticello, Illinois. He proved it safe and reliable for women and children; thoroughly effective for the most robust men. He showed that it actually does correct constipation. And it is made from nothing but herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting and cannot form any habit.

Since Dr. Caldwell first permitted his prescription to be put up in bottles and sold through drug stores, it has increased steadily in popularity until today it is the largest selling laxative in the world!

GOOD MORNING!

Attention, ladies and gentlemen! Sergt. Quirt and Capt. Flagg [Top Sergeant Flagg now] SPEAKING!

By no chance can you have forgotten those two lusty devil dogs? Those tough marines whose personal differences made "What Price Glory" the virile and versatile entertainment that it was? No, you have not forgotten them, for these be boys whom one can NOT forget, and it is with interest that we meet them again in "The Cock-Eyed World," sequel to "What Price Glory," produced by Fox, who fathered the last mentioned film, and written by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, creators of Flagg and Quirt. Raoul Walsh, who megaphoned so expertly for "What Price Glory," is also, you note, the man behind the picture now on review.

Grandma Should Stay at Home.

"The Cock-Eyed World" produced in the days of lavender and old lace would have caused Milady to call for fan and smelling salts and then faint anyway. In this say-what-you-think-and-let-the-other-fellow-do-likewise era it will not produce much trepidation on the part of the modern maiden. One feels, however, that Mother should not be taken to see AND hear it without the warning that both action and words are rough to say the VERY least; that Grandma should be severely ordered to behave herself and keep her hands and that the theater hearing this film is not the best hall of learning for the adolescent mind—mental. I wouldn't take the children to view "The Cock-Eyed World" if I were you.

You will remember that those two hard fisted, hard fighting, hard minded and hard headed marines, Flagg and Quirt were inordinately fond of the ladies and took their fun where they found it. A sweetheart in every port for them, and their perpetual quarrel—which continues in this picture—was principally due to the fact that both men preferred the same woman.

Chase the Seven Seas.

Thus they did in "What Price Glory" and so do they in "The Cock-Eyed World." In the latter film you journey them battling from Vladivostock to Central America (with stopovers at the navy yard at Brooklyn, Coney Island, etc.), over a Russian wrestler's far from suppressed desire; a Brooklyn maiden they would also have been wiser to have let alone and lastly—ah, but far from leastly!—laying siege to one Marianna of Nicaragua. Lily Damita is Marianna! If you saw Lily in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," you have an idea of what to expect. If you DIDN'T see her in the mentioned cinema, why then you have simply NO IDEA . . .! But, sure, it is first slaves and then monkeys that this red blooded darling makes of those rivals, Flagg and Quirt.

Well—let's don't talk any more about the story. Only—you will recollect that neither Quirt nor Flagg entertained sentimental illusions about their soldiering. Wars, they decided in "What Price Glory" were to make the world safe for Big Business. They harbor the same conviction in "The Cock-Eyed World" and give voice to it.

We have the two tough heroes back in civilization, full of respect for one another's fighting prowess but still having personal sentiments regarding each other which are no prettier nor more Christian than they were when their owners first met and hated.

Rough, but Funny.

Besides being very rough, this piece is very funny—there's no getting round THAT fact. Messrs. McLaglen and Lowe are at their characters' right best. Mr. McLaglen's delivery seems at times a bit strained due to his struggle to cow and render unobjectionable his English accent, but this you cease to mind after you get used to it.

El Brendel, as one Swedish Olson with a knack for getting the goat of Top Sergeant Flagg, proves a comical ass and all minor roles are handled with vim and intelligence.

Plenty of letters will arrive condemning your critic for handing four stars to this piece. I can only reply to same by reminding the writers that four stars do not mean necessarily that a film is full of purity, sweetness and light. Four stars imply that a production is extraordinary from the viewpoint of story, production, and acting. "The Cock-Eyed World" IS extraordinary.

SAYS the Film Daily:

Rev. William A. [Billy] Sunday, evangelist, will sign a talking picture contract, said to involve $1,000,000, with Warners in the next few days, according to Homer Rodeheaver, his song leader. This, despite the evan-

Color Camera Takes a Place Beside Talkie

Critics Won't Need Rose Glasses Longer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The movie critics will not have to look at pictures through rose colored glasses much longer in order to write a glowing review. The color film has come to stay. This young companion of that blatant fellow Mr. Talkie has been playing small parts for several months and only lately has been stepped up to play the lead. The smashing box office success of Warner Brothers' "Broadway Gold Diggers" is all the proof producers need to start them doubling orders for color cameras.

New York studios are matching their collective wits and technicians against the best that Hollywood can produce in order to be first in the field when wholesale production of color films on a superscreen gets under way.

There are four different processes in use today employed in the making of color films. Technicolor, the principle one employed, necessitates the use of separate cameras and individual laboratory treatment. It is expensive to the producers, already trimming corners to meet the ever increasing cost of sound.

New Method Perfected.

Now along comes a wise man of the east with a fifth process to put color on the screen. A photographic company, it is reported in studios hereabouts, has perfected a new single process wide film for talkies and natural color photography. Little has been revealed concerning the process, but it is known the film will be ready for the trade within three months.

With the single process wide natural color film will come screen standardization. Fox, Paramount, and Warner Brothers already have introduced a wide screen to movie goers, but each company has been using a different size.

The making of a color film is a complex affair. It takes eight months to make a technicolor camera and even longer to produce a technicolor expert. So far there has been a shortage of both, and the Hollywood studios being the parent organizations have drafted most of the color equipment for their use. First National will use technicolor in a number of their feature films to be released this season. "Footlights and Fools" with Colleen Moore will have color sequences; "The Lady in Ermine" and "The Song of the Flame" will be all technicolor and "Sons of the Gods,"

Rich Man Wins Janet Gaynor from His Rivals of the Films

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Janet Gaynor's marriage to Lydell Peck of San Francisco was a bit of a relief to perturbed nerves in Hollywood, where many had busied themselves following the heart affairs of the pretty little ingénue. While there was no doubt during the wealthy young Mr. Peck's courtship as to the ardor and seriousness of his intentions, nobody knew exactly what Janet's were.

Every time Janet and Charlie Farrell worked together on a picture, it looked to observers as if the old flame, which had started with their work together in "Seventh Heaven," was reviving.

"Lucky Star" found Janet and Charlie working together in the spring after some screen separation, and the more recently completed "Sunny Side Up" made wise guys wonder where cupid's darts would eventually lodge.

When Lydell came a-calling on the Gaynor-Farrell set, the atmosphere seemed to change, but it would take a stick heart barometer to register just what the change was. Then, too, Janet was a great admirer of Charlie's taste and copied the early American style of furnishings in his home for her new dressing room at the Fox studio.

Three in a Row.

It is not the first time that Janet had a hard time making up her mind. Three years ago she was engaged to Herb Moulton, a local newspaper reporter, who now is a scenarist and title writer at Paramount.

When Fred Murnau, the German director, was trying to have Janet do a special love scene with George O'Brien in "Sunrise" she burst into tears and said: "How can I when I'm in love with Herbie?"

Herbie and wedding bells were forgotten not long after "Sunrise," when rôles with Farrell followed. Perhaps it was the romance of the rôles they played together.

Then came screen separation for a time. Peck met Janet, and Farrell became interested in Virginia Valli, but "Lucky Star" ended that, for Peck

American Opera Company to Give Chicagoan's Work

By Edward Moore.

IT is strange how easy it is for what seems like a plain statement of fact to be misunderstood. Only a few days ago this department was accused by word of mouth of being openly hostile to the cause of opera in English.

In view of the enormous mass of words on the subject that have passed from typewriter to newspaper type during a course of years, such a statement was nothing short of appalling. When I had recovered the use of speech again, I tried to make myself clear on the subject. Then it came out that my principal offense had been in pointing out the great number of times that the Chicago Opera in its three corporate existences since 1910 had tried to give the public a chance to like opera in English, and how invariably the public had responded to the attempt by buying tickets for performances that were not in English.

Perhaps it may be a good plan to state a credo on the subject all over again.

The English language by the fact of its descent from several other languages is the most expressive on earth. It has more shadings than any other, it can convey more meanings than any other, and by the further fact of its huge vocabulary it can be selected into a language as musical and flowing as the most beautiful of the continental tongues.

For those who deride it because of its supposed harsh quality, a course is advised of selections from Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Milton, Keats, Shelley, and perhaps Rudyard Kipling. It will not be necessary to become any more modern than these, but let the excerpts be read aloud and listened to. That should dispose of the question whether English is musical and singable.

This and That Thing About the Theater

And This Means About the Actors, Also.

By Frederick Donaghey.

OF COURSE, the traditional thing to write about today is "Journey's End"; traditional that is, in the sense that play-reporters with a Sunday column to fill usually fill it by rewriting what they wrote for the morning after the first performance. These "second thoughts" feuilletons are generally painful: at least, they are so to me; for few plays are so important as to merit a second review. Besides, a good reporter ought to be able to say everything he has to say in his account of the first-night performance—or, rather, of the performance which he witnesses for the purposes of a next-morning review.

But "Journey's End" is out of the common, as writing and as drama; and among my reasons for saying so is that it has been the subject of more letters to my desk than any other play shown in Chicago in the four years since "What Price Glory!" was new here. Nearly all the letters—and the mail for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday carried fifty-six—mention "What Price Glory!"; some in praise, some in bitter condemnation, and others in a spirit of fair comparison as between it and "Journey's End." To me, the points of comparison do not carry far: the respective plays were written from opposed viewpoints on war, and in veins far out of alignment. Soldiers of the World War took part in writing both plays: Lawrance Stallings left a leg somewhere in France; and R. C. Sherriff served with what is said to have been distinction. I found nothing of the spirit of pacifism in either play; and neither play seeks to make war appear glorious or good. Mr. Sherriff seems to look back on the men who did the fighting for Great Britain and the other Allies as men engaged in a holy cause; whereas to Mr. Stallings and his lusty co-worker, Maxwell Anderson, they were merely engaged in being killed or in seeking not to be killed because the affairs of the nations were in the control of so many criminal imbeciles. Mr. Sherriff seems to me to have written with reverence; and there is no question that Mr. Stallings and Mr. Anderson wrote with bitter, sincere mockery of the whole mess.

"What Price Glory!" was vastly rich in satire and a certain irony; and neither quality is apparent to me in the good play in the Adelphi. For so long as laughter abides with me, I shall be laughing at that episode in "What Price Glory!" wherein a brigadier-general of the American Expeditionary Force, gorgeously arrayed and populously attended, called on Captain Quigg to deliver to him a bundle of pamphlets and the explanation that the authorities in Washington desired that the pamphlets be distributed behind the German lines. I am without recollection that, in seven performances of the play which I sat through, the audience, as an audience, laughed at the episode: it was wasted fun, but great fun, and was but one of fifty touches that made "What Price Glory!" wonderful to me. You will find nothing like that in "Journey's End." Mr. Sherriff's "comic relief" is just that—what the old-time dramatists called "comic relief." Some of it—as in the case of the fat, stupid, and loyal second-lieutenant acted so well by Ralph Nairn—helps to point and to express character; but none of it is essential to the play as a play.

And these are not considerations likely to tell with more that one American theater-goer in, perhaps, five hundred. What tells in "Journey's End" is its sincerity, with the good writing of scene after scene. If, in my report of September 10, I seemed to emphasize that scene wherein the whisky-soaked Stafford tells the craven Hibbert that he, too, is a coward at heart, it was because the writing of the scene seemed to me to be an expression of something like genius. Of course, it probably is nothing of the sort; and it is as likely as not that Mr. Sherriff may not have regarded the scene as of especial quality or importance as he wrote it. I have recollection of a play that was made into a popular success on the basis of a suggestion offered by a gentleman who took orders for bottled beer delivered by the case. He had wandered into a spiritless rehearsal in search of an actor who owed for some beer. The management, the author, and the director, not to speak of the star, were in despair regarding the "curtain" of the most important act. The beer-salesman walked down the dark aisle, said "Excuse me!" and then put his suggestion as a question: "Why don't you fellows try it this way?" The critics thought the "curtain" in the third act would be the making of the play with the public and it was.

Miscellany.

Sweet Adeline Is Happiest of Season's Hits

New Comedy Redolent of the "Gay Nineties."

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—"Sweet Adeline" is at the moment the happiest of the new season's hits. It is musical and like Mr. Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" a period comedy. It begins back in 1898 when the war with Spain was on and ends two years later.

This gives it such setting and costuming as many a still active playgoer remembers with considerable pleasure and a few thrills. The "gay nineties" held their compensations.

This was the time of mutton-chop sleeves and high waist lines for the women, and square box coats for the men. It was the time of bicycles built for an occasional two, but mostly for a sprinting one; of bloomers and trouser clips; road races and road runs when many a good youth could set a steady pace of ten miles an hour and proudly hold it.

"Sweet Adeline" is also romantic, reciting the adventure of a Hoboken Cinderella whose pa is Emil Schmidt, proprietor of a beer garden where sailors from the ships and college lads from Stevens Institute mingle with the family trade, and sing drinking songs.

Adeline Loves a Sailor Person.

Adeline Schmidt is the heroine's name. She is swarthily brunette, while her prettier sister, Nellie, is almost ash blonde. Addie loves a sailor, a second mate or something on the steamship St. Paul, who enlists in the war and becomes a handsome singing lieutenant. Addie loves the lieutenant, but it is her sister Nellie, the lieutenant loves.

Addie thereupon takes to the stage. She has a gift for singing those sad old songs that used to cause young and old to cry into their beer in papa's garden and when she applies for a job at a burlesque theater in New York her talent is promptly recognized by the musical director.

Thereafter she becomes a star and buys herself an ermine wrap. Also she moves on from beer to champagne and is not above staying up all night and having breakfast at McGowan's tavern, which was quite a sleigh ride in those old days when we had snow.

She gets herself a job the next summer singing on the roof of the old Madison Square Garden, and here two of her admirers, the musical director who discovered her voice and the lieutenant back from the wars, eager to resume his suit, fight over her.

This scene, incidentally, is said to have become so disturbingly reminiscent to Harry Thaw when he saw the show out of town that he arose excitedly in his seat and left the theater. It reminded him a little too vividly.

starring Richard Barthelmess will have its tinted moments.

One of coming technicolor features now is in the cutting room here. It is "Rio Rita," a 50 per cent natural color job which will run almost two and one-half hours. It is to open in October at the Earl Carroll theater and its producers having taken a peep at the mob crowding in to see "Broadway Gold Diggers" are going to slap a $2 tax on the seats.

Helen Morgan's Film Ready.

Helen Morgan's first film "Applause," which was filmed in Paramount's Long island studio has had a private showing, but the crooning liftle torch singer has not see it yet. Rouben Mamoulian, Theater Guild director, who has turned movie director in his spare time, would not let Helen take a peep at the unfinished sequences. When the time came for the private showing of the completed film Helen was tied up with a rehearsal for her new Hammerstein music show and could not get away. Anyhow, eveyy one in the Long island studio is raving over the picture. They say it is going to turn Hollywood green with envy and that Miss Morgan is a swell screen actress and that the young Russian Mamoulian with his moving camera which follows some scenes around the block and back has hit something brand new.

Plans for "Journey's End."

Information concerning movie plans for "Journey's End," R. C. Sheriff's popular English war play, became available here this week with the announcement that James Whale, English actor and stage director, is to direct the all-talkie movie version of the play. Whale recently finished rehearsing the "Journey's End" company for Chicago and immediately left for Hollywood to direct the talkie dialogue for "Hell's Angels" which by the way may become movieland's most expensive picture. Completed after months of labor it is being done over in order to keep up with the times. It began as a silent film, but movies—even with airplanes in them—have to talk these days.

When Whale returns east he will begin work on "Journey's End," It will be produced by Tiffany-Stahl Productions, Inc., and Gainsborough Productions, Ltd., of England. There will be no woman in this war play.

"'Journey's End' as a stage play," said Mr. Whale before he left for the west, "is something that should not be meddled with. I should like to have the London, New York, or Chicago cast in the entirety for our screen version, but this is not possible. Many of the incidents in the play which do not adapt themselves to the limited space of the stage will be introduced into the screen version."

Basil Deal, the English director imported by Paramount to put Clive Brook through the paces in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," having just about completed his job, is reported getting ready to form a company of his own. He will become associated with Gerald Du Maurier and produce talkies in dear old Lunnon.

Along with the biggest dirigibles, best war novels, from Germany comes a somewhat different talkie film. It is showing at the 55th street playhouse—a highbrow movie emporium. Another German film, "The Spy of Madame Pompadour," is to be the attraction at the little Carnegie Playhouse a few blocks north. Another foreign invasion is coming in, mainly from England.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are reported well on their way on their jaunt around the world. They slipped through New York so quietly that hardly any one saw them.

While a lot of technicians have been coming east from Hollywood to see what they can learn, Julius Weinberger, engineer in charge of the research work for Radio corporation, slipped away to Hollywood to listen in on sound out there. His report will have considerable to do with the future development of RCA photophone.

'TIS HE

DAVE CHASEN

He's in "Rain or Shine!" wherein his principal business is to be talked to and at by Joe Cook, the star. Mr. Chasen has been here in at least two other shows with Mr. Cook, who makes the most of him. It seems that he was "discovered" by the late Frank Van Hoven, the comic juggler, and that he was born in Odessa.

Italy Moves to Halt Exodus of Alpine Dwellers

TURIN, Italy.—(AP)—Thoroughly alarmed by the rapid depopulation of the Italian Alps the government is taking extensive measures to keep the present inhabitants in their villages and to induce other persons to make their homes in the mountains.

The attraction of the cities of the plains has proved almost too much for the old mountaineer stock. The Alps are becoming deserted. From 1881 to today Beaulard dropped from 1,029 to 624 inhabitants; Locana from 6,500 to 4,700. In twenty years Cesana dropped from 1,205 to 771 persons. Novalessa from 1,638 to 1,000; Salomina from 309 to 100.

What this means to Italy was expressed by the Giornale D'Italia, a Rome daily, which said:

"The mountains in Italy are the frontier and the frontier must not be depopulated. Its zone ought to designate the linguistic boundary and to furnish an ever alert guard.

"The mountains create the Alpini, who are the typical and necessary army of Italy."

Two years ago the government took its first step toward countering this danger by authorizing the expenditure of two million lire for streets, irrigation and other improvements in the mountains. Also it passed reforestation laws which in time will create a new calling of foresters.

Now the government is considering the reduction of state and community taxes, extension of agricultural credit, the establishment of selling organizations to assist the mountain farmer in disposing of his products, and the development of "little industries," which mountaineers used to carry on in their homes.

Palestine Treasury Shows Huge Surplus

JERUSALEM.—(AP)—The Palestine treasury department announced before the riots started that the budget for the first five months of the year showed a surplus of more than a million dollars. Customs were the chief source of revenue and the police and the trans-Jordanian frontier force the principal items of expense.

Belgian Musicians War on the Talkies

BRUSSELS.—(AP)—Belgian musicians are joining their professional brethren in other countries in protesting against sound films. Motion picture theaters answered a demand for higher wages by announcing their intention of using only sound films. The federation of musical artists is organizing symphony concerts for the benefit of its needy members.

Dry Law Violations 2,991 in Porto Rico

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—(AP)—Violations of the national prohibition law in Porto Rico totaled 2,991, says the report of George W. Lewis, chief insular police, for the year ending with June.

Out of 2,858 trials there were 2,851 convictions and only 133 cases were waiting trial at the end of the year.

Plays and Such of Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of September 14, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not re-writes or summarizations.

With the advent this week of two new musical comedies the renaissance of the Theater in Chicago will begin to take shape. It took some considerable shape last week, Mack Sennett's Bathing-Girls in Person being in our midst; but "Listen, Lester!" and "The Canary" are expected to fill out the strike-emancipated old dear into a thing of symmetry and salubrity.

"Listen, Lester!" was a success here, too; and it was pretty much of a mess. . . . And "The Canary" was just a fairish song-and-dance piece with Miss Julia Sanderson and Joe Cawthorn in it.

Ethel Barrymore's new play, written by Zoë Akins, has been named "Déclassée." Which led the New-York Sun to guess the comical critics would call it "Delicatessen."

The comical critics didn't, however; and it gave to Miss Barrymore one of her best rôles.

Winchell Smith and John L. Golden will stage a play of "faith, fun, and feuds" in the Blue Ridge Mountains. It is called "Thunder," has Burr McIntosh in it, and will be seen first in this month.

They staged it, thinking that the title of "Thunder" would mean a deal because of the success of "Lightnin'," then current in New-York. "Thunder" ended quickly.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of September 12 by the paragraphs that follow.

"Going Some!" the bright farce by Rex Beach and Paul Armstrong, will end its engagement at the Garrick this week.

"Going Some" was a fairish little farce, and was fairly successful.

At the Illinois, Charles Klein's play, "The Third Degree," will continue active, with Miss Helen Ware, Edmund Breese, Wallace Eddinger, and Ralph Dalmore in the prominent rôles. . . . Miss Blanche Janis' departure from the Studebaker with "The Fair Co-Ed" is set for next Saturday.

"The Third Degree" was a pretty-good indoors melodrama; and "The Fair Co-Ed" would have been fierce without Miss Janis.

The final fortnight of "The Gentleman from Mississippi," with Burr McIntosh and Will Deming in the leading rôles, will begin at the Grand tonight.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" was the title. It had a long and a popular run here; and was a good show in its day.

The beginning of the sixth week of "The Goddess of Liberty" will be recorded this evening at the Princess, with Miss Sallie Fisher and George Parsons in the principal rôles.

That was one of the Hough-Adams-Howard pieces, and not one of the most successful in the long list.

"The Climax" completes its engagement at the Chicago Opera-House Saturday evening.

"The Climax," over-touted, was a disappointment in Chicago. Also, it was a bad play.

Raymond Hitchcock in "The Man Who Owns Broadway," George M. Cohan's latest musical play, will proceed this week and for several weeks thereafter at the Colonial.

Hitchcock has not yet been more amusing than he was in "The Man Who Owns Broadway," which was Mr. Cohan's song-and-dance make-over of "Popularity," a play he wrote for N. C. Goodwin. Goodwin didn't appear in it: the big rôle was given to Thomas W. Ross, who didn't click in it.

The Olympic Theater will adopt the policy of Sunday matinées today with a performance of "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," and will continue it during the run of that musical comedy.

The "policy" of Sunday matinées didn't catch the popular fancy: because, maybe, "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" was a Saturday-night show.

Miss Henrietta Crosman's final Chicago appearance in "Sham" will be made this week at Powers'.

"Sham" is forgotten along with most of the plays in which Miss Crosman sought to follow up her success in "Mistress Nell."

IN ONE OF TONIGHT'S NEW PLAYS

THOMAS MITCHELL MISS SUSAN CONROY

HE'S in "Little Accident," which will be made known to Chicago tonight in the Selwyn; and so also is Miss Conroy. The play rates as one of last season's long-run successes in New-York. . . . As to Mr. Mitchell, he is not only in the play, but of it, also: he helped Floyd Dell to write it on the basis of the latter's novel named "The Unmarried Father." Mr. Dell at one time wrote about books for the Chicago Evening Post. And Mr. Mitchell was last in Chicago in 1928 in "Fly-by-Night."

Shed no tears for the passing of the noiseless films: their time had come, and they were unable to live beyond it. The talking movie may be crude, and offensive to the finer tastes; but it has great possibilities, and these eventually will be realized. It is still an experiment—and, what is more, it is noble in motive. Anything that aims to abolish subtitles and subtitle writers deserves to be encouraged. —R. E. Sherwood in Life.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

Sexual Reform. He expressed the belief that the Theater is at least twenty years behind contemporary thought, and added: "The person who has suffered most at the hands of censorship has always been the serious playwright with something to say." . . . And I should think that Mr. Van Druten made money from the action of the English play-censor in turning down "Young Woodley." That turndown helped to create interest in the play in this country; and in the course of time the censor changed his views—or, rather, his dictum—so that the play was permitted on the London stage, also.

Hale Hamilton is asking Equity to do something for him and against A. H. Woods because, he alleges, he was hired by the latter for the principal rôle in "Hokus-Pokus," and, in reporting for rehearsal, was put into an incidental rôle. . . . Mr. Woods has hired Laurence Grossmith to play the rôle Mr. Hamilton thought he would have.

Headquarters of the Dramatic League of Chicago has been moved from the Grand Opera-House Building to the Princess Theater. The drive for subscriptions to the season of twenty weeks is on. Expectation is that the first play will be St. John G. Ervine's London success, "The First Mrs. Fraser," with Miss Grace George in the rôle acted abroad by Miss Marie Tempest. Miss George is now in London assembling a cast.

A tale sent hither by George S. Kaufman, of the New-York Times, is of a prominent dramatist who is about to have a new play staged with money provided by a "backer" new to showbusiness. The backer has asked to be permitted to read the play; and the dramatist flatly refuses to turn over a copy to the man with the money, holding that the fact that he is the author should be sufficient assurance that the money will not be lost. And somebody tells Mr. Kaufman that the dramatist is now taking the stand that the backer must not be permitted in the theater the night of the première.

Miss Georgia Caine, who was so good as the last-act wife in "The Baby Cyclone," is to be in "Sign X Y Z," due next week in the Studebaker. The play was first called "Signed X Y Z."

George Kelly's new piece, called "Maggie the Magnificent," has to do with a girl of the slums who goes in for terrific grandeur or what used to be called "dog."

Martin Flavin, once of Chicago, has written "The Criminal Code," all the scenes of which are in a prison. He says that sliding iron doors, or a device giving the effect of such doors, are to be used instead of a curtain at the climaces. The story has to do with a lad who is put through all the storied tortures in an effort to make him squeal on his accomplices in crime.

Miss Sylvia Field, here in "Crime," is to take over the principal feminine rôles in the New-York Theater Guild's unit engaged in "Marco Millions," "Volpone," and "R. U. R."

"It Never Happens Twice" is the name of a new piece by Adelaide Matthews, who was co-author of "Just Married" with Anne Nichols. . . . And mention of Miss Nichols arouses in me the mean thought that Miss Matthews' new title may have to do with "Abie's Irish Rose."

Robert Woolsey, here last season in "Rio Rita," is said to be eager to perform in a song-and-dance piece of his own authorship, named "Who Cares?"

"Sweet Adeline" Recalls Memories of Gay Nineties

By Burns Mantle.

they say, of the night he shot Stanford White on that same roof.

Adeline proceeds sadly through a few more scenes after that and finally settles her heart and hand on a comparative outsider, a James Day, who backed the burlesque show in which she achieved stardom. Showing that Hoboken girls were loyal in the old days.

Show Is in Capable Hands.

Arthur Hammerstein has produced "Sweet Adeline" calling in his two nephews, Oscar Hammerstein II. [who wrote the book] and Reginald Hammerstein [who staged it]. Jerome Kern wrote the score, and it may have been Jerome who suggested the story. It was he, you will remember, who took the idea for "Show Boat" to Mr. Ziegfeld.

The cast is splendidly adequate. Its chief personality is Helen Morgan, a sort of superballadist of the night clubs. Helen affects an olive gray complexion and sings autobiographical laments wondering why she was ever born. As no one seems to know, everybody feels a little sad about it and applauds generously in the hope of cheering Helen. She is, in New York, a favorite of the Broadway set and therefore a considerable help to the show. Her favorite songs include "Not So Long Ago," "Here Am I" and "Why Was I Born?"

Charles Butterworth, the dumb comedian who specializes in what he is pleased to suggest are Rotarian types, is the comedy's chief source of fun, playing an army recruit whose arches fall just before the battle of San Juan. Irene Franklin has a part and several of the best songs, some of them her own, like "My Husband's First Wife." Robert Emmett Keane plays opposite Irene and they are an amusing pair.

I trust some day you will be privileged to see Irene as Columbia in a rehearsal of the "Pageant of All Nations" the morning she catches sight of Sweet Addie Schmidt in the wings, also wearing her country's flag. Irene then and there throws down her stuffed eagle and throws up her job. It is all they can do to get her to finish the finale. And she is very funny.

May Not Catch the Fickle Public.

An early novelty in the comedy line is a play made by Kate Parsons from Smollett's "Peregrine Pickle." "The Commodore Marries," Arthur Hopkins calls it, after having tried it out under the saltier title, "Blow the Man Down."

I am afraid this one will not sell to the crowd. It is good rowdy fun, in the eighteenth century manner, and is distinguished by as fine an example of character portraiture as any comedy is ever given, that of the name part played by Walter Huston.

But as entertainment it is of a mixed appeal, being half realistic and half highly fanciful. Audiences have a way of demanding consistency in their entertainment. They prefer to take their fantasy straight.

"The Commodore Marries" is some part of the story of that crusty old Commodore Trunnion, who retired from the sea but refused to give up his seafaring ways. He garrisoned his own house and fitted it out as a ship. There he and two or three of his crew lived as they had lived on shipboard, with no softening woman comforts around them.

From the bedroom balcony they cut away the stairs and every man jack was forced to shinny up the stump of a mainmast to get to his quarters. If a landlubber failed to make the climb he was variously assisted from the rear by the crew.

Wily Spinster Upsets Their Eden.

Trunnion, in a weak moment, finds himself engaged to the spinster Pickle, and married to her before he knows it. Then the crew has a jolly time getting Mrs. Trunnion up the mast and into the nuptial chamber.

By some deceit in the matter of her expectations, and by working on the vanity of the commodore, who is overconfident of his ability to beget sons, Mrs. Trunnion manages to do away with the sea setting in her new home. Soon she has the "decks" full of plush furniture and family portraits.

But after her time has come and there is bitter disappointment for the old commodore; after Mrs. Trunnion has arisen from her bed and declared herself again in command of the house, and finally after she has helped herself to the commodore's hoardings and put the money in the bank, the old sea dog rises in his wrath and, backed by Mr. Hatchways, his mate, calls Mrs. Trunnion before him. She has "broken out the stores," he charges, and she must walk the plank. Which she is forced to do.

Then the curtain falls on the grand old half-mad commodore and his jolly crew resuming command of their ship and celebrating the occasion with a rousing chantey.

A play that has all the virtues of a good detective yarn, well told, is called "Soldiers and Women." Its virtues as entertainment are discovered in the holding quality of its story told by George Tilton and Paul Fox. You know perfectly well it is one of the framed affairs, but you are eager to see it finished.

BEEN AWAY A LONG TIME

MISS VIVIAN TOBIN

SHE'S in "The Perfect Alibi," which will have its first Chicago exhibition tonight in the Garrick. Miss Tobin is, as most theater-goers know, the sister of Miss Genevieve Tobin; and she returns after an absence that runs all the way back to "The Nervous Wreck," which was Chicago entertainment Christmas of 1923 in the Harris. . . . As to "The Perfect Alibi," New-Yorkers thought it bully last season. It is by A. A. Milne, author of "Mr. Pim Passes By" and "The Dover Road"; and in London it is known as "The Fourth Wall."

New This Week in New-York Theaters

TEN new pieces are listed for the week in the theaters of Manhattan Island; and an "event" which some of the critics regard as momentous will be the exhibition of Tchekov's "The Sea-Gull" by Miss Eva Le Gallienne and her company, which now includes Jacob Ben-Ami, who was here last year in George C. Tyler's revival of "Diplomacy." The new things are:

"A Strong Man's House," by Leo Wilson Dodd, with Miss Mary Nash.

"Hawk Island," by Howard Irving Young, with Miss Mary Fowler and Charles Halton.

"Philadelphia," by S. John Park; said by the author to be a satire.

"Fiesta," by Michael Gold; to be put on by the Provincetown Players.

"The Street-Singer," by various writers, with Miss Queenie Smith, Guy Robertson, and Harry K. Morton.

"Strictly Dishonorable," by Preston Sturges, with Tullio Carminati, who came here with Duse.

"True Colors," by John McGowan, with Eric Dressler, Spencer Tracey, and Miss Helen Flint.

"The Crooks' Convention," by Arthur Somers Roche, with Leo Donnelly.

"Rope's End," by Patrick Hamilton, with Ernest Milton and a cast brought from England.

The Cape Cod Follies: a revue originally put on at the Massachusetts town for which it is named.

Key-Songs.

No moving-picture is complete, these days, without a special key-song to accompany it. "The Big Parade" gave us "Charmaine"; "Seventh Heaven" produced "Diane"; "Lilac-Time" introduced to us "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac-Time"; and "Ramano"—well, we don't even have to tell you.

If the song-writing industry is to be linked definitely with the movies, we might as well look around for a new name to apply to those sentimental ballads which in the future will inevitably accompany the unreeling of our screen-romances. I suggest the title: "Singles." At the same time, I should like to suggest some new "hook-ups" between songs and kinemas—hook-ups which I feel have been neglected by the busy lyrists in the excitement of the moment.

"The Man Who Laughs"—"Some Day He'll Come Along—the Man Who Laughs; And He'll Be Big and Strong—the Man Who Laughs."

"Rain"—"Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella."

"Beggars of Life"—"Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!"

"Our Dancing Daughters"—"That's My Weakness Now."

"The Wedding-March"—"The Wedding-March."

"The Perfect Crime"—"Valencia."

The greatest contrast between the American and the English sense of humor is that the one depends largely on exaggeration for effect, while English humor is governed by a passion for understatement.—Jan Hay.

CLICQUOT CLUB PALE DRY

This famous aged ginger ale comes in full 16-ounce pints. Compare it with the "pints" you've used before

WHEN you buy a pint of ginger ale you may get a real pint, and you may get only 12 ounces. This startling fact comes as the result of a recent investigation. This information is of vital importance to thrifty housewives everywhere. It points the way to real economy in buying ginger ale. So many women find the family size or "near quart" wasteful. It may go "flat" before it's used up. And the little 12-ounce "pint" is not enough.

Yet here is Clicquot Club, the famous aged ginger ale, sold in full size, standard pints. There's ⅓ more in every bottle!

But Clicquot Club Pale Dry gives you even more than extra measure. It gives highest quality ingredients:—pure table sugar, fine Jamaica ginger, the mellow syrup of ripe fruit juices and pure spring water, double-carbonated. And it gives you the rare mellow flavor that comes from ageing.

Only through this exclusive ageing process can the fine flavor found in Clicquot Club be developed. Only in this way can the mellowness of our carefully blended ingredients be brought out.

So next time you buy ginger ale compare a pint of Clicquot with a so-called "pint" of any other "dry" ginger ale. Note that Clicquot Club really gives you ⅓ more. Then compare for taste! You will quickly appreciate why we so carefully age our ginger ale. Its finer, riper flavor is the reason. Try Clicquot Club Pale Dry today. You get it in clean new bottles at your dealer's.

AGED 6 MONTHS IN THE MAKING

The Best Movie I Ever Saw

If you will tell us what movie, in your opinion, rates above all the others you've seen, and why this particular movie is deserving of praise, we'll pay $1 for your letter if we print it. Address Best Movies, Chicago Tribune.

Bouquet for Barrymore.

The best movie I have ever seen is "Madame X." The pathetic story of a woman who leaves her husband and baby for another man is depicted with great art and feeling. The arrogance of the husband in refusing his wife a chance to see her baby is heart-breaking. The players give a superb performance. If you have tears prepare to shed them when Raymond makes his final plea for his mother, "Madame X." A bouquet for Lionel Barrymore for his masterful direction. J. H. G.

"Showboat a Classic."

Early in spring I was fortunate enough to view "Showboat" and I believe it to be a classic.

As a production it deserves much praise, because of its strict adherence to Edna Ferber's novel, and for outstanding performances on the part of the players.

Laura La Plante's grippingly pathetic "Magnolia" was excellent. Joseph Schildkraut proved to be a perfect "Ravenal," displaying superb egotism. Emily Fitzroy made you feel the ever presence of Parenthia Hawks—until her last breath. And last but not least was Jules Bledsoe singing "Look Down That Lonesome Road."

But man, I couldn't look, my eyes were blurred. I was completely captured by the magnificence of its simple story. W. S .C.

Sees "Letter" Five Times.

The most effective picture that I have seen or heard was "The Letter," starring Jeanne Eagels. The story, in itself highly dramatic, was made trebly so by Miss Eagels' superb acting. It was a marvel to watch this finished actress run the gamut of emotions. The naive, homey wife, the paramour, the lying hypocrite, the mad, raving savage—Miss Eagels pictured them all with consummate skill and artistry. In the last scene, wherein Miss Eagels, as Leslie Crosbie, denounced her passionless rubber planter husband, the actress rose to an emotional pitch that left me stunned for several minutes after. I have seen The Letter five times already, and am only awaiting an opportunity for the sixth.

H. J. T.

Praise for "Desert Song."

The movie that stood the highest in my estimation was the "Desert Song." Surely it must have been produced with elaborate care, the characters acted and sang their parts most wonderfully. It is an absorbing tale of epic desert magic and in it you hear the voice of Charlotte King and John Boles and many other well known stars.

The magic of the desert night had closed about her, civilization as she knew it was left far behind. She was in the desert with a man whose word was more than law. Just to hear the night voices of the throbbing desert thrills one through and through.

This drama stands the highest in my opinion and sweeps above all other pictures like a rolling cloud. D. P.

Sorry for Bessie.

"Broadway Melody" appealed to me more than any picture I have seen. The music and dancing were wonderful. It made you feel more like living. It also gave the public a taste of back stage life, showing that all actors and actresses are not hard, as we often think of them. The simple, loving, humble way the two sisters, and the man they both loved, lived was wonderful. What also appealed to me was the way each sacrificed for the other, even though they both loved the same man. Bessie Love's loyalty, spunk and go get 'em attitude was impressing. Although it all ended wonderfully, I felt rather sorry for Bessie, leaving the two she loved to go on her way alone. V. R.

Two Weeks of English Opera to Start Oct. 7

Critic Gives Credo on Language Subject.

By Edward Moore.

sulted in the name of English. Awkward translations exist, lots of them; original librettos are sometimes fully as bad. That is entirely the fault of the one who writes the words. What is needed is a group of librettists and translators who understand their jobs, and, more important, are paid what their jobs are worth.

It is also true that many singers and many operatic passages are not easily understood. In all, except perhaps one case, the fault can be overcome. That one exists in large, complex, concerted passages. They can not be understood in any language. The fact of musical construction is against them.

But there are singers who do not know the art of making themselves plain in English and frequently not in any other language. Or the one who wrote the words may have given the singer a too difficult obstacle. Or the composer may not have understood the human voice and what it can do. Many do not. Or it may be a combination of any two or all three. But it can be overcome.

That is, it can be overcome if the public cares to have it overcome. Up to the present, the only public that really cares and shows that it cares is John McCormack's public. He has sung consistently to English, though he has an expert and exquisite knowledge of Italian, French, and German. For he only uses them when no English translation is possible, and sometimes he makes his own translations. But those who rate Mr. McCormack as the first figure in their musical pantheon know what witchery a sensitive and highly trained musician can weave with the English language.

American Opera Coming.

All of which can serve as a prelude for the announcement that the American Opera company is going to pay another visit to Chicago. It is coming to the Majestic theater for two weeks, Oct. 7, having wisely decided that the proper times for its calls are those between the Civic Opera and Ravinia seasons. It will play six operas all in English. One is a native work. "Yolanda of Cyprus" has a book by Cal Young Rice of Evansville, Ind., and a score by Clarence Loomis of Chicago.

The others, "Faust," "Carmen," "Martha," "The Marriage of Figaro," and "Miss Butterfly," are translations, and they are good translations, both intelligibly and agreeably sung. The real test in the fact that on previous visits a wave of understanding at certain passages would sweep across an audience that had always remained completely quiescent at the same passages in a foreign tongue, no matter how brilliant the cast.

Incidentally, four of the forty-five singers in the company are Chicagoans. Add Mr. Loomis and Isaac Van Grove, the conductor, and the total is six. The singers are Maria Matyas, who earned her musical education as a stenographer here; Eunice Steen of Auburn, Ill., who studied and sang here; Marian McAfee, born in Quincy, Ill., educated and brought out as a singer here four years ago, and Helen Golden of Evanston, who was with the company last year also.

The appearance of the company here is sponsored, not for profit, by the American Opera society of Chicago, Inc., of which Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick is honorary president and Mrs. Walter Borden president. The cast is now at Magnolia, Mass., rehearsing under Vladimir Rosing, artistic director, Mr. Van Grove, and Robert Edmond Jones, scenic director.

Women in Sousa Organization.

Sousa's band is almost completely a masculine organization, but at least two young women have been members on his tours for a number of years back. One is Marjorie Moody, soprano, the other Winifred Bambrick, harpist. Both are talented specialists of their art, and both have stimulating and soothing effect on the optic nerves.

Miss Moody is from Melrose, Mass., where she gained reputation as a singer of charm and fine ability. Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa, in quest of a singer of her type for a band concert, engaged her at first hearing. She made an instant hit with his audience. That was a few years ago. She developed a wonderful répertoire and nothing was too difficult for her. Her perfect pitch always was apparent and she sang so truly and with such quality that she established herself everywhere she was heard throughout the country. For one season at least she wanted to remain at home, but the desire to go back to those places that had so graciously received her induced her to change her mind. Accordingly she will be here with Sousa and his band when it gives its matinée and evening concerts at Orchestra hall Sunday, Sept. 22.

Miss Bambrick has appeared as a soloist in the pit with orchestras of leading New York musical comedy and operetta productions. She hails from Quebec where she lives happily with her mother who, when at all possible, accompanies Miss Winifred on tour.

"It's a most fascinating experience to be with Mr. Sousa on concert tour," said Miss Bambrick the other day. "He is most considerate of everyone and he makes it a pleasure to be with him for he is appreciative of all that is done. He encourages us by his praise and is quick to say the kindly word that means so much to all of us. No wonder that he is able to keep his organization intact year after year. We are a happy family."

Public Interest Growing.

If you would be an optimist in music, you will have the example of two notable leaders, Mrs. Edward MacDowell, unreservedly; John Erskine, president of the Juilliard School of Music, with reservations.

Mrs. MacDowell writes to musical America:

"At no time in the history of music in this country has the public evidenced as great an interest in it as at present.

"The fine work done by symphony orchestras, choral societies, chamber music organizations all over the country for many years as well as that done by musical organizations, is bearing fruit. Added to this, much that is excellent has been accomplished in the dissemination of good music by the phonograph and radio broadcasting.

The National Federation of Music clubs with its vast organization has contributed in large measure. Ten years ago it held its biennial convention at Peterborough, where a magnificent program of events was carried through, culminating in a wonderful tribute to the memory of Edward MacDowell. The federation's growth has been consistent and it has held true to its high ideals.

Celebrated Teachers in U. S.

"Musical education, both in conservatories and under private teachers, has forged ahead tremendously in the last decade, so that today many of the world's celebrated teachers are active in the United States.

"Our composers in all forms are moving forward, they are receiving recognition, and most important of all, they are doing admirable work.

"I feel that we may look with every confidence to the future of music in the United States. The foundations have been well laid and we are now getting results. Year by year greater opportunities for musical education are offered. At present the opportunities for the musician ready to enter upon his profession are not as extensive as they might be. That, however, is a situation which will surely be remedied.

"Let us not forget the true musical amateur performer or listener. The amateur musician is often a person of fine taste, a person whose influence in his community is considerable. A truly musical nation without a vast body of amateurs is unthinkable."

Professor Erskine, quoted in the World's Work, seeks to remedy some of the conditions. He says that musicians are asking whether there is a career in music, whether a musician can earn a living comparable to that of a doctor, lawyer, or other professional! This is part of his answer:

"Is he looking for the career of a Franz Liszt or of a Richard Wagner or for the career of a Johann Sebastian Bach? If Liszt and Wagner are his ideal, as in most cases they will be, then the answer is simple: There is probably no career for him in the United States or anywhere else. If, on the other hand, he would be content to lead the life of Bach, then the United States offers him, in this writer's opinion, a greater career at the present moment than any other country in the world.

Bach a Craftsman.

"Liszt and Wagner," he explains, "in their special fields were the virtuoso type of artist, achieving success by a sort of tour de force in a field which they created for themselves. The career of the virtuoso was invented little more than a hundred years ago, and if it seems now on the decline there is little real cause for regret. Because we have been hypnotized by the virtuoso ideal, many young musicians confound it with the higher standards of their art. They think that to be anything different from the great players and singers is to be something inferior. To accept steady employment without individual appearances they are likely to consider an abandoning of their higher selves.

"On the other hand, Bach was a craftsman. That first of all, and afterwards a supreme artist. He was a craftsman in the sense that he expected to supply music to society wherever music was wanted. Like every true craftsman, he allowed society to say what form this music should take. For most of his life he was what our young music students would hate themselves for being—a church organist and choirmaster.

"In other words, he earned his living as a craftsman, but his creative genius was without price. In the history of art, in all its branches, no saner career has yet been found. It can be followed by any one in the United States who has competent training and who is willing to be not a virtuoso but a craftsman."

Too Many in Cities.

Prof. Erskine would redistribute musicians. He believes that there are too many musicians and too many concerts in the large cities and not enough in the smaller communities. The young student sent from a small place to a large city to finish his musical education should return to the small city to foster music, to teach, to play, where, at least at the outset, his neighbors will be proud of him and give him the benefit of every doubt. His business is to justify their confidence. He may thereby enjoy the satisfaction of building up tradition and do his bit toward building up future audiences. But in that case he must be a craftsman. An attempt at being a virtuoso is upsetting to that sort of career.

Prof. Erskine, like Mrs. MacDowell, believes in the radio, although it, too, is causing a redistribution. Some artists have been put out of business by it, but the benefit to the majority of people is great.

NOT LIKE THIS IN THE SHOW

MISS EVELYN MONTI

SHE'S in "Pleasure-Bound," which is within three weeks of the end of its long Chicago run; but you're not likely to identify her from this picture, which is made from a photograph of what Mr. Connelly, the camera-man, thinks Miss Monti might look like if she looked otherwise than as she really is. However, she's in the gay show, with her name in the playbill an' everything; and she dances.

RETURNING

[Rosenfeld Photo.]

After a year's absence from the ranks of the Civic Opera company, it is told that she will return this season, though from the end of September until the opening of the opera season she will be busy on a concert tour. Among her other operatic assignments, she is announced to appear in a revival of Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," and also as Desdemona to Charles Marshall's Otello in the opera of the same name.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE.

Producers Are That Way.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just seen "The Terror" which is supposed to be taken from the book "Terror Keep," by Edgar Wallace. The only semblance between the two that I saw was that "Terror" is the name of both.

I think it is a shame the way movies are adapted from perfectly good books and are so converted that the original story is unrecognizable. If the producers make movies from good books why don't they let the pictures follow the plot of the book so they can be good, too?

Why aren't some pictures made with the date around the beginning of the nineteenth century when men wore swords [and used them]. I believe that "Sir John Deering," by Jeffery Farnol, would make a good picture if the book was followed.

Even if this letter is not printed [which I do not doubt] I have gotten this off my mind. If you have read this far I thank you.

Sincerely, DANIEL MCGREW ESQ.

Editor's Note: We're rather late printing this letter but now—here it is! Y'wekkum!

"Bootleg" Pictures.

My dear Miss Tinée: This is the culmination of a long threatened attempt to write a protestation to what expense the public being used "in the interests of good motion pictures." I admit the above expostulation is somewhat confusing and will no doubt throw you into a quandary—but time permitting, I shall try to elaborate intelligently and painstakingly:

Since the talkie innovation there seems to be dumped on the market all sorts of pictures, which I have dubbed "bootleg." I believe the term can be used to describe any kind of illicit trading, regardless of the commodity. But to be specific: Pictures with no plot whatsoever, probably filmed before talking pictures were an accepted factor, synchronized atrociously, considering the art, with a few dozen words contained in a prologue or sequence, and then advertised as 100 per cent talkie! Plot, direction and everything that goes to make a good picture sacrificed just to blazen "talkie" across the horizon.

INTRODUCING: LUTHER FORD

Luther Ford is a combination of the names of the two authors who collaborated on "Card 13."

Lillian Ford, one of the literary editors of the Los Angeles Times, has published a number of short stories and articles.

Mark Lee Luther, popular author, is a constant contributor of novels and short stories to magazines.

Both Mrs. Ford and Mr. Luther are well known writers and members of the movie colony of Hollywood, the scene of their new novel.

HOLLYWOOD . . . and the magic world of its picture colony with a vast wealth of glamour and excitement . . . is the background of this new Sunday Tribune serial.

DOLLY BROWNRIGG—once a bright star in the moving picture world, clings desperately to Tony Gilmore, young scenario writer, although he longs to be rid of her—perhaps because of his friendship for SELMA SARANOFF—an exotic screen vamp. Selma maddens Dolly by her infatuation for Tony—the more so because Selma already has acquired a fiance.

AILEEN GILMORE—young, beautiful, unsophisticated, scarcely knows how to judge her brother's gay friends—excepting the novelist, Arthur Ranleigh, whose quiet dignity attracts her.

So it is to Arthur that Aileen turns, broken-hearted, when her adored brother, Tony, is mysteriously murdered.

How Arthur solves the strange puzzle of Tony's death by a device he employs in writing novels—taking a package of blank cards and piecing together all significant happenings—forms a brilliant climax to this remarkable mystery novel.

Don't miss a single installment. It's a serial bound to be one of the fiction successes of the year. Begin CARD 13 in the Tribune—next Sunday! Read it every Sunday!

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

IN CHICAGO.

TOMORROW night "Little Accident" opens, reminding armchair playgoers that its story may be read in "An Unmarried Father." Floyd Dell and Thomas Mitchell together made the play from Mr. Dell's novel, and Mr. Mitchell acts the part of the harassed father of the baby whose advent is responsible for the funniest scene in the play, the scene in the waiting room of the maternity hospital.

FLOYD DELL, co-author of "Little Accident."

IN NEW YORK

A revival of "Porgy," which opened on Friday night for what is announced as a limited engagement, urges armchair playgoers to read one of the best American novels written in our generation. "Porgy," the novel, is a masterpiece. "Porgy," the play, is, too, and you may read that also, lest the play, despite its fine qualities, may be forgotten. The novel never will be so long as American literature has a history. There is not one word too many, nor one word too few in that exquisite work. And that reminds us that that amusing Negro ghost story—a short story—by Du Bose Heyward called "The Half Pint Flask," has just been published in book form by the new firm of Farrar & Rinehart.

PUBLISHED.

A life of the author of "The Beggar's Opera" called "Mr. Gay," by Oscar Sherwin, gives a vivid picture of literary and dramatic London two hundred years ago. Dean Swift, Pope, Addison, Steele, Congreve, and other lifelong friends of Mr. Gay walk through its pages, as does King George I, who could not really be expected to appreciate the sharp wit of Mr. Gay, since he, the king, was unable to read or speak the language of the country which he ruled. The prince and princess of Wales, however, were enthusiastic applauders of the gayeties of Mr. Gay.

It is interesting to know that even in these days a tidy sum could be raised up by the author of a successful play. Mr. Gay, like thousands of others in England, lost his entire fortune in the South Sea Bubble. But "The Beggar's Opera" was so immediately successful that he retrenched his fortunes. The play itself earned $30,000 in royalty, which was, two hundred years ago, a fair sum.

Mr. Sherwin is a young man but lately out of Columbia university, but with a mature feeling for the period.

"He Who Gets Slapped" has just been published in French's standard library edition of plays, those excellent paper covered acting copies of successful plays. It has always been a play that gave itself to reading aloud, and it remains for many audiences one of the great memories of the theater. There is a line in it spoken by a lion trainer which epitomizes man's struggle very succinctly. She has her lion in perfect control, but her wail is, "How can I make my red lion LOVE me?"

Three of Frederick Lonsdale's popular comedies have also just been published in the series, "On Approval" had a London season and a New York one, shorter, of 96 performances. The "on approval" part of it is matrimonially intended. "The High Road" is another typical Lonsdale comedy about a girl from the stage and her social affairs with a group of titles, and how her sense of decency triumphed over her love. The most popular of the three is "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," which was a tremendous success both in London and in New York and points west. You remember it, perhaps, the dramatic picture of a charming and beautiful "Mrs. Cheyney," who was in the petite burglary business and how "the last" of her happened in a kiss which made it "the first of Lady Dillag." It was one of Ina Claire's and Roland Young's and A. E. Matthews' best parts. And it is the sort of comedy of manners that one can read about with amusement. Try it.

Censorship Lifted.

BERLIN.—(AP)—A moving picture bill just approved by Minister of the Interior Severing and ready for reichstag debate includes a provision that, for the benefit of German moving picture producers, censorship restrictions applicable to movies shown in Germany will be waived in the case of pictures made for export.

was in San Francisco, and Charlie and Janet were working together again.

There even was a third to complicate things; a studio official began sending floral offerings daily to Janet.

Lydell Peck's friendship for Janet has been idyllic. The rich young San Francisco attorney brought books of verse to her and after he read Shelley's "The Skylark" to her, it became her favorite poem.

Perhaps the appeal of the winner of Janet's hand was that he was different from her Hollywood beaux.

A Hollywood Welcome.

The arrival of Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader and idol of New York, was a gala occasion. R-K-O, which has hired Rudy to make a film, staged a huge rodeo at the station, with Valee as the bull, and ten cowgirls as the cowpunchers.

When Rudy stepped off the train, accompanied by the Valee folks—ma and pa from Vermont and Maine—ten bold, bad picture girls dressed in pony skin jackets, black tights, black sombreros, neckerchiefs, and high heeled pumps on stockingless legs, fell upon him and gave him the works.

Much to the astonishment of his parents and Rudy also, they kissed and pulled him about till his face was covered with lipstick and his blonde curls were tousseled. Ma Vallee did not like it much, but Rudy looked half willing.

"Gee, I never thought I'd get to earn four thousand a week!" he confided.

"What are you doing with the money?" he was asked.

"I am buying a trust fund with most of it and the rest I am investing with my father's advice. He handles my affairs."

Asked about his picture, he knew only that it would be a romantic rôle, as he had not yet seen the scenario. He hoped that he might have Olive Borden for leading lady.

Notes of the Players.

Previews of "The Taming of the Shrew" show that this much discussed talkie was done by "Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks," and not by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford. Screen credit is divided by two authors, William Shakespeare and Sam Taylor, with Sam getting a bit the worst of it.

Custard pies fly, ladies faw down and go boom, and the vein of sixteenth century humor courses along on similar broad lines which, to tell the truth, proved satisfactory in the way of guffaws wrung from critically minded and cynically inclined Hollywood professional preview audiences.

French Writers Hit by Scenario Ruling

PARIS.—(AP)—Film interests aver that a new regulation by the Society of Authors, requiring members to demand in contracts for scenarios a percentage of gate receipts in France, Switzerland, and Belgium, is likely to shut French writers out of the market. German and American agents have refused to buy scenarios under these conditions.

SINK back into your favorite arm chair . . . flip the dial of your Graybar Screen Grid . . . and in a jiffy you can be half way across the continent!

It is remarkable the way this radio gets the stations, near and far, that you want.

But that's only a small part of the story of Graybar Screen Grid Radio. You can expect not only distance and splendid selectivity, but also the finest reproduction yet! (All because of the Screen Grid tube, of course . . . that latest and most marvellous development in radio.) You can expect music that fairly carries you away. Full of "color" and variety and warmth. Packed with the very personality of each individual artist!,

Nowhere in all radio tube-dom are there better tubes than RCA Radiotrons, Graybar believes. That's why Graybar distributes them.

And to house this gorgeous tone . . . a gorgeous cabinet, with suave, graceful lines . . . exquisitely grained wood . . . and a most distinctive tapestry covering.

Not the least of this radio's claims to fame is its "family tree" . . . Graybar being the oldest electrical distributor in the world, and outfitter to most of the leading broadcasting stations in this country.

The Screen Grid Cabinet Model No. 550 is priced very moderately indeed at (less radiotrons) $179

(and this price actually includes an improved electrodynamic speaker!)

The Screen Grid Table Model No. 500 is also priced moderately at (less radiotrons) . $110

The coupon below will bring further details.

Both are Graybar equipped

Great office building and tiny bungalow . . . both are equipped with Graybar electrical supplies . . . a fact which indicates the breadth of Graybar's electrical supply service.

This business of supplying everything electrical for both industry and the home is "all in the day's work" for Graybar . . . with its 60 years of electrical experience, and its 60,000 different electrical items.

How to be a stylish "Slim"

These days stylish stouts are out . . . and "slims" are most decidedly in! That's why so many up-and-coming modern women are finding the Graybar Stimulator a perfect godsend.

This remarkable health motor does wonders with figures . . . turning avoirdupois into agreeable curves, and flabby tissues into firm ones. Does wonders with health, too, taking away fatigue and substituting glowing "pep."

The Stimulator is excellent for men, too. It gives them that clean-cut look, and that vigorous "up-and-at-'em" feeling. (It's practically indispensable for men in sedentary occupations.)

Simplicity itself, yet the Stimulator gives you any gradation of massage you desire. Just flip the belt!

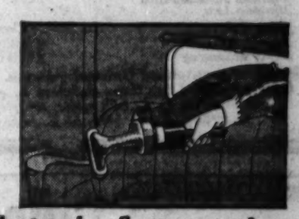
The price? Think of it . . . only . . . $59.50

For your health's sake read Graybar's interesting booklet describing the Stimulator. It's free!

Brighten the corners

With a Graybar Cleanerette it's easy to brighten tricky corners in the car. Easy also to clean upholstery, mattresses, curtains, stair carpets, etc. This little hand cleaner is complete, yet weighs only four pounds. $13.50

Ask your dealer about the Vaporette Set!



A tonic for growing homes Give your home the bracing tonic of new electrical equipment, new convenience outlets, new wiring!

A reliable electrical contractor will furnish the necessary supplies . . . Your light and power company, the faithful service!

More Letters from Movie Fans

Likes Star System.

Dear Mae Tinée: Hurrah for your "star" system!

Up to the present day, please tell me the names of all the 4* pictures, you?

Your opinions are true and hereafter, regardless of my ideas about any certain movie, I will always maintain that you are the world's greatest and best movie critic.

I enjoy your opinions and will always. We can't all have the same "stars" strike us!

A "star" admirer,
HAPPY MAZZITELLI.

Editor's Note: Thank you, Happy. For list of 4 star pictures, please send stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Dangerous Curves Great."

Dear Mae Tinée: I just have to write to you and let off some steam about "Dangerous Curves." It was great, and every fellow that saw Miss Dee didn't fall over heels in love with her, although I don't see how they didn't, but that just isn't natural.

Richard Arlen is great, too. I like him lots. When Clara did his act for him on the wire I almost went into fits laughing, and almost cried with fright in case she should fall. She looked so funny with the clown make-up on, and acted so funny on the wire that I just loved her.

I hope she plays in lots more pictures like that, and I hope they let her act natural. Best of luck to you, Mae Tinée, and I hope to see this in print. Yours truly, ZENA IVETT.

Editor's note: She was nice! I liked her, too!

Telling the World.

Dear Mae Tinée: Please let me explode in your column! I feel that I must get it out of my system or die in the attempt. I read Rhoda Singer's letter and I am writing in defense of her comments on Greta Garbo and "The Single Standard." Please publish my letter so that she may see some one disagrees with her.

I fail to understand how any one could witness such a well produced picture involving such an unusual theme and displaying such super-fine acting without being impressed!

Rhoda also remarked that Greta was showing age! This is a ridiculous statement since she is only twenty-three. How any one can detect lines or hardness in the ivory smoothness of that famous face is beyond me! Then, she said Greta's only beauty consisted of her eyes and forehead. Greta may not be called beautiful in the strict sense of the word, but she has a beauty that is all her own, and each of her features is perfectly molded.

There is no one like Garbo! She is the most fascinating personality on the screen, the most exotic, the most mysterious. She has unlimited talents and is gifted with a wealth of eloquency in facial expression! She captivates her audience with her charm, poise and striking individuality. She portrays heroines that are marvelously suited to her type.

"The Single Standard" was a wonderful setting for her talent, and her portrayal of "Arden" was perfect, beyond description. Every thought, every emotion was made evident by her remarkable expression. Her face is a talkie in itself!

I am so glad you agree with me concerning Greta and her film, "The Single Standard," because I value your opinion so highly. Before seeing a picture I always seek your opinion of it and I was so delighted when you gave "The Single Standard" three stars. True to your words it was an eye dazzling, pulse disturbing film. Nils Asther, too, did exceedingly well and has merited the title of "The Ideal Garbo Lover."

Here's to a wonderful actress, Greta Garbo, and a REAL critic, Mae Tinée!

A MOST ARDENT GARBO FAN!

Editor's note: Attafan!

Life Is That Way.

Dear Miss Tinée: So you think that "The Studio Murder Mystery" was one of the best films of the month? Well, all I can say is that your duties as movie critic for the TRIBUNE-Balaban & Katz—Paramount pictures are too much for you. Mae, you need an assistant. CAROLINE.

Editor's note: You, perhaps? And there are always three "s's" in "assistant."

My Best Joke

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Just to Beat Pa!

The little boy dashed wildly around the corner, and collided with an old gentleman, who inquired as to the cause of such haste.

"I gotta git home fer maw to spank me," the boy panted.

"Bless my soul," exclaimed the old gentleman, "I can't understand your being in such a hurry to be spanked."

"I ain't. But if I don't git there 'fore paw, he'll give me the lickin!"

"Whenever They Bark."

Pat was showing the English visitor the "sights." They passed a mansion at whose entrance were statues of large dogs. The Englishman wanting fun said:

"Pat, how often do they feed those dogs?"

"Whenever they bark, sor," was the quick reply. K. S.

Chaplin Only Third.

A contest had been staged in Hollywood to see who could represent Charlie Chaplin the best. Chaplin, it is said, heard about it and decided to have some fun.

He entered the contest! And only won third prize! K. F.

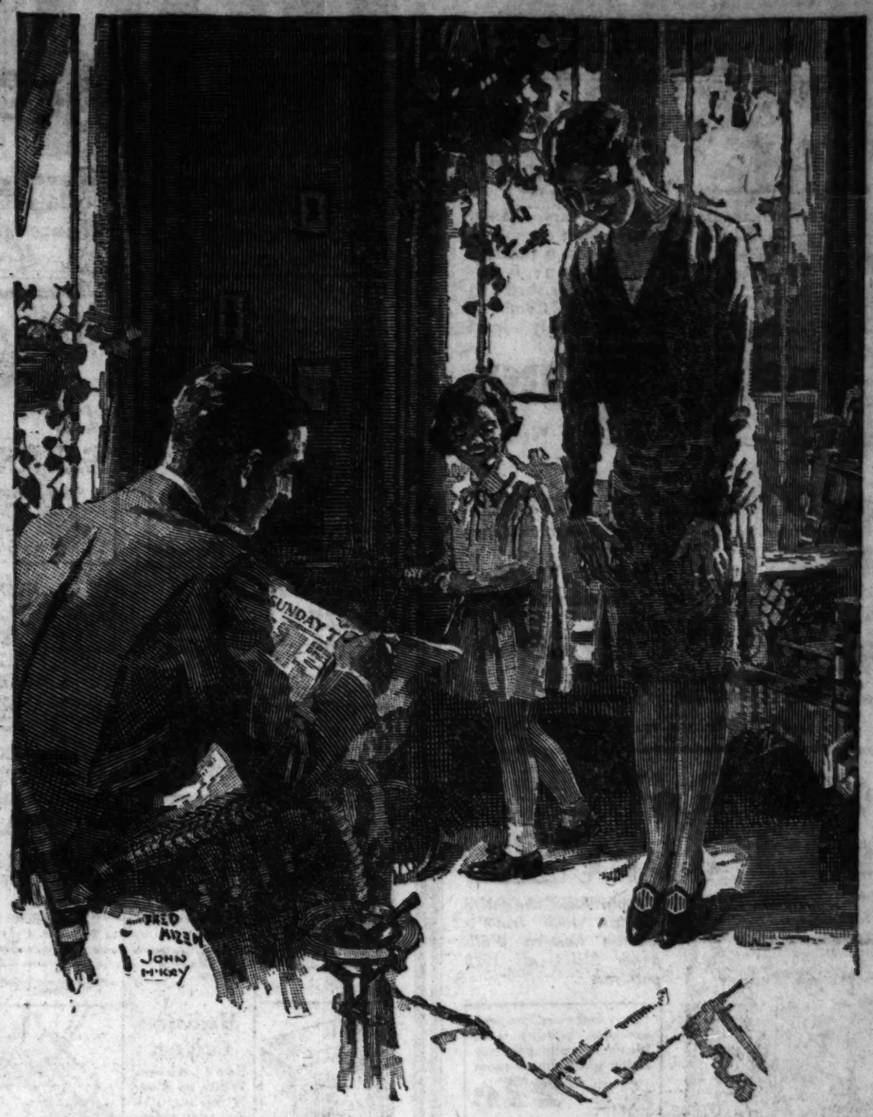
"—but I thought shoes as good as that were more expensive"



IT'S CURIOUS how many people judge value by price alone—feeling that they get the best only when they pay the most.

Shoes are no exception. Yet with shoes, as with every other article you buy, price alone can never determine value, for value depends on the quality you get for the price you pay.

It is through value that the International Shoe Company has made its greatest contribution to shoemaking. Value, above all else, has brought to it the largest shoe business in the world. Fifty million pairs—two pairs for every home in the nation—are bought each year by people who have found that International not only has elevated the quality of style, materials and workmanship, but at the same time has definitely lowered the price of quality footwear.

From the very beginning, it has never compromised with quality. Wherever leather should be in a shoe, International uses leather. No substitution is tolerated from its highest priced pair to its lowest.

Even beyond this, it assures the quality of every material that enters its shoes—and does it by making these materials itself. By this practice International not only makes sure of the high quality its standards demand, but produces this quality without the added costs of open-market purchasing. These savings, amounting to millions of dollars a year, are passed on to those who wear the shoes.

Thus, in the interest of better shoes, International has become the world's largest tanner. To provide those who prefer rubber heels or soles with the best that science affords, it established a plant that has doubled wear while reducing the cost of production. It built a mill that eliminates five profits between the bale of cotton and the finished shoe lining. It makes its own chemicals, dyes and finishes. It even cuts the cost of distribution by making the boxes which hold the shoes and the cases in which they are shipped.

In its operation of 43 specialty shoe plants these materials meet conditions that make possible even further value; for to the great economies of its tremendous volume is added the specialized efficiency to be gained by devoting each plant to just one type of men's women's or children's shoes—and that alone.

That's why International Shoes can be so good, yet cost so much less. Millions are proving it to their own satisfaction year after year in the actual test of wear.

INTERNATIONAL SHOES are marketed under the six marks of quality which are shown below. Together they comprise more than 1,000 styles of footwear for men, women, children and infants. They are sold by more than 70,000 leading merchants, distributed throughout every state in the Union. Regardless of the brand you select, the style you prefer or the price you pay, International Shoes represent the greatest shoe value you can buy.

TO PROVIDE adequate facilities for its tremendous production, to assure uniformity in its high standards of quality, and to effect the economies that lower the price you pay, the International Shoe Company owns and operates—

43 Specialty Shoe Factories, each making just one particular type and grade of shoe, together producing 50,000,000 pairs a year.

14 Tanneries, each specializing in one particular type of leather, producing 25,000 sides and skins a day.

1 Rubber Heel and Sole Plant, producing 125,000 pairs of heels and 30,000 pairs of soles a day.

1 Cotton Mill, to produce 7,000,000 yards of lining fabric a year.

59 Auxiliary Plants, producing welting, dyes, chemicals, shoe boxes, shipping cartons, trunks, gloves, etc., to the value of more than $30,000,000 a year if purchased from outside sources.

Coleman Lake Attracts Elite of Chicagoland

Lake Foresters Building Cottages at Millburn.

Mme. X.

SEPTEMBER 1 is to brook and rainbow trout in Wisconsin lakes and streams what a combined Christmas, Fourth o' July, and birthday would be to you and me. On that day they get their freedom, their right to live unmolested by followers of Izaak Walton for at least six months. Bass, black, large and small mashed, are left, lawful prey to the super, canny, clever fisherman for I don't know how much longer.

On a recent trip to Coleman lake with a party of ardent trollers, bait casters and deep sea fishers, I was present at this change of piscary seasons. I noted on the first day of September an added joy in the flirt of the trout tails, as they were drawn from the lake and hastily put back again by the involuntary law breakers. The finny creatures seemed to say:

"Ha, ha! I dare you to catch me. George E. Scott is here and he's president of the Izaak Walton league, and he'd rather see you commit murder than take one of us after August 1st gone into the discard."

Not so cocky were the black bass, as the X. family had one of the thrills of its long and varied life by hooking and landing one. Others there present may not have thought it a particularly large or frisky monster, but your scribe it seemed a glorious creature, of unusual dimensions and with a strong will and pull. Not willing to take life from creatures of the wild it was comforting to be assured by the president of the Izaak Walton League that fishes have no sensory nerves, so, when they lie gasping on the grass, or flop frantically in the basket it is merely a reflex automatic gesture that betokens no anguish. It's a good imitation, however, of the expression of suffering.

Dispelling Illusions.

At Coleman lake we learned quite a little fishing lore and law. Contrary to centuries of tradition, fish do not bite better and oftener in the early hours, that is, just before and after sunrise, than at other periods of the day. At least the fish in Lake Coleman do not. Three members of our party of seven arose at the earliest pipe of the half awakened bird, with such silence as a mansion full of logs permits, and sallied forth, with that inner sense of a task well done, to return, wan and pale, three hours later with empty creels. It took several cups of breakfast coffee to cheer them up.

Not only are Wisconsin fish protected within certain dates, their spawning times, but they are also safeguarded in their infancy. A trout must be at least seven inches long to be unhooked and dropped into the basket, and a bass must be twelve or more inches in length before the fisherman can claim it. To unhook and drop a fish back into its element the hand must be dipped in water so as to protect from grasp the thin outer film that protects fish. In somewhat the same way men and women, who are to take long swimming trips, are greased from head to feet.

Ideal Country for Outing.

The Wisconsin lake country is an ideal spot for the world weary mortal who longs to leave behind him or her the thronged cities, the clamor of street cars, the honk of the motor horn, the loud and autocratic summons of the telephone bell and all the other modern devices which destroy peace of mind and the body's nervous system. The former pine forests that used to clothe the state are gone. Their place has been taken either by pastoral and farming districts or second and third growths of woods and underbrush. It is rather an untidy effect that is thus produced in many regions, but it is a pretty disorder and one senses in it that remoteness from the maddening crowds that many seek after the too strenuous life which is America's contribution to modern methods.

Lakes Rich in Fish.

Coleman lake is one of those small, shallow lakes that make a map of Wisconsin look as if a moth eaten cloth were laid on the page. When white men first entered this region these innumerable lakes were so crowded with fish of various kinds that to catch them was small sport to the genuine fisherman, though thrilling to the amateur who was able to bring in enormous strings of finny creatures with small effort to him or her self. Today, however, so destructive have these pioneers been, that it requires an adept to catch an ordinary mess of trout or bass or muskellonge. The last named is the gamiest of its kind in Wisconsin waters, though a good sized rainbow trout gives any skilled fisherman a good fight. As a rule a lake doesn't have all of these desirable species in it at the same time. One lake will have bass, another trout, and still another supplies "muskies," as the doughty muskellonge is affectionately termed.

A Charming Club.

Coleman Lake club is an institution some thirty-five years old. It has a comfortable clubhouse set in a thicket on the eastern brink of the lake. Near by, in a separate building, is the dining room and kitchen where they serve fish right out of the lake and cooked as deliciously as any French chef at a Ritz cafe could do it. The club has a boat house where members can keep their boats. Close by, though quite hidden in shrubbery, is a charming new cottage built this summer by the Joseph Cudahys of

When Chicago Was Young

Letters from Martha Freeman to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, May 6, 1854.

Dear Friend Julia:

We arrived in Chicago two weeks ago and are staying at the Sherman House. It is very fine, but I shall be glad when we are settled in the new house which Father has bought, on Wabash avenue, near Madison street. It is a very quiet residential section of the city, and we think we shall like it very much.

Father has decided to make Chicago his home and to practice law here. He is much pleased with the lawyers he has met. Some of them are: Judge Dickey, Mr. Norman B. Judd, Mr. Thomas Hoyne, Mr. Isaac N. Arnold, Judge Caton, and Judge Mark Skinner. Judge Skinner is one of the best lawyers in the state, it is said, and he has been very cordial to Father. He has four daughters, the eldest a little younger than I. Their mother is sweet, and I can understand why the Indians, who were here when she came, called her "O-go-ne-qua-boqua," for it means, "The Wild Rose."

The Skinner family will be near neighbors of ours on Wabash avenue, and we expect to attend the Second Presbyterian church, which is the one they attend. It stands at the corner of Wabash avenue and Washington street, and people call it the "Spotted Church," because a sort of black liquid has

PARIS, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Museums in Paris and its vicinity have recently acquired several paintings interesting, directly or indirectly, to Americans. Over a year ago André Perate, one of the officials of the Louvre, happened to learn that a portrait of Cardinal Mazarin by Philippe de Champaigne existed in the village of Provins. Immediately he went to see the owner, but he could not obtain an agreement on the price of the painting.

"Some American will give more than you offer" were the words with which the woman owner at Provins finished the conversation with the would-be purchaser.

Remarkable Portrait Bust.

M. Perate was on the point of seeing her again when the director of the national museum told him that the picture was to be viewed by the consulting committee in a meeting at the Louvre. What had happened was that in the meantime the picture had been brought to the attention of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Mortland of New York and Pittsburgh. They had promptly bought it and were happy to offer it to France.

This historical painting is one of the best examples of De Champaigne's work and is a remarkable portrait bust and striking representation of its subject, the great political prelate who ruled France during the minority of Louis XIV.

Mortland's gift, which has just been installed in the museum at the Palace of Versailles, has been placed alongside the same artist's portrait of Cardinal Richelieu, who dominated France during the reign of Louis XIII. The two pictures are of almost equal dimensions and are similar in treatment.

M. Goulinat, the eminent painter-critic, who has made a special study of the methods of the great masters, cleaned and slightly retouched the portrait of Cardinal Mazarin.

Another American Gift.

Another gift, partly American, has just been installed in the decorative arts section of the Louvre. It is an important collection of paintings, drawings, engraving, water colors, and etchings, a legacy from the late George Heing. This gentleman, who died a year ago, was of Franco-American origin and rose to an important position in finance, becoming a member of the board of directors of the Bank

Divorce of A. G. Jennings Jrs. to End New York Love Match

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—It's a sure sign that winter is approaching when all the summer gossip crystallizes into autumn facts. All the new attachments are become solid engagements, and the whispered rifts in many cases are either Reno or Paris matters of record.

From the latter city has come news that, for certain reasons not too flattering to society, are of almost as much pleasure as interest to the notables. After a marriage that hasn't endured quite four years, the Albert Gould Jennings Jr. are prepared to be free matrimonial agents once more.

Society, of course, can afford not to appear the least bit sorry, since Mrs. Jennings, being what is called an "outsider," has never been welcomed into smart circles. In fact, the aloof stand was taken first by Albert's father and mother, since likewise divorced, who were all flattered by the young man's determination to wed the lady from out of the west, and frowned on the pair even when the ceremony had taken place and they were man and wife.

Love Finds a Way.

Being, at that time, much in love, Albert Jr. didn't appear the least bit bothered. He had been greatly smitten at first sight of the blonde beauty, then Mrs. Helen Rueping, who had divorced Robert Rueping of Chicago some nine years before. She had oodles of money, the most marvelous jewels, and was truly good to look upon.

Albert, like every one else, was in Wall street. He made known his intentions of marrying the lovely Helen. His father and mother raised their hands in despair, but Albert wasn't deterred. It was all for love. He gave up his Wall street connections and went into a business backed by Helen's money. And he tried his best to have his wife accepted by society.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Lake Forest and Chicago. They have a delightful apartment in Chicago. They have a beautiful house in Palm Beach, Fla. They have a cozy farmhouse west of Lake Forest and they have plans for a chic and pretty house on Green Bay road, Lake Forest, but of them all, I believe that they prefer this delicious and utterly simple little green shingled cottage that peers through the trees to the sunset across the lake. There they play at house keeping and up to now do not seem to yearn for more excitement than that they get a swift sailing trip in their little skiff that skims the surface of the water like a one-winged bird. They do not fish much and as that is the principle excuse for being of the club, they are quite outside its chief topic of conversation.

Cut Off from World.

No newspapers reach this enchanted spot. So we did not know if Ambassador Dawes and Ramsay MacDonald had come to any agreement or not. The Graf Zeppelin's final stages to its home town were lost to us.

Among others who have abodes near the club are the Watson Armours, whose cottage has not been occupied this summer as they have been in Europe. The Holabird family has a rustic lodge set deep in the woods. Young Rensselaer Cox, who's father, the late Rensselaer Cox, was one of the original founders of the club, has a cabin near the clubhouse, which he and his mother occupied two months this summer.

A Historic Cabin.

The most impressive and remarkable house there, however, is that now owned jointly by George E. Scott, James H. Hopkins and William V. Kelley, and occupied by them in turn. It was originally a huge barracks for lumbermen. It is a log cabin nearly forty years old and wonderfully well built, its great logs being carefully hewn, symmetrical, and beautifully put together. It is a hundred feet in length. At first it contained but one vast room lined with bunks and with a spacious fireplace in the center. One or two decades ago it was bought by the late Fred Stevenson, a well known man in Chicago, and, in fact, well known the world over. He was a great hunter, a stunning figure, tall, well built, finely featured and utterly devoted and dedicated to hunting and the outdoor life. He took the big log cabin and turned it into one of the most fascinating, alluring, intriguing abodes ever created by a roaming mortal. On its rough hewn walls he set all of the splendid trophies of his world-wide hunting trips. Innumerable species gaze at the visitor from every side. An elephant's tail dangles nearby. It's leg serves as an umbrella stand. The tiny head and horns of dyk dyks vie with the massive head and horns of hartebeestes, wildebeestes, North American elk and bull moose.

The wart hog's pleasant features grin here and there. The furry pelts of big grizzlies are underfoot, together with the softer skins of more silky African felines. Quaint and curious embroideries and carved and painted wooden objects, the handiwork of American Indians or African savages, are displayed on every hand. Odd musical intruments made of bamboo, bronze ornaments, belts, weapons, clothes that once were worn by Mexicans or strange tribes on the other side of the globe, dangle from hooks made of deer feet. All of these were gathered and placed in their present location by the late Fred Stevenson, and to the onlooker they seem to tell of him and his interesting, exciting, courageous life better than any words could.

He was a remarkable personality and so long as these trophies and things are kept together he will be a living personality to every one who visits this rustic palace. He divided the building into large sitting rooms, an equally spacious dining room, seven or eight bedrooms, adding four or five bathrooms and a beautifully roomy porch across the front of the big cabin overlooking the wide expanse of the lake.

It is camping de luxe to have electrict lights, bathrooms with hot and cold running water, delicious beds, an excellent cuisine and a telephone in case of necessity, but otherwise never used. Four or five big logs blazing in a vast fireplace add a further touch of comfort and cheer to the scene. At Mr. Stevenson's death the place became the property of his sister, who did not long survive him, whereupon the three present owners bought it from her husband, "lock, stock and barrel" and have kept it as it was then with only a few additions. It is monumont to a fine soul, a great hunter.

A Taste of the Wild.

We had a taste of what it means to live in a wild, lonely, untenanted country during the four days' sojourn at Coleman lake. A lovely sunny morning, when all the woodlands encircling the lake lay sleeping in gentle calm, the glittering, glassy water just stirring when an ambitious fish jumped to catch a fly or escape another fish a delicious fragrance of charring, burning wood was wafted from the south.

"How pleasant and pungent!" sighed the inexperienced.

"How ominous and unpleasant!" remarked the wise and wary. Yes, it was burning woods and the smoke increased in volume and shrouded earth and sky in a pale, exquisite veil. On inquiry it was found that there was a forest fire some ten miles away, a fire which later spent itself in a big peat pog, where it smouldered and sent forth fragrance and smoke as long as we were there. It may be doing so still, but Eddie Archambeault, our guide and good friend, said that, while it couldn't be extinguished, it nevertheless wasn't an immediate peril. He is one of those weatherwise people born and bred in the wild, unpeopled parts of the country, whose knowledge of woodlore is unimpeachable and utterly trustworthy. He knows where the biggest fish lurk; he knows where the reed beds are thickest; he knows where each rocky nook is hidden in the depths of the lake; he knows at what hour the fish are hungriest and most likely to rise to those beautifully made flies that conceal the delicate barbs on which even big bass get hopelessly hung and can not escape, once they are skillfully hooked.

Angle Worm Outmoded.

Casting and trolling are high arts. The old fashioned deep water fishing with an angle worm and float is quite out of date in those regions.

Lest I weary you with rhapsodies on this taste of life in the wilderness, I will just say that a day spent in a flat bottomed boat gliding slowly over an inland lake, rod in hand, waiting for a sign of a lurking trout or bass, is the best medicine for a world weary soul that I ever met. It makes not the least difference in one's contented happiness if the fish be dormant or biting, though there is a certain ecstasy in landing a fair sized, flapping, finny morsel which must be tried to be appreciated. But any sense of acute disappointment in failing to do this is quite absent from the sensitive mortal who has the privilege of spending a few days in this sport. Of the Izaak Walton league and its achievements I'll tell you later. It's something every one should know about, but fish, to the non-fisherman, get easily stale, so I'll stop now.

Retreats Near Millburn.

I suppose because we live in the most strenuous, clamorous, exciting city in the world today, Chicagoans delight to get far away from their kind at certain times of the twelve months. For instance, there is a group of Lake Foresters and others who are building for themselves lovely cottages and more pretentious abodes in that utterly bucolic region that lies some twenty miles northwest of Lake Forest and near the very small village of Millburn.

It is the hunting set that is drifting out that way, though several of the younger married couples have already made little retreats there, to which they hie themselves weekends. The A. B. Dicks Jr. of Lake Forest have a most attractive white cottage set in a simple yard or garden on a rustic by-road. A few minutes' motor ride from them the William Mitchells also have an old frame farm house which they have furnished simply and fitted up for their habitation when the spirit moves them to fly from the much more exciting existence that is theirs in Lake Forest.

James Simpson Jr. Building.

James Simpson Jr. [better known as ["Jimmy"] is building what promises to be a sizable establishment. The stables are almost finished and are really so charming that I don't see how their owner can refrain from making them his main habitation. The house, however, has a lovely site and promises to be a most attractive abode. It looks out across a fine stretch of woodland and green fields, and is quite remote from any highway, being reached by a shady, wildwood road. Horses can be seen grazing tranquilly in a glade below, beside the old Mill creek which is one of the upper waters of the Desplaines river, a mild mannered stream that ambles through that countryside as if it didn't care if it ever got anywhere.

The Austin Niblacks have two hundred acres there on which they are going to build a house not far away from Mr. Simpson's. It is to be in an enchanting bit of woodland lifted high above a nearby glade and having an exquisite view to the north over miles of fertile landscape. It, too, is reached by a winding, rustic roadway under overhanging trees and going up and down hill. The Niblacks plan to make this their main residence, betaking themselves in the winter season to Aiken, S. C., and other centers where the horse is the chief feature and lure.

Others of the Onwentsia Hunt club who are enthusiastic members are Benjamin F. Behr, Paul Llewellyn, the Donald M. Ryersons, Charles Glore, Ralph Hines, and the David Adlers. To them the approach of the opening of the hunting season means the arrival of one of the year's highest high spots.

The descendants of Chicago's pioneers are entering the third phase of life in a great American metropolis. Their grandparents laid the foundations for and started the family fortunes in what was in their day the frontier of the country.

Sane Underlying Qualities.

The sons and daughters of these sturdy pioneers carried on and developed the task begun by their parents, but with a greater admixture of distraction and creature comforts than anything their forbears knew. The third generation of these original settlers come into the full inheritance of financial freedom and right to lead existences wherein the amenities and distractions of life can be catered to and enjoyed. According to their type they choose, some the outdoor life, others the more sophisticated social existence to be found in eastern society or that of Europe; still others the thrills that come from exploring wildernesses and confronting dangers such as do not exist in today's civilization. One and all of them show the same underlying qualities that brought success and satisfied achievement to their pioneer ancestors.

And now come the fourth generation youngsters to take their place in the annals of the community. On my desk at the moment are invitations to the "coming out parties" of five lovely young debutantes whose great-grandparents arrived here nearly a century ago. All of these entertainments took place in the week just ended.

Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hutchinson Poole presented to society their lovely young daughter, Miss Barbara Poole, whose grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Abram Poole, came to Chicago some seventy-odd years ago. They settled on a piece of property that was almost in the woods. It is today the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and Erie street. What the grandfather of Miss Poole paid for it I don't know, but his children sold it for something like a million and a quarter dollars a few years ago. The Pooles gave this debutante affair at their charming place in Lake Forest.

A Fourth Generation Chicagoan.

On the same day Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, also of Lake Forest, introduced their very attractive daughter, Miss Christabel Ward Wheeler, to society. She is a fourth generation Chicagoan, her great-grandfather on her mother's side was David M. Bradley, who come to Chicago in 1836. He was the editor of the Chicago Daily Democrat, and part owner of it with "Long John" Wentworth.

The Bradley home was on Quincy street between State and Dearborn; the garden, a famous one in its day, extended through to Jackson boulevard. The family still owns this land. Mrs. Bradley gives its name to Quincy street in honor of John Quincy Adams, whom she greatly admired, she being an ardent Whig from New Hampshire. Her debutante great-granddaughter is said to resemble her closely, according to portraits now extant. This old family residence was in its day so far out in the country that prairie wolves were the scavengers and used to annoy the family at night by howling under their windows. Were their howls worse than the city's clamor thereabout today?

Miss Margaret Lynde Honored.

The day following these two receptions Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Lynde gave a reception for their daughter, Miss Margaret Lynde, at the Indian Hill club in Winnetka.

Yesterday four more debutantes of old Chicago families now living at Winnetka made their bows to society at afternoon teas. Mrs. Robert Bowman Gregory, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hibbard, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ewing Durham, gave a reception for Miss Elizabeth Champlin Durham, daughter of the Durhams, granddaughter of Mrs. Gregory and great-granddaughter of the Hibbards.

That same afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, also of Winnetka, gave an "at home" for their debutante daughter, Miss Helen Bell. She is a third generation Chicagoan, her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Fairbank, being among the most prominent citizens of their day in Chicago.

The third and fourth of this bevy of lovely young Winnetka buds were Miss Louise Reynolds Conway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barret Conway, and Miss Susan Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Southworth Miller. They also made their debut together yesterday at the Indian Hill club. Miss Conway's great-grandparents were the Reynolds [I'm sorry to have forgotten Mr. Reynolds' first name]. Her grandfather, George K. Schoenberger, is a resident of Winnetka. Miss Miller is a great-granddaughter of the late Roswell Mason, who was mayor of Chicago at the time of the famous fire of 1871. So the roots of these debutantes are deep set in Chicago's glorious past.

May this group of seven debutantes continue to be daughters of what is one of the great cities of history.

Country Clubs Will Close as Autumn Comes

Town Clubs Get Ready for Winter Season.

By Mildred Jaklon.

THE summertime régime of the fashionable country clubs is nearing its close and the town clubs are preparing to open their doors for the longer winter season. Even in retrospect, the country clubs have been more than usually popular this past summer. Onwentsia in Lake Forest, and Exmoor in Highland Park have both found their series of Saturday night dances a great success with their respective memberships. Onwentsia's Lido party was considered the Lake Forest crowd quite the best affair of the summer, and the Saturday night dances have been attractive enough to deprive some of the roadhouses of previously enjoyed patronage. The outdoor dancing platform at Exmoor, bordered with a stone railing and flowering plants, and illuminated with colored lights strung through the branches of the big trees, has had capacity crowds for its weekly dances. Most of the scheduled entertaining of the clubs will end this month, but the clubs will stay open through the fall for the benefit of the golfers who like the tang of autumn air with their exercise. Exmoor's last Saturday night dance will be this week.

As for the winter clubs, the Casino is to be open tomorrow, although some alterations and improvements that are being made are not yet completed. The Fortnightly's handsome residence in the erstwhile domicile of Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, a step from Lake Shore drive on Bellevue place, will be available to its membership about the first of next month, and the luncheon service and frequent affairs of the Arts club will be resumed at the same time. The Woman's Athletic club, which has been a popular rendezvous for luncheon with those of its members who have been in town, will soon be having its Thursday morning programs and the English-Speaking union has already inaugurated the season with a luncheon on Thursday last in combination with the council on foreign relations.

Divorce to End Love Match of Social World

A. G. Jennings Jrs. in the Paris Courts.

When the Social Register came out in its next issue without the name of either Albert or his bride, the junior Jennings were so disgusted that they gave up the battle and sailed for Paris, where finally gather all expatriates who have cause for being disgruntled with matters native.

A Peek Into the Future.

Since then the Jennings Jr. have been much about the American colony in Paris. Papa and Mamma Jennings have gone their separate ways, with mamma, now Mrs. Crimmins Jennings, living in Pasadena, while Papa Jennings has since married a sister of Mrs. Stewart Duncan.

But, as the senior Jennings hoped, and society fully expected, the younger Jennings have come to the parting of the ways. A divorce is soon to be forthcoming, after which Albert will make great strides for home, certain of the welcome awaiting him, and Helen, from what I hear, will go on again for bigger and better things in matrimony. Who can tell that she may not come home with a title that will make the New York matrons forget all about their erstwhile frowns and fairly smother her with smiles?

Chicagoans in Bridal Party.

Chicago should be much interested in the wedding on Columbus day of Connie Clemons, daughter of Mrs. Chester M. Kerr of West Islip, L. I., and Darragh Louderback, son of Mrs. William J. Louderback of Highland Park, Ill. It is to take place in Christ church at Islip, with the Rev. E. J. Burlingham officiating.

The bridal party is made up of New York and Chicago girls and women, not to mention the inevitable ushers. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish Morris III. and Mrs. Robert D. Weeks will be the matrons of honor and the bridesmaids will be Sarah A. Louderback, Jane Louderback, Mrs. Alicia P. Simpson of Chicago and New York, who will take the time from her writing to lend Connie Clemons her support, and Mrs. Robert P. Bradford of Baltimore.

Bill Louderback Jr. is to be his brother's best man and the ushers will be Charles S. Sise of Boston, John H. Ricketson III. of Pittsburgh, Randolph F. Burke of Washington, A. Ledyard Smith of Milwaukee, Carter Carnegie of Southampton, Thomas G. Wheelock of Chicago, and Albert Francke Jr., Samuel E. M. Crocker Jr., Robert D. Weeks, and Reginald P. Rose, all of New York.

Naturally there will be a huge guest list, and the reception at Kiltie Farm, West Islip, is to be take care of several hundreds. After the honeymoon the young couple will return in early November to an apartment on Park avenue.

International Alliance.

Reggie Rose, who is to be one the ushers at the Clemons-Louderback wedding, was best man at this week's most important affair, which was also an inter-city one, this time a New York-London matter.

Alexandra Dalziel, daughter of Frederick Y. Dalziel, and Alexander Davenport Kinloch, son of Brig. Gen. Sir David Kinloch, Bt., C. B., M. V. O., and Lady Kinloch of Gilmerton, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, were married in the chapel of St. Thomas' on Tuesday, and it was as pretty an affair as ever I've seen.

Alexandra, of course, while she made her debut here in town some winters ago, has been almost continually in England ever since. She attended the Brearley school, Bryn Mawr college, and Barnard college, and after her debut paid little attention to New York social matters. On the other side, however, she soon became a noted figured in English county society and her engagement to Alex Kinloch was long rumored.

Kinloch is an old Etonian, was in the Grenadiers, and comes of an old Scots family, his father being the seventh baronet of Kinloch.

Mrs. T. Reed Vreeland, Alexandra's sister, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Katrina Auchinloss, Margaret Cobb, Mrs. Dudley Hughes, Mrs. Alice Robinson, Peggy Warner, and Eva Wise.

The ushers were Franklin Benkard, Carter Carnegie, Reginald Sturgis, and John Wise. The young couple are now en route to England and will spend their time between London and New York.

At the Autumn Shows.

Belmont is going full blast, pole mallets are being wielded at Meadowbrook, and the autumn horse shows are being planned.

The twenty-seventh annual Piping Rock show at the club will be held on Oct. 3, 4, and 5, and entries will come from all over the east and near south, since the Piping Rock affair is the last in the east until the national horse show in the Garden in November.

Harvey S. Ladew is chairman of the show and among the committee in charge and the directors are S. Bryce Wing, Frederic Potts Moore, Van Duser Burton, Dean Bradford, Paul D. Cravath, Sir Ashley Sparks, W. R. Grace, F. Skiddy Von Stade, and Harry Payne Whitney.

90 Yr. Old Heroine Saves Man from Drowning

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—[U. P.]—Saving a man from drowning was the feat performed by Mrs. Henry Bushey, 90 years old. She recently pulled Louis Seigal, 63, from the water. "Although I could swim well once, I am not as strong as I used to be," was her only comment.

Wears Slippers 50 Years Old at Golden Wedding

Mexican Decries Standard Schools

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—Education should develop individuality rather than standardize thought and habits, Moises Saenz, undersecretary of public instruction, told state directors of education who met here.

"Education is parallel to life itself," he said. "It should teach us to master our character, to give greater expression to our personality. There is a marked difference of character among the people of Mexico and standardization represents for us a danger, whereas by encouraging diversity in community life we can be ourselves."

He emphasized that an era of construction has come upon Mexico and that the time has arrived "to bring order out of confusion."

of France. His sister, who was born in New Orleans, first married the late Prince Albert of Monaco and next the Duc de Richelieu. Thus she is the mother of the present duke, who lives chiefly in New York and who is married to Eleanor Douglas Wise of Baltimore, Md.

The Heine collection includes a portrait of an artist signed Jean Honore Fragonard. If he had left it unsigned few experts would think of attributing it to Fragonard because it is so different from his habitual manner. But Fragonard, who did not die till 1906, was always eager to keep abreast of the latest developments in his art and it is believed that this represents his latest evolution after the stirring events of the French revolution.

American Acquires Group.

The visitor to Malmaison, the famous residence near Paris of the Empress Josephine, Napoleon the First's consort, does not fail to linger before the famed group entitled "Table des Marechaux." This celebrated work once beloged to the Prince de la Moskowa and was put up for sale in Paris last May and bid up to 400,000 francs [about $15,540]. The state, however, has the right of preëmption in such cases, granted by a law passed in 1921 to prevent the passing of national French treasures to foreign countries.

Edward Tuck, a prominent American living in Paris, however, acquired the group. For many years he has been indefatigable in gathering Napoleonic treasures, which he houses at Malmaison with the intention of leaving them one day to France. He showed his usual generosity when he bought "Table des Marechaux," which gives portraits of Napoleon with his twelve marshals at Coulaincourt done in Sèvres porcelain.

Rich Swede Guards European Buffalo

ENGELSBERG, Sweden.—(AP)—The future of the rare European buffalo is being safeguarded on the private preserve of Alexson Johnson, who bought the few animals remaining after the destruction of the Russian czar's game park in Poland during the war.

The beasts, which were imported in 1922, have increased in number.

Johnson has been similarly successful with the preservation of the beaver, which, because of indiscriminate shooting, was practically extinct in Sweden a few years ago.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

zoned out on the white stone, making it quite picturesque. Dr. R. W. Patterson is the minister of this church, and he stands very straight and tall, as he delivers his eloquent sermons.

We had quite a thrill last night over the story of a runaway slave. The sheriff of Cook county [the county in which our young and growing city is located] received a letter from New Orleans, ordering him to arrest a woman, almost white, but with a little Negro blood in her veins. She was well educated and handsome too, 'tis said. She had been bought in the slave market, but had run away. Ten minutes after receiving the order for her arrest, the sheriff met the girl on the street and recognized her. As he passed her, he said, in a low voice: "Go at once to such a number, on such a street." It was the address of the office where Dr. Dyer maintains a station of the Underground railroad. A few minutes later the sheriff met Mr. David Bradley and said: "Go at once to Dr. Dyer and tell him to have that girl stain her face, cut her hair and dress in boys' clothes, and leave the city at once, or I will have to arrest her." So the girl was saved from a dreadful fate.

There are many advertisements in the papers, offering rewards for the return of fugitive slaves, and it is the duty of officers to help in their capture. But Chicago and all northern Illinois are rebellious and public sentiment is against aiding to deliver them up to their captors, for we know they usually stay with those who are kind to them.

We have some friends, the Bryants, living in Princeton, Ill., a small town to the southwest of Chicago. Mr. Bryant is a brother of the poet, William Cullen Bryant, and one of a colony of Massachusetts people who have settled there. The Rev. Owen Lovejoy, of Princeton, is a great orator, and makes fiery anti-slavery speeches. He has sped many runaway slaves on their way to Canada. The Bryants have told us many interesting stories of his cleverness in outwitting their pursuers.

It is late and I must close. I shall write you more news very soon from "The Garden City," as Chicago is called. It really looks like a garden, with its pleasant lawns, sloping down to the river. Ever your friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN.

The Arnold family has ramifications in Chicago, though the name has died out. Arnold Scudder is a grandson of Isaac N. Arnold, and his son, Barrett Scudder, who recently married Joan Stuart, is therefore a great grandson. The Greeleys of Winnetka belong in this line. William Scudder is another grandson.

Judge Caton was father of Arthur Caton, whose widow married the first Marshall Field and now lives in Washington, while Mrs. Norman Williams Sr. was a daughter of Judge Caton. Her son, Norman Williams Jr., married lovely Joan Chalmers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers. Joan Williams, daughter of Norman Williams, who is known here, though she lives in Woodstock, Vt., is thus a great granddaughter of Judge Caton, mentioned in the letter.

Mark Skinner Willing is a grandson of the Judge Skinner mentioned in this letter, and his daughter, Mrs. J. V. Farwell III., is thus a great granddaughter. Ambrose Cramer Jr. and his sister, Mrs. J. G. K. McClure Jr., are grandchildren of Judge Skinner and Miss Fredrika Skinner, a daughter, lives in Asheville, N. C. A portrait of Judge Skinner, showing his fine, strong face, somewhat like Lincoln's, hangs in the Chicago Historical society's building on Dearborn avenue.

Dr. Dyer, physician, scholar, and wit, was father of the late Mrs. Stella Dyer Loring, who founded the Loring school in Chicago. Her daughter, Miss Stella Loring, still lives here. Also a great grandson, Norman B. Clinch. A grandson of Dr. Dyer, Charles Dyer Helle, has just married Miss Mary Anna Beckwith of an old Chicago family.

In Princeton, Ill., E. P. Lovejoy, son of the fiery abolitionist, is living, and the old Lovejoy homestead, where fugitive slaves were secreted, is a landmark of the place. The Bryant family, related to the poet, are legion still in the town.

Stones from the "spotted church" may still be seen, for they were used in building the Lake Forest Presbyterian church. The present Second Presbyterian church is at the corner of 20th street and Michigan avenue.

Stained Glass Glows at Art Institute

13th Century Connick Panel Placed on View

Fine Stitches to Be Seen in Textile Wing.

By Eleanor Jewett.

IF one looks for them there are numberless features of interest in the Art institute aside from the collections of paintings and sculpture. For example, think of stained glass. Usually we associate stained glass with church windows. It is true now and again we find a colored window in a home, and once in a while stained glass windows are decorative adjuncts to business and club architecture. But, on the whole, stained glass is more familiar to us with the strains of an organ breaking against its colorful glow.

The ideal of stained glass is not a picture made transparent, but a window made beautiful and equipped to tell a story. From the beginning of the Christian era stained glass has been the ornament of ecclesiastical buildings, but, today, due to a general awakening, which has quickened our love of color and structural independence, it may be possible to include decorative windows in architecture of all types. The most necessary step toward this goal is a perfection of the colors and forms employed.

One of the few men who have devoted their lives to the study of light playing through glass is Charles J. Connick of Boston. He has executed many fine windows, of which Chicago has but two. The Art institute has recently placed on view a panel in 13th century form, by Mr. Connick. The panel has been installed at the head of the south stairway of the east wing, where its intense and glowing color affords a splendid opportunity for those interested to familiarize themselves with a worth while example of this exquisite craft.

Something Fine in Stitches.

From there go through Gunsaulus hall and find your way into the textile galleries of the Art institute and see something in fine stitches that is unique and even fascinating in its atmosphere. First to introduce it, we might say that the earliest form of bed cover was known as a "counterpane" or "counterpoint," an allusion to the panes or squares of which the covering for a bed was generally composed. The stitchery that was used in making a cover of two thicknesses of fabric with a soft substance between was known as "quilting," the needle and thread passing at minute intervals and following accurately the lines of intricate pattern.

Passing the needle in and out and over and under a tightly stretched material may not sound arty, but you will change your mind after looking at the old, old counterpanes in the museum exhibit. Not only did our grandmothers thriftily piece together the colored scraps left from their cotton or silk gowns, but they further decorated their handiwork by the most exquisite designs in tiny, even stitchery. Hearing from some sailor brother or lover of the wonder carpets of Europe or Asia, with their patterns of vases full of flowers, one needle worker has created an admirable example on the alternating large blocks of her quilt. Another needle artist, with pattern of "burr and swallows" in blue and white, has a raised pattern made by "thimble quilting," a variation in the ordinary sewing done by pushing the muslin up den by white kid mounts and, though over a hundred years old, are as elastic as ever.

"SKATERS," by Gustaf Dalstrom, found in the gallery in the east wing of the Art Institute, where paintings by Mr. Dalstrom and by Frances Foy challenge the more melodramatic creations of William S. Schwartz on the opposite wall. All three painters are modernists, but of varying degrees. If modernism is a sort of Masonic order, Mr. Schwartz may be said, from the evidence, to be further advanced in the mysteries and more self-confident. Miss Foy and Mr. Dalstrom dabble where Mr. Schwartz plunges. The exhibitions will continue into October.

Possibly the careful maker of a starlike patterns wanted to show her learning at some "dame school," as she has patiently copied leaf forms from the pages of an ancient herbal or botany. It markes the study of these old pieces more interesting when we realize that a great many of the stitched hats and cloaks and dresses offered to us today are "quilted" in the same manner as these ancient counterpanes.

More Than One Taste Exposed.

In the Allerton wing of the Art institute there is more than one taste and foible exposed. In early days men's vanities were possibly more pronounced than women's. It is written of George Washington that he was extremely careful of his appearance and ordered his clothes to emphasize his good points, with great emphasis on their elegant simplicity. Old wives' tales harp on the importance of exquisite ruffling for his shirts and in his portraits, whether sculptured or painted, the importance of a handsome waistcoat is duly stressed.

In England the Georges scorned the American and Puritan simplicities and luxuriated in lace ruffles and rich brocades and in magnificent coats of brilliant colors. Ornamental garters were the vogue and a great deal of needlecraft was expended on fashionable waistcoats, "braces" and surcoats. There is a gallery in the Allerton wing devoted to men's dress of the 18th century, a period before the drab fashions of today came into being.

For one example, look at the braces—today called the uglier word, suspenders. Braces were invented in Italy, embroidered in all European countries, and woven in the United States. The examples in the case in the Allerton gallery are so beautifully made and so well preserved that they may first have been intended for wedding gifts. The coiled wires are hidden by white kid mounts and, though over a hundred years old, are as elastic as ever.

The waistcoats of the past had delicate peacock feathers, pansies or blush roses edging the front lapels and pockets. The size and variety of decorations executed were in relations to the girth of the man for whom the waistcoat was intended. White silk or satin went well with the velvet or brocaded dress coats. These surcoats also had borders of colorful detail. Also such articles as brief cases were not allowed to flourish unadorned. There is an example in the museum collection which might have belonged to the most passionate of lovers so decorated is it with blazing red hearts, initials and forget-me-nots mingled with delicate sprays of foliage.

Many Types of Needlework.

These are just a few of the different things which the Art institute offers. There are other types of needlework to be found; there is a great deal of magnificent lace; there are tapestries; there are Chinese and Japanese and Persian paintings, exquisite tiny scraps of beauty; there is glass; there is china; there is pottery. No matter what your taste may be if you will search Gunsaulus hall you will surely find some rare treasure to satisfy it.

To stop for just a moment for another illustration of some length, there is a marvelous collection of fans in the Allerton wing. The shell of the tortoise, the horns of the cow, the skin of the swan, the hide of the sheep the lining of the pearl oyster and the thread of the silkworm have all been used in the making of these delightful instruments of masculine torture. Some are of parchment and some are of lace; some are of silk and some of gold; all with delicate ribs and most of them beautifully painted or carved. This collection is one of the treasures of the museum.

A new book that has a great deal of interesting matter to commend it is "Famous Small Bronzes," published by the Gorham company. A wide variety of work by such Americans as Harriet Frismuth, Allan Clark, R. Tait McKenzie, Bonnie MacLeary and Chester Beach, among others is described and illustrated. Many of the pieces illustrated are already erected in gardens, others will be. More and more sculpture is coming into use as an extremely effective decorative means.

The series of large mural paintings of prehistoric life, presented to the Field museum by Ernest R. Graham, the Chicago architect, has been augmented by restorations of the Zeuglodon, an extinct whale, and the giant Irish deer. The new paintings, with the first of the series, are on view in the Ernest R. Graham hall of historical geology at the museum, where there are also to be seen skeletons and other fossil material representing prehistoric creatures. The new paintings are the work of Charles R. Knight of New York.

There will open tomorrow at the Newberry library an exhibit of "Book Illustrations" of the American Institute of Graphic Art, sponsored by the directors of the Chicago Society of Typographic Art. Additional exhibits which the society has scheduled for the autumn and winter months include the annual exhibit of fifty books and printing for commerce in November, and the exhibit of Chicago fine printing on March 3. Both exhibits will be at the Newberry library.

The society's class in fine typography will resume its weekly meetings at the library in November. Col. Edward T. Miller is president of the Society of Typographic Arts.

Surprise Visits by Premier Oust Loafing Officials

BELGRADE.—(AP)—Gen. Peter Zivkovitch, the iron handed premier of the dictatorship established by King Alexander in Jugoslavia, is the most advertised man in his country.

The dark haired, athletic looking premier has just added a new feather to his cap. He has ordered the dismissal of a number of provincial functionaries who were adhering to the old tradition, dear to Balkan officialdom, of "dolce far niente."

Gen. Zivkovitch swoops down everywhere to see for himself that the government machine is run smoothly. When an official is not found at his desk he is not only "fired," but forfeits his rights to a pension.

Traveling in a small passenger plane, Gov. Zivkovitch is making surprise visits to every town and village of the kingdom. As the press is severely censored, the movements of Jugoslavia's Cromwell are carefully kept from the public. Sometimes King Alexander's righthand man appears in disguise, mingles with the public, hears their views, and offers suggestions.

In one of these visits to a small village in Dalmatia, the premier saw the door of the small courthouse wide open. He strolled in, but found nobody. The judges, clerks, and even the doorman were away.

He remained there for two hours. When he left he scribbled a severely worded message dismissing everybody, from the judge to the janitor.

Paris in Drive Toward a New Morality Plane

Prefect of Police Closes "Shocking" Show.

PARIS.—(AP)—"Wicked Paris" is in the throes of a tremendous drive toward morality.

Two plays have been ruled off the boards within a week by Jean Chiappe, prefect of police, in his capacity as guardian of public order and morals.

In the memory of man it is the first time that a Paris theater has been compelled to take a play off its repertoire on moral grounds. Yet not a sound was heard about that overworked word, "liberty," being suppressed.

Gambling Banned.

Another decree issued by M. Chiappe the same week also passed almost without comment by the French press, although it is likely completely to alter the aspects of the far famed Paris boulevards within the year.

Spinning wheels visible in all the innumerable fairs of the city, where, through risking the modest sum of fifty centimes—two cents—one may win two pounds of sugar, a doll or a few cigars, must go from the boulevards. Forbidden also are the fortune tellers, palmists, and mechanical contrivances which give answers to queries concerning the character, destiny and appearance of the lady who is to share the life of the seeker after information.

Sours on Wickedness.

Prefect Chiappe, the most energetic police official Paris has had in many years, has soured on the reputation of wickedness which the city has attained throughout the world and has set his heart on making the French capital a moral place.

So recently, when "Les Desaxes de Paris"—which might be translated broadly as "The Decadents of Paris"—appeared at the Theater Renaissance, M. Chiappe's private censor reported that it gave a most realistic picture of the haunts and diversions of certain immoral persons and that no artistic feature about it redeemed the all too vivid realism.

Then the prefect personally attended the show, and "Shocking!" he is quoted as having said, speaking the word without that touch of ill-suppressed admiration used by tourists who study the various presentations of such psychological problems. The next evening the theater was dark.

Papers Approve.

Undaunted, the management after a few days put on another play called "Passions." It was merely a revision of the former play with a few objectionable scenes altered. M. Chiappe stepped in and closed the theater after three performances.

Paris newspapers generally have approved M. Chiappe's policy. They don't want too rigid a censorship in the freest and gayest city in the world but, some admitted, there should be a limit somewhere.

Only the Faithful Get Rooms There

MOSCOW.—(AP)—Rooms are so scarce in Moscow that they are assigned to only two classes.

One comprises the families of needy workers who live with two or three persons to the square yard. The other consists of brainy persons who have proved themselves faithful to the soviet régime.

Some time ago the Moscow city council rewarded Prof. Langov for 50 years of scientific work by decreeing that for the rest of his life he should have the use of the room in which he resides. The professor was not relieved of rent, but he will not be molested by authorities hunting space for some great personage or needy worker.

Japanese Prince to Honeymoon in America in 1931

TOKIO.—(AP)—America will receive its second visit from a son of a Japanese emperor in 1931 when Prince Takamatsu, second younger brother of Emperor Hirohito, and his bride, now Princess Kikuko Tokugawa, cross the United States on the last lap of a honeymoon that will take them around the world and last sixteen months.

Prince Takamatsu and the granddaughter of the last Shogun are to be married in Tokio next March. The prince will go to England first as a state guest, returning the visit last May of Prince Henry, duke of Gloucester, who came to Japan to invest the emperor with the Order of the Garter.

Official business finished, the imperial couple will tour Europe and return to Japan by way of America.

America's first visit from a member of the imperial family took place in 1927 when Prince Chichibu passed through on his way home from England, whence he had been called by the death of his father, Emperor Yoshihito.

"Annie Laurie" Is Played 98 Times on Harmonica

GLASGOW.—(AP)—Judges sitting behind a screen in the city hall here heard "Annie Laurie" played 98 times on mouth organs in one day, and "Barren Rocks of Aden" and "My Nut Brown Maiden" about 70 times each. These were test selections in the Scottish mouth organ championship, won by Quentin Pettigrew of Kilmarnock.

Oldest Tree Felled.

PARIS.—(AP)—The oldest tree in Paris, an oak of three full centuries, has been felled by a truck. It was called "The tree of Francois I.", but, as the king of many love affairs died 50 years before the tree was planted, tradition, say experts, is wrong.

A Surplus of Baths.

Little Known Art Work Sold for Huge Sum

LONDON.—[U. P.]—English art dealers are frankly puzzled why an American should pay $295,000 for a painting which three years ago sold in London for $8,500.

Some weeks ago it was announced that the Erich galleries had sold Romney's "Master Tennant," sometimes called Romney's "Blue Boy" in the United States, but not to be confused with Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," for $295,000 to an unnamed American.

Now it is revealed that in 1926 the picture was sold in London for $8,500 by Walter Burns, who inherited it from his mother, a sister of the late J. P. Morgan. Burns sold the picture after the National gallery ruled that it was not of sufficient "national importance" to be exempt from death duties.

"Master Tennant" is a comparatively unknown Romney portrait in blue of the young son of William Tennant. Romney obtained $250 for the study.

A member of London's most prominent art gallery said the price paid for this picture was "most surprising." "It merely shows," he said, "that the ordinary standards of art values which we recognize in this country absolutely go by the board in America. I would not have said the picture was worth more than $10,000 or $15,000 at the outside.

"Rich Americans," he concluded, "often collect pictures at high prices because the possession of them is one thing which distinguishes one millionaire from another."

Prince of Wales' Roars Please Little Princess

LONDON.—[U. P.]—The prince of Wales has found exceptional favor in the eyes of a charming young lady through his talent for imitating lions. Princess Elizabeth, three years old, greatly admires her "Uncle David" for his ability to roar like the king of beasts.

GRANDPA IS UNCLE TO OWN GRANDSONS AND YET HE'S ONLY 39

MANGUM, Okla.—[U. P.]—Luther Gilliam not only is the youngest grandfather in Oklahoma but he also has the distinction of being the uncle of his grandsons.

Gilliam's daughter, Mrs. Ola Rose, is the wife of the twin brother of Gilliam's second wife.

Smith's two sons are grandsons of their father's brother-in-law, Mrs. Gilliam, Mrs. Smith's step-mother, is the aunt of Mrs. Smith's two sons. The twin brother of Mrs. Gilliam is the step-son. Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Gilliam's step-daughter, is also her sister-in-law.

Gilliam, now 39, was a grandfather at 35. Being doubly related to the Smiths, the small Smith boys have plenty of affection bestowed on them—the love of a grandfather, grandmother, aunt and uncle combined in two persons.

Church with 3 Members Opens Once Each Year

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.—(U. P.)—Although the congregation numbers only three members, the Old School Baptist church at Slate Hill, near here, is opened once a year for the annual meeting.

The church, which was founded in 1783, once was a flourishing religious community, but for a score of years has been used for the one purpose, the annual meeting.

Mrs. Charles Stickney of Rome, N. J., clerk of the church, is the only officer of the congregation. She and Mrs. Charles Wood of Slate Hill were the only ones at the meeting, which took place recently, the third member of the congregation, Mrs. Francis Stickney of Middletown, being ill.

Night Haunts in London Set to Open Anew

LONDON.—[U. P.]—The bright lights of London night life soon will be blazing again with their full candle power. Managers of clubs, cabarets, and restaurants are preparing for what they hope will be an exceptionally good season. Tourists usually support the nocturnal institutions during the summer, but no outside help is needed during the regular London season.

To an American accustomed to whoopee in a bigger and better way the average London night club is more or less of a mystery. The demeanor of the customers gives practically no indication as to whether they are enjoying themselves. They will listen attentively to a cabaret number and then burst into applause as though the cheering is part of the regular nightly routine, considered the thing to do. Many a poker face is seen consuming a fifteen shilling dinner. Londoners definitely do appreciate good cabaret work, but it could never be guessed by watching their faces.

Early Closing Hours.

Early closing hours do not discourage the attendance at the recognized clubs and restaurants. Except on "extension nights" all drinks must be off the tables at the stroke of midnight. Extensions, granted once or twice a week, allow the merriment to continue until 2 a. m. Cases of overindulgence in stimulating spirits are neither common nor rare. A rowdy party is just as likely to be native as foreign.

More and more American artists are being booked for the entertainment of London nightclubers. Apparently the objection to the famous "nasal twang" is not so marked in this field, but it is noticeable that most of the Americans soon learn to say "cahnt" and "hahlf pahst ten." Ray Bolger and Frances Mae Maddux were prominent among the Americans who gained a large following over here during the summer.

Rex Biggest Attraction.

Among the permanent attractions in London none is more permanent than Rex Evans. His songs have been described locally as "pointedly topical," and they are at least that. Rex is easily the biggest attraction in town as far as weight is concerned, and his offerings are somewhat unique and popular. Visiting American artists say that they have nothing like him at home. Visitors who want something unusual and admittedly clever should be at the Café Anglais at midnight.

Billy Bennett, a hot favorite of the music halls, is well known to the cabaret crowds. He is typical of what the gallerites, and the top price seats as well, crave in an English vaudeville house. Morton Downey is a favorite on the stage and in the clubs. A large majority of London's variety-cabaret enthusiasts is always ready to welcome Sophie Tucker for an indefinite stay.

Numerous agents are now in the United States seeking new talent for the coming London season. Local shores are being pumped dry, and the regular performers are apparently assured of a winter without any waves on the doorstep.

German Films Silent Due to Court Dispute

BERLIN.—[U. P.]—After drawing capacity houses for several weeks the talkie theaters of Berlin have suddenly gone dumb. They probably will remain in this silent condition until the patent dispute between a German film and electrical combine and the Western Electric company of the United States is straightened out.

Ranged against the American concern are the Telefunken company, the Allgemine Elektrizitaets Gesellschaft, the Siemens-Halske company and one of two subsidiary firms. They have pooled their tonefilm patents after having quarreled among themselves for months, and are now using this pool as a weapon against the Western Electric. Their contention is that the latter's talkie devices infringe in many important respects upon the pool's German patents. The Berlin combine has a working agreement with tonefilm companies in Great Britain and France which also are fighting the Western Electric invasion.

Suggested Compromise.

While the German concerns, led by Klangfilm on the one side and by Tobis Tonfilm on the other, were at each other's throats, Western Electric entered into agreements with leading Berlin movie theater owners for the installation in their houses for its own projection and reproduction devices. This machinery was so constructed that only American made films could be used. Among the large Berlin theaters entering into such agreements were the Ufa Palast-am-Zoo, Gloria Palast, Titania Palast and Ufa Kurt Saal. Presentation of the first American talkies began early in May in the first two houses.

Meanwhile Klangfilm [the subsidiary movie company backed by A. G. E., Telefunken and Siemens-Halske] had made its peace with Tobis. It was understood that Klangfilm would thereupon proceed to the production of its own talkies and at the same time seek a peaceful compromise with Western Electric. As yet, however, neither goal has been reached.

Get Restraining Order.

Instead of trying to reach an out of court settlement with the American company, the German combine applied for and obtained a number of restraining orders from a Berlin court which were directed against the Berlin talkie houses. These injunctions were served, the theaters concerned being thus compelled to suspend further presentation of American tonefilms pending the outcome of the controversy. Following this surprise step, Western Electric announced that it would rebuild its machinery so that German tonefilms could also be operated. Whether the introduction of this element of "interchangeability" was intended as a basis for a compromise has not been made clear. In any event, the German group did not respond to the overture, but appeared determined upon receiving a clear cut legal decision to bring it victory in the talkie dispute.

My Greatest Thrill

Saved from Water.

My brother told me of a narrow escape he once had with his wife and two small children, they had gone up into the mountains. There was an old dry and sandy stream bed near where they camped.

The children thought it a fine place to play and it did seem perfectly safe.

One afternoon there had been a storm farther up the mountain but as it was soon over they felt no alarm. Suddenly my brother gave a scream and dashed for his little boy who was playing in the sand of the stream bed. And just in time, for he had barely reached the bank when a solid wall of water stretched across where the child had played.

The stream bed was now filled with foaming water. The storm above had filled the once dry channel and only my brother's quick action had saved the child.

Odd as it may seem the waters rushed on down the mountainside and in a short time the bed was again only a sandy dry waste. S. K.

A Wild Storm.

I had my most thrilling experience while taking a boat ride on the Fox river. It was a wonderful, sunny summer afternoon. We had gone but about a mile in a motor boat, when the sky darkened, the wind began to blow with great force and the rain came down in torrents. It turned out to be one of the worst storms I ever experienced.

The lightning flashed and thunder crashed continually. We had to slash the canvas cover of the boat to keep it from capsizing. The lightning struck our motor and we got stuck in the mud. Neighbors had seen our plight and came to our rescue. We were indeed thankful when we were once more on firm ground. A. E.

She Forgot.

We Canadians were hard hit by the world war. In my extremity I borrowed $500 from a relative in Chicago, giving her a promissory note to be collected through a leading Chicago bank. Being land poor we could not make our payment to the bank.

Several years later, having had many reverses and having forgotten all about the $500 I had borrowed from my Chicago relative, I asked her again for a loan of five hundred.

"I believe I can accommodate you," she said.

She disappeared and returned a moment later with my old promissory note and said, "Here's $500, collect this!" I collected myself and made a rapid exit. Was I embarrassed!

J. K. H.

Husband Forgets.

My husband, before we were married, ate many of his meals at restaurants, where etiquette is not challenged, and where it is quite permissible to test the cleanliness of one's silver on the napkin.

A short time after our marriage we were invited to dinner at my best friend's home. The color of my face changed many times, I'm sure, when I looked at my husband and saw him calmly wiping his cocktail fork with his napkin. P. M.

Just a Reverie.

The hour before five is usually a pensive one in planning imaginary meals for dinner, so that I can stop and shop on the way home. On this night I was trying to decide on something new as a side dish when my boss came up to me and asked me about something pertaining to a future order I had made out that day. Before thinking I answered, "Why, peas, of course!" Imagine my embarrassment and chagrin when I had to explain my ridiculous answer. Naturally he laughed, but I wished the floor had swallowed me. To this day when I go to him with a question his answer is, "Why, peas, of course!"

Only the Rims.

When only a freshman in high school I was taken to the oculist to have my eyes tested. After the test had been made we entered another room and the doctor handed me a pair of glasses to try on. After putting them on I exclaimed enthusiastically, "O, I can see much better through these."

I shall never forgive that doctor for saying, "But my dear young person, you are merely trying on rims. Those spectacles have no lenses in them." W. C. C.

Leaders Give Attention to Church Music

Considered as Worship, Not Entertainment.

By the Rev. John Evans.

CHURCH music, along with the development of church architecture, is coming forward for a share of attention of religious leaders today. In the minds of many people, the hymns and special musical numbers are used by a congregation as a sort of pious entertainment. Solos and anthems have come to be regarded by large numbers of people as the sugar coating on some bitter religious pill. Such ideas are rapidly being blotted out, and the clergymen who uses their choirs as advertising features to draw people to their churches are not so common as they were a few years ago.

So declares Harold B. Simonds, instructor of music at the Presbyterian Theological seminary. Mr. Simonds finds that the problem of choosing a suitable style of music for the public worship of a church is not an easy one. He states that the difficulty lies in the varying conceptions and ideas in different communities and sects.

Agree on One Point.

"On one point, the various churches are rapidly approaching an agreement," Mr. Simonds said. "We are all beginning to accept the fact that music in the church is really worship in itself, and that its proper use greatly enhances and intensifies the fundamental emotional expression of groups and individuals in prayer, praise and thanksgiving."

The obvious proof of the use of music as worship is in the congregational singing, Mr. Simonds pointed out. He also indicated that the organ, the choir and soloists are not primarily for exhibition purposes.

"The soloist is not exploiting the qualities of his voice nearly so much as he is praising God," Mr. Simonds said. "David Bispham, one of America's foremost artists, before singing 'Elijah' in Mendelssohn's oratorio of that name, would 'live' Elijah in Elijah's actions and life as a part of his preparation for the interpretation of the prophet. To the best of his ability, Bispham was Elijah. He was an artist instead of just a singer. So in a lesser degree, perhaps, it lies within the power of every church singer and every member of a congregation to elevate church music and to fulfill the purpose for which it was intended.

One of Fine Arts.

"Church music in its proper use is one of the fine arts. Beauty is just as much an attribute of God as truth is. Architecturally, the cathedrals of Europe and some of our own beautiful churches exemplify this. Why then should not the music be equally so? To this end, choirs, quartets and soloists, should be chosen and trained, ever mindful of the injunction of the Council of Carthage back in the fourth century, 'See that what thou singest with thy lips, thou believest in thy heart; and what thou believest in thy heart thou dost exemplify in thy life.' For after all, in the realm of church music as in other things the ideal can be reached only through sincerity."

"In the Catholic church traditional Gregorian tunes and masses of entirely sacred origin and association still prevail, while in the Protestant, particularly in the Evangelical churches, we find too often a deterioration in the choice and conception of church music.

"With the wealth of material from Palestrina, Bach, the Russian school, the best of the English school, and some of our own American composers there is really no excuse for the childish, sentimental jingles one too often hears masquerading as church music. The wrong conception that prevails in the minds of many, indeed most, churchgoers is that the music should be a form of entertainment. This is both a sacrilege and a bit of poor judgment. A sacrilege because it appeals only to the ear instead of the soul; poor judgment, because the concert hall and movie houses are much better equipped to entertain."

The seventy-ninth annual state convention of the Disciples of Christ will be held at the Austin boulevard church, Oak Park, Sept. 30 to Oct. 3. Among the organizations presenting their work in short programs and business sessions will be the Illinois Christian Missionary society, Crusade for Christian Education, Christian Woman's Missionary society, Disciples Divinity house, Christian Home for the Aged, Disciples foundation, and Eureka college. The Rev. L. G. Huff, Taylorville, is president; Mrs. C. U. Collins, Peoria, vice president; the Rev. H. H. Jenner, Niantic, secretary-treasurer.

The fourth and final unit of the Uptown Bethany Evangelical Lutheran church parish house, 5944 Magnolia avenue, will be dedicated today at 3 p. m. The building was erected at a cost of $110,000, ending a 21 year building period during which a chapel, church and parsonage were built. The Rev. Dr. G. Schuessler, president of the English district of the Lutheran Missouri synod, will preach the dedicatory sermon. The Rev. Dr. Karl G. Schlerf, pastor of the church since its organization in 1906, will preside.

The Rev. William J. Ohan, moderator of the Chicago Presbytery, is beginning his fourteenth year as pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian church. The Rev. Mr. Ohan came to Bethany on Sept. 8, 1916. Since then the church membership has been largely increased and an addition erected at a cost of $80,000.

As the instructor of music in the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Harold B. Simonds appeals for a wider acceptance of music as worship instead of entertainment. WHEN BABY TOOK A TUMBLE

Seven Blacks to Three Whites in West Indies

KINGSTON, Jamaica. — (AP) — The population of the West Indies has been estimated as slightly more than 10,000,000, of which probably 7,000,000 are blacks or mulattoes. Whites predominate in Cuba and Porto Rico, but in all the other islands the colored races outnumber the whites.

Some curious facts came to light concerning the origin of the natives of the Caribbeans. The native colored citizen of Bermuda, for example, is partly descended from the American Indians, 800 of whom were banished to the island during the early Indian wars in New England.

Among the millions of original Caribs populating the West Indies only a few hundred remain, the Spaniards having destroyed them. African slaves were brought to the islands to take the places of the aborigines.

Women the World Over

A campaign in favor of women suffrage is being actively pushed in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

China now has several hundred women actresses engaged in a profession formerly exclusively that of men.

Miss Katherine L. Berninger, aged 24, was recently made secretary of the chamber of commerce in Sunbury, Pa.

Women in Japan are enthusiastic participants of billiard games. Some of the billiard establishments have separate rooms set aside for women's use.

The chiefs of staffs of the new Gotham hospital planned by the Woman's Medical association of New York City will be women physicians and surgeons.

A women's national country club is being organized by some of the most socially prominent women of Washington, D. C. The Montgomery Country club, about five miles out of Washington, in Maryland, has been purchased and the ladies will equip a golf course for their own use.

Miss Florence M. Dart of Philadelphia, Pa., was elected president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs of the World at the federation's annual convention recently held in Berlin, Germany.

Mrs. L. O. Sordahl is accompanying her husband and brother on a three year stay at the National Geographic-Smithsonian solar observatory on Mount Brukkaros, southwest Africa.

Mrs. Robert L. Eaton of Monticello is the first woman to hold a state office in Florida. She is a railroad commissioner, the first woman holding that office in the United States.

Mrs. Sylvia A. Nelson of Ardmore, Pa., the only woman holding a commercial pilot's license in the Philadelphia district, plans to teach her husband to fly. She is the mother of two children.

German Air Line Finds Freight Pay

BERLIN.—(AP)—Passenger traffic is less profitable than freight on airplanes, the Lufthansa, or German Airways corporation, finds. If the gigantic network of airplane routes spreading over Germany was to be maintained solely for the accommodation of passengers, the Lufthansa says, it might as well go out of business.

What brings the real money, experts declare, is the package freight and mail. For this purpose the Lufthansa is acquiring a larger fleet of freight planes and is paying less attention to passenger machines.

One way of stimulating freight air service, it is found, is to increase the number of routes flown at night. At present only the stretches from Berlin to Koenigsberg and Danzig on the east and from Berlin to Hanover in a westward direction are satisfactorily equipped for night flying.

How the Public Health Institute is Protecting Future Manhood and Womanhood by Victor Rubin

In three different reception rooms of The Public Health Institute three persons are awaiting their first examination.

In age, appearance and everything that determines a person's standing in life they are as far apart as three human beings can be.

Yet in one respect they are all alike, for upon each of them the great dread of a "social disease" has laid its hand—upon the young man, upon the middle-aged man, upon the child.

Three human souls and three human dramas—perhaps tragedies.

* * * *

The young man has become aware of his disease a month before the date set for his marriage. He has postponed the date and spent his savings in vain. Now stripped of health and money, he sits there, thinking that he must break his fiancee's heart and his own or condemn her to a life of suffering unless—. His gaze is riveted upon the door of the examination room.

* * * *

The dignified, middle-aged man was head of his own corporation until a year ago when a disease he had thought permanently checked twenty years back broke out again in a more disastrous form, incapacitating him for responsibility. Loss of fortune, family, name hang in the balance as he too sits waiting.

* * * *

In the woman's department a beautiful three-year-old child, who has acquired the disease in as yet some undiscovered manner, clings fearfully to her mother's hand. The latter, too poor to consult a specialist, is anxiously waiting to find out whether her baby must pay the price of someone else's folly with its own happiness.

The minutes tick by.

A half hour later the young man, shoulders thrown back, a new look of hope on his face, strides out of the examination room. "Follow the Institute's course of treatment" he has been told, "and you have every chance to be cured." It is the first encouraging assurance he has received since his terrible discovery.

Almost at the same moment the business man walks out briskly, his hands clenched in new determination. Continued treatment will enable him to keep his place in the business world for many years—perhaps regain his former high position.

Last of all comes the mother, tears of joy in her eyes, clasping her child in her arms. She knows that all that medical science has achieved will be employed to restore her child to health. If she cannot afford the treatment the child can still receive them. But the charges are so low that she is happy to pay.

* * * *

These three cases—no more and no less dramatic than the run of the 148,517 on the records of The Public Health Institute—tell more eloquently than any mere description what this remarkable organization is doing to fight social disease in Chicago.

For a study of these thousands of other records discloses that in all probability the young man will be able to marry, the business man will be restored to active life through continued treatment, and that the child will be normal long before she even understands the cause of her affliction.

And all three will have been saved at a cost so low that even the poor mother can pay it without depriving herself or family of a single of life's necessaries.

"How can you do it?" I asked the medical director of the Institute. "How can you make a thorough examination of a patient, including Wassermann and Kahn Tests on the blood, a urological examination for men or a gynecological examination for women, a urinalysis, miscroscopic examination of discharges, and secretions of suspicious ulcers, and if necessary a special dermatological and neurological examination for $3.00?"

"And how can you give neosalvarsan or tryparsamide injections into the veins at $0.00 each or intra-muscular injections of Bismuth for $1.50 and mercury for $1.00?

"And how can you make a complete medical and X-Ray examination of the heart, including flueroscopic study, a 14x17 inch X-Ray picture, and an electrocardiograph print of its action for $3.00?

The microscope is of great value in the diagnosis, treatment and cure of social diseases. One or more are available in all treatment rooms.

"And how can you give six consecutive daily treatments in urological or gynecological departments for $4.00—and successive treatments or consultations for only $1.00?"

For answer I was conducted through the remarkable series of receiving, store and manufacturing rooms, laboratories, X-Ray Department, examination and treatment rooms and record departments which make up the physical "plant" of the Public Health Institute.

I found here the first attempt anywhere in the United States—so far as I know in the world—to apply the technique of mass production and modern business methods and scientific medical knowledge to the problem of public health at low cost.

The scientific and medical end of this remarkable institution has been especially developed. Its staff includes forty physicians who are trained and with a constantly increasing experience in the treatment of social diseases—have been graduated from recognized medical schools—have interned in the leading American hospitals, and, of course, are registered in the state. Absorbed in their work, these specialists meet weekly to discuss the latest advances in medical research and to exchange their own experiences. An organization of 102 people are necessary to operate the Institute.

But it is the application of modern business and scientific medical methods that makes all this technical skill, this expert knowledge available to the hundreds who come to the Institute each day for aid.

"We buy everything directly from the manufacturer at the lowest market price," explained the medical director. "By shopping around, for instance, we are able to cut the price of these capsules from $23.00 to $6.00 a thousand. On other drugs, we have cut the cost to our patients one-third or less compared to what they would have to pay elsewhere. Being big buyers of drugs, chemicals and supplies, we buy for less than drug stores and many wholesalers.

As a social disease is the second greatest cause of heart trouble the Institute has developed a special heart examination. The examining doctor is assisted by fluoroscopic (X-Ray) views of the heart in action, and in addition a 14x17 inch X-Ray picture is taken as a permanent record of its size. An electrocardiograph chart is also made. For this a charge of $6.00 is made.

"To further reduce the cost, we do our own compounding and manufacturing, and put our prescriptions up in these plain boxes or bottles. We have systematized the bulk of our prescriptions to 150 standard formulas so that we can prepare them in quantities."

Even sheep and guinea pigs and rabbits, whose blood is needed for serum in the important Wassermann Tests on the blood, are kept in this downtown office to insure low cost and absolute purity. And hay and fresh feed is bought at prices than any stableman would envy.

The Institute's own printing press, multigraph and mimeograph machines turn out all the record forms, prescription blanks and other necessary printing at a substantial saving. And make available without delay any new form required.

This same efficiency enables the laboratory to examine as many as 300 bloods in one day by means of the Wassermann and Kahn tests. Automatic pipetting machines add the required amount of reagents to each test tube many times as rapidly and far more accurately than any technician can do by hand in the ordinary manner. Another machine does the work of shaking the incubated test tubes automatically for one minute at 5 minute intervals. The layout of microscopes, equipment, X-Ray machines and other apparatus is so efficient that the cost of other laboratory work is cut to the bone. A complete urinalysis costs only 25c here, blood chemistry, 4 tests, $1.00; Wassermann and Kahn, 2 tests, $1.00; Darkfield examination, $1.50; microscopic slides, 25c; blood counts, $1.00. Special Cerebro-Spinal Fluid Examinations, including: A Wassermann, Noguchi, Ross Jones, Colloidal Gold Sol. tests and Cell Count, $2.50.

In fact, so low are the prices and so excellent the work that scores of outside doctors have their laboratory work done here.

"We do this because we are glad to co-operate with the private practitioner," the medical director tells me. "We do not feel that we are his competitor, because few of our patients would or could afford to patronize him anyway. We serve the great mass of people of average means or less who would simply go without treatment if there were no Institute."

The same efficient system I have found governs the "routing" of the patient from reception room to examination room, X-Ray or other special department, treatment rooms and office, effecting a saving in time and effort. And important for the patient's peace of mind is the practice of designating every patient by number so that not even the physicians themselves know the name of the patient.

To conserve every moment of the valuable time of the staff of trained medical men the patient steps into a treatment room completely equipped and arranged so that the physician may move quickly from one to another. A record card gives the patient's history at a glance. No time is wasted in waiting for the patient to undress, exchange social pleasantries, or the preparation of drugs or instruments.

In some cases as little as ten to thirty seconds is required for the physician to administer the treatment, drop his instruments into a sterilizer, pick up a new instrument and proceed to the next patient, the time thus saved can be given to a patient who may require two hours to complete a thorough examination.

It is as though some Henry Ford had turned the marvelous organizing genius which he has employed to cut the cost of automobiles to the more important problem of cutting the cost of regaining health.

I inquire how this unique experiment in mass medical treatment originated and learn that a group of public-spirited Chicagoans decided to make it after observing the prevalence among recruits and the effectiveness of the army in stamping out social diseases during the war. A corporation, organized not for profit, was formed in 1920 to carry out their idea.

Since then the Institute has grown from a single room with facilities for treating four patients at a time to its present proportions—the main clinic for men at 159 N. Dearborn Street, the branch at 129 E. 31st street, and its special clinic for women and children at 72 East Randolph Street. Its treatment facilities now accommodate 100 patients at a time. From 10 in the morning until 8 at night patients come to these three offices for treatment. These hours were carefully decided upon so that no one need lose time from work.

"The cost of some services exceeds the amount charged.

"We lose on each first general examination," the medical director told me, "but the subsequent treatments necessary in the case of those requiring our service enable us to overtake this loss and give us a protective surplus. This first experiment in mass medicine is a business and a medical success. There is no charity connected with it. Each patient pays for his own treatment." However, provision is made so that treatments are possible even for those without immediate funds.

To date the Public Health Institute has expended over $328,000.00 for research, education, free treatments, free hospital beds and other purposes. Over $52,000.00 being spent during the year 1928. This year the Public Health Institute is contributing $12,000.00 to the University of Chicago for research work in Veneral Diseases; $12,000.00 to the Illinois Social Hygiene League for the support of Free Treatment to Veneral Diseased patients and $12,000.00 to the St. Luke's Hospital to set aside a number of free beds for women and children suffering from acute complications of veneral diseases requiring hospitalization for medical and surgical treatment. It also is giving $6,000.00 to the Social Hygiene Council for the education of the public in Social Hygiene through the various clubs, parents' and teachers' associations, industries etc. It also supervises the medical treatment of the children (girls between 4 and 14) of the Frances Juvenile Home, infected with inherited or acquired social diseases.

Undoubtedly, the extension of the Public Health Institute's work to other cities would prove an important step in solving one of our nation's most important social-economic problems. But so far no other American city has produced a group of medical and lay leaders ready to accept the responsibility of affording this protective medical service in an effort to wipe out social diseases.

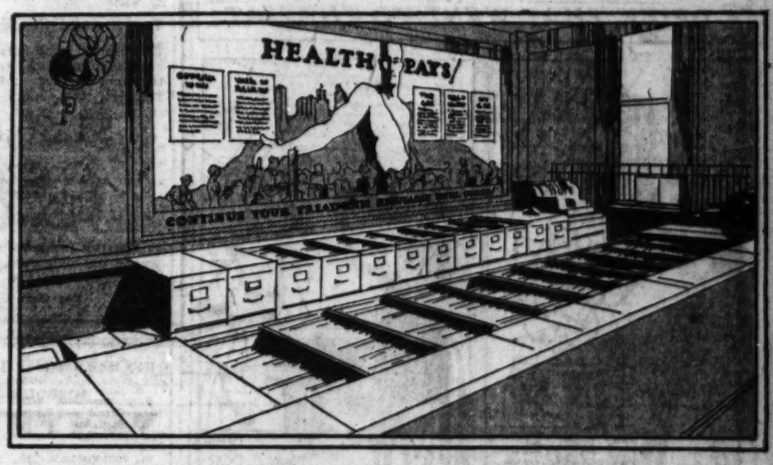
For there is neither romance nor glamour, nor widespread recognition of this little group of officers and trustees in their tremendously important work. They have only the satisfaction of knowing that since the Public Health Institute was founded in 1920 Chicago has been noted and is the only large city in the United States where the number of cases of social diseases have progressively decreased, although Chicago still had 25,000 reported cases in 1928.

The officers and trustees are: Joseph H. King, President Public Health Institute—National Regulator Co.; Thos. R. Gowenlock, Vice-Pres., Public Health Institute—Brokaw & Company; Robert A. Gardner, Treas. and Sec., Public Health Institute—Mitchell, Hutchins & Co.; Harold F. McCormick, Chairman of Executive Committee of International Harvester Co.; George A. Ranney, Vice-President and Treasurer, International Harvester Co.; A. A. Carpenter, Ayer & Lord Tie Co.; John T. Pirie, Carson Pirie Scott & Co.; Nathan William MacChesney, MacChesney, Whiteford & Wells; Gen. James A. Ryan; Marshall Field, Field, Glore & Co.; Albert A. Sprague, Sprague, Warner & Co.; Charles F. Glore, Field, Glore & Co.

Social diseases are a real and dangerous menace to the health and happiness of every individual. They can be acquired innocently and without knowledge and often exist for years causing disturbing symptoms that may be mistaken for other ailments.

Readers are advised to seek the protection of regular medical examination that include blood and other laboratory tests for social diseases. Your own doctor or the Public Health Institute will make these tests.

Above: The west side of the Public Health Institute's great laboratory, devoted to the making of Wassermann and other tests. These tests are invaluable in the diagnosis, treatment and determination of cure of veneral diseases.



Especially designed files facilitate the handling of patients' records—rapidly, as needed. Records are filed according to number in order to further protect the privacy of treatments—no patient is treated or known by name.

Women Exceed Men Immigrants in Many Years

NEW YORK.—Ireland during certain periods in its history of emigration has sent more women than men to the United States, according to a study of emigrations begun four years ago by the National Bureau of Economic Research and just published under the title of "International Migrations."

More women than men also emigrated during certain periods from England, Finland, and Sweden, the study discloses, and it emphasizes the fact that European women, like their American sisters, have exhibited the same spirit of adventure in seeking their fortunes in the new world as have European men.

Immigrant women, furthermore, have not all been wives who came here to join their husbands. Many single women emigrated to this country with the hope of marrying or earning a living more easily here, the study shows.

Irish Women Come Here.

The first great influx of women and girls from Ireland came from 1896 to 1900 when out of 190,291 Irish immigrants 104,022 were women. There was an even greater excess shown between 1916 and 1921, when some 27,000 girls left Ireland, as against 15,500 men and boys.

It was a decade before that first influx of Irish women that a home for immigrant girls was started on State street, Manhattan, facing Battery park, to help the girls locate their relatives on arrival here. Those were the days when immigration was unrestricted and when inspection of immigrants, of necessity, was cursory. Many of the Irish girls who came to this country were of the servant class, and the pitfalls that beset them were legion.

The little yellow and green brick house on the water front offered food and lodging free to more than 100,000 of these girls on arrival and delivered them safely into the hands of relatives. A mission was established in connection with the home when it was first opened and the parish it served was bounded by Wall street, Battery park, Broadway, and East River, with Ellis, Liberty, and Governor's island thrown in for good measure. But that was in the days before business claimed lower Manhattan. Today only a few parishioners are left to carry on the work, but the care of the immigrant girls goes on just the same.

English Women Exceed Men.

Other racial groups have also provided homes for incoming girls, but none confined themselves to one nationality, as did the Irish.

The preponderance of women periodically in immigration statistics emphasizes the wisdom and need of these homes.

Sweden, for instance, sent more women than men to this country in the same periods that Ireland's excess took place, and in the period 1916 to 1921 Finland also sent more women than men.

In the last three-quarters of a century English women have closely approximated the men in the number of departures from the home country, but in two notable instances the number of women was greatly in excess. The first exception was in 1873, when 148,287 men and 243,329 women came from England to this country. In the following year the women numbered 189,000, as against 113,397 men.

Curiously enough, the number of German women over 50 who have emigrated has been slightly in excess of the number of men of that age ever since 1870.

Of about 37,500,000 persons who have emigrated to the United States in the past century, approximately 11,250,000 were adult women, according to the statistics of the Bureau of Economic Research.

216 Different Creeds Worship in This Country

NEW YORK.—[U. P.]—If asked to name the churches and creeds existing in America the average man could enumerate probably 15 or 20, by thinking hard—a list beginning alphabetically with Adventists and ranging through the well established sects to Universalists.

He would miss his mark by approximately 200, for by the most authoritative figues obtainable there are at least 216 distinct religious bodies now active in the United States according to Charles W. Ferguson, who surveys this variegated religious growth in the September issue of World's Work.

19 Methodist Divisions.

There are 19 divisions of Methodism now functioning, Ferguson shows. Baptist bodies number 18. Presbyterianism has 9 different bodies of adherents, and there are 22 kinds of Lutheran churches, 17 major bodies of Mennonites, and 7 divisions of Eastern Orthodox churches.

But aside from these divisions of long established churches, and apart from the great bodies of Roman Catholics and Jews, there are more than 100 minor sects whose names, creeds and purposes are unknown to the vast mass of Americans—and most of them are flourishing. Altogether they number more than 2,000,000 adherents.

Age of Incredible Faith.

"Far from being an age of unbelief, this is an age of incredible faith," declares Ferguson. "Certainly we cannot be said to be an irreligious nation; we are so religious that we have become perverse about it. It should be borne in mind that each sect I mention represents an entirely serious and emphatic departure from accepted religious; each is, to all intents and purposes, a new religion."

TEXAS MAN GETS PERMANENT AS WIFE LOVES CURLY HAIR

AMARILLO, Tex.—[U. P.]—Love knows no bounds—" nor haircuts," according to an Amarillo beauty parlor operator.

A young man walked into the beauty shop and inquired as to the price of permanent waves. The little blonde in the pink apron answered. Then the man asked for more particulars as to size, style and durability of the waves.

"Have your wife come in and see me. I can tell much more about it when I see her hair," said the blonde in the pink apron.

"But," stammered the man, "the permanent is not for my wife. It is for me. You see my wife just loves curly hair."

Many Foreign Cars.

BERLIN.—(AP)—The German Automobile federation says every third car in Berlin and in the Rhineland is of foreign origin. For auto trucks the percentage is 54.5 and for motorcycles 40.5. Saxony has one automobile for each 48 inhabitants and Prussia one for each 75.

"ACROSS THE ATLANTIC"

To some, the ocean voyage is the one drawback to a European Trip.

But others look forward to the voyage with as much anticipation as they look forward to Europe itself. Such are the travellers who have crossed with the Hamburg-American Line.

There are reasons—among them, the solid comfort of Hamburg-American Line ships, the refined atmosphere, congeniality and good fellowship, a world-famous cuisine, and a service developed to the point of perfection through over eighty years of experience.

The Rotterdam is being entirely reconditioned for this coming cruise. RITE RECALLS RAVENSWOOD'S PRAIRIE DAYS

Swedish Church Lays Corner Stone.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

The laying of the corner stone of the new Swedish Evangelical Mission Church of North Park, Christiana and Berwyn avenues, which took place last Sunday, served to remind the present generation that North Park college, now swallowed up by the spreading city, was, not many years ago, far out in the country.

THE REV. ARTHUR M. BOWMAN.

The church, which is erecting a $125,000 edifice, is an outgrowth of the once isolated college established in 1893 at Foster and Kedzie avenues.

There was plenty of campus in the old days—woods and prairie, with here and there a scattered farmhouse. The nearest transportation was the Chicago and North Western railroad station at Summerdale, two miles to the east.

Apartments Replace Barns.

Today the terminal of the Ravenswood "L" links the section with the loop and the Kedzie avenue car line goes directly past the college. The setting of occasional farmhouses has changed to one of brick apartments and bungalows built closely together.

The college, founded by a devoutly religious group, brought a type of neighbors in sympathy with their aims. North Park church was organized as such thirty-two years ago in the chapel at the college.

After they had given their confessions the following were taken in as charter members:

The Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Bjork and daughter, Selma; M. J. Carlson and daughter, Clara; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Telquist and daughter, Ellen; the Rev. and Mrs. John Hagstrom, the Rev. and Mrs. Adolph Lydell, the Rev. and Mrs. O. Hogfeldt, Prof. and Mrs. David Nyvall, and A. W. Frederickson.

Ten of these charter members are still members of the church.

Original Church Outgrown.

Services were held in the college chapel until eighteen years ago, when a building was erected at Christiana and Berwyn avenues on lots that today are valued at $22,000. Last July the structure, having been outgrown by the congregation, was torn down.

At the corner stone laying ceremonies last Sunday the Rev. David Nyvall offered prayer. Addresses were given by the Rev. C. V. Bowman, president of the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America; by the Rev. E. G. Hjerpe, president emeritus of the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America, and by the Rev. Arthur M. Bowman, pastor of the North Park church.

The scripture reading was by the Rev. Algoth Ohlson, president of North Park college. The Rev. Mr. Bowman laid the stone. There was singing by the congregation and a male chorus. A solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," was sung by Mrs. Ruby Nelson.

The Rev. Mr. Bowman, a graduate of North Park college, who came in June, 1923, from a pastorate of seven years at Princeton, Ill., followed the Rev. E. Wallin as pastor of North Park church. The earlier pastors were graduates from North Park college. The Rev. Otto Hogfeldt, editor of the Vestra Vannen Friend, also served for several years.

Building to Seat 600.

The new church structure, Gothic in architecture, will be built of pressed brick with Bedford stone trim. It will be L shaped, seating 600 in the main auditorium, with accommodations for 150 more when the L, or extension, is thrown open. The extension will be used for midweek and Sunday school purposes.

A three manual organ with chimes will be installed in the completed edifice. Arrangements have been made for spacious parlors and a kitchen in the basement for the use of women's organizations. Lowe & Speer are the architects, with Philip A. Danielson as associate.

The building committee consists of C. A. Norrman, S. G. Anderson, David Almquist, Otto Ohlson, Otto Halvarson, Alfred Gustafson, Walter Olson, Algoth Ohlson, Robert Swanson, Ruth Ringdell, Paul Wallgren, E. G. Hjerpe, Mrs. C. J. Wilson, and Mrs. C. O. Carlson. C. August Youngquist, who was a member of the committee, died last April 15.

Members of Finance Committee.

The finance committee is made up of C. J. Wilson, A. B. Strom, Ruth Hjerpe, J. Fred Burgh, A. J. Norberg, Donald A. Johnson, Theodore Kron, Dorothy Krohn, Eric M. Wallgren, Fred S. Swanson, G. Albert Carlson, Mrs. Albert Carlson, C. Henry Edgren, and Waldemar Berggren.

These committees are credited with having worked faithfully and unselfishly for the undertaking. The Ladies' Aid society began the raising of a building fund several years ago. Then, too, the congregation was made the recipient of a bequest in the will of Mrs. Mary Larson.

At the ceremonies last Sunday, which were attended by 1,500 persons, there were quoted the words of John Ruskin: "When we build let us think we build forever. Let it not be for present delight nor present use alone. Let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think as we lay stone on stone that a time will come when those stones will be held sacred because our hands touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor and substance of them, 'See! This our fathers did for us!'"

SHERIDAN CENTER FETE POSTPONED; HUNT A NEW SITE

The fall festival and carnival scheduled for last week under the auspices of the Sheridan Center association at the southeast corner of Broadway and Grace street has been postponed until a new location can be obtained, L. G. Ross, business manager of the association, declared.

The business men were prevented from staging the show at the first location by the city ordinance that prohibits such shows within 200 feet of a church. The Anshe Emes synagogue is less than a half block from the proposed festival grounds.

The purpose of the festival is to raise funds for a celebration for the Chicago Cubs team. The entire Sheridan Center district, adjacent to Wrigley field, the home of the Cubs, is to be gaily decorated by the business men.

HEARING SEPT. 23 ON KENILWORTH REZONING MOVE

Rezoning of property fronting on West Railroad avenue in Kenilworth from Kenilworth avenue to the north city limits will be the subject of a public hearing called by the Kenilworth zoning commission for Monday night, Sept. 23, in the Kenilworth assembly hall.

The proposal to widen and pave West Railroad avenue has brought up the question of the rezoning. At present only one-half block north of Kenilworth is available for business. If there are no serious objections to the rezoning the commission will draft an ordinance to be presented at a future meeting of the village board.

Members of the zoning commission are: Joseph Joyce, chairman; Arthur B. Adair, James C. Murray, Harold O. Barnes, and Walter Botthof.

The commissioners of Lincoln park have engaged Edward Dearie to lay out the 18 hole golf course to be built in the new Lincoln park extension between Addison street and Lawrence avenue. Mr. Dearie has supervised the construction of numerous courses in the Chicago area. Nine holes of the course will be completed within the next year and will be open for play in the summer of 1930.

H. C. Greer, Wilmette, Joins Ohio State Faculty

Howard C. Greer of 1742 Highland avenue, Wilmette, has accepted a professorship in the school of commerce of Ohio State university, Columbus, O.

Compares Girl of 1929 with Mother's Era

Divided skirts and bloomer outfits, too, were the gymnasium attire of young women attending the University School for Girls when Miss Anna R. Haire founded the institution thirty-two years ago. And only mothers of the girls in the classes were allowed entrance to the room where they took their setting up exercises.

Today's classes are more modernly attired and their gymnasium curriculum has expanded until it includes basketball and hockey, tennis and games outdoors, as well as horseback riding in the park.

More Reserved Since War.

"The modern girl is still—modern," says Miss Haire, "but she is vastly different from the war-time girl, more conservative and more reserved."

Starting her thirty-third year with the daughters of northside and suburban families as her charges, Miss Haire is looking forward to the school's removal from its present headquarters at 1106 Lake Shore drive to the new building now under construction at Oakdale avenue and Sheridan road.

"Architecturally the building will be similar to our present one," said Miss Haire. "Colonial—1790—with two facades, one fronting on Oakdale and the other on Sheridan road. But the rooms will be larger and lighter and the playground space, particularly for the younger children, will be enlarged."

The cost of the new building has been placed at $360,000 and the ground cost $389,000. The move was felt necessary by Miss Haire and the trustees of the school because encroaching tall buildings were cutting out the light as well as changing the neighborhood.

Wants Grass for Children.

"I want some grass—real grass—for the children," Miss Haire said, "and we are planning to have lawns around our new building. Some of the students who live on top of these skyscraper apartments never see grass."

Miss Haire has been a tutor or a teacher since her unusually young graduation from Smith college. In the last few years she has had more to do with the executive and business end than the teaching. She is president and treasurer of the school corporation as well as principal of the school.

Trustees are: Lawrence H. Whiting, Homer Dixon, Henry K. Chapin, Edwin A. Seipp, Edward R. Russell, Miss Haire, Mrs. S. W. Welborn, and Miss Mary E. Davey.

About 350 students ranging from kindergarten to college preparatory age are taught at the school.

ACADEMY OPENS 73D SCHOOL YEAR AT LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest academy will begin its seventy-third school year next Thursday with an enrollment of 180 boys, the school's capacity number.

The opening of the fall term, originally scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed for two days to allow time for completion of improvements that have been under way during the summer. All of the dormitories and Reid hall, the main school building, have been repaired and redecorated since June, and precautions have been taken to make them fireproof.

JOHN WAYNE RICHARDS.

Two new masters begin their work at the academy next week. Dr. George L. Doty, new head of the modern language department, is a former instructor at the University of Illinois. Two years ago he was awarded the Eleanor Duse scholarship for foreign language study and travel, and since that time has been studying in France, Spain, and Italy.

Dr. C. P. de Blumenthal, new Spanish instructor, was educated in the Imperial university of Russia, the University of Madrid, and the Sorbonne.

John Wayne Richards will begin his seventeenth year as head master of the academy.

ROGERS PARK WINS DELAY IN SEWER FIGHT

Council Refuses to Act on Ordinance.

Property owners of the Edgewater district through their alderman, John A. Massen [48th], have gained a point in their fight with the board of local improvements over the proposed $3,500,000 sewer system for Edgewater and Rogers Park. The city council on Wednesday ordered the ordinance re-referred to the improvement board.

The council returned the plan to President Michael Faherty upon the request of Ald. Massen, who with Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th] have opposed the improvement for months on the grounds that it is too costly and too extensive.

The property owners of the 48th ward have fought the plan because it meant, they assert, that they would be taxed $1,000, but would receive little benefit. The 49th ward residents, although admitting that new sewers are needed, objected to Mr. Faherty's plan because it provided for seven more miles of pipe than is deemed necessary.

Future Action Uncertain.

What bearing the action of the council will have on the project, neither Ald. Massen nor Ald. Frankhauser would say. By sending the ordinance back to the board it may mean its disposal for a long time or Mr. Faherty may return it to the council at its next meeting. The president of the board of local improvements has supported the measure during the last seven months in spite of the opposition of the two north side aldermen.

The project has occasioned several stormy sessions in the city hall and caused numerous massmeetings to be held throughout the far north side. At a public hearing on June 23 a large delegation of property owners, led by Ald. Massen and Ald. Frankhauser, presented a petition in protest of the sewer system signed by 2,400 tax payers of the district. The number was not sufficient, however, to halt the proceedings. Owners of 24,000 of a total of 54,000 feet of property fronting on the system, less than a majority, had signed the petition.

Calls Present Sewer Adequate.

Ald. Massen declares that the sewer system in his ward is at present adequate. The main sewer is planned to extend in Magnolia and Glenwood avenues from Lawrence avenue north into the 49th ward. Property owners of the 48th ward would be required to pay $1,000,000 for this part of the system which they do not need, he declared.

The Argyle Improvement association, of which John G. McHugh, secretary, has been leading the citizens' forces, was responsible for circulating the petitions. A citizens' committee headed by George A. Jacobs directed the campaign. Other members of the committee were: S. L. Hanssen, John P. Rosenberg, Dr. W. F. Cathcart, Miss Emma Layman, J. J. Higgins, C. F. Swanson, Walter McCowan, I. J. Maudner, Mrs. A. M. O'Connell and C. J. Hultgren.

Project Favored by Some.

Not all of the Rogers Park residents are opposed to the plan, but those who are declare the system is too elaborate and that they lack faith in the present administration and are willing to wait for the improvements.

Ald. Frankhauser said, at the June hearing, that although many basements of homes in Rogers Park are flooded after each rainfall, the proposed system is out of the question because it calls for nine and one-half miles of pipe, whereas two and one-half miles of pipe would be sufficient to meet their needs.

Route of Sewer.

The route of the proposed sewer is as follows: In Magnolia avenue from Lawrence avenue to Argyle street, thence west to Glenwood avenue and in this street from Argyle to Pratt boulevard, west in Pratt boulevard to Ashland avenue and north in this street to Juneway terrace, the northern city limits.

A number of branches are also included in the plan, the most important of which will be in Pratt boulevard, Thorndale and Sherwin avenues. The main sewer is to connect with a sewer in Lawrence avenue running west to the river.

GIVE PRIZES IN RAVINIA GARDEN CLUB'S EXHIBITS

The Ravinia Garden club staged a flower exhibit in the art room of the Ravinia school Wednesday. Prizes were given Ravinia school children for the best watermelon pink zinnias grown from seed supplied by the garden club.

All members of the club exhibited in four competitions: Dahlias, asters, zinnias, and any other flower chosen by each individual member. These were limited to from 3 to 5 flowers in milk bottle containers, and were judged on perfection of bloom. Another exhibit was an arrangement of flowers in members' own artistic containers.

The show was headed by Mrs. E. H. Gleason, assisted by Mrs. C. L. Van Deursen of Deerfield.

Edgewater Bible Class Takes Up Study of Flying

The Cross Bible class of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, Kenmore and Bryn Mawr avenues, has taken up a new line of study—aviation. At the suggestion of Leigh Wesner, a member of the class, the Cross Class Aero squadron has been organized. Mr. Desner has been elected president of the organization, which now has a membership of 100. Two licensed pilots have been engaged to instruct the club members and both practical and theoretical work will be included in the study.

VETS TO CARRY MAMMOTH EAGLE TO CONVENTIONS

Lincoln Sq. Post Masot Caught by Commander.

Lincoln Square post, of the American Legion, is perhaps the only post in the country that has a national bird for a mascot. His name is Pete and he has a wing spread of more than six feet. It is planned to take Pete to the state and national convention, for parade purposes, and the prediction is that he will create quite a stir.

Pete was captured while learning to fly by Commander Millard J. Bilhars, during a fishing trip in northern Minnesota. A livery battle, in which two small Indian boys joined, ensued with Pete's parents.

The bird was exhibited to members of the post at their dugout, 4437 Lincoln avenue, last Friday night.

Northtown post, No. 421, has grown in membership from 154 in 1922 to 300 under the leadership of Commander Miles E. Barry. The post's drum and bugle corps under Harry A. Sewall has been newly outfitted in gold and blue uniforms and will be heard from at the state convention. The post meets in the Prudential building, Devon and Western avenues, and a special invitation is extended to all ex-service men of the community to attend the next session, Sept. 23.

Newly elected officers of Deerfield post, No. 738, were installed last week. They are: Commander, George Briggs; vice commanders, Ralph Peterson, Carl Stadler; finance officer, William Tennerman; adjutant, Dr. A. J. Wurth; sergeant-at-arms, Louis Beckman; chaplain, Philip Scully; service officer, Harry Olendorf; delegates to county council, Dan Hunt and Carl Stadler. The Deerfield post has a 100 per cent membership in the town, and its total of approximately 100 members is believed unique in a town of less than 1,200 population.

The night of Monday, Sept. 30, gives promise of a gala occasion at the Majestic theater when the current bill, "Pleasure Bound," will be a benefit performance for Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, of the American Legion. Tickets are already on sale for the event, either at the box office or from members of the post. The funds thus provided will be used for financing the post's drum and bugle corps on its trip to the national convention at Louisville.

Medille-Tribune post has selected the show, including such stars as Jack, Pearl, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley, Shaw and Lee, as just the sort of vehicle to provide an atmosphere on the stage that will be in keeping with that "out front" on the big benefit night. Adjt. E. F. Classen announces that in tickets it will be a matter of first come, first served.

Bernerd Carlin will be the speaker at tomorrow's meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, at the Hotel Sherman. His topic will be "South American Advertising and Opportunity." On Monday, Sept. 23, Robert Wood of THE TRIBUNE will give the Saga of the 'Untin' Bowler.

Harold A. Taylor post military band, consisting of 75 pieces, will lead the Taylor post delegation at the state convention. The Taylor post band is now one of the largest Legion bands in Cook county. It is the aim of the post to have a 100 piece band, and any Legionnaire is welcome to join. Practice nights are every Thursday at the post clubrooms, 744 North Clark street.

North Shore chapter, No. 26, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, will hold its annual picnic today at St. Paul's park, forest preserve, Morton Grove. The speakers will be Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Christian Paschen, Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway, and J. E. Vanderlip, commander of the chapter. There will be games for young and old. The public, as well as all ex-service men, are extended a cordial invitation to attend.

Mrs. W. Landeck, president of the Woodlawn unit, No. 175; Past Presidents Mrs. W. V. Muttart, Mrs. George E. Macauley, and Mrs. William A. White and Delegates Mrs. E. J. Donnell, Mrs. Francis Ward, and Mrs. A. Christofferson are departing this morning for the state convention.

Belmont Park post, No. 597, will be represented at the state convention by Delegates James J. Buckley and Frank J. Reilly.

Chicago Elevated post, No. 184, will be represented at the state convention in Rock Island by the following delegates: George R. Apfel, commander; E. A. Imhoff, Richard Dwyer, Arthur E. Kullas, adjutant; Frederick Cooke, Clarence Birmingham, and A. Ross.

The delegates and alternates were elected at a special meeting of "L" post held last Tuesday evening in the Edison building, at which the wives and sweethearts of members were guests. An extensive program of entertainment and dancing featured the program. The election of delegates was staged in the nature of a horse race, enlivening the proceedings and providing diversion for the guests.

Arrangements are now being made by "L" post to give a Columbus day party and dance in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 13.

Commander Millard J. Bilhars of Lincoln Square post of the American Legion displays Pete, a giant eagle, which is the post mascot and will accompany its delegations to the national and state conventions.

FAHERTY TO TALK ON WIDENING OF NORTH ASHLAND

CentralLakeViewBody to Act on Parking.

Discussion of the Ashland avenue widening project from all angles by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, is promised to the Central Lake View chamber of commerce at its luncheon meeting tomorrow at Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., 3333 North Marshfield avenue.

Mr. Faherty is to explain how the project was financed in spite of bond issue money and will answer any questions puts to him by the members.

Plan Limit on Parking.

Several other propositions are to be taken up at the meeting. The question of a time limit on parking for the district is a vital one, according to Emery T. Erickson, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Particularly aimed at is the all day parking of merchants and clerks of the neighborhood business houses. Their parked cars, according to Mr. Erickson, leave little room for customers to stop.

Plans will be made also for a uniform fall opening date for all merchants with cooperative announcements and decorations throughout the district to end the confusion of individual opening days. More business is expected to result from the single drive.

Push Lighting Project.

Further plans will be laid for the brighter lighting system project on Lincoln avenue and Belmont, the focal point of the Central Lake View district. Among the plans being considered is the one now in use on 22d street in Berwyn and Cicero.

Special guests at the meeting tomorrow will be Capt. Max Danner of the Damen avenue police station and Ald. William Feigenbutz.

New Principal of De Paul Assumes Post at Opening

The Rev. Joseph Edwards, C. M., took up his duties as principal of De Paul academy when the fall session began Monday. The Rev. Fr. Edwards comes to De Paul from St. Vincent's college, Cape Girardeau, Mo., and succeeded the Rev. James O'Dea, C. M., who resigned at the close of the spring term to accept an instructorship at the Kenrick seminary in St. Louis, Mo. The De Paul academy building has been completely remodeled and redecorated during the summer, including extensive improvements in the chemical laboratory.

BEACH CROWDS DECREASE; HIGH LAKE TO BLAME?

Weather conditions, high water levels, or the attraction of small lakes in the Chicago region are all suggested explanations of the decrease in attendance at Chicago's beaches in spite of the increase in population over last year.

The larger beaches on the north side reported a distinct decrease, not quite made up for by the increase in attendance at street-end beaches, 20 of which were open this summer. The municipal beaches as a whole all over the city showed an attendance decrease from last year of 90,707.

Clarendon Host to 1,505,270.

Clarendon beach kept its record of no drownings and was host to 1,505,270 during the summer. Rogers Park beach welcomed 234,667 and the street end beaches were visited by 717,667.

The attendance at Lincoln Park beaches was conservatively estimated at 1,625,000, divided among Oak street, 1,200,000; Diversey, 300,000; Fullerton, 50,000; and Belmont Harbor, 75,000.

The largest attendance ever recorded at Evanston beaches was handled this summer in spite of the fact that two beaches were closed and the four others were damaged by the storms and high water levels. When the season closed last Sunday 646,436 persons had been counted in attendance.

Record of 1928 Smashed.

This is 128,964 more than the record attendance of last year when a total of 517,472 persons visited the six beaches. Lee street beach led the four with 177,466 and Calvary was next with 165,059. The last week was the best in spite of three days of cold weather when only 800 persons showed up. Labor day week-end crowds raised the total for the week to 95,561.

Awards for meritorious service were made to four of Evanston's junior life guards: Robert McLeah at Calvary; Paul Smithson, Sheridan Square; Jack Walworth at Lee street; and Ed Hanson at Clark street.

LeRoy Hanley was city beach supervisor for the bureau of recreation with Harry Pritchard, Warren Fisher, William Cavode, and George Cook as life guards.

FIGHT WIDENING OF DEARBORN ST. NORTH OF OHIO

Property Owners Oppose Increased Parking.

The board of public improvements at its latest public hearing in the city hall ordered four paving jobs and one new water supply pipe system for the north side. Only one of the projects, the widening and paving of North Dearborn street from West Ohio street to West Chicago avenue, was opposed by property owners who attended the hearing.

The Dearborn street improvement is the third link in the project to improve the street from the river north to Burton place. The contract for the widening and paving of Dearborn street from Chicago avenue to Burton place was recently let to the Barber Asphalt company. The section between the river and Ohio street has been ordered by the board of local improvements and is awaiting confirmation of the County court.

Directed to File Objection.

Property owners opposed to the widening of Dearborn street from Ohio street to Chicago avenue declared that the pavement was now in fair condition and that the widening would only create a parking space for automobiles, to which they objected. President Michael J. Faherty informed the property owners who objected that they had thirty days in which to file a petition. The board estimates the improvement of the section between Ohio street and Chicago avenue will cost $161,000.

The largest paving job ordered at the hearing was a concrete system for the northwest section of Rogers Park. The work will cost approximately $115,000. The streets to be paved are: Fargo avenue, Jerome street and Birchwood avenue from California to Sacramento avenues, and North Francisco avenue from Howard street to Jarvis avenue.

Two Other Paving Projects.

The other two paving jobs are for Rokeby street from Dakin street to Irving Park boulevard and Sherwin avenue from Sheridan road to a line 616 feet east. The pavements will be of asphalt.

The water supply pipe system ordered by the board will be built in North Leavitt street from Devon avenue to Rosemont avenue and from Thome avenue to Granville avenue; in Highland avenue from North Leavitt street to a line 314 feet east, and in Rosemont avenue from a line 106 feet east of Leavitt street to a line 314 feet east of Leavitt street.

LIONS OUTLINE BUSY PROGRAM TO AID CHARITY

Northcenter Yule Events Planned Already.

The fall and holiday program of the Northcenter Lions club was planned at a meeting last week of the officers and directors in the clubrooms, 1940 Irving Park boulevard. According to Clarence C. Wermich, president, the club plans to arrange a program of activities that will surpass the work of last fall, which attracted citywide interest.

The annual Christmas party for all junior patrol boys in the schools of the Northcenter district and the theater party to raise funds for charity work again will be the features of the holiday program. More than 300 school patrolmen were guests of the club last December and each received a gift.

Plan Christmas Baskets.

The theater party and charity boxing show sponsored by the Northcenter Lions club will add money to the basket fund for distribution of food and clothing to the needy of the district on Christmas day. The club plans to hold Lions night programs at the Belle Plaine Athletic club during October, November and December to boost this fund.

The committees who will arrange the details of the various activities were announced yesterday by Mr. Wermich. They are as follows:

Junior patrol boy party: H. C. Witter, chairman; A. C. Wiklund, J. L. Bartholomew, J. A. Buckley, J. F. Friedman, J. J. Herst, G. C. Hass, and J. L. Hensen.

Theater party: E. H. Kogen, chairman; G. W. Blomgren, L. P. Colt, H. A. Friedman, J. E. Glickstein, J. A. Groneman, M. E. Hanna, and V. C. Mittlacher.

Community administration: M. M. Ball, chairman, O. F. Henneberg, H. H. Geismer, J. A. Schillen, F. J. Valentine and S. S. Beaumont.

Other Chairmen Named.

John E. Krauspe has been appointed chairman of the boxing contest committee; John O'Shea is head of the entertainment committee and C. E. Schick is chairman of the finance committee.

The biggest event of the winter will be the jubilee dance to be given in February. D. L. Lilliborg has been named chairman to arrange the program for this entertainment which will be a hard times party, wild west show and masquerade combined with numerous events included between dances.

WEDDING TO UNITE FAMILIES FAMOUS IN ITALIAN COOKERY

If heredity has anything to do with it, the highest art in Italian cookery will flourish in the house of Milani, soon to be founded back in Montecattini, in the old country. Anna Maria, 20 daughter of Italo Pellegrini, 213 East Superior street, originator of the eight course dinner in London 35 years ago, will be wed to Luciano Milani, 22, son of Louis Milani, creator of a famous salad dressing. The wedding will be performed in Montecattini on Sept. 24, where the couple will make their home. The romance started in Italy four years ago when Miss Pellegrini went abroad to school.

RUTH M'CORMICK WILL LECTURE AT LOYOLA THEATER

Group Plans Bigger Season of Plays.

Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick has been engaged to lecture on national issues at the first program of the annual series to be given by the Loyola Community theater, Charles S. Costello, director of the series, announced last week. Mrs. McCormick will open the fall and winter series with her lecture on Tuesday evening, Oct. 8, in the St. Ignatius auditorium, Loyola and Lakewood avenues.

The program of activities and entertainments to be sponsored by the community theater was adopted at a meeting of the board of directors Monday evening. During the last three years, the group of dramatic enthusiasts has been sponsoring productions of dramatic art, concerts and lectures by speakers of national prominence at the Community theater.

Will Enlarge Scope.

With assistance of a new business manager, Clifford G. Ryberg of Omaha, Neb., the directors of the theater have arranged a program of expansion which will give their work, city, state and national scope.

"It is the opinion of our group that a play requiring a great deal of skill, time and effort in its production will be received in other communities with an equal degree of appreciation as it will be at home, Mr. Costello said. "Therefore, we will lend our efforts to other organizations that are interested in our own ideal of cultural development through dramatic and educational entertainment."

List Plays for Year.

Included in the year's program of the Loyola theater are presentations of the following dramatic works: "Little Old New York," "Turn to the Right," "The Purple Mask," "Sun Up" and Father Daniel A. Lord's latest version of the "Passion Play," to be featured during the lenten season.

CATHOLICS GIVE TODAY FOR WORK IN FAR CORNERS

Writer Describes Hardships of Missionaries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

This morning in all churches of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago the annual collection sponsored by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be taken up to aid the needy missions throughout the United States and the world.

The Rev. James J. Horsburg is the diocesan director of the propagation society, and his offices are at 755 North State street. Msgr. William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society, explained at St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets, that $10,000 of the fund collected last year was used by the bishop of Alaska to build two small churches for the Eskimos.

A part of the collection was also used for the constructing of a seminary in Mississippi, where young colored boys are educated for the priesthood. These were two of the items Msgr. O'Brien mentioned, and he said they were typical of hundreds of other expenses.

Missionary's Life a Hard One.

It may be said that missionaries of all religious denominations suffer untold privation in their fields of endeavor.

The writer saw some of these missionaries at work in the practically unexplored sections of South Africa—at least those portions of the dark continent which are unfrequented by white men.

It was last Palm Sunday that the S. S. Duchess of Atholl of the Canadian Pacific line dropped anchor a mile off the shore at Dar-es-Salaam, which prior to the war was the capital of German East Africa. Slavery existed there until 1919. The country is now a British protectorate.

Ravages of the war were in evidence as the trip in small boats was made toward the Dar-es-Salaam harbor in the intense tropical sunshine. Hulks of three old German warships protruded from the sea like falling tombstones in a country graveyard. They had sought protection of the harbor when war was declared and fire from British warships rendered them a twisted mass of helpless fighting machinery.

Capuchinists Hold Service.

Capuchinist fathers were in charge of the economically kept church at Dar-es-Salaam.

The congregation consisted of natives and two colored boys in bare feet assisted as altar boys.

On the altar was a young missionary, Father Joseph Fitzgerald, 32 years old, a Bostonian by birth and a member of the Holy Ghost order. He has been in the missionary field in Africa for three years and his colorless complexion substantiated the fact. Two of his sisters are nuns in a Boston hospital, he told Dr. P. F. Kelleher of Cambridge, Mass., who happened to be a member of the hospital staff and was acquainted with the sisters.

Father Fitzgerald's mission is located forty miles inland from Dar-es-Salaam, in the heart of the big game country. Illness had forced him at the time of our meeting to procure medical aid at the seashore town.

Finds Mohammedanism Popular.

Father Fitzgerald, who said he was content with his work, stated in a joking manner that the first 100 years in the tropics are the hardest. Mohammedanism and other isms, he said, prove attractive religions to natives in Africa because they are able to select what they wish and discard any preachments that would curb their secret and ofttime obnoxious practices.

Natives live in kraals and each man may marry as many wives as he pleases providing he can give the father of each bride four cows. Each wife then has a separate kraal and resides in it with her family.

SEEK $300,000 HERE TO RELIEVE ARABS' VICTIMS

Hadassah to Start Drive Tuesday Night.

Immediate relief for more than 4,500 Jewish families left destitute in Palestine as a result of the recent religious conflict will be sought by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. A campaign to raise $300,000, which is Chicago's quota in a national drive for $2,000,000, will be launched at a meeting of the 3,500 members of the local group Tuesday afternoon at the new Masonic temple, 19 West Randolph street.

MRS. BERTHA READ

According to Miss Pearl Franklin, president of the chapter and first vice president of the national organization, in these critical days, the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine, which was founded by the women's Zionist order in 1922, finds itself taxed to its capacity.

Describe Suffering of People.

Thousands of men, women and children are destitute and lack food, shelter and clothin, she said. Sanitary conditions are bad. Large numbers of people are crowded together, sickness is increasing and epidemics are imminent. She pointed out that the Hadassah medical organization is thus far administering the relief work in all sections of Palestine. Jew, Christian and Arab are being treated by this organization without discrimination as to race or color.

"The great need of the suffering in Palestine impels Hadassah to make a plea for immediate funds in this great emergency," Miss Franklin said. "The generous attitude of the Jewish men and women of Chicago in past emergencies makes us feel that the $300,000, which has been set as our quota, will seem small compared to the actual amount we hope to receive."

Expected to Praise British.

At the meeting Tuesday Mrs. Bertha Read will tell of the events leading up to the present disturbances in Palestine. Resolutions are expected to be passed by the members of the chapter commending the British government for the interest it has taken in regard to the affairs in Palestine, but stating that the British officials in that territory were incompetent and that they should be replaced by able persons in the near future, Miss Franklin said.

Officers of the local organization in addition to Miss Franklin are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Bertha Read, Mrs. Herry Berkman, Mrs. S. H. Soboroff; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Callner; financial secretary, Mrs. George Gelinken; recording secretary, Mrs. Moses B. Levin; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Mesinger; treasurer of the tithe, Mrs. David Brenner; and recorder of tithe, Mrs. E. A. Rubinstein.

Presidents of the Hadassah chapters in the various districts of Chicago are: North shore, Mrs. Harry M. Fisher; south side, Mrs. Martin Marrobin; Lawndale, Mrs. William Weinberg; northwest, Mrs. Harry Schoolman; Albany park, Mrs. Harry Wexler; west suburban, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox; and downtown, Miss Lillian Franklin.

Tannler, gave a luncheon for the officers of the Illinois Colony club and representatives of several other clubs at a luncheon bridge Thursday in the Edgewater Athletic club, Sherwin avenue and the lake. NEIGHBORHOOD STORE SELLS $1 TABLE THAT RIVALS POET'S SHAY

Chicago, Sept. 8.—My best bargain was a kitchen table with drop leaves, purchased in this neighborhood twenty-seven years ago. It was moved eleven times, has been used constantly and is still in good condition. The purchase price was $1. I would not take $5 for it today.

MRS. J. A. BEATTY,
1664 Larrabee street.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 7.—It was quite a few years ago that I wanted a pair of skates pretty badly, but mom couldn't see her way clear to get them for me at the regular $1.75 price. Every day for months I went to the window of a local store to look longingly at a pair of beauties that were on display there. Then one day there was a sale. I wonder if there ever was a happier kid than I when the clerk told me they were all mine for 35 cents.

CHARLES COX,
General Delivery.

LUCKY STOP IN HOME STORE.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Some time ago I saw just the sort of an ensemble I had been wanting in the window of a downtown shop for $18. I did not have that much with me at the time, so the clerk set it aside and I was to call for it the following day. On my way back to the shop I passed a small store in this neighborhood that was holding a clearance sale. Prompted by curiosity, I stopped there. And what do you think? I found identically the same outfit that I was about to purchase for $18 priced at $4.95. Although it was soiled, the cleaning bill was only $2. There really are such things as neighborhood bargains.

FIGHT BERNARD AND CHRISTIANA PAVING MOVES

Property owners on Christiana avenue between Lawrence and Argyle street and on Bernard street between Leland avenue and Ainslie street have filed petitions with the board of local improvements protesting the proposed paving of the two streets. Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th] announced last week. The petitioners declared that benefit derived from the improvement would not justify the cost of the work.

The paving of Lawndale avenue between Lawrence and Carmen avenues has also been stopped for an indefinite time by action of the property owners. Although the improvement project had already been ordered by the board of local improvements and the assessment rolls were before the county court for confirmation, Presi- Michael J. Faherty consented to delay the paving.

Annual Outing Held by Tyrconnel Club

Members of the Tyrconnel club held their annual picnic and outing recently in Milamis woods. The entertainment included athletic contests, games and a musical program. S. O. Doherty, 2333 Bissell avenue, was chairman of the committee in charge and was assisted by James Cunningham, Edward O'Connor, Tom Garvey, John O'Hagan, Thomas Higgins, James Maloney, Bernard Carr, Edward Ryan, and Charles Caldwell.

North Shore Hotel Group Declares War on Noise

The North Shore Hotel association has begun a campaign to eliminate unnecessary noises in the Wilson and Lawrence avenue districts, E. R. Lucas, executive secretary, said last week. Disturbances such as those made by radios, trucks and delivery wagons are to be stopped with the assistance of the police department, he declared.

3,000 TO ATTEND MEETINGS HERE OF SISTERHOOD

P. E. O. Sessions Open in Stevens Tuesday.

With Mrs. John B. Mudge, 5131 Ellis avenue, as general chairman, the biennial convention of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held in Chicago for the first time in thirty years, opening Tuesday morning at the Stevens hotel and continuing until Friday.

Mrs. Mudge will be assisted by the Illinois State chapter composed of 95 individual chapters.

Eight hundred official delegates are expected and in addition many visitors and members from all parts of the United States and Canada, making a total of more than 3,000 to attend the sessions.

Expect Donor of School.

One of the guests expected to attend is Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard, an 82 year old member, who several years ago, turned over to the organization Cottey college, a junior college for girls at Nevada, Mo. The plant, now valued at $350,000, is conducted by P. E. O. and is accredited with the University of Missouri. It is one of the oldest schools for women in the country and is the only self-built college in the world. With an original capital of $2,000; the school was started by Mrs. Cottey alone.

The opening session at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon will be presided over by Mrs. Mabel Frisbee of Bushnell, Ill., state president, who will give the address of welcome. At 2:30 o'clock, a reception will be given in the north ball room for the national and state officers and special guests. At the same time in the assembly room, another reception will be given for the state officers of Illinois and the present and past officers of both Illinois and national organizations.

Banquet Tuesday Evening.

At the formal banquet, Tuesday evening, one of the guests will be the Rev. Charles L. Stafford, Muscatine, Ia., the only surviving husband of one of the founders.

Samuel S. Parks, 4231 Fulton boulevard, who extended the welcome thirty years ago when Chapter A entertained at the national convention, will again welcome the guests on behalf of the members of B. I. L., the organization of the husbands and brother-in-laws of the P. E. O. members. Mrs. Edith M. Wallace of Seattle, vice president will give the response.

The address of the evening will be given by Mrs. Ola B. Miller, Iowa City, Ia., national president and Lorado Taft will also speak, his topic being "Beauty in America."

Wednesday morning and afternoon will be devoted to business and Wednesday evening has been designated as Cottey college evening.

Election on Thursday.

Election of officers will be held Thursday afternoon, and in the evening Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chapter A will speak on "Sweet Experiences." The closing sessions will be held on Friday, when the convention will adjourn for two years.

The chief philanthropy of the P. E. O. Sisterhood consists of a fund of $500,000 which is lent to girls to complete their college education, and 25,000 girls have received help in this way. At the present time 14,000 girls have active accounts with the sisterhood.

D. A. R. Chapter Will Get Its Yearbooks Tomorrow

Distribution of year books to members of the Fort Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is planned at tomorrow's all day meeting of the chapter at the Middlebrook Country club. Mrs. George J. Reeling, 822 Michigan avenue, Evanston, head of the year book committee, announces that the guides will be ready then. Mrs. Elwood Matson is in charge of transportation to the country club and reservations must be made with her today.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Clark Become Parents of Son

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Clark Jr. are receiving congratulations over the arrival, Sept. 3 at the Evanston hospital, of a son. Mrs. Clark, formerly Miss Virginia Bowers, was "Miss Little Rock" in the Atlantic City beauty pageant three years ago, and sponsor for the formidable Alabama football warriors when she was a sophomore at the University of Alabama. Since their marriage, something over a year ago, the Gordon Clarks have resided at the Orrington in Evanston.

Deerfield Parent-Teacher Group to Meet Sept. 20

The year's first meeting of the Deerfield Parent-Teacher association will be held Sept. 20, and will be a tea and get-together for teachers and parents. Officers of the club for the year are: President, Mrs. Edwin Allen Wood; vice president, Mrs. Lewis E. Ashman; secretary, Mrs. Alexander William; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Edward Piper.

TAMES PIGEONS

Ernie Kelley, Lincoln park policeman stationed at Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, has succeeded, after months of effort, in training pigeons of the vicinity to eat peanuts from his hand. With less conscious effort he has endeared himself to school children and grown-ups who pass his corner daily.

BLESS CROSSES FOR LEADERS IN EPISCOPAL WORK

Awards to 9 Announced at St. Stephen's.

An event of international significance was the blessing at St. Stephen's Episcopal church, 3533 North Albany avenue, yesterday of nine crosses of honor of the Order of Sangreal by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, pastor. The crosses represent yearly awards to nine outstanding church leaders for distinguished and unselfish effort on behalf of the church and humanity.

Following the blessing of the crosses, formal presentations will be made to the various recipients at services in their respective locations. The lord bishop of London has consented to present the cross awarded to William Carlisle, prebendary of St. Paul's cathedral, London, and founder of the church army. Prebendary Carlisle was awarded the honor because "by the organization he created the call is preached in highways and byways, the lost are reclaimed and the fallen raised."

Honor Missionary Leader.

Others for whom crosses were blessed are: Arthur Selden Lloyd, bishop suffragan of New York, because "of his long service as executive head of missionary work and unselfish humility of his life."

John McKim, missionary bishop of Tokio, Japan, because "of his thirty-six years of faithful toil as bishop in a difficult field in which he has helped to bind the world together around the foot of the cross."

Philip de Loris, priest of Lake Andres, S. D., because "he heard the voice of Christ while the pagan chief of an Indian tribe and for thirty-three years of service in the priesthood has not ceased to set forth the glory of the love of God."

B. M. Spurr, archdeacon, Moundsville, W. Va., because "in an obscure and difficult field he has called into being a Christian community."

John Williams, priest of St. Philip's church, Omaha, Neb., because for thirty years he has ministered to his own Negro race with loyal devotion and has set the example of a saintly life that men of all races are glad to acknowledge as following in the footsteps of Christ."

Dora Vannix of Moe hospital, Sioux Falls, S. D., because "although for many years confined to a wheeled chair, she has built up, in the Church League of the Isolated, a link of fellowship among far scattered souls."

Award for Arctic Physician.

Grafton Burke, physician of the missionary district of Alaska, because "in the desolate arctic wilderness he has saved lives in the name of Christ, sparing neither labor nor himself to protect those under his care."

Mary Veronica, sister of the Community of St. Mary, because "she renounced great wealth to devote her life in perfect self-sacrifice to the master's call, and after having attained the generalship of her order, accepted retirement into obscurity with humility."

The Order of Sangreal was founded at St. Stephen's church, known as the Church of Poets. The Rev. Mr. Tucker is grand master of the order.

North Shore Illinae Give Tea for I. U. Freshmen

The North Shore Illinae gave a tea yesterday afternoon for the freshmen girls entering the University of Illinois this week. The affair was held in the garden of Mrs. Charles Henry Dennis, 1225 Michigan avenue, Evanston. Miss Alicve Howe, 10233 Wood street, president of the group; Mrs. Merle J. Trees, 9921 Winchester avenue, and Mrs. Charles S. Pillsbury, 10415 Seeley avenue, also members of the board of directors, sponsored the tea.

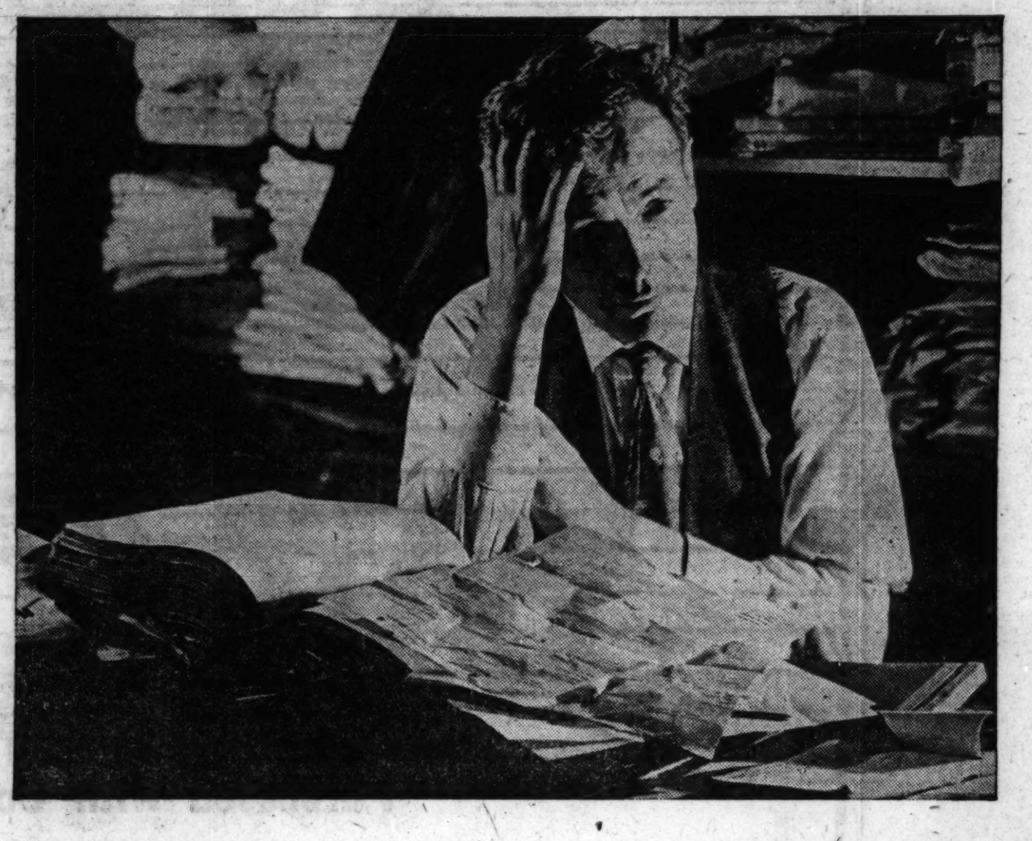
Getting Ahead?



Or Will the End of the Month Tell the Same Old Story?

Is your business any better off today than it was a year ago at this time? Are you taking full advantage of the increased buying power of the people of your side of the city? Are you getting your share of the additional millions in salaries and wages that they have to spend this year?

BUSINESS in Chicago and all over America is rolling up one of the best years in history. Sales have been booming for months. The chance for profit rarely has been so favorable.

Yet in the face of this peak prosperity, many merchants and retailers are still plugging along at the same old pace. Sales for them come just as hard as ever. Bigger profits, as always, are "just around the corner." The golden clangor of the market is at its loudest. But many merchants haven't even heard it.

What about your business? Are you satisfied that it is returning you all you can expect of it—that it is giving you a square deal for all the long hours and hard work you invest in it? Do you know, moreover, what many merchants in your line—with no greater capital nor any other major advantage—are doing to cash in on the 1929 flood of buying power?

Get the Facts—FREE!

If you are not satisfied that your business is growing, expanding, profiting, as it should in these prosperous times, here is your chance to do something about it. The Chicago Tribune has developed a new sales plan. Merchants and retailers in nearly every line have investigated it, tested it, and demonstrated conclusively what it can do.

Many of these merchants—men in your kind of business—have increased their sales all the way from 50% to 100% and even more, by using the up-to-date sales methods that this plan involves. The results have amazed even the hardest-boiled business men.

32 Pages of Help

The Tribune would like to place before you the complete details of this profit-making sales method. All the facts, all the information you naturally would want to know before deciding, have been set forth in a 32-page book. The title of this fascinating book is "Bigger Profits."

The Chicago Tribune will send a copy of "Bigger Profits" to every who will take the trouble to ask for it.

Evanston Library Exhibit to Open in October.

Students at the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts started work Monday with the opening of their school year as the interior decoration of the room set aside for the new Art Center in the Evanston public library building, Church street and Orrington avenue. The Art Center was organized during the summer through the efforts of several clubs and individuals interested in having a permanent collection of books and exhibits for the city and gained impetus through the nucleus offered in the Julia Ferguson Art Study collection, honoring the memory of a veteran Evanston school teacher who died recently.

Paintings, music, drama, sculpture, architecture and allied arts will be represented at the center as its plans are carried through. Besides the Julia Ferguson collection, a group of 1,000 books relating to art now in the general library will be placed in the Art Center when it is completed.

Plan Special Programs.

The rooms are to be in the basement and will be decorated by the students under the direction of Carl Schaeffer, director of the school, as a practical problem. Decorations probably will be completed by the second week in October and a special week program is planned.

Several evenings of open house to all the community make up the program. One night will be civic night with Mayor Charles H. Bartlett and city officials as guests. The plan and purposes of the center will be outlined by Mrs. Harrison B. Riley, who is chairman of the organizing committee. On succeeding nights authors and books, musicians, the Evanston Historical society, which has rooms across the hall from the center, and an exhibition gathered by Miss Lena M. McCauley, will be featured.

Officers of Center.

Other organizing officers of the Art Center in addition to Mrs. Riley are: First vice chairman, Mrs. Frank L. Richardson, who heads the art seminar of the University Guild; second vice chairman, Miss Esther Somerville; secretary, Mrs. Peter Bassoe; treasurer, Charles M. Cartwright, president of the library board; publicity chairman, Mrs. A. W. Moseley; gifts committee chairman, Mrs. Georg E. Tomlinson; program committee chairman, Miss Lena M. McCauley.

Contributions to the Art center are being sought from schools and clubs as well as from individuals. Three classes of membership are being offered and gifts of collections or individual books or pieces are being welcomed.

Mr. Linn said he has also asked the board of local improvements to start proceedings for new pavements on Carmen avenue and Argyle street at points adjacent to the north branch of the river between Ridge and Central Park avenues.

FADA presents . .
VIBRA-CONTROL
. . the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the

1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

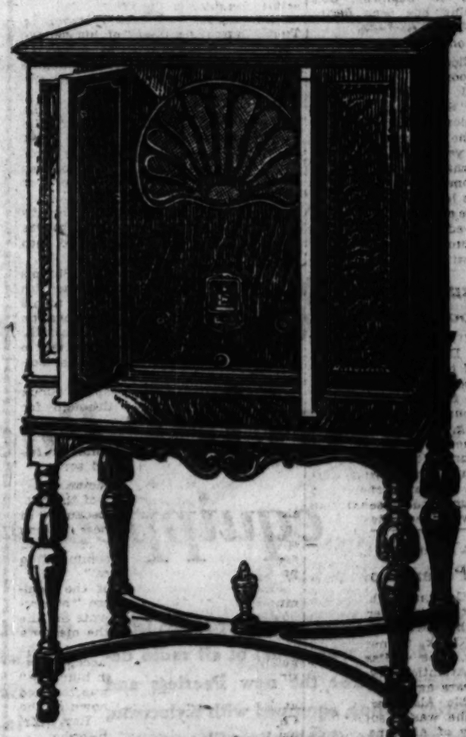
The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.



VIBRA-CONTROL FADA 35
Uses screen grid and new 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification, with Fada Pre-Selector for sharpest selectivity. Fada full-power dynamic speaker. Equipped for phonograph attachment.
HIGHBOY $245 LESS TUBES
Fada radios are priced from $99.50 to $675.

"Because Fada output is necessarily limited, we suggest an immediate hearing of this revolutionary step in musical reproduction at your nearest Fada dealer."

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

ORGANIZE FIGHT ON TREE MOTHS IN RAVENSWOOD

Association Acts Because City Lacks Funds.

Officers of the Ravenswood Improvement association last week announced that the board of governors of the organization has undertaken a new activity—that of assisting all residents of the Ravenswood district in protecting shade trees, which have recently been attacked by the tussock moth.

According to E. W. Miles, president of the organization, one of the oldest and most active in the north side, the decision to assume the guardianship of the community's trees was made after the department of forestry of the city announced that it would not have funds with which to carry on the work of spraying trees for several years.

City Fund Depleted.

Officials of the Ravenswood association recently requested the city to take steps towards stopping the spread of the insect that is endangering a majority of the neighborhood's shade trees. They were informed that the department had been compelled to return $9,000 of the $10,000 appropriated by the city council for this work. Consequently it was unable to assist the association in fighting the tussock moth.

The association, which is starting its twenty-ninth year of improvement work in Ravenswood, plans to protect the shade trees by educating the residents in the methods of tree preservation. It is collecting all available pamphlets and other data provided by the city department and the federal government, and is distributing such information to the people of the community.

Secretary Directs Work.

Benjamin S. Herbert, 5140 North Kilbourn avenue, who is serving his seventeenth consecutive term as secretary of the association, is in charge of the tree preservation campaign, and is prepared to give detailed instructions on the means of halting the spread of the moth to all residents of Ravenswood.

The first meeting of the association following the summer vacation was held Monday evening at 4520 North Hermitage avenue. Other officers are: Vice president, Daniel G. Ramsay, and treasurer, John W. Hackett.

Hibbard Elementary P.-T. Body Holds First Meeting

Other officers who were elected at the annual meeting in April are: vice president, Mrs. George Gettelsohn; recording secretary, Mrs. Julius Savit; financial secretary, Mrs. Daniel Becker, and treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Golbus.

AMATEUR PHOTOGS, HERE'S A CHANCE TO PROVE YOUR SKILL

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

The first meeting of the parent-teacher group will be Friday at the school. Officers of the association are: President, Mrs. Austin Seguin, 2314 Harrison street; vice president, Mrs. Ernest Wieder; secretary, Mrs. Peter Jans; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Krecji; social chairman, Mrs. William Bartlett.

The Courier—From $85 to $165
(Without tubes)
The new Peerless cabinets are triumphs of the interior decorator's art. The receiving set has an automatic volume control which prevents the "Blasting in" of nearby stations. It has a single dial. It operates from any electric light socket and is fully shielded. It uses nine tubes, including three screen grid tubes.

The Peerless—From $195 to $600
(Without tubes)
The 8-tube, A. C. set used in the Courier Radio operates direct from your electric light socket. It is fully shielded. You need never bother about interference. Only one dial is used for tuning. It's as simple to tune in the distant stations as to set your watch. And the Courier uses three screen grid tubes.

5,000 ATTEND DEDICATION OF GOMPERS PARK

Ex-Secretary W. B. Wilson Is Chief Speaker.

More than 5,000 residents of Albany Park and vicinity attended the ceremonies at the dedication of the new Samuel Gompers park and community house, last Sunday at Foster and Lowell avenues. The program was arranged by the commissioners of the Albany Park district who have created the new park and was featured by the presence of numerous state and national labor leaders who were in part responsible for the new recreation center.

The principal address at the exercises was delivered by William B. Wilson, secretary of labor during the administration of President Wilson. Other guests included State Senator Theodore Steinert, State Representatives Edwin B. Bederman and Rena Elred and Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th].

Labor Federation Active.

Ernst Buehler, attorney for the Albany Park board, was master of ceremonies. Officials of the Chicago Federation of Labor assisted the park commissioners in planning and conducting the program. Among the leaders of the labor federation who were present were John Fitzpatrick, president, and E. N. Nockels, secretary.

A musical program presented by George Konchar and his band and Miss Suzanna Franz, solist, was given between the speeches. The Rev. William McInnes, pastor of Mayfair Presbyterian church, gave the invocation and the flag raising ceremony was conducted by the fife and drum corps of Palmer school, 5031 North Kenneth avenue.

Fourth Park for District.

The new Gompers park is the fourth created in the Albany Park district which extends from Kedzie to Cicero avenues and Lawrence to Devon avenues. The other parks are: Eugene Field park, Foster and Avers avenues; Kiwanis park, Christiana and Carmen avenues, and Matson park, Foster and Kostner avenues.

The commissioners of the park district are: Henry Schwartz, president, Ferdinand H. Niehing, secretary, Edwin R. Manasse, Fred W. Lee, and C. August Youngquist. The park officials last summer announced the completion of a new $160,000 administration building and field house in Eugene Field park.

All members and friends are invited Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. H. Blum, Mrs. G. Goldman, and Mrs. I. E. Harris. Mrs. H. R. Schiff is president of the auxiliary.

Budlong P.-T. A. to Meet Wednesday Afternoon

The first fall meeting of the P.-T. A. of Budlong school will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the school auditorium, 2701 West Foster avenue. The board met at the home of Mrs. Cal W. Anderson, president of the association, on Sept. 7, to discuss plans for the ensuing term.

Carnival Held to Pay for Moving of Church

A street carnival was held last week by Our Lady of Lourdes parish, Ashland and Leland avenues, to raise funds to pay for moving the church building, and the erection of a parish house. The church was recently moved across Ashland avenue, to aid in the widening of the street.

FOUR SCREEN-GRID TUBES ◆ ◆ ◆ 8 TUBES IN ALL

INTEGRAL PERFECTION

Receiver, audio amplifier, current supply and speaker combined in one sturdy power plant. Three stages of screen-grid tuned radio frequency amplification and a tuned screen-grid power detector give the utmost in sensitivity. Uniform selectivity over entire wave band accomplished by four sharply tuned circuits, doubly shielded from each other and staggered to secure flat-top resonance curve and retain side bands.

New system of volume control regulates stepless amplification. Screen-grid power detector gives linear detection. Resistance coupled first audio stage and two of the new UX-245 power tubes in push-pull feeding the Cutting Dynamic Speaker, produce both the unusual high quality of reproduction and the giant-like volume.

BROADCASTING TODAY ENTERS ITS NINTH YEAR

It's a Far Cry to Early Programs, However.

Radio broadcasting today, will enter upon its ninth year. It has been such a far cry from the crystal set which was so popular in those early days to the modern electric receiver, which represents the latest in engineering ingenuity, that it is hard to realize that only eight years have elapsed since the first radio broadcasting station was licensed.

The first program broadcasting license in this country was granted to station WBZ of the Westinghouse company at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 1921. The second license was issued to WBY, of the Radio Corporation of America, at Rochelle, N. Y. Four days later, the third was granted to WJZ, then operated by the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., and the fourth to KDKA, of the Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, 1921.

To KDKA, however, goes the distinction of being the pioneer station inasmuch as it broadcast programs experimentally long before it or the other stations were granted governmental licenses.

Broadcasting Makes History.

Since that time the history of broadcasting has virtually been the history of our country. Most of the great events which have transpired have been given directly to the people through this medium. In reviewing these occasions one runs across:

Harding-Cox presidential returns announced by Station KDKA, Nov. 4, 1920.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight, July 4, 1921.

Beginning of broadcasting of world series baseball games in October, 1921.

Funeral service of former President Harding, August, 1923.

Blow by Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas," knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo grounds in New York city, Sept. 14, 1923, caught by ringside microphone and heard a thousand miles away.

Last public appearance of former President Wilson at the Armistice day celebration in the Arlington National cemetery, Nov. 11, 1923.

Wilson's Funeral Service.

Funeral services of former President Woodrow Wilson from Washington cathedral, February, 1924.

Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1924.

Program incident to the inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, March 4, 1925.

Reception to Col. Charles Lindbergh in Washington, D. C., June 11, 1927, and in New York two days later, broke all previous hookup records with 50 stations in the net.

On Sunday, July 24, 1927, this country joined with a Canadian broadcast for the first time and again all records were shattered—53 stations simultaneously transmitting a religious program.

During the ceremonies incident to the opening of the International Peace bridge at Buffalo, the voice of the Prince of Wales was broadcast in the United States, Aug. 7, 1927.

In June, 1928, full meetings of the Republican and Democratic national conventions were transmitted from Kansas City and Houston, Texas, respectively. National coverage was maintained by two huge networks for several days.

On March 4, 1929, a complete description of the inaugural of President Herbert Hoover from the time the party left the Hoover home in S street until the parade was completed late in the afternoon, was given the nation by two networks of stations.

COMPILE LIST OF 3,500 WORLD RADIO STATIONS

There are approximately 3,500 radio stations above 6,000 kilocycles in the world at present, according to a complete list just compiled by G. Colby Blackwell of the engineering staff of the radio commission. Of this number there are between 1,500 and 1,600 of such stations, including the numerous experimental transmitters, in the United States. Monthly supplements to the list will be issued.

The information was obtained in the case of the United States from the latest records of the commission, while the foreign stations were recorded from list No. 5 of the frequencies published by the International Bureau of the Telegraph union at Berne, Switzerland.

Radio to Aid Flyers on Washington-Miami Route

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Fifteen powerful radio stations, to be operated for the benefit of airplane pilots, will be constructed by the federal government between Washington and Miami, and Houston, it was stated recently by George D. Barr, assistant airways engineer of the U. S. department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

A GREAT expense in radio advertising—over the chains—is the cost of the telephone lines between the stations. This has been circumvented by some concerns who make phonograph records of a half hour's program, including the music, the announcements and the advertising, and then ship the records to the stations in selected parts of the country. Out of that has come the question as to whether good music, recorded on disks, can be picked up in clear and full toned fashion from the phonograph appartus for transmission into the air; the chain salesmen, who send their music from New York over the telephone wires direct to the transmitters in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, etc., say it cannot. But, no matter——

Now an organization has been formed which will record programs on sound films, like the talking movies. The films will record sound only, not pictures, to be broadcast in English and translated into other languages, and then shipped to radio stations over the world. The officials claim, "Our device makes recordings of programs perfect in tone and quality, eliminating blasts and imperfections which often occur when the natural voice is used through a microphone. The reproducer can be plugged into the station's control amplifier. When the film is started the program will go out on the air. No wires are used in this network. Each film will be released to the broadcasters on certain dates.

THE NEWEST gag among the broadcasters is to announce that Mr. So-and-So had a wad of world series tickets, if the public will only write to him. We recall how we were plagued before the Army and Navy game in 1926, when Messrs. Carrell and Gosden used to announce every night over the air that we had a load of tickets we were anxious to get rid of, and what our home telephone number was, and that it was best to call us about seven in the morning!

THE DEPARTMENT of commerce states that two hundred million radio sets would be required to provide radio facilities for all the people in the world within range of broadcasting stations

That's just fourteen less than there are in our building every forenoon when we're trying to sleep.

A NEW collegiate talkie called "Sophomore" give the radio announcers another rap. Graham MacNamee, in particular, gets the raps, and undeservedly, we think.

A football announcer named McAfee is heard describing the gridiron conflict: "Gee, folks, you ought to be here. . . . Hanford has the ball. . . . No, just a minute—no—yes—Hanford has the ball—no, beg pardon, Colton has the ball—no, it is Hanford's ball after all—well, we all make mistakes, don't we? That's why they put erasers on the end of pencils."

MANY RADIO devotees ask, "How does one break into radio?" and "How did you happen to get into it?"

Well, almost every one breaks in accidentally or casually, and we did, too.

"What did you do before you got into radio?" some will inquire. Well, during our third year at Northwestern, in Evanston, we were contributing quips and verse almost daily to the "Line" on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE, then conducted by the late Bert Leston Taylor—"B. L. T." Our burning ambition was to run a newspaper column, as we were doing on the college paper. We tried to "make the Line" every day, and we darned near did.

We frittered away most of our college hours rehearsing plays, singing in shows, composing sketches for the magazines and in other extra curriculum pursuits. Our frequent contributions to the paper gained us an admission to the city editor, just at the time when we knew there was an opening for a campus correspondent. So for many weeks we turned in yarns of campus engagements and frolics and initiations. Then we braced the city ed. for a part time job as a regular reporter, and for a whole year, while attending classes in the forenoon, we performed all the clumsy and comical duties of the fuzzy cub reporter. Seeking to wander farther afield, we took up football assignments in the fall, under the direction of that grand old gent, Harvey T. Woodruff, who was then sports editor.

And so on—writing book reviews for Burton Rascoe, then literary editor of THE TRIBUNE—jumping into the advertising department to write ads and start the paper's house organ, "The Trib," in 1919—and still going to classes in Evanston. Our year was '20.

One day we happened to review in the paper a small book of comedy written by J. P. McEvoy and illustrated by Frank King. McEvoy was editor of a publishing house turning out greeting cards and junvenile books. He was later to write "The Potters" for this newspaper, and King was just starting "Gasoline Alley." Nowadays you know McEvoy as author of "Show Girl" in Liberty and librettist of the Ziegfeld Follies in recent years.

He offered us a post, writing and editing the thousands of verses and jingles you read on Christmas, birthday and Mother's day greeting cards. Because we had doted for so long on his work as a columnist in the papers, we leaped at the chance. After three years of pleasant association with McEvoy and illuminating contacts in the publishing and theatrical worlds, we left to start a column of humor and verse on the sports pages of another

Chicago morning newspaper. Another year rolled by.

In 1921 and 1922 we were hearing of people who owned these gadgets called radios. A tinkering lad put earphones on our head one summer evening and we heard a likable announcer—we know not who it was—introducing piano selections from a loop department store. We put down the earphones and never listened to a radio set again. We gave radio and its accelerating progress no more thought than we would to astral chemistry.

The summer of 1923 came along. W. K. Hollander, the publicity chief of a local chain of theaters, commissioned us to write a weekly show for the radio, welding together and introducing all of the talent present that week in the local theater—including the complete symphonoy orchestra, an hour long broadcast over Station WMAQ direct from the theater. That, so far as we know, was the first "continuity" written for the air in Chicago. We put as much effort in composing the scenario as we would into the Follies; many of the shows were done entirely in verse. But, after the shows were written, there was nobody to recite them in the rôle of announcer. So Bill spoofed us into the job of announcer.

It fascinated us from the start. The mystery of it, the dramatics, the mail from the listeners and the wide audience it gave to the material of an aspiring columnist, all made us hungry for more. We jumped in, feet first, then. Station WLS was opening with a great fanfare, in the spring of 1924, and we were the announcer. Then came W-G-N, in the same spring, and we moved to the new TRIBUNE station. "Radio Announcer Bares Life Secrets."

Were it not for the fact that it would sound silly, we would remark that there is no more engrossing and engaging business in the world. It is a job in which we revel, in its infinite variety. Every queer activity we ever engaged in we now find helps us in radio—college dramatics and glee club goings-on, newspaper reporting, sports writing, column conducting, book reviewing, children's book publishing and advertising soliciting. In the first three years we never took a day off. There was a time when we handled all the broadcasts from nine in the morning until after midnight. And many's the night we slept in the studio.

It's been alluring work and great fun. It has taken us from coast to coast—to the choicest football games every week in the fall; to the world series ball games; to the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] in Tennessee, in 1925; to a half dozen Kentucky Derbies and Indianapolis auto races; to Calvin Coolidge's office in the White House and the floor of the senate chamber in Washington; to the Republican and Democratic conventions; to ringsides and vaudeville stages and movietone studios.

But this story's getting too long—Toodle-OO!

COUNTESS TO BE N. B. C. ENTRY IN RADIO CONTEST

Seeks "Most Beautiful Artist" Title.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting company, in the radio world's fair "most beautiful feminine radio artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF, New York. She is a soprano.

To Radio from Stage.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera company and other broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months, it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of New Moon, a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries from Many Stations.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from several hundred radio stations in many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the radio world's fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the entire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

U. S. EXPERT TO STUDY AVIATION'S NEED OF RADIO

That the radio commission has taken an active interest in the problem of applying radio communication to aviation is indicated in a letter sent to Gerald C. Gross, commission engineer, just before he sailed, together with Commissioner Charles McK. Saltzman, for The Hague to attend the conference of the international consulting technical committee on radio communications.

The commission directed the engineer to make an inspection of the leading aviation fields in Europe at the close of The Hague parley "for the purpose of making an engineering study of current European pratices with respect to radio communication for aviation."

[A STATEMENT BY ALFRED H. GREBE...]

Many of These Modern Features Are Exclusive With the New Grebe

Screen Grid Tubes—The use of which results in sensitivity never before attained. Weak signals from distant stations are amplified clearly and distinctly.

New Control for New Power—But in the New Grebe this added power is controlled. Overlapping of stations is eliminated . . . strays are kept out. You get the full tone value made possible by that exclusive Grebe feature—the Equalized Band Pass Filter.

Single Audio Stage Means No Hum—Grebe reception is so strong . . . so pure in tonal characteristics . . . that only a single audio stage is needed. Hum and microphonic disturbances are eliminated.

Large Diameter Speaker . . . an Original Grebe Idea—Full tone range is effectively accomplished by special large diameter electrodynamic speaker . . . so successfully introduced by Grebe.

For Superb Reproduction of Phonograph Records—You can play your favorite phonograph records by a mere turn of the tuning dial. This automatically connects the electric phonograph pick-up with its specially wound transformer.

Cabinets Designed for Lasting Beauty and Acoustic Perfection—The New Grebe is obtainable in a wide choice of selected walnut and mahogany lowboy and highboy models. Furniture of characteristic beauty and dignity . . . and expertly designed for its acoustic properties. In a word, Grebe craftsmanship.

In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.

When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."

At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.

I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three chamcteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

To that small but discriminating group who are interested in the finer things of life, we present the new Screen-Grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

● . . . a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument . . . a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on prevision . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

CHURCH OFFERS NEW APPEAL TO CHANGED PUBLIC

Social Center Built for Newcomers.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When a great population shift changed the neighborhood, the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, Jackson boulevard and Western avenue, refused either to abandon its efforts or sweep along with the outgoing tide. Instead, it adapted itself to the altered conditions by erecting an $80,000 community house next door.

Suggestion of the community house was made by the Rev. Charles R. Oakley at the fiftieth anniversary of the church in 1923. Three years later the building, equipped for school, social and recreational activities, was dedicated.

Few of the former members now reside in the neighborhood. Many of them, however, return from outlying points to attend the services.

Represented in the activities of the church today are the children of parents of seventeen different nationalities. Recently, there has been a migration into the neighborhood of families from the mountains of Tennessee.

Oldest Denomination in City.

The church is said to be the oldest Disciples of Christ church still in existence in Chicago. It dates back to 1873, when, as Central Christian church, it was organized by the Rev. George G. Mullins with 35 members.

The first meeting place was a little chapel of the Jefferson Park Presbyterian church at Throop and Adams streets. After the church had been going about a year the Rev. Knowles Shaw, evangelist, conducted a series of services.

Among the charter members, long connected with the church, were Mrs. D. M. Clark, Edwin Stewart, M., A. Harris, Mrs. Maggie Veit, Mrs. Thomas Cowan and Mr and Mrs. A. H. Stover.

Mrs. Cowan is still living in California.

Mrs. George C. Abbott, who began her work with the church a year after its organization, is having that work continued by her three daughters —Edith, Eva and Lillie. The latter, who was for some years a missionary in China, returned to Chicago two years ago at the time of troubles in that country and is now teaching in the city schools.

David A. Byerlee is the living link of the church in Africa.

Many Locations in Early Years.

From the little Presbyterian chapel, the society moved to a small building at Harrison and Paulina streets and later held its meetings in Campbell hall. Later services were held in a storeroom on Van Buren street and afterward in a wooden church building at Warren avenue and Damen avenue.

Miss Ima Clarke, daughter of one of the earliest members, S. J. Clarke, recalls the services that were held in the wooden building that was moved to lots on Western avenue, near Congress street.

"The building," she relates, "was seated with opera chairs, the choir occupying a platform one step higher than the pulpit. There was also a raised platform at the back of the room in an alcove, and it was there the 'young folks' of that period sat, sometimes listening not too attentively to the sermon."

The Rev. A. J. White served the church between 1876 and 1878. Following his term, the church received the gratuitous services of numerous ministers. In 1882, the Rev. John W. Allen was induced to take charge. During his fourteen years of ministry, the church entered upon a period of steady and substantial growth and the various organizations developed under his guidance.

Worshipped in Basement.

During the Rev. Mr. Allen's pastorate, the church, in 1891, purchased its lots on Jackson boulevard and erected a basement which served as a place of worship until 1900 when the present upper structure was completed. The Rev. J. H. O. Smith was pastor between 1895 and 1897. He was followed by the Rev. Bruce Brown.

In 1901, by a vote of the West Side church and the Union Christian church, an amalgamation was effected and the name Jackson Boulevard Church of Christ was taken. The Rev. Roland A. Nichols became pastor of the combined congregations. He was followed by the Rev. Lloyd Darsie, the Rev. Parker Stockdale and the Rev. Austin Hunter. The Rev. Mr. Hunter died in 1921 while he was still pastor. He was succeeded in 1922 by the present pastor, the Rev. Charles R. Oakley.

The Rev. Mr. Oakley, born in Cincinnati and educated at Lexington, Ky., had filled a number of pastorates in Ohio before coming to Chicago. In studying conditions, he decided upon the necessity of the community house. He is a great believer in the west side and enthusiastic over the new developments at hand. His home, across the street from the church, is of the old-fashioned sort so far as the size of the family is concerned, despite the fact that the house is a typical city two-flat. There are five sons and four daughters. The older ones are beginning to leave the hearthside now, but there are returns for happy reunions.

Receives 1,000 New Members.

The church has felt the stimulus of the Rev. Mr. Oakley's systematic methods, his executive ability, and his consecration to his work. During his pastorate, he has received more than 1,800 members into the church.

Recreational activities now are of the modern sort—Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls and bowling and baseball teams. They have taken the place of the soap bubbles parties and socials that were a part of the good fellowship of the old days. The Centennial of the church will be celebrated in 1932.

CANVASS HOMES IN EDISON PARK MEMBER DRIVE

Improvement Association Campaign Is On.

Every home in Edison Park is being canvassed in an extensive membership campaign being staged by the United Edison Park Improvement association. Not until the entire community is reached will the drive come to a close. At a meeting held last Tuesday evening at Schneider's hall, Edison Park, plans for the continuation of the drive were discussed. Between twenty and thirty newcomers have been added to the roster since the beginning of the campaign several days ago, and officers of the association hope to get several more recruits. To facilitate the work the committee in charge has separated the district into several sections, each of which has been assigned to certain members.

The annual dues of members of the association are also being collected at this time. Officials hope to procure sufficient funds to provide for snow plowing during the wintry months. By keeping the thoroughfares of the district clear they expect to obviate any possible decrease in business because of snowbanks.

Ramsay Heads Committee.

The chairman of the membership committee which is conducting the campaign is James A. Ramsay. Members who are canvassing the business section are A. O. Prochno, E. J. Limberger, J. V. Arnhorst, N. E. Nelson and F. W. Scherer.

Those who have been assigned to the residential districts include J. F. Voss, J. W. Wirt, J. J. Sullivan, J. B. Champion, Charles Last, George P. Killeen, James M. Neill, Jonas Voss, W. Riediger, P. Wolkow, K. Haugen, William Beck, W. E. Schneider, P. M. Ketter, O. E. Brown, Alexander Sauter, O. A. Brendel, Frank Charvat, Edward Heintz, Alfred Engelhardt, L. A. McKinney, R. J. Wilson, M. J. Village Makes Civic Festival of Real Estate Men's Outing

When Wheaton presented the key to the city to members of the Chicago Real Estate board last Wednesday, it was something more than a perfunctory proceeding. The smile of friendliness and good fellowship accompanying the official act on the part of Mayor M. J. Pittsford was symbolic of the community's attitude throughout a day during which the weather acted as if it had been especially ordered for the program of varied outdoor sports.

"I've been to several of these annual outings," remarked Frank Mason in the midst of his song entertainment at the evening banquet, "and we've had a better time today than we ever had before."

The assertion met with such hearty applause that Wheaton was made to realize that her efforts in "putting on a real party" had not been in vain.

Four Foot Golden Key.

Mayor Pittsford's key to the city was golden in appearance and some four feet in length. Fashioned by Charles Schatz and Nick Stumpf, it had been on exhibition in the window of the Gary-Wheaton bank for several days preceding the event.

Acceptance of the key was made by E. S. Judd, in behalf of President Albert W. Swayne of the Chicago Real Estate board, who, arriving later, made his speech at the evening banquet.

Just as Wheaton, represented by its mayor and A. M. Jens, were on the job, so, also, was William C. Regelin, chairman of committees for the Real Estate board. Mr. Regelin soon found himself engaged in a task similar to that of the manager of a ten ring circus.

The late morning hour was spent in a sightseeing tour of Wheaton points of interest—the college, the court house, water works, county jail, swimming pool, and the home of descendants of President John Quincy Adams. At noon a barbecue luncheon was served in the city park. Then followed what was announced as the "Battle of the Half Century."

Squatter vs. Redskins.

The battle, held on "Red Grange" field, a ball game of three innings between the Streeterville, Squatters and the Fort Dearborn Redskins, was played in appropriate costumes. Back and forth, the conflict waged, coming to a climax in a tie score of five to five.

As a result of the decision, Chairman Regelin announced that the prize cup would pass into joint ownership. the Squatters getting the deed to one side and the Redskins to the other. Next year, the same players, their heirs or assigns, will have a chance to compete for the trophy again.

On the Redskin team were Capt. Henry T. Carr, Frank G. Hoyne, Henry A. Knott, Edward S. Judd, Nelson Thomasson, J. Soule Warterfield, Earle G. Krumrine, Henry G. Zander, Joseph K. Brittain, and J. L. Keesner.

The Squatter lineup included Capt. Murray Wolbach, James E. Bistor, Buckingham Chandler, W. B. Frankenstein, Paul Steinbrecher, Leo L. Hogan, Joseph B. Hall, Carl Zander, W. G. Kuehnle, and Fred Clark.

Polo Game Spectacular.

The polo game, however, aside from the fact that the Realtors, starting with five goals by handicap, defeated the Wheatons, by a score of 14 to 7, presented a spectacle that was outstanding as the outing's feature.

The North Shore team, captained by Frank Bering, played under the name of the Realtors for the special game, while the Oakbrook team under Captain Paul Butler represented Wheaton.

In the evening, the 500 real estate men came in from the various fields of sport for the banquet at St. Michael's school at which Charles W. Hadley, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, acted as toastmaster.

The musical program, provided throughout the day by the Wheaton High school band, was herewith taken up by the Chicago Rapid Transit band. Entertaining in cabaret fashion, came the Sunset Lines quartet, the Hungry Five and the Neapolitan Four. A carnival spirit pervaded the banquet tables while outside, along Wheaton's business street, there was a Mardi Gras parade, Boy Scout drills and dancing.

Address by Mayor.

Invocation at the banquet was offered by the Rev. Francis J. Epstein. Mayor Pittsford, the first speaker, said to the guests:

"This morning we had the pleasure of welcoming you. Now it is a pleasure to realize that you have had a fine day. Wheaton is proud to have received and entertained you. It is our hope that we will see you often in the future."

Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the U. S. shipping board, introduced as "the father of good roads in Du Page county," spoke of the topic of the World's Fair now taking his interest.

"We are," he said, "trying to do something different in 1933 from what was done at the fair in '93 or since. Among the features we are working on will be a temple of science, showing the century of progress through scientific methods. We are to have the great jurists and law makers of the world here to consider ways to improve law in government.

"Truth with Enthusiasm."

"Rumors that we are not going to have the fair should be stopped. If we don't keep on boosting instead of knocking we will never get any place. Where is there a city that has come up so fast? Let's stop and think of what we have done and let's talk about that. Let's tell the truth with enthusiasm, and all the silly, bad and imaginary things would soon be forgotten by the people outside."

President Swayne of the Real Estate board stressed the importance of organization among real estate men. Others who made brief talks were Henry Zander, president of the national association, and Ralph Field, former president of the Illinois Real Estate association. Mr. Field said that Rockford this year was planning a "real entertainment and convention."

Members of Reception Groups.

The reception committees for the day were composed of the following:

For Wheaton—Mayor Pittsford, chairman; E. N. Hurley, Charles W. Hadley, W. E. Gary, Col. William J. Sutherland, Nick W. Lies, E. L. Gates, D. O. Dunbar, A. L. Perrottet, E. E. Critchfield, E. A. Kelly, D. C. Hull, H. S. Pettis, William McFryer, O. C. Gettinger, Dr. E. E. Lampert, Daniel Garrity, Hugo Schmidt, C. V. Gregory, A. C. Hoy, N. E. Matter, and A. L. Webster.

For the Chicago Real Estate board —William A. Bond, chairman; George F. Nixon, Henry A. Knott, Frank G. Hoyne, Edward S. Judd, Albert H. Wetten, John F. Wallace, Frederick S. Oliver, Edward N. Willoughby, Callistus S. Ennis, George H. Taylor, Paul Steinbrecher, Valentine H. Surghnor, Perkins S. Bass, Adolph F. Kramer, John R. Magill, Harry Goldstine, Henry G. Zander, S. Charles Iverson, Joseph K. Brittain, John P. Hooker, and Albert W. Swayne.

Firemen Spoil White Trousers.

A happening at the outing, though accepted by many visitors as just a part of the program, was by no means part of the program, was by no means according to schedule, as members of the Wheaton volunteer fire department, gazing sadly at their ruined white duck trousers, can testify.

Previous to Memorial day, the department received brand new uniforms, including the white duck trousers, and Wednesday night's festivities offered an opportunity for their display. While the parade was forming, however, an honest-to-goodness alarm came in from 303 Seminary street, and what to do but respond?

A big home at the Seminary street address was discovered to be in danger of total destruction and the flames required an hour's fighting. The white duck trousers presented a sorry picture when the smoke had cleared away.

The parade finally started with Chief J. H. Kampp, as marshal of the fire department, leading, but only No. 3 chemical truck reached the scene of band music and confetti throwing.

Ye ed is in receipt of a communication from T. W. Barker, editor of the Midwest club magazine. It is an elegant map of Elmhurst and in the upper right corner is a half tone cut of a snug brick home with a doorway that bespeaks a latchstring ever out. In the lower left corner we glean:

Bud and Beulah and Bruce the First
Have moved 'way out to West Elmhurst.
The house is very plainly new,
'Tis right on Hawthorne avenue—
The phone is Elmhurst 2108J.
We moved in the place the first of May.

For a long time Dr. Eugene I. Payne, the popular dentist of 4530 North Monticello avenue, has been respectfully but firmly declining the importunities of his friend, Mars P. Bishop, the yarns salesman, to join him on a piscatorial expedition to northern Michigan. Mars finally left without him. A few days later the mailman brought a parcel. It contained a fine brook trout. In its mouth was a note reading: "Dear Doc: I have 27 brothers in northern Michigan waiting for you. The boat leaves tonight at 10:45. Just got a wire from my uncle. He says there will be toothaches and dentists to fix them long after you are planted and the sod is green. Sincerely, Brook Trout."

WE learn that E. Arthur Gardner paid Logan Square a visit after an absence of fourteen years. Art has sure led a colorful existence since adventuring forth into the big world. For three months he tried running a 130 acre farm down in Indiana. Then he and the wife and four children packed up and went to St. Louis, where Art, who is a clever machinist, is now employed making bread slicing machines. Good luck, Art.

CALVARY CHURCH TO OBSERVE 61ST BIRTHDAY TODAY

Parish Established in 1868.

The sixty-first anniversary of the founding of Calvary Episcopal church, 3158 West Monroe street, near Kedzie, will be celebrated today with special services in charge of the Rev. Francis J. Tromp, rector.

THE REV. FRANCIS J. TROMP.

The program of services marking the occasion includes solemn high mass at 11 o'clock; tea and reception at 6 this evening, and evensong and benediction at 7 o'clock. The Rev. William C. Downer will assist the rector in the services.

Calvary church was established in a frame building at Warren avenue and Oakley boulevard in 1868. During its 61 year the church has occupied three other location: the second, a brick structure at Western avenue and Monroe street; the third, a store building on Madison, near Kedzie, and the present location. The present church was erected in 1896, and was consecrated last year. The parish house was erected in 1913.

List of Rectors.

The first rector of Calvary church was the Rev. A. W. Snyder, who served from 1868 to 1872. He was succeeded by the Rev. Luther Pardee, still living in Chicago and now the senior priest in point of service in the diocese. Dean Pardee was rector for twelve years, from 1874 to 1886. The Rev. William H. Moore was the third rector, serving from 1886 to 1892. Canon Moore was responsible for the founding of several Episcopal churches in outlying sections of the city, and a son of his, the Rev. G. G. Moore, is now rector of the Church of the Advent, Logan Square.

In 1892 the Rev. William B. Hamilton became the rector and served for eighteen years, until 1910. From 1910 to 1916 the Rev. George M. Babcock was in charge and he was succeeded by the Rev. H. R. Neely, who died early this year.

The Rev. Mr. Tromp Leads Now.

The Rev. Mr. Tromp, present rector, came to the parish from St. Ambrose's church, Chicago Heights. Previously he had been on the staff of the Cathedral Shelter, Washington boulevard and Peoria street, pastor of Christ church, River Forest, and curate of St. Augustine's church, Wilmette.

Numerous improvements in the parish property have been made during the last year, and the parish is looking forward to marked growth under direction of the new rector.

BOMBINGS STIR CIVIC WRATH OF QUIET WHEATON

Charge Officials Refuse to Act.

Wheaton has fallen prey to bombers, labor racketeers, unusually active burglars and divers similar low folk.

Five bombs have shaken the village of 8,000 inhabitants, three of them in the last year. With the touching off of the fifth bomb last week there was also touched off a blaze of indignation which has vented itself on State's Attorney Chauncey Reed and a number of other public officials.

Prominent business men pointed out that the bombing rate per capita in Wheaton is eleven times as bad as in Chicago.

Since Jan. 1 of this year, according to a report by the chief of police, Charles E. Sullivan, there have been 24 larcenies, 11 burglaries and one robbery, a total of 36. In the whole year ending April 30, the list of these crimes totaled only 22.

"Cat" Burglar Works by Day.

Included among the larcenies is a series of housebreakings perpetrated in daylight by a "cat" burglar. Although this culprit entered many Wheaton homes in daylight, and often while residents were at home, the police have been unable to lay hold of him.

Business men of the village, faced with the prospect of racketeering and crime getting organized and solidly entrenched in Wheaton, have been considering steps to force action on the part of State's Attorney Reed and the sheriff's and police forces.

The five bombings, as listed by Chief Sullivan, who was unable to supply dates of the outrages, are as follows:

The residence of Andrew P. Steck, Wheaton real estate man, being built on South Washington street.

The residence of G. B. Christy under construction at 922 Santa Rosa avenue.

Road concrete mixer in Aurora and Elgin railroad yards.

A tractor used in grading roads, blown up on North Summit street.

Wehling Brothers' automobile agency, on Front street, to which a new addition was being built.

All Nonunion Labor Jobs.

In each case, it was learned, nonunion labor was being used on the bombed buildings and machines. The Wehling bomb, exploded last Sept. 4, damaged four automobiles, shattered a wall in the garage and broke many windows. The work on the addition was being done by Edward Gatzke, a contractor living in West Chicago, who had employed nonunion building tradesmen. Charles Wehling, head of the automobile company, has always been a union sympathizer, and his main building was erected two years ago entirely by union labor.

State's Attorney Reed, it is charged, has made no investigation of this bombing or any of the other bombings. He has not questioned Wehling or Gatzke, it was learned, nor has he summoned local labor officials. Chief Sullivan was even unprepared to state the bomb had been set by labor racketeers, he asserted.

Mrs. Christy, whose home on Santa Rosa avenue was bombed, stated yesterday that her husband had made two efforts to obtain agreements with State's Attorney Reed, leaving his name and mission each time, but that each time Reed had been "not in" and that he had failed to reply to the messages.

Calls Complaints Futile.

Among the business leaders interviewed on the bomb outrages was Justice Frank E. Herrick, secretary of the Wheaton Business Man's association.

"Wheaton business men know it would be useless to complain," he said. "The labor crowd in Du Page county is powerful and business men believe that no steps would be taken against these labor racketeers."

Oscar C. Gettinger, superintendent of the Aurora and Elgin line at Wheaton and president of the Lions club, asserted he would present the matter before the members of his organization.

"Something drastic must be done to halt this crime wave before it brings all the lawlessness of Cook county into our midst," Mr. Gettinger said.

Labor Leaders in Politics.

Mrs. L. B. Wood, chairman of the education committee of the Du Page County Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, declared that the failure to enforce the law against labor racketeers was well known in the county. Labor leaders had set themselves up as political bosses, she asserted.

Mrs. Minnie H. Prince of Downers Grove, chairman of the women's organization, said State's Attorney Reed will be discussed at their next meeting.

"There is no doubt," Mrs. Prince said, "that the apathy of some of the Wheaton and Du Page county officials is leading us into a situation which, if uncurbed, will bring more racketeers and resort keepers and their kind, to prey upon our community."

Churchmen also are aroused. The Rev. James Durand of Gary Methodist Episcopal church said a few thugs in the village were threatening the peace of its great majority of law abiding and peace loving citizens.

"The state's attorney and the police must drive out these few criminals at once unless they choose to flaunt public opinion," Mr. Durand said.

"Terrible State," Pastor Says.

The Rev. W. S. Insley of the First Presbyterian church declared Wheaton was in a "terrible state of affairs" and that a remedy must be sought immediately.

Some of the merchants of Wheaton also protested against the demands of labor organizers that advertising space in labor directories and programs be bought at expensive rates. Hints that they had better keep on good terms

PARKS COUNCIL TO HEAR REASONS FOR 'L' HIGHWAY

Project Attacked in Talk to Garfield Club.

New developments this week in the question of the proposed super-highway for the west side included an announcement by Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west park commissioners, that he will address the west parks advisory council and safety commission tomorrow night on the question, and an attack on the project by Manuel Goldberger, executive secretary of the West Side Through Streets association, before a meeting of the Garfield Park club last Wednesday noon.

Dr. Robertson said yesterday that an up-to-date analysis and report of all factors connected with the highway will be given at the advisory council meeting, which is to be held at the Midwest Athletic club. Objections heretofore advanced against the plan will also be taken up. Several prominent speakers are scheduled to appear.

Marshals Benefits of Project.

Several benefits to be derived from the building of the highway are to be outlined by Dr. Robertson. He intends to point out that it will bring about automatic grade separations of 76 street intersections between Canal street and the western city limits; that it will render the west side accessible to residents of the north and the south sections of the city and the suburbs, that the highway will result in a return of money expended in its construction as happened following the substitution of the Michigan avenue link bridge for the old Rush street bridge; and that accidents will be largely eliminated owing to the abolishing of one level intersections along the proposed route.

Furthermore, Dr. Robertson intends to show that sufficient property will be acquired at the east and west terminals of the highway to have a large plaza for traffic to ascend and descend until such time as the city, the Lincoln park district, Oak Park and other interested communities may carry it on to connect with other development contemplated by the Chicago plan commission. On the east end it is intended to connect with a quadrangle which will permit drivers to go south on Canal street or east to the outer drive, then south to their destinations, and on the north side to connect with the outer drive along the lake front built and paid for by the Lincoln park district.

Urges Putting Streets First.

In his speech before the Garfield Park club at the Midwest Athletic club Mr. Goldberger stated that the first need of the west side is an improved street system. He pointed out that while a large number of east and west streets run the entire distance across the city there is only one north and south thoroughfare, Western avenue, traveling the whole distance. For years, he declared, business associations of the west side have insisted that the north and south streets are more important than the east and west.

The north and south streets, according to Mr. Goldberger, are the thoroughfares in need of the attention of west side residents. A large number of these are broken up into sections, resulting in traffic congestion and forcing detours by motorists.

"What good is the highway," he asked, "if to get to the ramps we must contend with congestion along the north and south streets? Before we begin any major improvements we should finish Ogden avenue, Ashland avenue, Washington boulevard and Roosevelt road."

Mr. Goldberger also questioned placing the total cost of the highway at $20,000,000. He further asserted that it would provide a free right of way for motor bus lines and that it would create new traffic problems.

Edward Moore, deputy commissioner of public works, also spoke in opposition to the highway. The meeting was presided over by George T. Madigan, president of the club.

Samuel Insull Jr. will be the chief speaker at the next meeting of the club Wednesday at the Midwest Athletic club.

with the labor element were made while the advertising was being peddled, it was charged.

Three Du Page county labor agents, caught by the sheriff's forces in possession of three stench bombs, have been freed on small bonds, while the case has been delayed since last May, it was revealed. Edward Costello, Harold J. Cavanaugh, and Harry W. Cupp of Wheaton were arrested by two deputy sheriffs as they came to pick up the stench bombs. The bombs had been hidden in a prairie near Ogden avenue on the Naperville road, and when the deputies chanced upon the cache they waited until the three men came to pick them up.

At the Circuit clerk's office yesterday it was stated that State's Attorney Reed, while moving other criminal cases to trial, has kept the labor racketeers' case off the call. The men are at liberty on $1,000 bonds.

MAURICE WALSH, WEST SIDER 35 YEARS, IS DEAD

NEIGHBORHOOD STORE IS CALLED BEST FOR HUNTER OF BARGAINS

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—I'm for the neighborhood store when it comes to getting a good bargain. Some time ago I bought high grade varnish for $1 a gallon at 16th street east of Crawford. It was a cash and carry sale, of course. The floors, woodwork, etc., that I varnished had luster, smoothness, and a lasting finish. It was the kind of varnish that decorators charge $8 for when itemizing their bills.

R. CARLSON,
4121 West Jackson boulevard.

A BARGAIN IN CLEANING.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Not long ago our neighborhood merchants were making a blue ribbon drive. What I consider an unusual bargain was the cleaning of five silk and wool dresses—some pleated—for the price of $5.25. Insurance was included.

LORETTA M. COONEY,
3845 Wilcox street.

$10 PURSE FOR ONLY $1.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—I was shopping for a purse the other day and chanced to notice in one of our local stores a counter with purses reduced to $1. Among them I found a beautiful brown envelope bag with a very odd clasp, as pretty a one as I have ever seen. When I brought my purse home I discovered that it was marked $10. That is one bargain I am not likely to forget.

A. BERRENNER,
901 North Hamlin avenue.

BOYS' SUITS CUT TWO-THIRDS.

Cicero, Ill., Sept. 5.—This spring when the days began to grow warmer I went to one of our nearby stores to do some shopping for summer apparel. Among the articles I purchased were four washable suits made of Jean cloth for my 5 year old son. They were slightly soiled and had been marked down to one-third their original price. The sale price was 49 cents each. They proved to be an excellent bargain.

A part of the proposed structure would be set aside for the use of the city police department.

LYONS COLLEGE ENROLLS 71 FOR ITS FIRST YEAR

Principal Tells of Unique Method of Teaching.

With the opening of the Lyons Township High school this week a new junior college enters the educational world, the Lyons Township Junior college, with an enrollment of 71 students, drawn from an area of sixteen square miles encircling La Grange. The curriculum consists of regular college subjects, which will be limited to first year work during the next two semesters. Starting September, 1930, the college will teach the full two year course.

The Lyons Township High school building is divided into four sections, the first of which was erected in 1889, the second in 1899, the third in 1923, and the newest addition in 1928, which contains administration offices, a community room seating 200, a boys' gymnasium, and an auditorium seating 1,834. The newest section has more than doubled the capacity of the entire building, which seats 2,500 students.

"Our classes are conducted on the laboratory plan," explained Dr. G. W. Willett, principal of the school for the last seven years.

"This laboratory research type of study we find most thorough. Instead of having the student recite what he has studied previously, we direct his mind in the path of new research, and when the class period ends he has added new facts to his store of knowledge.

Hour and Half for Study.

"Our classes run sixty minute periods. Students are expected to do about an hour and a half of outside preparation each day and spend two study periods during school hours.

"We use the most up to date methods of teaching. Yes, we have tried the intelligence test, but the subject is still so big that it is impossible to discuss it without being vague. Our results give the norm for groups rather than individuals.

"The students at this school show a strong tendency toward college preparatory work. They lean away from industrial training, and the number of students who take such courses as stenography and bookkeeping decreases yearly. More than 75 per cent go to college after graduation.

"One of the highest honors accorded our students goes to the boy or girl with the highest scholarship average, who has his or her name engraved on a huge scholarship loving cup, which is the property of the school," added Dr. Willett.

"Athletics form an important part of the school's curriculum. From one-third to one-half of the students remain after school hours to take part in athletic activities. The two football teams go in for both interscholastic and intermural games in the fall.

Clubs, Plays, and Music.

"Club work plays a prominent part in the activities of the student body. From twenty to forty clubs, varying from time to time, exist during the school year—social, literary, and dramatic. The Lion, weekly newspaper, is published by the class in journalism. The school, Annual, averaging 140 pages, is published at the close of each year.

"Three plays are given each year by the senior, junior, and sophomore classes in a splendid auditorium, with a seating capacity of 1,834.

"The school has an orchestra of seventy-five pieces and two bands of fifty-five and forty-five members respectively. The musicians are given regular credit for their work. Clarence Dissinger is instrumental director and Albert Youngblood director of voice.

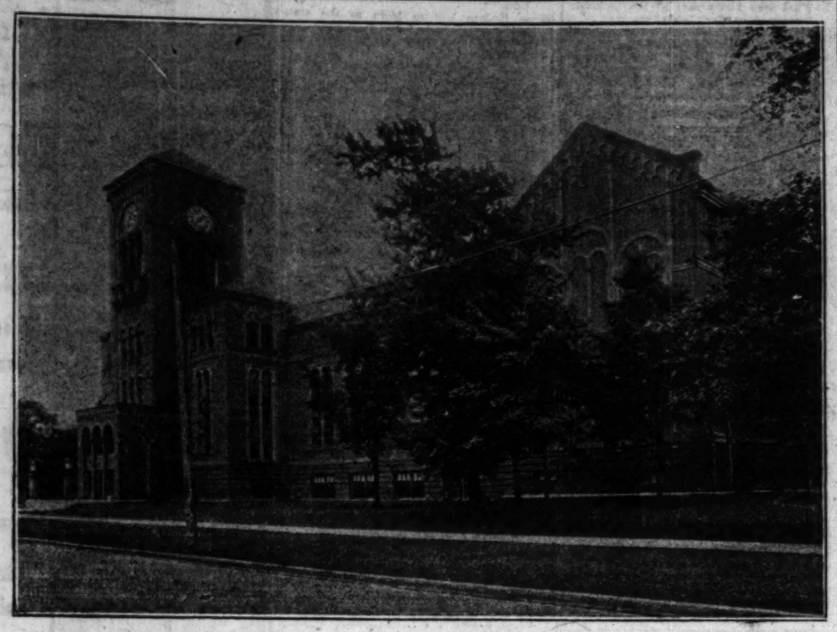
"The books in the school library total approximately 6,000, covering all subjects of high school work. A special gift of 1,500 volumes was made by the family of the late Supt. Cooley, who donated his personal library as a memorial. Supt. Cooley was principal of the Lyons Township High school for many years. Emily Ethell is librarian.

"A special bookshop for students is conducted by the school, under the supervision of a faculty member. The money is divided among student activities and in selecting additional books for the library."

Hostess to Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. William Osterman acted as hostess at the last meeting of the Ladies Aid society of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Junior College Course Added at Lyons High



With a plant enlarged and modernized by a recent addition, Lyons Township High school, La Grange, this year is offering one year of college work. A second year of college work will be added next fall.

CATHOLICS GIVE TODAY FOR WORK IN FAR CORNERS

Writer Tells Hardships of Missionaries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

This morning in all churches of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago the annual collection sponsored by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be taken up to aid the needy missions throughout the United States and the world.

The Rev. James J. Horsburg is the diocesan director of the propagation society, and his offices are at 755 North State street. Msgr. William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society, explained at St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets, that $10,000 of the fund collected last year was used by the bishop of Alaska to build two small churches for the Eskimos.

A part of the collection was also used for the constructing of a seminary in Mississippi, where young colored boys are educated for the priesthood. These were two of the items Msgr. O'Brien mentioned, and he said they were typical of hundreds of other expenses.

Missionary's Life a Hard One.

It may be said that missionaries of all religious denominations suffer untold privation in their fields of endeavor.

The writer saw some of these missionaries at work in the practically unexplored sections of South Africa—at least those portions of the dark continent which are unfrequented by white men.

It was last Palm Sunday that the S. S. Duchess of Atholl of the Canadian Pacific line dropped anchor a mile off the shore at Dar-es-Salaam, which prior to the war was the capital of German East Africa. Slavery existed there until 1919. The country is now a British protectorate.

Ravages of the war were in evidence as the trip in small boats was made toward the Dar-es-Salaam harbor in the intense tropical sunshine

Capuchinists Hold Service.

Capuchinist fathers were in charge of the economically kept church at Dar-es-Salaam.

The congregation consisted of natives and two colored boys in bare feet assisted as altar boys.

On the altar was a young missionary, Father Joseph Fitzgerald, 32 years old, a Bostonian by birth and a member of the Holy Ghost order. He has been in the missionary field in Africa for three years and his colorless complexion substantiated the fact. Two of his sisters are nuns in a Boston hospital, he told Dr. P. F. Kelleher of Cambridge, Mass., who happened to be a member of the hospital staff and was acquainted with the sisters.

Father Fitzgerald's mission is located forty miles inland from Dar-es-Salaam, in the heart of the big game country. Illness had forced him at the time of our meeting to procure medical aid at the seashore town.

Finds Mohammedanism Popular.

Father Fitzgerald, who said he was content with his work, stated in a joking manner that the first 100 years in the tropics are the hardest. Mohammedanism and other isms, he said, prove attractive religions to natives in Africa because they are able to select what they wish and discard any preachments that would curb their secret and ofttime obnoxious practices.

Edison Park Woman's Club Meeting Called for Oct. 1

Members of the Edison Park Woman's club will hold a meeting at Schneider's hall, 6713 Olmstead avenue, on Tuesday, Oct. 1. The president of the club is Mrs. Richard Weidenmiller.

In celebration of the second anniversary of the Kelvyn Grove Improvement association, residents of the community will hold an outing and basket picnic today in Caldwell woods, near the end of the Milwaukee avenue street car line.

The program will include two baseball games, horseshoe contests for the members of the women's auxiliary, games and stunts for men, women, boys and girls. Prizes will be given to the winners in each event.

The officers of the organization are: President, Walter Goralski; vice president, Edward Flanigan; secretary, Dr. Curtis A. Hawes; treasurer, Robert S. Brookbanks; sergeant at arms, Walter Hansen; trustees, Charles Johnson, C. M. Christiensen and James Dickenson.

Itasca to Vote on Fire Engine Bonds on Oct. 5

An ordinance providing for the issuance of $7,000 of fire equipment bonds will be submitted to the voters of Itasca at a special election to be held on Oct. 5. The ordinance points out the need for a fire engine and other equipment.

HIGH SCHOOLS BREAK RECORDS IN ENROLLMENT

Maine Has Increase of 240 Over Last Year.

Enrollment statistics were given out last week at several high schools on the northwest side and in the northwest suburbs. Classes at several schools began last week, while at others the autumn semester started a week earlier.

The Maine Township High school, which serves Des Plaines and Park Ridge, has a registration this year of 493 boys and 472 girls. This number exceeds last year's enrollment by 240 students. A new school building is to be opened sometime during the winter. Classes started last Monday.

Holy Trinity Enrolls 250.

There are 250 students, all boys, at Holy Trinity High school, 1443 West Division street. The freshmen number 75. Most of the students here are of Polish ancestry. The term began Sept. 3.

A capacity enrollment took place last Monday at St. Patrick's academy, Des Plaines. This school, conducted by the Sisters of Mercy, is now in its second year.

Leyden Community High school, Franklin Park, has 230 students this year, including about 115 freshmen. The registration here is also in excess of last year, when the total reached 160.

SEEK $300,000 HERE TO RELIEVE ARABS' VICTIMS

Hadassah to Start Drive Tuesday Night.

Immediate relief for more than 4,500 Jewish families left destitute in Palestine as a result of the recent religious conflict will be sought by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. A campaign to raise $300,000, which is Chicago's quota in a national drive for $2,000,000, will be launched at a meeting of the 3,500 members of the local group Tuesday afternoon at the new Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street.

MRS. BERTHA READ

According to Miss Pearl Franklin, president of the chapter and first vice president of the national organization, in these critical days the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine, which was founded by the women's Zionist order in 1922, finds itself taxed to its capacity.

Describes Suffering of People.

Thousands of men, women and children are destitute and lack food, shelter, and clothing, she said. Sanitary conditions are bad. Large numbers of people are crowded together, sickness is increasing and epidemics are imminent. She pointed out that the Hadassah medical organization is thus far administering the relief work in all sections of Palestine. Jew, Christian and Arab are being treated by this organization without discrimination as to race or color.

"The great need of the suffering in Palestine impels Hadassah to make a plea for immediate funds in this great emergency," Miss Franklin said. "The generous attitude of the Jewish men and women of Chicago in past emergencies makes us feel that the $300,000 which has been set as our quota will seem small compared to the actual amount we hope to receive."

Expected to Praise British.

At the meeting Tuesday Mrs. Bertha Read will tell of the events leading up to the present disturbances in Palestine. Resolutions are expected to be passed by the members of the chapter commending the British government for the interest it has taken in regard to the affairs in Palestine, but stating that the British officials in that territory were incompetent and that they should be replaced by able persons in the near future, Miss Franklin said.

Officers of the local organization in addition to Miss Franklin are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Bertha Read, Mrs. Harry Berkman, Mrs. S. H. Soboroff; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Callner; financial secretary, Mrs. George Golinken; recording secretary, Mrs. Moses B. Levin; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Measinger; treasurer of the tithe, Mrs. David Brenner; and recorder of tithe, Mrs. E. A. Rubenstein.

Presidents of the Hadassah chapters in the various districts of Chicago are: North shore, Mrs. Harry M. Fisher; south side, Mrs. Martin Marvmont; Lawndale, Mrs. William Weinberg; northwest, Mrs. Harry Schoolman; Albany Park, Mrs. Harry Wexler; west suburban, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox; and downtown, Miss Lillian Franklin.

FRESHMAN DAY TOMORROW AT ROSARY COLLEGE

First School Session to Be Thursday.

Rosary college will devote tomorrow and Tuesday of its opening week to this year's freshmen, who are expected to make the largest first year class in the history of the school, according to advance registration indications. Five preliminary tests will be given students entering for the first time and further plans for the freshmen include instructions in the use of the library and in note taking, meeting with faculty advisers, and a woodland picnic Tuesday evening.

Out of town students will arrive tomorrow and all day students are expected to report Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Tests Tuesday and Wednesday.

The examinations to be given Tuesday and Wednesday include the psychological test issued by the American council on education, physical tests, and three achievement tests, one in French and the others in English and religion respectively. The French and English tests will follow the forms issued by Columbia university and the religious test has been compiled by the Rosary college faculty. At an informal gathering Wednesday evening new girls will meet their student advisers appointed from the junior and senior classes by the dean.

School Sessions Thursday.

The school sessions will begin Thursday morning with religious services in the chapel at 9 o'clock. Following this the first class meetings will be held for assignments, so that the complete academic program may be in operation on Friday.

Both old and new girls will be guests in the gymnasium Friday night at a theatrical program sponsored by the student dramatic organizations. The climax of the opening week will be the faculty reception to the students Saturday night in the ballroom.

FADA presents.. VIBRA-CONTROL ..the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the

1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

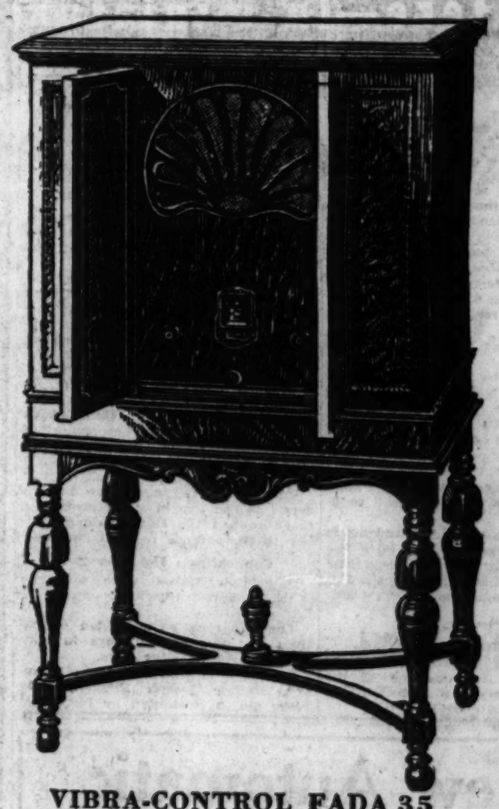
The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.



VIBRA-CONTROL FADA 35

Uses screen grid and new 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification, with Fada Pre-Selector for sharpest selectivity. Fada full-power dynamic speaker. Equipped for phonograph attachment.

HIGHBOY $245 LESS TUBES

Fada radios are priced from $99.50 to $675.

"Because Fada output is necessarily limited, we suggest an immediate hearing of this revolutionary step in musical reproduction at your nearest Fada dealer."

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

3,000 TO ATTEND MEETINGS HERE OF SISTERHOOD

P. E. O. Sessions Open in Stevens Tuesday.

With Mrs John B. Mudge, 5131 Ellis avenue, as general chairman, the biennial convention of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held in Chicago for the first time in thirty years, opening Tuesday morning at the Stevens hotel and continuing until Friday.

Mrs. Mudge will be assisted by the Illinois State chapter composed of 95 individual chapters.

Eight hundred official delegates are expected and in addition many visitors and members from all parts of the United States and Canada, making a total of more than 3,000 to attend the sessions.

Expect Donor of School.

One of the guests expected to attend is Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard, an 81 year old member, who several years ago, turned over to the organization Cottey college, a junior college for girls at Nevada, Mo. The plant, now valued at $350,000, is conducted by P. E. O. and is accredited with the University of Missouri. It is one of the oldest schools for women in the country and is the only self-built college in the world. With an original capital of $3,000, the school was started by Mrs. Cottey alone.

The opening session at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon will be presided over by Mrs. Mabel Frisbee of Bushnell, Ill., state president, who will give the address of welcome.

Banquet Tuesday Evening.

At the formal banquet, Tuesday evening, one of the guests will be the Rev. Charles L. Stafford, Muscatine, Ia., the only surviving husband of one of the founders

Samuel S. Parks, 4231 Fulton boulevard, who extended the welcome thirty years ago when Chapter A entertained at the national convention, will again welcome the guests on behalf of the members of B. I. L., the organization of the husbands and brothers-in-laws of the P. E. O. members.

The address of the evening will be given by Mrs. Ola B. Miller, Iowa City, Ia., national president and Lorado Taft will also speak, his topic being "Beauty in America."

Election on Thursday.

Election of officers will be held Thursday afternoon, and in the evening Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chapter A will speak on "Sweet Experiences." The closing sessions will be held on Friday, when the convention will adjourn for two years.

The chief philanthropy of the P. E. O. Sisterhood consists of a fund of $500,000 which is lent to girls to complete their college education, and 25,000 girls have received help in this way. At the present time 14,000 girls have active accounts with the sisterhood.

CHANGE FRIDAY 13TH PARTY TO THURSDAY AS 13 ARE INVITED

Ruth Gloria Solovey of 1951½ Humboldt boulevard was 10 years old Friday. Her mamma said she might have a birthday party, but when Ruth submitted the list of her friends to be invited Mrs. Solovey discovered that Ruth's teacher, Miss Helen Gallegan of Richard Yates school, made the thirteenth guest. Neither Ruth nor her mamma is superstitious, but thirteen guests on Friday, the 13th, might be tempting the fates. So the party was held Thursday.

AMATEUR PHOTOGS, HERE'S A CHANCE TO PROVE YOUR SKILL

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Northwest Park Singing Classes to Be Continued

Music by Ancient Instruments.

The program for the outing will include playing the Irish pipes, violin, flute, singing in Gaelic, story telling, singing in English, competitions in dancing for men, women, boys and girls, competitions in running, jumping, weight throwing, football and tug-of-war.

A prize will be awarded to the largest family on the grounds at the festival and medals will be presented to the winner of each event on the program, while a second prize will be awarded in each contest in which three or more persons participate.

MEDILL-TRIBUNE VETS TO STAGE BENEFIT IN LOOP

Seek to Send Drum Corps to Louisville.

The night of Monday, Sept. 30, gives promise of a gala occasion at the Majestice theater when the current bill, "Pleasure Bound," will be a benefit performance for Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, of the American Legion. Tickets are already on sale for the event, either at the box office or from members of the post. The funds thus provided will be used for financing the post's drum and bugle corps on its trip to the national convention at Louisville.

Medille-Tribune post has selected the show, including such stars as Jack Pearl, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley, Shaw and Lee, as just the sort of vehicle to provide an atmosphere on the stage that will be in keeping with that "out front" on the big benefit night. Adjt. E. F. Classen announces that in tickets it will be a matter of first come, first served.

New officers of Portage Park post, No. 183, will be installed tomorrow evening. J. Leslie Hansen is the new post commander and other new officers are: Senior vice commander, Carl Anderson; junior vice commander, Ed Johnson; finance officer, Elmer C. Stewart; five directors to serve two year terms, Jack Keating, William M. Johnson, past commander; George Schelkopf, Robert P. Well, and C. A. Hill, and director for one year, Jack Whitford.

Walter F. Carlson, retiring commander, and George Schelkopf attend the state convention in Rock Island Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. Marjorie Schelkopf, incoming president, and Mrs. Josephine Freeman, outgoing president of the Portage Park unit of the auxiliary, will attend the meeting.

The delegation from the Stanley F. Sullivan post, No. 746, to the state convention at Rock Island tomorrow and Tuesday, includes: Emmett Grady and Walter Rodie, past commanders; Ed Klein, senior commander; Al Heinan, junior vice commander; Paul Koch and John Reilly. Alternates are Eman Brzak, Edward J. McCauley, Vincent Kane, Tom Burns, William Cook and Henry Seigwart. The post's drum and bugle corps of thirty members and a color guard will accompany the delegates, according to Eman J. Brzak, commander of the post. Representatives of the Sullivan post auxiliary are to march in the convention parade.

North Shore chapter, No. 26, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, will hold its annual picnic today at St. Paul's park, forest preserve, Morton Grove. The speakers will be Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Christian Paschen, Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway, and J. E. Vanderlip, commander of the chapter. There will be games for young and old. The public, as well as all ex-service men, are extended a cordial invitation to attend.

Mrs. W. Landeck, president of the Woodlawn unit, No. 175; Past Presidents Mrs. W. V. Muttart, Mrs. George E. Macauley, and Mrs. William A. White and Delegates Mrs. E. J. Donnell, Mrs. Francis Ward, and Mrs. A. Christofferson are departing this morning for the state convention.

Advertising Men's post, No. 28, has chosen the following delegates and alternates to attend the state convention: Delegates, R. C. Merritt, William A. Carroll, William C. Bausch, Walter L. Backer, Howard E. Dyggert, Harold W. Gibbs, E. P. Hayes, A. E. Sawkins, E. K. Smith, J. F. Bowers; alternates, Paul Arenson, S. S. Bolton, Fred Busby, William L. Griffin, Henry Kadler, W. H. Riley, Joseph Teitelman and Edwin Read.

BRANCHES OPEN EVENINGS

HIGH SCHOOLS ON W. SIDE SWINGING INTO FALL WORK

The autumn semester is practically all the high schools on the west side and throughout the western suburbs is now under way. Classes in several schools began last week with enrollment statistics being augmented almost daily by the usual latecomers.

The new Fenwick High school, 525 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, formerly known as the Dominican High school, opened for the first time last Monday. The registration totaled about 250 students. Although the building is not quite completed the first day's program was carried on without confusion, authorities of the school reported. Work on the building, which is an outstanding example of Gothic architecture, will not be finished until next month. The name, Fenwick, was chosen in honor of the first bishop of Cincinnati, who was a member of the Dominican order.

The enrollment at the Hinsdale High school is 455 students this year, according to a statement published last week. Classes at the school began on Sept. 4.

There are about 600 students at St. Mel's High school, 1 North Kildare avenue, this fall. Of this number about 150 are freshmen. The autumn term here started last Monday morning.

Registration at the Riverside-Brookfield High school came to 615 students this year, the office of the school stated last week. This represents an increase of about 100 over last year's enrollment.

At St. Mary's High school, 1,031 Cypress street, classes started last Monday with a total of more than 900 students.

Glenbard High school, Glen Ellyn, began the fall semester the day after Labor day, registration amounting to more than 700 students.

The schedule at Nazareth academy, La Grange, commenced on Sept. 4 with a high mass for students. Approximately 104 girls are at the school.

QUIN RYAN

ALGIERS . . . Monte Carlo . . . Egypt . . . India . . . names of places that never seemed real . . . names that suggest fantastic fiction rather than places in which people live and eat and laugh and scold their children. Just such places are described by Quin Ryan in his musical excursion across seas and continents. Music helps create the atmosphere. Vivid descriptions picture quaint, foreign scenes. Just close your eyes and travel as you might on the Canadian Pacific Tours. 8:45.

PAT BARNES

ALICE 'MONGST CLEF DWELLERS

ALICE in Musicland and her conductor encounter the Clef Dwellers today. They are shy fellows who are liable to flee into their flats at a moment's notice and make a terrible sound. That's why they must have Major Scale and the Composer on hand to keep them composed and ready to play. When they get used to strangers the Clef Dwellers are well behaved, though the director threatens them with his baton. Pat Barnes announces; the W-G-N Orchestra plays amusing classics. 5:45.

GOLDKETTE CREATIONS FLAVOR SABBATH

JEAN GOLDKETTE

GOLDKETTIC creations are built like symphonies. Their vast depth, their abstract color, their vivid perspective they have in common with the greatest symphonies. But that is not all. The mood is that of youth. The notes are sharply defined, and the patterns of rhythm are symmetrical and crisp. Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra are the leaders in the Dance Music renaissance. 1:30, 2:25 and 11.

Cubs vs. Brooklyn Here Today

QUIN RYAN, foremost among radio sports reporters, unfolds a brisk word movie of the Cubs-Brooklyn encounter. 2:55 brings lineups of the game, and three o'clock says "Play ball." Follow 'em close. Each game counts. Balls, strikes, hits, runs, errors in quick succession make the broadcast almost as vivid as the game from the grand stand. Sponsored by Baskin-Hart, Schaffner and Marx. 2.55.

The 8-tube, A. C. set used in the Courier Radio operates direct from your electric light socket. It is fully shielded. You need never bother about interference. Only one dial is used for tuning. It's as simple to tune in the distant stations as to set your watch. And the Courier uses three screen grid tubes.

The Courier—From $85 to $165
(Without tubes)
The new Peerless cabinets are triumphs of the interior decorator's art. The receiving set has an automatic volume control which prevents the "blasting in" of nearby stations. It has a single dial. It operates from any electric light socket and is fully shielded. It uses nine tubes, including three screen grid tubes.

BLESS CROSSES FOR LEADERS IN EPISCOPAL WORK

Awards to 9 Announced at St. Stephen's.

An event of international significance was the blessing at St. Stephen's Episcopal church, 3533 North Albany avenue, yesterday of nine crosses of honor of the Order of Sangreal by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, pastor. The crosses represent yearly awards to nine outstanding church leaders for distinguished and unselfish effort on behalf of the church and humanity.

Following the blessing of the crosses, formal presentations will be made to the various recipients at services in their respective locations. The lord bishop of London has consented to present the cross awarded to William Carlisle, prebendary of St. Paul's cathedral, London, and founder of the church army. Prebendary Carlisle was awarded the honor because "by the organization he created the call is preached in highways and byways, the lost are reclaimed and the fallen raised."

Honor Missionary Leader.

Others for whom crosses were blessed are: Arthur Selden Lloyd, bishop suffragan of New York, because "of his long service as executive head of missionary work and unselfish humility of his life."

John McKim, missionary bishop of Tokio, Japan, because "of his thirty-six years of faithful toil as bishop in a difficult field in which he has helped to bind the world together around the foot of the cross."

Philip de Loris, priest of Lake Andres, S. D., because "he heard the voice of Christ while the pagan chief of an Indian tribe and for thirty-three years of service in the priesthood has not ceased to set forth the glory of the love of God."

B. M. Spurr, archdeacon, Moundsville, W. Va., because "in an obscure and difficult field he has called into being a Christian community."

John Williams, priest of St. Philip's church, Omaha, Neb., because for thirty years he has ministered to his own Negro race with loyal devotion and has set the example of a saintly life that men of all races are glad to acknowledge as following in the footsteps of Christ."

Dora Vannix of Moe hospital, Sioux Falls, S. D., because "although for many years confined to a wheeled chair, she has built up, in the Church League of the Isolated, a link of fellowship among far scattered souls."

Award for Arctic Physician.

Grafton Burke, physician of the missionary district of Alaska, because "in its desolate arctic wilderness he has and lives in the name of Christ, using neither labor nor himself to protect those under his care."

Mary Veronica, sister of the Community of St. Mary, because "she renounced great wealth to devote her life in perfect self-sacrifice to the master's call, and after having attained the generalship of her order, accepted retirement into obscurity with humility."

The Order of Sangreal was founded at St. Stephen's church, known as the Church of Poets. The Rev. Mr. Tucker is grand master of the order.

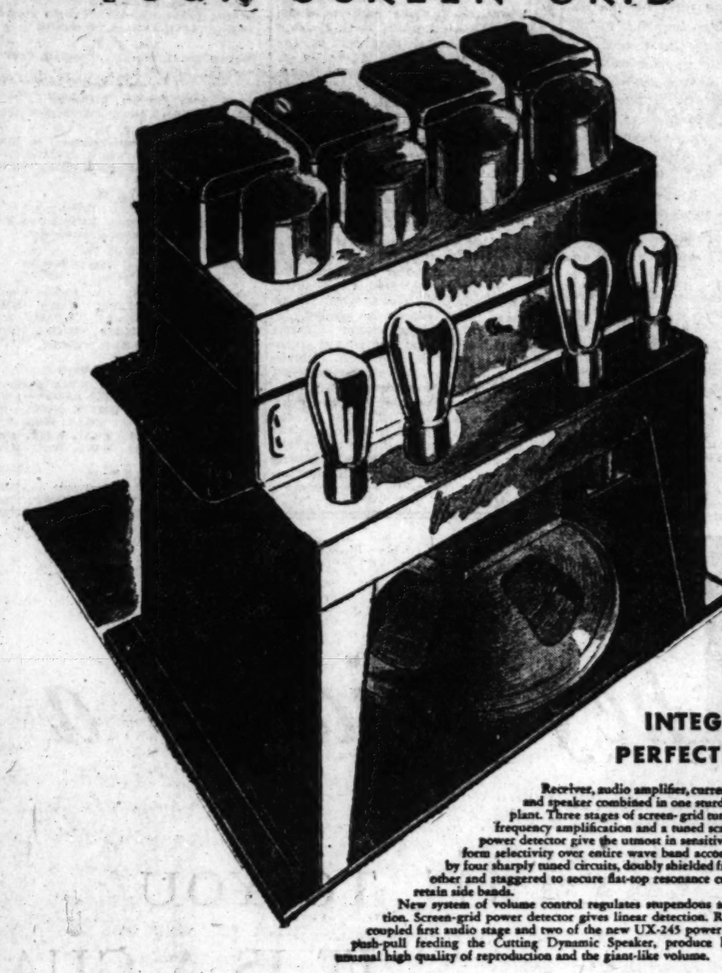
FOUR SCREEN-GRID TUBES • • • 8 TUBES IN ALL



INTEGRAL PERFECTION

Receiver, audio amplifier, current supply and speaker combined in one sturdy power plant. Three stages of screen-grid tuned radio frequency amplification and a tuned screen-grid power detector give the utmost in sensitivity. Uniform selectivity over entire wave band accomplished by four sharply tuned circuits, doubly shielded from each other and staggered to secure flat-top resonance curve and retain side bands.

New system of volume control regulates stupendous amplification. Screen-grid power detector gives linear detection. Resistance coupled first audio stage and two of the new UX-245 power tubes in push-pull feeding the Cutting Dynamic Speaker, produce both the unusual high quality of reproduction and the giant-like volume.

BROADCASTING TODAY ENTERS ITS NINTH YEAR

It's a Far Cry to Early Programs, However.

Radio broadcasting today, will enter upon its ninth year. It has been such a far cry from the crystal set which was so popular in those early days to the modern electric receiver which represents the latest in engineering ingenuity, that it is hard to realize that only eight years have elapsed since the first radio broadcasting station was licensed.

The first program broadcasting license in this country was granted to station WBZ of the Westinghouse company at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 921. The second license was issued to WBY, of the Radio Corporation of America, at Rochelle, N. Y. Four days later, the third was granted to WJZ, then operated by the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., and the fourth to KDKA, of the Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, 1921.

To KDKA however, goes the distinction of being the pioneer station inasmuch as it broadcast programs experimentally long before it or the other stations were granted governmental licenses.

Broadcasting Makes History.

Since that time the history of broadcasting has virtually been the history of our country. Most of the great events which have transpired have been given directly to the people through this medium. In reviewing these occasions one runs across:

Harding-Cox presidential returns announced by Station KDKA, Nov. 4, 1920.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight, July 4, 1921.

Beginning of broadcasting of world series baseball games in October, 1921.

Funeral service of former President Harding, August, 1923.

Blow by Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas," knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo grounds in New York city, Sept. 14, 1923, caught by ringside microphone and heard a thousand miles away.

Last public appearance of former President Wilson at the Armistice day celebration in the Arlington National cemetery, Nov. 11, 1923.

Wilson's Funeral Service.

Funeral services of former President Woodrow Wilson from Washington cathedral, February, 1924.

Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1924.

Program incident to the inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, March 4, 1925.

Reception to Col. Charles Lindbergh in Washington, D. C., June 11, 1927, and in New York two days later, broke all previous hookup records with 50 stations in the net.

On Sunday, July 24, 1927, this country joined with a Canadian broadcast for the first time and again all records were shattered—53 stations simultaneously transmitting a religious program.

During the ceremonies incident to the opening of the International Peace bridge at Buffalo, the voice of the Prince of Wales was broadcast in the United States, Aug. 7, 1927.

In June, 1928, full meetings of the Republican and Democratic national conventions were transmitted from Kansas City and Houston, Texas, respectively. National coverage was maintained by two huge networks for several days.

On March 4, 1929, a complete description of the inaugural of President Herbert Hoover from the time the party left the Hoover home in S street until the parade was completed late in the afternoon, was given the nation by two networks of stations.

COMPILE LIST OF 3,500 WORLD RADIO STATIONS

There are approximately 3,500 radio stations above 6,000 kilocycles in the world at present, according to a complete list just compiled by G. Colby Blackwell of the engineering staff of the radio commission. Of this number there are between 1,500 and 1,600 of such stations, including the numerous experimental transmitters, in the United States. Monthly supplements to the list will be issued.

The information was obtained in the case of the United States from the latest records of the commission, while the foreign stations were recorded from list No. 5 of the frequencies published by the International Bureau of the Telegraph union at Berne, Switzerland.

Radio to Aid Flyers on Washington-Miami Route

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Fifteen powerful radio stations, to be operated for the benefit of airplane pilots, will be constructed by the federal government between Washington and Miami, and Houston, it was stated recently by George D. Barr, assistant airways engineer of the U. S. department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

A GREAT expense in radio advertising—over the chains—is the cost of the telephone lines between the stations. This has been circumvented by some concerns who make phonograph records of a half hour's program, including the music, the announcements and the advertising, and then ship the records to the stations in selected parts of the country. Out of that has come the question as to whether good music, recorded on disks, can be picked up in clear and full toned fashion from the phonograph appartus for transmission into the air; the chain salesmen, who send their music from New York over the telephone wires direct to the transmitters in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, etc., say it cannot. But, no matter—

Now an organization has been formed which will record programs on sound films, like the talking movies. The films will record sound only, not pictures, to be broadcast in English and translated into other languages, and then shipped to radio stations over the world. The officials claim, "Our device makes recordings of programs perfect in tone and quality, eliminating blasts and imperfections which often occur when the natural voice is used through a microphone. The reproducer can be plugged into the station's control amplifier. When the film is started the program will go out on the air. No wires are used in this network. Each film will be released to the broadcasters on certain dates.

THE NEWEST gag among the broadcasters is to announce that Mr. So-and-So had a wad of world series tickets, if the public will only write to him. We recall how we were plagued before the Army and Navy game in 1926, when Messrs. Carrell and Gosden used to announce every night over the air that we had a load of tickets we were anxious to get rid of, and what our home telephone number was, and that it was best to call us about seven in the morning!

THE DEPARTMENT of commerce states that two hundred million radio sets would be required to provide radio facilities for all the people in the world within range of broadcasting stations

That's just fourteen less than there are in our building every forenoon when we're trying to sleep.

A NEW collegiate talkie called "Sophomore" give the radio announcers another rap. Graham MacNamee, in particular, gets the raza, and undeservedly, we think.

A football announcer named McAfee is heard describing the gridiron conflict: "Gee, folks, you ought to be here. . . . Hanford has the ball. . . . No, just a minute—no—yes—Hanford has the ball—no, beg pardon, Colton has the ball—no, it is Hanford's ball after all—well, we all make mistakes, don't we? That's why they put erasers on the end of pencils."

MANY RADIO devotees ask, "How does one break into radio?" and "How did you happen to get into it?"

Well, almost every one breaks in accidentally or casually, and we did, too.

"What did you do before you got into radio?" some will inquire. Well, during our third year at Northwestern, in Evanston, we were contributing quips and verse almost daily to the "Line" on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE, then conducted by the late Bert Leston Taylor—"B. L. T." Our burning ambition was to run a newspaper column, as we were doing on the college paper. We tried to "make the Line" every day, and we darned near did.

We frittered away most of our college hours rehearsing plays, singing in shows, composing sketches for the magazines and in other extra curriculum pursuits. Our frequent contributions to the paper gained us an admission to the city editor, just at the time when we knew there was an opening for a campus correspondent. So for many weeks we turned in yarns of campus engagements and frolics and initiations. Then we braced the city ed, for a part time job as a regular reporter, and for a whole year, while attending classes in the forenoon, we performed all the clumsy and comical duties of the fuzzy cub reporter. Seeking to wander farther afield, we took up football assignments in the fall, under the direction of that grand old gent, Harvey T. Woodruff, who was then sports editor.

And so on—writing book reviews for Burton Rascoe, then literary editor of THE TRIBUNE—jumping into the advertising department to write ads and start the paper's house organ, "The Trib," in 1919—and still going to classes in Evanston. Our year was '20.

One day we happened to review in the paper a small book of comedy written by J. P. McEvoy and, illustrated by Frank King. McEvoy was editor of a publishing house turning out greeting cards and junvenile books. He was later to write "The Potters" for this newspaper, and King was just starting "Gasoline Alley." Nowadays you know McEvoy as author of "Show Girl" in Liberty and librettist of the Ziegfeld Follies in recent years.

He offered us a post, writing and editing the thousands of verses and jingles you read on Christmas, birthday and Mother's day greeting cards. Because we had doted for so long on his work as a columnist in the papers, we leaped at the chance. After three years of pleasant association with McEvoy and illuminating contacts in the publishing and theatrical worlds, we left to start a column of humor and verse on the sports pages of another

Chicago morning newspaper. Another year rolled by.

In 1921 and 1922 we were hearing of people who owned these gadgets called radios. A tinkering lad put earphones on our head one summer evening and we heard a likable announcer—we know not who it was—introducing piano selections from a loop department store. We put down the earphones and never listened to a radio set again. We gave radio and its accelorating progress no more thought than we would to astral chemistry.

The summer of 1923 came along. W. K. Hollander, the publicity chief of a local chain of theaters, commissioned us to write a weekly show for the radio, welding together and introducing all of the talent present that week in the local theater—including the complete symphonoy orchestra, an hour long broadcast over Station WMAQ direct from the theater. That, so far as we know, was the first "continuity" written for the air in Chicago. We put as much effort in composing the scenario as we would into the Follies; many of the shows were done entirely in verse. But, after the shows were written, there was nobody to recite them in the rôle of announcer. So Bill spoofed us into the job of announcer.

It fascinated us from the start. The mystery of it, the dramatics, the mail from the listeners and the wide audience it gave to the material of an aspiring columnist, all made us hungry for more. We jumped in, feet first, then. Station WLS was opening with a great fanfare, in the spring of 1924, and we were the announcer. Then came W-G-N, in the same spring, and we moved to the new TRIBUNE station. "Radio Announcer Bares Life Secrets."

Were it not for the fact that it would sound silly, we would remark that there is no more engrossing and engaging business in the world. It is a job in which we revel, in its infinite variety. Every queer activity we ever engaged in we now find helps us in radio—college dramatics and glee club goings-on, newspaper reporting, sports writing, column conducting, book reviewing, children's book publishing and advertising soliciting. In the first three years we never took a day off. There was a time when we handled all the broadcasts from Line in the morning until after midnight. And many's the night we slept in the studio.

It's been alluring work and great fun. It has taken us from coast to coast—to the choicest football games every week in the fall; to the world series ball games; to the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] in Tennessee, in 1925; to a half dozen Kentucky Derbies and Indianapolis auto races; to Calvin Coolidge's office in the White House and the floor of the senate chamber in Washington; to the Republican and Democratic conventions; to ringsides and vaudeville stages and movietone studios.

But this story's getting too long—Toodle-OO!

COUNTESS TO BE N. B. C. ENTRY IN RADIO CONTEST

Seeks "Most Beautiful Artist" Title.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting company, in the radio world's fair "most beautiful feminine radio artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF, New York. She is a soprano.

To Radio from Stage.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera company and other broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months, it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of New Moon, a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries from Many Stations.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from several hundred radio stations in many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the radio world's fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the entire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

U. S. EXPERT TO STUDY AVIATION'S NEED OF RADIO

That the radio commission has taken an active interest in the problem of applying radio communication to aviation is indicated in a letter sent to Gerald C. Gross, commission engineer, just before he sailed, together with Commissioner Charles McK. Saltzman, for The Hague to attend the conference of the international consulting technical committee on radio communications.

The commission directed the engineer to make an inspection of the leading aviation fields in Europe at the close of The Hague parley "for the purpose of making an engineering study of current European pratices with respect to radio communication for aviation."

[A STATEMENT BY ALFRED H. GREBE...]

Many of These Modern Features Are Exclusive With the New Grebe

Screen Grid Tubes—The use of which results in sensitivity never before attained. Weak signals from distant stations are amplified clearly and distinctly.

New Control for New Power—But in the New Grebe this added power is controlled. Overlapping of stations is eliminated . . . strays are kept out. You get the full tone value made possible by that exclusive Grebe feature—the Equalized Band Pass Filter.

Single Audio Stage Means No Hum—Grebe reception is so strong . . . so pure in tonal characteristics . . . that only a single audio stage is needed. Hum and microphonic disturbances are eliminated.

Large Diameter Speaker . . . an Original Grebe Idea—Full tone range is effectively accomplished by special large diameter electrodynamic speaker . . . so successfully introduced by Grebe.

For Superb Reproduction of Phonograph Records—You can play your favorite phonograph records by a mere turn of the tuning dial. This automatically connects the electric phonograph pick-up with its specially wound transformer.

Cabinets Designed for Lasting Beauty and Acoustic Perfection—The New Grebe is obtainable in a wide choice of selected walnut and mahogany lowboy and highboy models. Furniture of characteristic beauty and dignity . . . and expertly designed for its acoustic properties. In a word, Grebe craftsmanship.

In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.

When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."

At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.

I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

MAKERS OF FINE PRECISION RADIO INSTRUMENTS SINCE 1909

To that small but discriminating group who are interested in the finer things of life, we present the new Screen-Grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

● . . . a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument . . . a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on prevision . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

CHURCH OFFERS NEW APPEAL TO CHANGED PUBLIC

Social Center Built for Newcomers.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When a great population shift changed the neighborhood, the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, Jackson boulevard and Western avenue, faced either to abandon its efforts or move along with the outgoing tide. Instead, it adapted itself to the altered conditions by erecting an $80,000 community house next door.

Suggestion of the community house was made by the Rev. Charles R. Oakley at the fiftieth anniversary of the church in 1923. Three years later the building, equipped for school, social and recreational activities, was dedicated.

Few of the former members now reside in the neighborhood. Many of them, however, return from outlying points to attend the services.

Represented in the activities of the church today are the children of parents of seventeen different nationalities. Recently, there has been a migration into the neighborhood of families from the mountains of Tennessee.

Oldest Denomination in City.

The church is said to be the oldest Disciples of Christ church still in existence in Chicago. It dates back to 1873, when, as Central Christian church, it was organized by the Rev. George G. Mullins with 35 members. The first meeting place was a little chapel of the Jefferson Park Presbyterian church at Throop and Adams streets. After the church had been going about a year the Rev. Knowles Shaw, evangelist, conducted a series of services.

Among the charter members, long associated with the church, were Mrs. S. M. Clark, Edwin Stewart, M. A. Curtis, Mrs. Maggie Veit, Mrs. Thomas Cowan and Mr and Mrs. A. H. Stout.

Mrs. Cowan is still living in California.

Mrs. George C. Abbott, who began her work with the church a year after its organization, is having that work continued by her three daughters—Edith, Riva and Lillie. The latter, who was for some years a missionary in China, returned to Chicago two years ago at the time of troubles in that country and is now teaching in the city schools.

Basil A. Byerlee is the living link of the church in Africa.

Many Locations in Early Years.

From the little Presbyterian chapel, the society moved to a small building at Harrison and Paulina streets and later held its meetings in Campbell hall. Later services were held in a storeroom on Van Buren street and afterward in a wooden church building at Warren avenue and Damen avenue.

Miss Ina Clarke, daughter of one of the earliest members, S. J. Clarke, recalls the services that were held in the wooden building that was moved to lots on Western avenue, near Congress street.

"The building," she relates, "was seated with opera chairs, the choir occupying a platform one step higher than the pulpit. There was also a raised platform at the back of the room in an alcove, and it was there the 'young folks' of that period sat, sometimes listening not too attentively to the sermon."

The Rev. A. J. White served the church between 1876 and 1878. Following his term, the church received the gratuitous services of numerous ministers. In 1882, the Rev. John W. Allen was induced to take charge, being his fourteen years of ministry, the church entered upon a period of steady and substantial growth and the various organizations developed under its guidance.

Worshipped in Basement.

During the Rev. Mr. Allen's pastorate, the church, in 1891, purchased lots on Jackson boulevard and erected a basement which served as a place of worship until 1900 when its present upper structure was completed. The Rev. J. H. O. Smith was pastor between 1895 and 1897. He was followed by the Rev. Bruce Brown.

In 1901, by a vote of the West Side church, and the Union Christian church, an amalgamation was effected and the name Jackson Boulevard Church of Christ was taken. The Rev. Roland A. Nichols became pastor of the combined congregations. He was followed by the Rev. Lloyd Tuttle, the Rev. Parker Stockdale and the Rev. Austin Hunter. The Rev. Mr. Hunter died in 1921 while he was still pastor. He was succeeded in 1922 by the present pastor, the Rev. Charles R. Oakley.

The Rev. Mr. Oakley, born in Cincinnati and educated at Lexington, Ky., had filled a number of pastorates in Ohio before coming to Chicago. In studying conditions, he decided upon the necessity of the community house. He is a great believer in the west side and enthusiastic over the new developments at hand. His home, across the street from the church, is of the old-fashioned sort so far as the size of the family is concerned, despite the fact that the house is a typical city two-flat. There are five sons and four daughters. The older ones are beginning to leave the hearthside now, but there are always for happy reunions.

Receives 1,000 New Members.

The church has felt the stimulus of the Rev. Mr. Oakley's systematic methods, his executive ability, and his consecration to his work. During his ministrations, he has received more than 1,000 members into the church.

Recreational activities now are of the modern sort—Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls and bowling and basketball teams. They have taken the place of the soap bubbles parties and social affairs that were a part of the good fellowship of the old days. The Centennial

Improvement Association Campaign Is On.

Every home in Edison Park is being canvassed in an extensive membership campaign being staged by the United Edison Park Improvement association. Not until the entire community is reached will the drive come to a close. At a meeting held last Tuesday evening at Schneider's hall, Edison Park, plans for the continuation of the drive were discussed. Between twenty and thirty newcomers have been added to the roster since the beginning of the campaign several days ago, and officers of the association hope to get several more recruits. To facilitate the work the committee in charge has separated the district into several sections, each of which has been assigned to certain members.

The annual dues of members of the association are also being collected at this time. Officials hope to procure sufficient funds to provide for snow plowing during the wintry months. By keeping the thoroughfares of the district clear they expect to obviate any possible decrease in business because of snowbanks.

Ramsay Heads Committee.

The chairman of the membership committee which is conducting the campaign is James A. Ramsay. Members who are canvassing the business section are A. O. Prochno, E. J. Limberger, J. V. Arnhorst, N. E. Nelson and F. W. Scherer.

Those who have been assigned to the residential districts include J. F. Voss, J. W. Wirt, J. J. Sullivan, J. B. Champion, Charles Last, George P. Killeen, James M. Neill, Jonas Voss, W. Riediger, P. Wolkow, K. Haugen, William Beck, W. E. Schneider, P. M. Ketter, O. E. Brown, Alexander Sauter, O. A. Brendel, Frank Charvat, Edward Heintz, Alfred Engelhardt, L. A. McKinney, R. J. Wilson, M. J. Others In Member Drive.

Others taking part in the campaign include E. G. Gilbertson, C. W. Newman, Earl Powers, E. H. Lunde, J. P. Corrigan, E. E. Grove, Richard Wynne, J. A. Pfeifer, Oscar Stensland, Oliver Wogstad, J. L. Meredith, E. G. Walter, O. J. Goeppinger, Judson F. Going, B. J. Dabbert, Richard Humpf, Gerald Flynn, F. C. Kellner, William Stark, Fred Allen, R. S. Jaquith and C. P. Sherlock.

Officials of the association expect to conclude the drive about the last week of September.

Mary Alice Jones, an internationally known children's specialist, will be present. Dr. Paul Vieth, author and lecturer, will lead discussions and make addresses. Dr. Myron Settle, international week day worker, and P. R. Hayward, international young people's leader, will be present.

FINISH WIDENING MADISON STREET IN FOREST PARK

The widening of Madison street from Harlem avenue to the Des Plaines river, Forest Park, has been completed and a celebration is being planned in observance of the event. The added width is about ten feet. An improvement was recently finished on Roosevelt road in Forest Park, the addition here being 20 feet.

Pastor Returns Home.

The Rev. Roderick Murray conducted services last Sunday at the Portage Park Methodist Episcopal church, having just returned from a summer's vacation spent in Michigan.

CHICAGO REALTORS HOLD AN ALL-DAY FROLIC

Members of the Chicago Real Estate board and their families held at Wheaton Wednesday what was declared to be the most enjoyable outing in the history of the organization. Some of the leaders in the outing are shown in the upper left picture. Left t right: E. S. Judd, A. M. Jeoms, Mayor M. J. Pittsford of Wheaton and W. C. Regelin, chairman. In the upper center picture some of the realtors' wives are watching their husbands in a baseball game. Left to right: Mrs. W. C. Regelin, Mrs. Howard L. Calvin, Mrs. Claud Riemenschneider and Mrs. Harry S. Thompson. Ralph V. Field is shown on the upper right picture batting for the Redskins, and behind him is Joe Hall, catcher for the Squatters. In the picture below are B. J. Boehm (left) and J. Charles McCormack, the winning doubles team in the horseshoe tournament. The other picture shows the polo game, in which the realtors defeated Oak Brook, 14 to 7.

Village Makes Civic Festival of Real Estate Men's Outing

When Wheaton presented the key to the city to members of the Chicago Real Estate board last Wednesday, it was something more than a perfunctory proceeding. The smile of friendliness and good fellowship accompanying the official act on the part of Mayor M. J. Pittsford was symbolic of the community's attitude throughout a day during which the weather acted as if it had been especially ordered for the program of varied outdoor sports.

"I've been to several of these annual outings," remarked Frank Mason in the midst of his song entertainment at the evening banquet, "and we've had a better time today than we ever had before."

The assertion met with such hearty applause that Wheaton was made to realize that her efforts in "putting on a real party" had not been in vain.

Four Foot Golden Key.

Mayor Pittsford's key to the city was golden in appearance and some four feet in length. Fashioned by Charles Schatz and Nick Stumpf, it had been on exhibition in the window of the Gary-Wheaton bank for several days preceding the event.

Acceptance of the key was made by E. S. Judd, in behalf of President Albert W. Swayne of the Chicago Real Estate board, who, arriving later, made his speech at the evening banquet.

Just as Wheaton, represented by its mayor and A. M. Jens, were on the job, so, also, was William C. Regelin, chairman of committees for the Real Estate board. Mr. Regelin soon found himself engaged in a task similar to that of the manager of a ten ring circus.

The late morning hour was spent in a sightseeing tour of Wheaton points of interest—the college, the court house, water works, county jail, swimming pool, and the home of descendants of President John Quincy Adams. At noon a barbecue luncheon was served in the city park. Then followed what was announced as the "Battle of the Half Century."

Squatter vs. Redskins.

The battle, held on "Red Grange" field, a ball game of three innings between the Streeterville Squatters and the Fort Dearborn Redskins, was played in appropriate costumes. Back and forth, the conflict waged, coming to a climax in a tie score of five to five.

As a result of the decision, Chairman Regelin announced that the prize cup would pass into joint ownership, the Squatters getting the deed to one side and the Redskins to the other. Next year, the same players, their heirs or assigns, will have a chance to compete for the trophy again.

On the Redskin team were Capt. Henry T. Carr, Frank G. Hoyne, Henry A. Knott, Edward S. Judd, Nelson Thomasson, J. Soule Warterfield, Earle G. Krumrine, Henry G. Zander, Joseph K. Brittain, and J. L. Keesner.

The Squatter lineup included Capt. Murray Wolbach, James E. Bistor, Buckingham Chandler, W. B. Frankenstein, Paul Steinbrecher, Leo L. Hogan, Joseph B. Hall, Carl Zander, W. G. Knehnie, and Fred Clark.

Polo Game Spectacular.

The polo game, however, aside from the fact that the Realtors, starting with five goals by handicap, defeated the Wheatons, by a score of 14 to 7, presented a spectacle that was outstanding as the outing's feature.

The North Shore team, captained by Frank Bering, played under the name of the Realtors for the special game, while the Oakbrook team under Captain Paul Butler represented Wheaton.

In the evening, the 500 real estate men came in from the various fields of sport for the banquet at St. Michael's school at which Charles W. Hadley, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, acted as toastmaster.

The musical program, provided throughout the day by the Wheaton High school band, was herewith taken up by the Chicago Rapid Transit band. Entertaining in cabaret fashion, came the Sunset Lines quartet, the Hungry Five and the Neapolitan Four. A carnival spirit pervaded the banquet tables while outside, along Wheaton's business street, there was a Mardi Gras parade, Boy Scout drills and dancing.

Address by Mayor.

Invocation at the banquet was offered by the Rev. Francis J. Epstein. Mayor Pittsford, the first speaker, said to the guests:

"This morning we had the pleasure of welcoming you. Now it is a pleasure to realize that you have had a fine day. Wheaton is proud to have received and entertained you. It is our hope that we will see you often in the future."

Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the U. S. shipping board, introduced as "the father of good roads in Du Page county," spoke of the topic of the World's Fair now taking his interest.

"We are," he said, "trying to do something different in 1933 from what was done at the fair in '93 or since. Among the features we are working on will be a temple of science, showing the century of progress through scientific methods. We are to have the great jurists and law makers of the world here to consider ways to improve law in government.

"Truth with Enthusiasm."

"Rumors that we are not going to have the fair should be stopped. If we don't keep on boosting instead of knocking we will never get any place. Where is there a city that has come up so fast? Let's stop and think of what we have done and let's talk about that. Let's tell the truth with enthusiasm, and all the silly, bad and imaginary things would soon be forgotten by the people outside."

President Swayne of the Real Estate board stressed the importance of organization among real estate men. Others who made brief talks were Henry Zander, president of the national association, and Ralph Field, former president of the Illinois Real Estate association. Mr. Field said that Rockford this year was planning a "real entertainment and convention."

Members of Reception Groups.

The reception committees for the day were composed of the following:

For Wheaton—Mayor Pittsford, chairman; E. N. Hurley, Charles W. Hadley, W. E. Gary, Col. William J. Sutherland, Nick W. Lies, E. L. Gates, D. O. Dunbar, A. L. Perrottet, E. E. Critchfield, E. A. Kelly, D. C. Hull, H. S. Pettis, William McFryer, O. C. Gettinger, Dr. E. E. Lampert, Daniel Garrity, Hugo Schmidt, C. V. Gregory, A. C. Hoy, N. E. Matter, and A. L. Webster.

For the Chicago Real Estate board—William A. Bond, chairman; George F. Nixon, Henry A. Knott, Frank G. Hoyne, Edward S. Judd, Albert H. Wetten, John F. Wallace, Frederick S. Oliver, Edward N. Willoughby, Callistus S. Ennis, George H. Taylor, Paul Steinbrecher, Valentine H. Surghnor, Perkins S. Bass, Adolph F. Kramer, John R. Magill, Harry Goldstine, Henry G. Zander, S. Charles Iverson, Joseph K. Brittain, John P. Hooker, and Albert W. Swayne.

Firemen Spoil White Trousers.

A happening at the outing, though accepted by many visitors as just a part of the program, was by no means according to schedule, as members of the Wheaton volunteer fire department, gazing sadly at their ruined white duck trousers, can testify.

Previous to Memorial day, the department received brand new uniforms, including the white duck trousers, and Wednesday night's festivities offered an opportunity for their display. While the parade was forming, however, an honest-to-goodness alarm came in from 303 Seminary street, and what to do but respond?

A big home at the Seminary street address was discovered to be in danger of total destruction and the flames required an hour's fighting. The white duck trousers presented a sorry picture when the smoke had cleared away.

The parade finally started with Chief J. H. Kampp, as marshal of the fire department, leading, but only No. 2 chemical truck reached the scene of band music and confetti throwing.

Ye ed is in receipt of a communication from T. W. Barker, editor of the Midwest club magazine. It is an elegant map of Elmhurst and in the upper right corner is a half tone cut of a snug brick home with a doorway that bespeaks a latchstring ever out. In the lower left corner we glean:

Bud and Beylah and Bruce the First
Have moved way out to West Elmhurst.
The house is very plainly new,
'Tis right on Hawthorne avenue—
The phone is Elmhurst 2108J.
We moved in the place the first of May.
Just follow the arrow to Four-Thirty-Three,
Stop in and visit—have a cup of tea.

That's telling them where to get off at, Bud.

For a long time Dr. Eugene I. Payne, the popular dentist of 4530 North Monticello avenue, has been respectfully but firmly declining the importunities of his friend, Mars P. Bishop, the yarns salesman, to join him on a piscatorial expedition to northern Michigan. Mars finally left without him. A few days later the mailman brought a parcel. It contained a fine brook trout. In its mouth was a note reading: "Dear Doc: I have 27 brothers in northern Michigan waiting for you. The boat leaves tonight at 10:45. Just got a wire from my uncle. He says there will be toothaches and dentists to fix them long after you are planted and the sod is green. Sincerely, Brook Trout."

WE learn that E. Arthur Gardner paid Logan Square a visit after an absence of fourteen years. Art has sure led a colorful existence since adventuring forth into the big world. For seven years he ran a chicken ranch at Forest Glen. His next venture was a delicatessen, and for a short time he dabbled in politics. For three months he tried running a 130 acre farm down in Indiana. Then he and the wife and four children packed up and went to St. Louis, where Art, who is a clever machinist, is now employed making bread slicing machines. Good luck, Art.

BOMBINGS STIR CIVIC WRATH OF QUIET WHEATON

Charge Officials Refuse to Act.

Wheaton has fallen prey to bombers, labor racketeers, unusually active burglars and divers similar low folk.

Five bombs have shaken the village of 8,000 inhabitants, three of them in the last year. With the touching off of the fifth bomb last week there was also touched off a blaze of indignation which has vented itself on State's Attorney Chauncey Reed and a number of other public officials.

Prominent business men pointed out that the bombing rate per capita in Wheaton is eleven times as bad as in Chicago.

Since Jan. 1 of this year, according to a report by the chief of police, Charles E. Sullivan, there have been 24 larcenies, 11 burglaries and one robbery, a total of 36. In the whole year ending April 30, the list of these crimes totaled only 22.

"Cat" Burglar Works by Day.

Included among the larcenies is a series of housebreakings perpetrated in daylight by a "cat" burglar. Although this culprit entered many Wheaton homes in daylight, and often while residents were at home, the police have been unable to lay hold of him.

Business men of the village, faced with the prospect of racketeering and crime getting organized and solidly entrenched in Wheaton, have been considering steps to force action on the part of State's Attorney Reed and the sheriff's and police forces.

The five bombings, as listed by Chief Sullivan, who was unable to supply dates of the outrages, are as follows:

The residence of Andrew P. Steck, Wheaton real estate man, being built on South Washington street.

The residence of G. B. Christy under construction at 922 Santa Rosa avenue.

Road concrete mixer in Aurora and Elgin railroad yards.

A tractor used in grading roads, blown up on North Summit street.

Wehling Brothers' automobile agency, on Front street, to which a new addition was being built.

All Nonunion Labor Jobs.

In each case, it was learned, nonunion labor was being used on the bombed buildings and machines. The Wehling bomb, exploded last Sept. 5, damaged four automobiles, shattered a wall in the garage and broke many windows. The work on the addition was being done by Edward Gatzke, a contractor living in West Chicago, who had employed nonunion building tradesmen. Charles Wehling, head of the automobile company, has always been a union sympathizer, and his main building was erected two years ago entirely by union labor.

State's Attorney Reed, it is charged, has made no investigation of this bombing or any of the other bombings. He has not questioned Wehling or Gatzke, it was learned, nor has he summoned local labor officials. Chief Sullivan was even unprepared to state the bomb had been set by labor racketeers, he asserted.

Mrs. Christy, whose home on Santa Rosa avenue was bombed, stated yesterday that her husband had made two efforts to obtain appointments with State's Attorney Reed, leaving his name and mission each time, but that each time Reed had been "not in" and that he had failed to reply to the messages.

Calls Complaints Futile.

Among the business leaders interviewed on the bomb outrages was Justice Frank E. Herrick, secretary of the Wheaton Business Men's association.

"Wheaton business men know it would be useless to complain," he said. "The labor crowd in Du Page county is powerful and business men believe that no steps would be taken against these labor racketeers."

Oscar C. Gettinger, superintendent of the Aurora and Elgin line at Wheaton and president of the Lions club, asserted he would present the matter before the members of his organization.

"Something drastic must be done to halt this crime wave before it brings all the lawlessness of Cook county into our midst," Mr. Gettinger said.

Labor Leaders in Politics.

Mrs. L. B. Wood, chairman of the education committee of the Du Page County Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, declared that the failure to enforce the law against labor racketeers was well known in the county. Labor leaders had set themselves up as political bosses, she asserted.

Mrs. Minnie H. Prince of Downers Grove, chairman of the women's organization, said State's Attorney Reed will be discussed at their next meeting.

"There is no doubt," Mrs. Prince said, "that the apathy of some of the Wheaton and Du Page county officials is leading us into a situation which, if uncurbed, will bring more racketeers and resort keepers and their kind, to prey upon our community."

Churchmen also are aroused. The Rev. James Durand of Gary Methodist Episcopal church said a few thugs in the village were threatening the peace of its great majority of law abiding and peace loving citizens.

"The state's attorney and the police must drive out these few criminals at once unless they choose to flaunt public opinion," Mr. Durand said.

"Terrible State," Pastor Says.

The Rev. W. S. Insley of the First Presbyterian church declared Wheaton was in a "terrible state of affairs" and that a remedy must be sought immediately.

Some of the merchants of Wheaton also protested against the demands of labor organizers that advertising space in labor directories and programs be bought at expensive rates. Hints that they had better keep on good terms

CALVARY CHURCH TO OBSERVE 61ST BIRTHDAY TODAY

Parish Established in 1868.

The sixty-first anniversary of the founding of Calvary Episcopal church, 3158 West Monroe street, near Kedzie, will be celebrated today with special services in charge of the Rev. Francis J. Tromp, rector.

THE REV. FRANCIS J. TROMP.

The program of services marking the occasion includes solemn high mass at 11 o'clock; tea and reception at 6 this evening, and evensong and benediction at 7 o'clock. The Rev. William C. Downer will assist the rector in the services.

Calvary church was established in a frame building at Warren avenue and Oakley boulevard in 1868. During its 61 year the church has occupied three other location: the second, a brick structure at Western avenue and Monroe street; the third, a store building on Madison, near Kedzie, and the present location. The present church was erected in 1896, and was consecrated last year. The parish house was erected in 1913.

List of Rectors.

The first rector of Calvary church was the Rev. A. W. Snyder, who served from 1868 to 1872. He was succeeded by the Rev. Luther Pardee, still living in Chicago and now the senior priest in point of service in the diocese. Dean Pardee was rector for twelve years, from 1874 to 1886. The Rev. William H. Moore was the third rector, serving from 1886 to 1892. Canon Moore was responsible for the founding of several Episcopal churches in outlying sections of the city, and a son of his, the Rev. G. G. Moore, is now rector of the Church of the Advent, Logan Square.

In 1892 the Rev. William B. Hamilton became the rector and served for eighteen years, until 1910. From 1910 to 1916 the Rev. George M. Babcock was in charge and he was succeeded by the Rev. H. R. Neely, who died early this year.

The Rev. Mr. Tromp Leads Now.

The Rev. Mr. Tromp, present rector, came to the parish from St. Ambrose's church, Chicago Heights. Previously he had been on the staff of the Cathedral Shelter, Washington boulevard and Peoria street, pastor of Christ church, River Forest, and curate of St. Augustine's church, Wilmette.

Numerous improvements in the parish property have been made during the last year, and the parish is looking forward to marked growth under directon of the new rector.

PARKS COUNCIL TO HEAR REASONS FOR 'L' HIGHWAY

Project Attacked in Talk to Garfield Club.

New developments this week in the question of the proposed super-highway for the west side included an announcement by Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west park commissioners, that he will address the west parks advisory council and safety commission tomorrow night on the question, and an attack on the project by Manuel Goldberger, executive secretary of the West Side Through Streets association, before a meeting of the Garfield Park club last Wednesday noon.

Dr. Robertson said yesterday that an up-to-date analysis and report of all factors connected with the highway will be given at the advisory council meeting, which is to be held at the Midwest Athletic club. Objections heretofore advanced against the plan will also be taken up. Several prominent speakers are scheduled to appear.

Marshals Benefits of Project.

Several benefits to be derived from the building of the highway are to be outlined by Dr. Robertson. He intends to point out that it will bring about automatic grade separations of 76 street intersections between Canal street and the western city limits; that it will render the west side accessible to residents of the north and the south sections of the city and the suburbs, that the highway will result in a return of money expended in its construction as happened following the substitution of the Michigan avenue link bridge for the old Rush street bridge; and that accidents will be largely eliminated owing to the abolishing of one level intersections along the proposed route.

Furthermore, Dr. Robertson intends to show that sufficient property will be acquired at the east and west terminals of the highway to have a large plaza for traffic to ascend and descend until such time as the city, the Lincoln park district, Oak Park and other interested communities may carry it on to connect with other development contemplated by the Chicago plan commission. On the east end it is intended to connect with a quadrangle which will permit drivers to go south on Canal street or east to the outer drive, then south to their destinations, and on the north side to connect with the outer drive along the lake front built and paid for by the Lincoln park district.

Urges Putting Streets First.

In his speech before the Garfield Park club at the Midwest Athletic club Mr. Goldberger stated that the first need of the west side is an improved street system. He pointed out that while a large number of east and west streets run the entire distance across the city there is only one north and south thoroughfare, Western avenue, traveling the whole distance. For years, he declared, business associations of the west side have insisted that the north and south streets are more important than the east and west.

The north and south streets, according to Mr. Goldberger, are the thoroughfares in need of the attention of west side residents. A large number of these are broken up into sections, resulting in traffic congestion and forcing detours by motorists.

"What good is the highway," he asked, "if to get to the ramps we must contend with congestion along the north and south streets? Before we begin any major improvements we should finish Ogden avenue, Ashland avenue, Washington boulevard and Roosevelt road."

Mr. Goldberger also questioned placing the total cost of the highway at $20,000,000. He further asserted that it would provide a free right of way for motor bus lines and that it would create new traffic problems.

Edward Moore, deputy commissioner of public works, also spoke in opposition to the highway. The meeting was presided over by George T. Madigan, president of the club.

Samuel Insull Jr. will be the chief speaker at the next meeting of the club Wednesday at the Midwest Athletic club.

ENLIVEN WEST SIDE PARSONAGE

There isn't much opportunity for any member of the family of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Oakley to get lonesome. One or two of the five sons and four daughters have grown up and gone forth from the two flat household at 2446 Jackson boulevard, but they return at intervals for happy reunions. This picture was taken at one of these recent occasions. Left to right: Mrs. Oakley, the Rev. Mr. Oakley, Paul, C., Wallace C., Victor Dale, Charles Jr., Carmon R., Valona, Marguerite, Rosalind, Aleen, and grandson, Donald. The Rev. Mr. Oakley is pastor of Jackson Boulevard Christian church.

with the labor element were made while the advertising was being peddled, it was charged.

Three Du Page county labor agents, caught by the sheriff's forces in possession of three stench bombs, have been freed on small bonds, while the case has been delayed since last May, it was revealed. Edward Costello, Harold J. Cavanaugh, and Harry W. Cupp of Wheaton were arrested by two deputy sheriffs as they came to pick up the stench bombs. The bombs had been hidden in a prairie near Ogden avenue on the Naperville road, and when the deputies chanced upon the cache they waited until the three men came to pick them up.

At the Circuit clerk's office yesterday it was stated that State's Attorney Reed, while moving other criminal cases to trial, has kept the labor racketeers' case off the call. The men are at liberty on $1,000 bonds.

Street Names Confuse Elgin; Act for Change

A proposal to change the names of several streets in Elgin because of similarity in sound has been made to the city council by Mayor Earle R. Kelley. Confusion is reported from the likeness of such names as Park and Clark. Especially has this difficulty resulted when addresses are hurriedly telephoned to the fire department of the city, according to officials.

NEIGHBORHOOD STORE IS CALLED BEST FOR HUNTER OF BARGAINS

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—I'm for the neighborhood store when it comes to getting a good bargain. Some time ago I bought high grade varnish for $1 a gallon at 16th street east of Crawford. It was a cash and carry sale, of course. The floors, woodwork, etc., that I varnished had luster, smoothness, and a lasting finish. It was the kind of varnish that decorators charge $8 for when itemizing their bills.

A BARGAIN IN CLEANING.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Not long ago our neighborhood merchants were making a blue ribbon drive. What I consider an unusual bargain was the cleaning of five silk and wool dresses—some pleated—for the price of $5.25. Insurance was included.

$10 PURSE FOR ONLY $1.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—I was shopping for a purse the other day and chanced to notice in one of our local stores a counter with purses reduced to $1. Among them I found a beautiful brown envelope bag with a very odd clasp, as pretty a one as I have ever seen. When I brought my purse home I discovered that it was marked $10. That is one bargain I am not likely to forget.

BOYS' SUITS CUT TWO-THIRDS.

Cicero, Ill., Sept. 5.—This spring when the days began to grow warmer I went to one of our nearby stores to do some shopping for summer apparel. Among the articles I purchased were four washable suits made of Jean cloth for my 5 year old son. They were slightly soiled and had been marked down to one-third their original price. The sale price was 49 cents each. They proved to be an excellent bargain.

LOWELL SCHOOL, OAK PARK, GETS NEW PRINCIPAL

Board Honors Memory of Late Administrator.

Marvin J. Schmitt, for four years superintendent of schools at Crown Point, Ind., has been named principal of Lowell school, Oak Park, to take the place left vacant by the death of Walter A. Ferguson. Mr. Schmitt already has taken charge of the school. He has had about eleven years' experience in educational activities, ranging from country schools to high school work and supervision of instruction.

Resolutions eulogizing Mr. Ferguson were adopted at a meeting of the board of education of Oak Park at a meeting held Sept. 6. The resolutions were proposed by Mrs. Sara Hughes and adopted by an unanimous vote of the board.

The fact that Mr. Ferguson had been head of the Lowell school since 1898 was noted in the resolution.

"During this long period of faithful service as teacher and school administrator," the resolutions said in part, "Mr. Ferguson has endeared himself to hundreds of boys and girls who knew and respected him. His knowledge of child life and his respect for the personality of children made him a sympathetic friend and an understanding brother. His influence as expressed in purposeful living and high ideals of service will live on in the lives of boys and girls and men and women who have worked with him in the classroom and the community."

The statement was concluded with a declaration of sympathy to be forwarded to Mrs. Ferguson and the members of the family.

ELMHURST PLANS REFERENDUM ON NEW CITY HALL

Elmhurst voters will soon have an opportunity to decide whether a new city hall is to be built, including a new fire house, and whether a municipal garbage plant shall be installed in the near future.

City Attorney Fred C. Harbour was instructed by the city council at its regular meeting last week to draft an ordinance providing for the calling of a special election on this matter, setting forth full particulars as to the proposed new city hall, its size, details of construction, and approximate cost. A part of the proposed structure would be set aside for the use of the city police department.

SEEK $300,000 HERE TO RELIEVE ARABS' VICTIMS

Hadassah to Start Drive Tuesday Night.

Immediate relief for more than 4,500 Jewish families left destitute in Palestine as a result of the recent religious conflict will be sought by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. A campaign to raise $300,000, which is Chicago's quota in a national drive for $2,000,000, will be launched at a meeting of the 3,500 members of the local group Tuesday afternoon at the new Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street."

MRS. BERTHA READ

According to Miss Pearl Franklin, president of the chapter and first vice president of the national organization, in these critical days the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine, which was founded by the women's Zionist order in 1923, finds itself taxed to its capacity.

Describes Suffering of People.

Thousands of men, women and children are destitute and lack food, shelter, and clothing, she said. Sanitary conditions are bad. Large numbers of people are crowded together, sickness is increasing and epidemics are imminent. She pointed out that the Hadassah medical organization is thus far administering the relief work in all sections of Palestine. Jew, Christian and Arab are being treated by this organization without discrimination as to race or color.

"The great need of the suffering in Palestine impels Hadassah to make a plea for immediate funds in this great emergency," Miss Franklin said. "The generous attitude of the Jewish men and women of Chicago in past emergencies makes us feel that the $300,000 which has been set as our quota will seem small compared to the actual amount we hope to receive."

Expected to Praise British.

At the meeting Tuesday Mrs. Bertha Read will tell of the events leading up to the present disturbances in Palestine. Resolutions are expected to be passed by the members of the chapter commending the British government for the interest it has taken in regard to the affairs in Palestine, but stating that the British officials in that territory were incompetent and that they should be ousted by able persons in the near future, Miss Franklin said.

Officers of the local organization in addition to Miss Franklin are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Bertha Read, Mrs. Harry Berkman, Mrs. S. H. Soboroff; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Callner; financial secretary, Mrs. George Golinken; recording secretary, Mrs. Moses B. Levin; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Mesinger; treasurer of the tithe, Mrs. David Brenner; and recorder of tithe, Mrs. M. A. Rubenstein.

Presidents of the Hadassah chapters in the various districts of Chicago are: North shore, Mrs. Harry M. Fisher; south side, Mrs. Martin Marcusson; Lawndale, Mrs. William Weinberg; northwest, Mrs. Harry Schoolman; Albany Park, Mrs. Harry Wexler; west suburban, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox; and downtown, Miss Lillian Franklin.

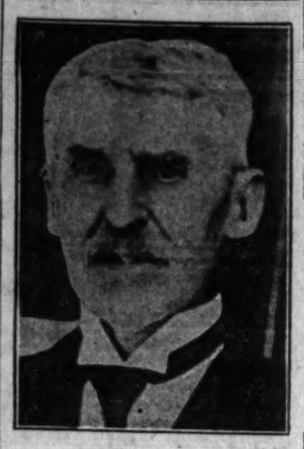
Frederick Tabbert is president of the garden club. Other officers are: Charles Kahlsted, secretary; Mrs. A. J. Loufek, corresponding secretary, and J. S. Allan, treasurer. The directors are Harold Melaun, Mrs. Melaun, Mrs. William Halley and Mrs. Arthur Engelbrecht.

RECEIVES GIFT



JAMES BENSON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SCHOOL JANITOR HONOREDWHENHE ENDS 40 YEARS

Has Known 40,000 Names at Oak Park.

Forty years at one job. Forty years in which he has known probably 40,000 young people. Forty years in which every one of these young people has called him James. There were fewer than forty the first year. Now there are more than 3,000, but James he is to one and all, and no matter how big the crowd gets James still knows each one.

What a movie must have passed before James' eyes last week when he was reminded of his long service by a gift in recognition of it. For the teachers of the Oak Park and River Forest Township High school presented to James Benson, head janitor, two $20 gold pieces. This gift was to honor the completion of forty years' services in the Oak Park schools.

Started at Bye School.

James came to the United States from Sweden at the age of 18. He was first employed on a farm in Illinois. After five years he moved to a greenhouse in Galewood. At the time of his employment in another greenhouse on Harvey avenue, Oak Park, James was offered the position as janitor in Ridgland school, Oak Park. This school, which then contained both high school and grade school pupils, has since been renamed William Bye school.

Two years later the high school was moved to a new site on Lake street. James moved with it. At this time there were only forty pupils in the school. The school grew so rapidly that it became necessary to rent four rooms in the town hall, and to hire a man to care for them. This man was James' first assistant.

When the school was moved to its present site in 1905, James came, too. He now controls a staff of fourteen janitors and five scrub women. James himself has served uider six principals and superintendents.

Sons Are College Graduates.

James takes great pride in his two sons, both of whom he has put through college. One of the boys was graduated from Oak Park High school. Both have served nearly two years in the United States army.

M. R. McDaniel, principal of Oak Park High school, regards James as the watchdog of the school treasury, for he says that James has saved many hundreds of dollars for it.

ELMHURST JOINS DU PAGE COUNTY'S WAR ON SKEETER

Elmhurst is stepping to the front among cities in Du Page county in the war against mosquitoes.

A state law provides for the organization and administration of mosquito control districts, but does not specify how expenses of a referendum on such an organization are to be met. Several nearby cities, including Wheaton and Downers Grove, have donated amounts from health funds to aid in the election.

At the meeting of the Elmhurst city council last week it was decided to donate $100 from the public health fund. A letter from the Du Page County Mosquito league, read to the council, outlined the advantages to be derived from the control of this nuisance, citing instances where real estate values were increased by 75 per cent following the extermination of mosquitoes.

County Judge Rathje of Wheaton will call a special election as soon as the necessary 3,500 signatures on the referendum petitions have been obtained.

Other members of the board of directors are: Mrs. Nelson J. Cottington, Mrs. R. M. Campbell, Mrs. J. J. Gibbons, Mrs. F. A. Hill Jr., Mrs. Herbert H. Reed, and Mrs. A. C. Preble. With Mrs. John B. Mudge, 5131 Ellis avenue, as general chairman, the biennial convention of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held in Chicago for the first time in thirty years, opening Tuesday morning at the Stevens hotel and continuing until Friday.

Mrs. Mudge will be assisted by the Illinois State chapter composed of 95 individual chapters.

Eight hundred official delegates are expected and in addition many visitors and members from all parts of the United States and Canada, making a total of more than 3,000 to attend the sessions.

Expect Donor of School.

One of the guests expected to attend is Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard, an 82 year old member, who several years ago, turned over to the organization Cottey college, a junior college for girls at Nevada, Mo. The plant, now valued at $350,000, is conducted by P. E. O. and is accredited with the University of Missouri. It is one of the oldest schools for women in the country and is the only self-built college in the world. With an original capital of $3,000, the school was started by Mrs. Cottey alone.

The opening session at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon will be presided over by Mrs. Mabel Frisbee of Bushnell, Ill., state president, who will give the address of welcome.

Banquet Tuesday Evening.

At the formal banquet, Tuesday evening, one of the guests will be the Rev. Charles L. Stafford, Muscatine, Ia., the only surviving husband of one of the founders.

Samuel S. Parks, 4231 Fulton boulevard, who extended the welcome thirty years ago when Chapter A entertained at the national convention, will again welcome the guests on behalf of the members of B. I. L., the organization of the husbands and brothers-in-laws of the P. E. O. members.

The address of the evening will be given by Mrs. Ola B. Miller, Iowa City, Ia., national president and Lorado Taft will also speak, his topic being "Beauty in America."

Election on Thursday.

Election of officers will be held Thursday afternoon, and in the evening Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chapter A will speak on "Sweet Experiences." The closing sessions will be held on Friday, when the convention will adjourn for two years.

The chief philanthropy of the P. E. O. Sisterhood consists of a fund of $346,000 which is lent to girls to complete their college education, and 25,000 girls have received help in this way. At the present time 14,000 girls have active accounts with the sisterhood.

"STORY TELLING TIME" WINS FIRST PRIZE

AMATEUR PHOTOGS, HERE'S A CHANCE TO PROVE YOUR SKILL

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

A prize will be awarded to the largest family on the grounds at the festival and medals will be presented to the winner of each event on the program, while a second prize will be awarded in each contest in which three or more persons participate.

HIGH SCHOOLS ON W. SIDE SWINGING INTO FALL WORK

Late Comers Add to Student Rolls.

The autumn semester in practically all the high schools on the west side and throughout the western suburbs is now under way. Classes in several schools began last week with enrollment statistics being augmented almost daily by the usual latecomers.

The new Fenwick High school, 525 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, formerly known as the Dominican High school, opened for the first time last Monday. The registration totaled about 250 students. Although the building is not quite completed the first day's program was carried on without confusion, authorities of the school reported. Work on the building, which is an outstanding example of Gothic architecture, will not be finished until next month. The name, Fenwick, was chosen in honor of the first bishop of Cincinnati, who was a member of the Dominican order.

The enrollment at the Hinsdale High school is 455 students this year, according to a statement published last week. Classes at the school began on Sept. 4.

There are about 600 students at St. Mel's High school, 1 North Kildare avenue, this fall. Of this number about 150 are freshmen. The autumn term here started last Monday morning.

Registration at the Riverside-Brookfield High school came to 615 students this year, the office of the school stated last week. This represents an increase of about 100 over last year's enrollment.

At St. Mary's High school, 1,031 Cypress street, classes started last Monday with a total of more than 900 students.

Glenbard High school, Glen Ellyn, began the fall semester the day after Labor day, registration amounting to more than 700 students.

The schedule at Nazareth academy, La Grange, commenced on Sept. 4 with a high mass for students. Approximately 104 girls are at the school.

DUNNING POSTAL DISTRICT TO BE ENLARGED NOV. 1

An additional strip of territory between Austin and Central avenues from Diversey to Montrose is to be incorporated into the Dunning postal district on the Northwest side within a few months.

A new and much larger building is now under construction by Herbert Bluhm for lease to the government, and upon its completion about Nov. 1, the new territory will be transferred to this station from the Irving park station on Milwaukee avenue. The Dunning station is located in the 6400 block on West Irving Park boulevard and serves the territory bounded by Austin, Diversey and Montrose avenues and the city limits.

This is a rapidly growing area with a population of well over 34,000. The new building will be almost five times as large as the present quarters and will care for immediate needs and for those some time in the future. The force will be augmented at once by the transfer of twelve carriers from Irving Park and by additional clerical workers.

The superintendent is James E. Morrissey and his assistant is T. J. Jaszkowski.

LYONS COLLEGE ENROLLS 71 FOR ITS FIRST YEAR

Principal Tells of Unique Method of Teaching.

With the opening of the Lyons Township High school this week a new junior college enters the educational world, the Lyons Township Junior college, with an enrollment of 71 students, drawn from an area of sixteen square miles encircling La Grange. The curriculum consists of regular college subjects, which will be limited to first year work during the next two semesters. Starting September, 1930, the college will teach the full two year course.

The Lyons Township High school building is divided into four sections, the first of which was erected in 1889, the second in 1899, the third in 1923, and the newest addition in 1928, which contains administration offices, a community room seating 200, a boys' gymnasium, and an auditorium seating 1,834. The newest section has more than doubled the capacity of the entire building, which seats 2,500 students.

"Our classes are conducted on the laboratory plan," explained Dr. G. W. Willett, principal of the school for the last seven years.

"This laboratory research type of study we find most thorough. Instead of having the student recite what he has studied previously, we direct his mind in the path of new research, and when the class period ends he has added new facts to his store of knowledge.

Hour and Half for Study.

"Our classes run sixty minute periods. Students are expected to do about an hour and a half of outside preparation each day and spend two study periods during school hours.

"We use the most up to date methods of teaching. Yes, we have tried the intelligence test, but the subject is still so big that it is impossible to discuss it without being vague. Our results give the norm for groups rather than individuals.

"The students at this school show a strong tendency toward college preparatory work. They lean away from industrial training, and the number of students who take such courses as stenography and bookkeeping decreases yearly. More than 75 per cent go to college after graduation.

"One of the highest honors accorded our students goes to the boy or girl with the highest scholarship average, who has his or her name engraved on a huge scholarship loving cup, which is the property of the school," added Dr. Willett.

"Athletics form an important part of the school's curriculum. From one-third to one-half of the students remain after school hours to take part in athletic activities. The two football teams go in for both interscholastic and intermural games in the fall.

Clubs, Plays, and Music.

"Club work plays a prominent part in the activities of the student body. From twenty to forty clubs, varying from time to time, exist during the school year—social, literary, and dramatic. The Lion, weekly newspaper, is published by the class in journalism. The school, Annual, averaging 140 pages, is published at the close of each year.

"Three plays are given each year by the senior, junior, and sophomore classes in a splendid auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,834.

"The school has an orchestra of seventy-five pieces and two bands of fifty-five and forty-five members respectively. The musicians are given regular credit for their work. Clarence Dissinger is instrumental director and Albert Youngblood director of voice.

"The books in the school library total approximately 6,000, covering all subjects of high school work. A special gift of 1,500 volumes was made by the family of the late Supt. Cooley, who donated his personal library as a memorial. Supt. Cooley was principal of the Lyons Township High school for many years. Emily Ethell is librarian.

"A special bookshop for students is conducted by the school, under the supervision of a faculty member. The money is divided among student activities and in selecting additional books for the library."

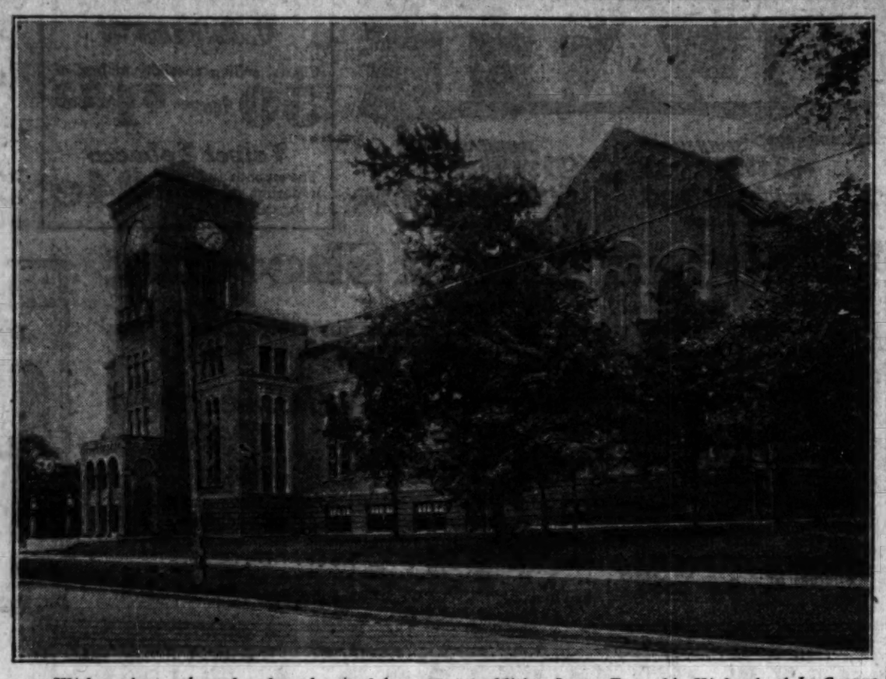
La Grange Infant Society Plans Season's Activity

The first meeting this season of the Junior Infant Welfare society of La Grange was held Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. S. F. Lewis, 315 South Stone avenue. Activities of the organization during the coming months were discussed. Mrs. Harry Holton is president.

Mrs. Florence Skidmore Acting Dean at Harrison

Mrs. Florence Skidmore, Latin instructor at Harrison Technical High school, is acting dean of girls this year, taking the place of Miss Miranda Miller, who is absent on a sabbatical leave. Word was received at the school recently from Miss Miller in Paris.

Junior College Course Added at Lyons High



With a plant enlarged and modernized by a recent addition, Lyons Township High school, La Grange, this year is offering one year of college work. A second year of college work will be added next fall.

TWO ELMHURST CHURCHES BREAK GROUND TO BUILD

Redeemer, Immanuel Hold Ceremonies.

Before many months have passed the spires of two new churches will be piercing Elmhurst skies. Last Sunday the Redeemer Lutherans broke ground at Kenilworth avenue and St. Charles road, and on the same morning similar ceremonies marked the services of Immanuel Lutheran Evangelical church.

The site selected by the Redeemer congregation is at the conjunction of two main thoroughfares of the village and is besides in one of the most exclusive neighborhoods. No other church is located in this section of the town.

Sermon Precedes Ceremony.

Following a sermon in Hawthorne school, the congregation proceeded to the grounds of the proposed church for the ground breaking ceremony. The services were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. W. A. Setzer, who came to Elmhurst last October from North Carolina to take charge of the new congregation.

Building operations began Monday. The church is to be of Gothic design, built of buff brick and Indiana limestone. It will measure 103 feet in length, 48 feet in width, and will have a seating capacity of approximately 400. The members of the building committee are: Dr. E. W. Marquardt, chairman; August Belms, William Graue, Erwin Miller, and Edwin Teske.

Pastor Leads Immanuel Service.

Following regular Sunday services, the Rev. Carl Abel, pastor, conducted the ground breaking ceremonies for the congregation of the Immanual Lutheran Evangelical church.

The Redeemer Lutherans will continue to hold services in Hawthorne school auditorium, and the Rev. Mr. Abel's congregation will gather at the parochial school hall, 3d and Illinois streets, until the new churches are ready for occupancy.

TWO LOMBARD GARDEN CLUBS HOLD EXHIBIT

Included among the women taking part in the show were Mrs. A. J. Dietsche, Mrs. E. J. Andrews, Mrs. R. V. Lewis, Mrs. Charles Michaels, Miss Anita Kopan, Mrs. Edwin Pynchon, Mrs. H. Ruth, Mrs. L. R. Tomlinson, Mrs. Stanley Lang, Mrs. Alfred Knight, Mrs. J. R. Jameson, Miss Grace Marquardt, Miss Rose Marie Mohrdieck, Miss Ruth Lewis, Mrs. Richard Mentz and Miss Muriel Shane.

Protest Against Paving in Aurora to Be Heard

Testimony of property owners opposed to the proposed resurfacing of Downer place, between Harrison and Locust streets, Aurora, will be heard next Thursday. The hearing began before Judge Frank Shopen of Elgin on Sept. 5, but was continued. Because Judge E. M. Mangan owns property included in the proposed improvement he was ineligible to preside over the case.

BETTER LIGHTING FOR WEST SIDE IS DISCUSSED

The problem of providing a supplementary lighting system for the Madison and Kedzie business district was taken up at the Wednesday meeting of the Madison-Kedzie association in the Graemere hotel.

M. K. Fine outlined various plans which would furnish adequate illumination, but suggested a definite decision be reached first concerning street widening. Members of the association discussed the question, some expressing opposition to widening the thoroughfare at the expense of sidewalks for pedestrians.

Both street lightning and widening are scheduled to come up for a final vote at a meeting to be held on Wednesday, Sept. 25.

C. C. Wedding is president of the association.

Elgin Better Gardens Club to Have Guest Day Meeting

Guest day will be observed by the Elgin Better Gardens club at a meeting to be held next Wednesday at the residence of Mrs. E. Howard, 110 Slade avenue, Elgin. The program will include an illustrated lecture on "Landscaping, Gardening, and Designing." At a recent meeting of the club Mrs. E. Howard presented a paper on the blue bonnet, the state flower of Texas.

ELMHURST SETS SCHOOL RECORD; 1,656 STUDENTS

Elmhurst elementary schools, under the supervision of V. L. Beggs, city superintendent, opened on Tuesday with the largest enrollment in their history. The total enrollment was 1,656, as compared with 1,495 last year, an increase of 161 pupils.

Hawthorne school heads the list with 461 pupils, while Roosevelt school comes next with 421. The Lincoln school enrolled 339; the Eugene Field school, 262, and the new Washington school, 173.

These figures include the kindergarten attendance at three of the schools.

Committee Works to Make Elgin an Aviation Center

The aviation committee of the Elgin Association of Commerce is beginning work on plans for the promotion of their city as a center for aviation. Problems incidental to the task are being studied. The members of the committee are F. H. McDonald, B. S. Pearsall, Clarence Helm, Myron Wallis, G. C. Gillies and V. E. Showalter.

La Grange Garden Club.

A meeting of the La Grange Garden club was held last Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. T. Rockwood. Members of the club brought plants for the occasion.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

CATHOLICS GIVE TODAY FOR WORK IN FAR CORNERS

Writer Describes Hardships of Missionaries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

This morning in all churches of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago the annual collection sponsored by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be taken up to aid the needy missions throughout the United States and the world.

THE REV. JAMES J. HORSBURG. (Leuscha Photo.)

The Rev. James J. Horsburg is the diocesan director of the propagation society, and his offices are at 755 North State street. Msgr. William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society, explained at St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets, that $10,000 of the fund collected last year was used by the bishop of Alaska to build two small churches for the Eskimos. A part of the collection was also used for the constructing of a seminary in Mississippi, where young colored boys are educated for the priesthood. These were two of the items Msgr. O'Brien mentioned, and he said they were typical of hundreds of other expenses.

Missionary's Life a Hard One.

It may be said that missionaries of all religious denominations suffer untold privation in their fields of endeavor.

The writer saw some of these missionaries at work in the practically unexplored sections of South Africa—at least those portions of the dark continent which are unfrequented by white men.

It was last Palm Sunday that the S. S. Duchess of Atholl of the Canadian Pacific line dropped anchor a mile off the shore at Dar-es-Salaam, which prior to the war was the capital of German East Africa. Slavery existed there until 1919. The country is now a British protectorate.

Ravages of the war were in evidence as the trip in small boats was made toward the Dar-es-Salaam harbor in the intense tropical sunshine.

Capuchinists Hold Service.

Capuchinist fathers were in charge of the economically kept church at Dar-es-Salaam.

The congregation consisted of natives and two colored boys in bare feet assisted as altar boys.

On the altar was a young missionary, Father Joseph Fitzgerald, 32 years old, a Bostonian by birth and a member of the Holy Ghost order. He has been in the missionary field in Africa for three years and his colorless complexion substantiated the fact. Two of his sisters are nuns in a Boston hospital, he told Dr. P. F. Kelleher of Cambridge, Mass., who happened to be a member of the hospital staff and was acquainted with the sisters.

Father Fitzgerald's mission is located forty miles inland from Dar-es-Salaam, in the heart of the big game country. Illness had forced him at the time of our meeting to procure medical aid at the seashore town.

Finds Mohammedanism Popular.

Father Fitzgerald, who said he was content with his work, stated in a joking manner that the first 100 years in the tropics are the hardest. Mohammedanism and other isms, he said, prove attractive religions to natives in Africa because they are able to select what they wish and discard any treachments that would curb their secret and ofttime obnoxious practices.

MAYOR CHARLES H. GREENE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The association is to be governed by a committee composed of the mayors of the cities and villages of the county. Mayor Charles H. Greene of Aurora was chosen chairman and Ald. Harry Duffy of Batavia secretary.

Two other committees were also selected, the first having to do with engineering and to be made up of M. H. Brightman, Elgin; Walter Deuchler, Aurora; Roy Wells, Batavia, and Victor H. Kasser, Elgin; and the other, which will be concerned with legal affairs, to be composed of Emil Benson, Batavia; John P. Hart, Aurora; Leonard Meade, Geneva; Pierce Tyrell, Elgin, and R. D. Metcalf, St. Charles.

Another objective of the organization will be the future rerouting of state highways through cities so that they will not pass through busy districts.

FADA presents.. VIBRA-CONTROL ..the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the

1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.

VIBRA-CONTROL FADA 35 HIGHBOY $245 LESS TUBES

Uses screen grid and new 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification, with Fada Pre-Selector for sharpest selectivity. Fada full-power dynamic speaker. Equipped for phonograph attachment.

Fada radios are priced from $99.50 to $675.

"Because Fada output is necessarily limited, we suggest an immediate hearing of this revolutionary step in musical reproduction at your nearest Fada dealer."

TAXPAYERS O. K. SIX WEST SIDE IMPROVEMENTS

Projects to Be Rushed for Spring Work.

Property owners of the west side approved six of seven projects at the latest public hearing of the board of local improvements in the city hall. The six improvements ordered by the board include two paving jobs, three new sewer systems, and one water supply pipe.

The improvements will be paid for by special assessment on property owners and the tax will be spread immediately and approval of the county court sought, in order that contracts may be awarded in time for the work to be done early next spring.

Crawford Project Dropped.

The only project abandoned by the board was the resurfacing of Crawford avenue from Irving Park boulevard to Milwaukee avenue. Property owners on Crawford avenue opposed the $112,- 000 proposed improvement on the ground that the benefit would not justify the expenditure.

The two paving jobs for the west side ordered by the board will cost approximately $25,000. The paving of Keating avenue from Foster to Winnemac avenue with asphalt will cost $10,000, the remainder to be used in paving Kilbourn avenue between Lake street and Carroll avenue. The Kilbourn avenue pavement will be concrete.

Three Sewers Approved.

The three new tile sewer systems will cost $20,000. The largest of these will be built in Odell avenue from Bryn Mawr to Talcott avenues; in Olive avenue from North Harlem to Odell avenues; and in North Harlem avenue from Bryn Mawr avenue to a line 130 feet north. The system will cost $14,000.

A $3,000 sewer system was approved for the Forest Glen district. The pipes will extend in North Lawler avenue from Langlade avenue to the first alley west of North Lamon avenue; in Bryn Mawr avenue from North Lamon avenue to the first alley west; and in North Lamon avenue from Bryn Mawr to Catalpa avenues.

The third sewer system will extend in Neva avenue from Albion to Hayes avenues and in Hayes avenue to Neva avenue.

A water supply pipe will be built in Ionia avenue from Tonty to Fitch avenues and in Fitch avenue from Ionia to North Mason avenues. It will cost approximately $6,720.

BASKET PICNIC TO BE HELD BY KELVYN GROVE

In celebration of the second anniversary of the Kelvyn Grove Improvement association, residents of the community will hold an outing and basket picnic today in Caldwell woods, near the end of the Milwaukee avenue street car line.

The program will include two baseball games, horseshoe contests for the members of the women's auxiliary, games and stunts for men, women, boys and girls. Prizes will be given to the winners in each event.

Ladies' Aid Meets.

Mrs. Anna Jetson, Mrs. Clara Erickson, Mrs. Hulma Holmquist, and Mrs. Matilda Holmes were hostesses at the last meeting of the Ladies' society of the Irving Park Lutheran church.

BROADCASTING TODAY ENTERS ITS NINTH YEAR

It's a Far Cry to Early Programs, However.

Radio broadcasting today, will enter upon its ninth year. It has been such a far cry from the crystal set which was so popular in those early days to the modern electric receiver which represents the latest in engineering ingenuity, that it is hard to realize that only eight years have elapsed since the first radio broadcasting station was licensed.

The first program broadcasting license in this country was granted to station WBZ of the Westinghouse company at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 1921. The second license was issued to WBY, of the Radio Corporation of America, at Rochelle, N. Y. Four days later, the third was granted to WJZ, then operated by the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., and the fourth to KDKA, of the Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, 1921.

To KDKA, however, goes the distinction of being the pioneer station inasmuch as it broadcast programs experimentally long before it or the other stations were granted governmental licenses.

Broadcasting Makes History.

Since that time the history of broadcasting has virtually been the history of our country. Most of the great events which have transpired have been given directly to the people through this medium. In reviewing these occasions one runs across:

Harding-Cox presidential returns announced by Station KDKA, Nov. 4, 1920.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight, July 4, 1921.

Beginning of broadcasting of world series baseball games in October, 1921.

Funeral service of former President Harding, August, 1923.

Blow by Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas," knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo grounds in New York city, Sept. 14, 1923, caught by ringside microphone and heard a thousand miles away.

Last public appearance of former President Wilson at the Armistice day celebration in the Arlington National cemetery, Nov. 11, 1923.

Wilson's Funeral Service.

Funeral services of former President Woodrow Wilson from Washington cathedral, February, 1924.

Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1924.

Program incident to the inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, March 4, 1925.

Reception to Col. Charles Lindbergh in Washington, D. C., June 11, 1927, and in New York two days later, broke all previous hookup records with 50 stations in the net.

On Sunday, July 24, 1927, this country joined with a Canadian broadcast for the first time and again all records were shattered—53 stations simultaneously transmitting a religious program.

During the ceremonies incident to the opening of the International Peace bridge at Buffalo, the voice of the Prince of Wales was broadcast in the United States, Aug. 7, 1927.

In June, 1928, full meetings of the Republican and Democratic national conventions were transmitted from Kansas City and Houston, Texas, respectively. National coverage was maintained by two huge networks for several days.

On March 4, 1929, a complete description of the inaugural of President Herbert Hoover from the time the party left the Hoover home in S street until the parade was completed late in the afternoon, was given the nation by two networks of stations.

COMPILE LIST OF 3,500 WORLD RADIO STATIONS

There are approximately 3,500 radio stations above 6,000 kilocycles in the world at present, according to a complete list just compiled by G. Colby Blackwell of the engineering staff of the radio commission. Of this number there are between 1,500 and 1,600 of such stations, including the numerous experimental transmitters, in the United States. Monthly supplements to the list will be issued.

The information was obtained in the case of the United States from the latest records of the commission, while the foreign stations were recorded from list No. 5 of the frequencies published by the International Bureau of the Telegraph union at Berne, Switzerland.

Radio to Aid Flyers on Washington-Miami Route

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Fifteen powerful radio stations, to be operated for the benefit of airplane pilots, will be constructed by the federal government between Washington and Miami, and Houston, it was stated recently by George D. Barr, assistant airways engineer of the U. S. department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

A GREAT expense in radio advertising—over the chains—is the cost of the telephone lines between the stations. This has been circumvented by some concerns who make phonograph records of a half hour's program, including the music, the announcements and the advertising, and then ship the records to the stations in selected parts of the country. Out of that has come the question as to whether good music, recorded on disks, can be picked up in clear and full toned fashion from the phonograph appartus for transmission into the air; the chain salesmen, who send their music from New York over the telephone wires direct to the transmitters in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, etc., say it cannot. But, no matter——

Now an organization has been formed which will record programs on sound films, like the talking movies. The films will record sound only, not pictures, to be broadcast in English and translated into other languages, and then shipped to radio stations over the world. The officials claim, "Our device makes recordings of programs perfect in tone and quality, eliminating blasts and imperfections which often occur when the natural voice is used through a microphone. The reproducer can be plugged into the station's control amplifier. When the film is started the program will go out on the air. No wires are used in this network. Each film will be released to the broadcasters on certain dates.

THE NEWEST gag among the broadcasters is to announce that Mr. So-and-So had a wad of world series tickets, if the public will only write to him. We recall how we were plagued before the Army and Navy game in 1926, when Messrs. Carrell and Gosden used to announce every night over the air that we had a load of tickets we were anxious to get rid of, and what our home telephone number was, and that it was best to call us about seven in the morning!

THE DEPARTMENT of commerce states that two hundred million radio sets would be required to provide radio facilities for all the people in the world within range of broadcasting stations

That's just fourteen less than there are in our building every forenoon when we're trying to sleep.

A NEW collegiate talkie called "Sophomore" give the radio announcers another rap. Graham MacNamee, in particular, gets the razz, and undeservedly, we think.

A football announcer named McAfee is heard describing the gridiron conflict: "Gee, folks, you ought to be here. . . . Hanford has the ball. . . . No, just a minute—no—yes—Hanford has the ball—no, beg pardon, Colton has the ball—no, it is Hanford's ball after all—well, we all make mistakes, don't we? That's why they put erasers on the end of pencils."

MANY RADIO devotees ask, "How does one break into radio?" and "How did you happen to get into it?"

Well, almost every one breaks in accidentally or casually, and we did, too.

"What did you do before you got into radio?" some will inquire. Well, during our third year at Northwestern, in Evanston, we were contributing quips and verse almost daily to the "Line" on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE, then conducted by the late Bert Leston Taylor—"B. L. T." Our burning ambition was to run a newspaper column, as we were doing on the college paper. We tried to "make the Line" every day, and we darned near did.

We frittered away most of our college hours rehearsing plays, singing in shows, composing sketches for the magazines and in other extra curriculum pursuits. Our frequent contributions to the paper gained us an admission to the city editor, just at the time when we knew there was an opening for a campus correspondent. So for many weeks we turned in yarns of campus engagements and frolics and initiations. Then we braced the city ed. for a part time job as a regular reporter, and for a whole year, while attending classes in the forenoon, we performed all the clumsy and comical duties of the fuzzy cub reporter. Seeking to wander farther afield, we took up football assignments in the fall, under the direction of that grand old gent, Harvey T. Woodruff, who was then sports editor.

And so on—writing book reviews for Burton Rascoe, then literary editor of THE TRIBUNE—jumping into the advertising department to write ads and start the paper's house organ, "The Trib," in 1919—and still going to classes in Evanston. Our year was '20.

One day we happened to review in the paper a small book of comedy written by J. P. McEvoy and illustrated by Frank King. McEvoy was editor of a publishing house turning out greeting cards and junvenile books. He was later to write "The Potters" for this newspaper, and King was just starting "Gasoline Alley." Nowadays you know McEvoy as author of "Show Girl" in Liberty and librettist of the Ziegfeld Follies in recent years.

He offered us a post, writing and editing the thousands of verses and jingles you read on Christmas, birthday and Mother's day greeting cards. Because we had doted for so long on his work as a columnist in the papers, we leaped at the chance. After three years of pleasant association with McEvoy and illuminating contacts in the publishing and theatrical worlds, we left to start a column of humor and verse on the sports pages of another

Chicago morning newspaper. Another year rolled by.

In 1921 and 1922 we were hearing of people who owned these gadgets called radios. A tinkering lad put earphones on our head one summer evening and we heard a likable announcer—we know not who it was—introducing piano selections from a loop department store. We put down the earphones and never listened to a radio set again. We gave radio and its accelerating progress no more thought than we would to astral chemistry.

The summer of 1923 came along. W. K. Hollander, the publicity chief of a local chain of theaters, commissioned us to write a weekly show for the radio, welding together and introducing all of the talent present that week in the local theater—including the complete symphonoy orchestra, an hour long broadcast over Station WMAQ direct from the theater. That, so far as we know, was the first "continuity" written for the air in Chicago. We put as much effort in composing the scenario as we would into the Follies; many of the shows were done entirely in verse. But, after the shows were written, there was nobody to recite them in the rôle of announcer. So Bill spoofed us into the job of announcer.

It fascinated us from the start. The mystery of it, the dramatics, the mail from the listeners and the wide audience it gave to the material of an aspiring columnist, all made us hungry for more. We jumped in, feet first, then. Station WLS was opening with a great fanfare, in the spring of 1924, and we were the announcer. Then came W-G-N, in the same spring, and we moved to the new TRIBUNE station. "Radio Announcer Bares Life Secrets."

Were it not for the fact that it would sound silly, we would remark that there is no more engrossing and engaging business in the world. It is a job in which we revel, in its infinite variety. Every queer activity we ever engaged in we now find helps us in radio—college dramatics and glee club goings-on, newspaper reporting, sports writing, column conducting, book reviewing, children's book publishing and advertising soliciting. In the first three years we never took a day off. There was a time when we handled all the broadcasts from nine in the morning until after midnight. And many's the night we slept in the studio.

It's been alluring work and great fun. It has taken us from coast to coast—to the choicest football games every week in the fall; to the world series ball games; to the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] in Tennessee, in 1925; to a half dozen Kentucky Derbies and Indianapolis auto races; to Calvin Coolidge's office in the White House and the floor of the senate chamber in Washington; to the Republican and Democratic conventions; to ringsides and vaudeville stages and movietone studios.

But this story's getting too long—Toodle-OO!

Seeks "Most Beautiful Artist" Title.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting company, in the radio world's fair "most beautiful feminine radio artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF, New York. She is a soprano.

To Radio from Stage.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera company and other broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months, it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of New Moon, a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries from Many Stations.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from several hundred radio stations in many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the radio world's fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the entire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

U. S. EXPERT TO STUDY AVIATION'S NEED OF RADIO

That the radio commission has taken an active interest in the problem of applying radio communication to aviation is indicated in a letter sent to Gerald C. Gross, commission engineer, just before he sailed, together with Commissioner Charles McK. Saltzman, for The Hague to attend the conference of the international consulting technical committee on radio communications.

The commission directed the engineer to make an inspection of the leading aviation fields in Europe at the close of The Hague parley "for the purpose of making an engineering study of current European pratices with respect to radio communication for aviation."

[A STATEMENT BY ALFRED H. GREBE . . .]
In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.
When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."
At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised,—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.
I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?
Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

MAKERS OF FINE PRECISION RADIO INSTRUMENTS SINCE 1909

To that small but discriminating group who are interested in the finer things of life, we present the new Screen-Grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

● . . . a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument . . . a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on prevision . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

VISION TO SERVE RAISES CHURCH FROM DEATHBED

Meets Needs of New Folk in Yards.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

THE REV. WARREN N. CLARK.

When the Rev. Warren N. Clark, a student in Garrett Biblical institute, became pastor of the 47th Street Methodist church seventeen years ago, he found the institution confronting a discouraging and difficult problem. The church was rich enough in tradition. One of its organizers back in 1881 had been G. F. Swift, the packer. A splendid edifice had been erected at 47th street and Marshfield avenue. Exceptional leadership had been enjoyed in the list of pastors. But extensive tides of immigration had caused the membership to move farther south and west, leaving the church surrounded by newcomers.

The condition was not unusual in the swift changes in the development of Chicago. In 1912 the 47th street church had such a scant constituency that there was talk of abandoning it. It was a case of adjustment or death.

Visions a New Frontier.

The Rev. Mr. Clark had come from Kansas with its far horizons and great open spaces—the old frontier, which he realized had been an important force in the shaping of American life. In the field in which he found himself he visioned the new frontier—a great immigrant industrial community which would determine what America was to be during the next fifty or 100 years.

A survey was made of the parish which showed the center of the Sunday school membership within a block of West 50th and South Honore streets just across from Cornell square. The phrase community church was not, but the idea was dawning. In 1911 the 47th street church property was sold and the work of the organization taken up at 50th and Honore streets with a new plant, dedicated in 1916, now called the Community Methodist Episcopal church.

From a neighborhood church of the conventional type, a change was made to a seven day a week program of social and recreational as well as religious activities. The Rev. Mr. Clark has been in charge of the new work these last fourteen years. The plant includes a chapel, gymnasium hall, recreational parlor and classrooms. It appealed from the start and the success of the project has gone beyond all expectations.

Active in Community Council.

The church is one of the coöperating organizations of the Stock Yards Community council, which is rather an extension of the idea. The Rev. Mr. Clark is chairman of the council and chairman of the advisory committee of the Stock Yards United Charities.

In the district are forty nationalities facing the task of learning to live, to work and to play together. Coöperating with some 28 other organizations of various denominations, the Community Methodist Episcopal church has not lacked in an opportunity for service. Thus the old 47th street church did not die. It took note of the principle of biology, when a change in environment takes place, and adjusted instead. A church might not be able to bring in people by ringing a bell, but it could find out the needs of a people and minister to them.

The church conducts one of the largest vacation schools in the city. Emphasis is placed on the social and week day services. One of the features of the Sunday program is a service conducted by the children, who have their own ritual, their own choir, and listen to a story sermon by the pastor.

Gangs in Gymnasium Work.

A feature peculiar to this church is that the work of the gymnasium is not conducted by classes, but by "gangs."

"Gangs," says the Rev. Mr. Clark, "spring up as naturally as grass out of the ground. Their cause is self-preservation as well as the gregarious instinct. Ten years ago we began to test whether or not the gang could be supervised as a gang so the product would be for good instead of evil. Some fifteen gangs meet at the center throughout the winter months. Their favorite sport is basketball.

"I don't believe in the gymnasium as a bait to get boys into the Sunday school. You can catch fish with bait, perhaps, but people have a way of taking the bait and leaving the hook.

"In the shift from types of industry that once gave boys an opportunity for full muscular development; the worker now very often has tasks that bring few muscles into play. Athletics have become essential. But we don't stop there. We say, 'This is but part of life, and there is more—the spiritual, the moral and the intellectual.'"

Analyses City's Population.

The Rev. Mr. Clark cites the reason why many of the churches, of the sort of which he found himself pastor have a difficult problem, as told by recent statistics.

"The figures show," he says, "that 58 out of every 100 persons in Chicago are foreign born, 42 out of every 100 children are those of foreign born parents, four per cent are Negroes, leaving 25 per cent of native stock.

"No wonder," he adds, "that a church started as was the 47th street

Begin Repair Work on Hale, Peck Schools

Work on the rehabilitation of Peck school, 58th street and Springfield avenue, and Hale school, 62d street and Linder avenue, will be started this week, according to an announcement from the office of H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education.

In the meantime, however, residents of the communities in which these schools are located are expressing dissatisfaction in regard to the present confusion which is caused by the temporary disposition of the pupils of both schools.

Pupils Are Dismissed.

At the Hale school more than 600 pupils, who registered there at the beginning of the school term, merely attend a roll call each morning and then are dismissed after a brief period. This condition is caused by the fact that the eleven portable classrooms, which have been erected on the school grounds for the use of the pupils of the school until the building is once more declared safe, have not been furnished with the necessary sanitary conveniences. According to F. C. Donecker, principal of the school it is not known when the children will be allowed the use of the portables, but they are nearing completion.

More than 950 children, who registered at the Peck school at the beginning of the term, now attend the Tonti school, 58th street and Turner avenue, from 12:15 to 4:40 every afternoon. The 1,061 pupils, who regularly attend the Peck school, are compelled to attend classes from 8 to 12 o'clock each morning.

Tell of Board's Promise.

According to the parents of the Peck school children, officials of the board of education promised that portables would be ready at the beginning of the school year to accommodate the pupils of the school until the rehabilitation work was completed. The officials of the board have not kept their promise and the parents of the pupils are objecting to the long walk the children are compelled to take to reach the Tonti school. They are also objecting to the irregular hours during which their children must attend classes.

A meeting of the South Hamlin avenue and Vicinity Property Owners association was held Monday evening at the Chicago Lawn Masonic temple, 62d place and Homan avenue, to discuss the problem and to appoint a committee to meet with the officials of the board and determine when the portables for the Peck school would be constructed and when the portables for the Hale school would be ready for occupancy. William F. Stelzer, president of the association, was chairman of the meeting.

Ready in November.

Neither the Hale nor the Peck school would be ready until the latter part of November, the announcement from Mr. Caldwell's office stated.

The two schools were declared unsafe last spring through tests made by L. E. Ritter, I. F. Stern and D. B. Rush, consulting engineers employed by the board of education at that time. These reports were confirmed by Paul Gerhardt, architect for the board, on Aug. 15 after he had made a series of tests throughout the summer months.

According to the consulting engineers' report, all parts of the roofs on both buildings, with the exception of those over the corridors, are weak, and girders under the assembly halls and gymnasiums and some joists on the first floors are held to be unsafe.

ST. RITA PARISH CARNIVAL SHOWS BOOM IN TRADE

One of the outstanding features of the carnival which is being sponsored by the members of the St. Rita parish at 63d street and Western avenue, will be a pageant illustrating the business program of Marquette Manor. The carnival opened Tuesday evening and will continue each night until Sept. 20. Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th] is chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration, while the Rev. J. F. Green, pastor of St. Rita's church, is sponsor of the affair.

Other members of the arrangements committee are: Albert Howe, Charles Zofkie, Mrs. M. J. Coppinger, Mrs. Fred Amend, Mrs. P. J. Lawler, Mrs. J. R. Cook, and F. J. Smill.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

MR. IRVIN PETER KLINK, the popular proprietor of Klink's pharmacy at 73d and Bennett, is more popular since he stretched his soda fountain to 26 feet last May. But some of his popularity is now being shared by Virginia, his 8 months old daughter, who spends quite a bit of her time watching the grown-ups guzzle her dad's sodas, waiting for a chance when she will be a bit older and can enjoy them herself.

George R. Du Bois of 6734 Chappel avenue keeps such an eagle eye on our townsfolk that we have about decided to appoint him second assistant pumper at the village well. George pinch hits for our first assistant, Zimmie, and records many items of interest for our readers. He, like Zimmie, sports a Chinese license on the rear of his car, and evokes curious remarks from bystanders.

LABOR day was made immeasurably brighter by our meeting the witty Mr. Paul J. O'Connell galloping down the Midway. P. J. informed us he had taken Labor day literally by actually working all day. The enlightened will readily recall Paul, who, when not engaged in persuading the Hyde Park citizenry that the Hotel Del Prado laundry "does it better," operates a paying division of Mr. Langford's big hostelry on the Midway. Despite all the years that have rolled by, Paul has more pep than most of the younger bucks and his cheery smile is just as infectious as of yore.

Harry H. Dickey of 6929 Vernon avenue is the next golf champ at the federal reserve bank, if what we hear from Dame Rumor is reliable. Harry, the popular note teller at the impregnable institution, is being groomed at Shoop's course, up in Racine, the course made famous by Shoop's restorative, and is in fine fettle to enter the bank's annual jousts on Columbus day. Each week-end Harry and his strawberry shortcake spouse, Grace, motor up to Wisconsin, under the guidance of Fred Klopfer, the 61st street champion, and take the natives of Racine for a merry trimming. Well, Harry, it won't be long now. If you paste the pellet with the same musical sweetness as when you tickle that clarinet of yours in Medinah's band, the first prize is yours. We're pulling for you.

CLIFFORD P. FOX, the inspired Franklin dealer at 4746 Cottage Grove avenue, is seldom found at his Chicago address these lovely days. Clif, when home, can be located at 553 East 60th. Most of the time, however, he's resting with a book of verse and a jug of—lemonade and—thou, underneath the boughs out at Flint lake, Indiana. He's got SOME summer home out there, and we don't blame him for spending the melancholy days in Hoosierdom.

Mr. Edward L. Wilbur of 519 W. Marquette road [no phone] is singing "Rose Colored Glasses" these days, what with buying a Dodge [new?] and being elected assistant cashier of the I.-C. Bank and Trust company at 53rd and Lake Park avenue. Eddie hopes all this good fortune will sort of discourage the boils he's had lately, same not being so pleasant when they arrive in twins and triplets.

WILLIAM BIRRELL, the eminent disciple of Richard Wagner, and who is reported to be the best piano tuner in Roseland, tunes pianofortes only a few days a week now. He's bought himself a summer home in De Motte, Ill., and hies him to that place several times each week. Bill tunes himself in with the infinite, preferring to enjoy the rhapsodies of mother nature in the country, to the tuning of recalcitrant musical instruments. Be that as it may, the urge for self preservation still remains the first law of nature, and he can be found at the family residence at 66 West 112th place when necessary.

Improvement Association Plans Larger Membership

The Princeton Improvement association will meet tomorrow evening in the Seventh Day Adventist church, 60th place and Princeton avenue. This will be the first meeting of the fall season. It is proposed to enlarge the territory covered by the association to include that lying between 57th and 63d streets and from Stewart avenue to the Rock Island tracks, to permit a larger membership. Charles F. Shean is president of the group.

Governor Buys Painting by South Side Artist

"Autumn Among the Hills," a painting by Lucie Hartrath of the Drexel Arms hotel, has been purchased by Gov. Emmerson to hang in the permanent exhibition at the state capitol in Springfield. The governor saw the picture in the All-Illinois Artists' society exhibit at the state fair. A number of Miss Hartrath's paintings hang in Chicago schools.

Wait 30 Years Before Going on Honeymoon

"A honeymoon thirty years after marriage" is the experience of the Rev. Dr. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, and Mrs. Thomas. They are back in Chicago after a four month tour of Europe and tell among other things of a private audience with Pope Pius.

THE REV. G. H. THOMAS.

Explaining his label of the tour, Dr. Thomas said at the time he was married he could not afford to take a honeymoon. Parish and family duties continued to delay the prospective tour until this spring, when the south side rector and his wife found themselves sufficiently free from their duties and cares to launch upon the long delayed trip. Both are high in their praise of such a plan of delaying the honeymoon until success had crowned the matrimonial years.

Praise for Mussolini.

Discussing economic conditions in Europe, Dr. Thomas commended highly the work of Premier Mussolini, the Italian dictator. Mussolini has transformed Italy into a busy, humming country, the rector stated, adding: "He has instilled a new sprightliness into the Italian people; he has eliminated unemployment and is rapidly solving the economic problems of the country."

The question of "Who caused the war?" is still uppermost in the minds of Germans, Dr. Thomas found. Dr. Thomas believed France is in the best economic condition of any of the European nations. Disarmament, he said, seems a farce when it is realized that France continues to maintain a standing army of a million men.

England Still Suffers.

England's position on the war debt settlement was commended by Dr. Thomas, who said that the English people are suffering probably more than any other as a result of the world war.

The European honeymoon "thirty years after" was declared a great success by both Dr. and Mrs. Thomas. Last spring Dr. Thomas declined election as bishop of Wyoming, tendered by the Episcopal House of Bishops.

Wreck City's Oldest House; Lincoln Once a Guest There

Seven years or so after Chicago made its corporate bow as a village workmen laid the foundations for a country home three or four miles to the south of the swampy hamlet.

A fine brick house was built, a house that was proud of itself and the pride of its builders, a house that through the years witnessed many changes, gave its hospitality to many noted guests.

Lincoln, tradition has it, sat on its wide front porch in later years and looked out at the lake through the cottonwood trees. Stephen A. Douglas, whose estate was farther south, was a frequent visitor. James Long, who constructed the city's first water system, was its tenant for many years.

Stands Through Fire and Wars.

It stood through the fateful days of the civil war and emerged from the great fire, little the worse, to become a landmark to the travelers over the Cottage Grove line. World's fair visitors noted it as they passed on south, returning soldiers from the Spanish-American war thought of it as one more sign of home.

It saw Chicago rise from a prairie settlement to the third largest city in the world. It saw stone and steel replace the frame structures that first were built around it. It saw neighborhoods change and other buildings fall under the wrecker's ax, but was itself untouchable.

Until September, 1929. Approaching its ninetieth year and the old brick house at 2432 Cottage Grove avenue, the oldest house in Chicago, with all its traditions and all its memories, was razed.

Near Buena Vista in Early Years.

James Long, who made the old brick house his home for the longest period of any of its tenants, came to live in it in 1850. At that time its number was 128 Cottage Grove avenue, "near Buena Vista." He was born in Maryland and was engaged for some time in publishing an anti-slavery paper with William Lloyd Garrison in New York. He came to Chicago with his wife and daughter Frances Maria, then five years old, living first in a home facing on Dearborn park, where the public library now stands. Frances Maria later married Joseph N. Barker, a Chicago attorney.

It was while he lived in the house that Lincoln and Douglas are said to have been its guests. He was a member of the city council for several years and built the hydraulic mills at the northeast corner of Lake street and Michigan avenue which manufactured flour.

Laid Water Mains of Logs.

The surplus power of the mill was used for pumping water from Lake Michigan. The water was forced through log pipes which were bored in the mill and laid by him in the principal streets of the town. Previous to this people were supplied with drinking water by men who brought it in casks from the lake and distributed it in buckets to their patrons.

But not very long. Charles H. Palmer, national superintendent at the time for the Christian Commercial Traveling Men's association, distributors of the Gideon Bibles, was its tenant for fifteen years and died there, murmuring, "God save the traveling men," with his last breath.

And the house still stood. An occasional family found lodging there. John Burke was its final tenant.

Y. M. C. A. CHORUS TO REHEARSE FOR AUTUMN CONCERT

Members of the 111th Street Y. M. C. A. chorus will start rehearsing tomorrow evening for their annual fall concert. This community chorus, which is under the direction of Wallace B. Graham, will take up Mendelssohn's "Elijah" for presentation in November.

The "Messiah," which was presented twice last year by the organization, will be repeated next Christmas, according to Director Graham. The remainder of the year will be spent on the study of new works.

E. AUBURN PARK GROUP TO URGE STREET REPAIRS

Means of improving the condition of neighborhood streets will be the principal subject of discussion at the opening meeting of the East Auburn Park Improvement association on Tuesday, Oct. 8, according to Dr. Frank G. Douglass, president.

A petition has been presented to the department of public works concerning the condition of Normal and Eggleston avenues and Winneconna parkway and a campaign is under way among local property owners to obtain 100 per cent backing for the proposed repaving of these streets.

The question of restricting the territory will also be raised at the meeting, Dr. Douglass said.

Officers of the association, besides Dr. Douglass, are: A. C. Cussman, vice president; Harry Tarant, secretary, and Dr. S. A. Waterman, treasurer.

South Side P.-T. Publicity Group to Meet Sept. 23

The fall meeting of the publicity department of the south side council of Parent-Teacher associations, will be held at Morrill school, 6011 South Rockwell street, on Monday afternoon, Sept. 23. Delegates from sixty schools are expected. Mrs. H. I. Gentine, 4525 South Sawyer avenue, is chairman of the department.

15TH WARD VETERANS TAKE ACTIVE PART IN SERVICE CONVENTION

Among the 27b delegates attending the first annual convention of the Service Men's league on Sept. 6 at the Hotel La Salle were the representatives of the 15th ward division of the league.

EMMETT J. GRADY.

The delegation, consisting of officers and members of the executive committee, was headed by Emmett J. Grady, 6159 South Washtenaw avenue, chairman. Officers of the 15th ward division, besides Mr. Grady who attended the convention, included Allen Moynihan, first vice chairman; John Ebermain, second vice chairman; Andrew Schultez, secretary; John McInerney, treasurer; Walter Rodle, publicity chairman, and George Vana, membership chairman.

Members of the executive committee present were John Dekoker Jr., Dr. Edward Soukup, William McAndrew, Arthur Guedel, Andrew Grady, Walter Klode, Walter Zippman, Robert Mautner, Henry Sikorski, Sig Nothhelfer, Edward Walsh, Joseph Sweeney, A. D. Selton, Dr. Benedict Aron, Paul Koch, and Constantine Petropoulous.

Emmett Grady summarized the activities of the convention as follows: "Consolidation of the Illinois Republican service men was completed, enabling service men who are Republican party adherents to take an active part politically without taking the American Legion into politics."

State officers of the league, elected for four years, are Howard Savage, former national commander of the American Legion, state chairman; Joseph Allen, vice chairman; Maj. Gen. Milton Foreman, treasurer, and Maj. Carlos Ames, national executive committeeman.

Markey Review Reception.

Markey review, Woman's Benefit association will receive members of the Officers' club of the Southtown Fisher district, Thursday evening, at the Orange temple, 68th street and Green street. Mrs. John Fisher, 6548 South Park avenue, is president of the club and will be the guest of honor.

SOUTHWEST SIDE GROUPS UNITE IN TRACTION FIGHT

Seek Lines for Area West of Halsted.

Two problems of major importance to the southwest district are on the slate of the Stock Yards Business and Civic association for the coming season, according to Kaare Krogh, secretary of the organization. The improvement of transportation facilities for the region between 39th and 59th streets from Halsted street west to the city limits is to be urged, and provision for diagonal parking on South Ashland avenue again will be sought, Mr. Krogh said.

Resolutions anent these matters are to be submitted to the city council this week as a result of a decision reached in the latest meeting of the board of directors on Sept. 6. Both resolutions are duplicates of petitions presented to the council earlier in the season which have received no official recognition. The association feels that the urgency of these measures demands that pressure be brought to bear immediately, and results obtained with the utmost dispatch.

Backed by Other Groups.

The 51st Street Business Men's association and the West End Business Men's association are joining the Stock Yards association in protesting against an arrangement of transportation lines which virtually isolates the business sections west of Halsted street. A half mile break in the surface lines on 47th street between Kedzie and Archer avenues cuts off purchasers on the west from the stores at Ashland avenue and 47th street. The present rapid transit system is entirely inadequate, since it terminates in the northeast section of the stockyards district.

The resolution of the association embodies all the changes necessary to remedy this condition.

1. Building of the Mid City Elevated line along Ashland avenue, but not on Ashland avenue.

2. Extension of 47th street car line from Kedzie avenue to Archer avenue.

3. Rerouting of the Damen avenue car line so that the cars may turn east on 47th street, then north on Ashland avenue, so that a direct hookup with the stockyards and the central manufacturing district, the west side or downtown may be obtained.

4. Extension of the 51st street car line from Kedzie avenue to Archer avenue, and from Calumet to Cottage Grove avenue.

Plenty of Space to Park.

Not less essential to business interests in the South Ashland avenue district is the repeal of the recent city ordinance against diagonal parking in the Chicago area.

"Diagonal parking is a tradition in our neighborhood," Mr. Krogh said. "There is plenty of space for diagonal parking where Ashland avenue has been widened south of 47th street, and when a customer comes out and finds a ticket on his car he is bound to feel angry. Property owners on the street have been assessed to have Ashland avenue widened and they prefer to have the extra space used for parking shoppers' cars rather than as a speedway for drivers going through the streets at forty miles an hour."

The resolution, which stresses the increased space and the greater facility attendant on diagonal parking, as well as its entire practicality in the Ashland avenue district, was rejected in a previous session of the city council, and the 500 members of the association are unanimous in the decision to register their protest a second time.

Demand Ashland Widening.

Other projects of importance which the association will work on this winter include the widening of Ashland avenue north of 47th street, which has been held up for the last three years. Efforts are being made to insure the measure's inclusion in the next bond issue. A community theater to be opened shortly is being sponsored as a means of drawing outsiders to the district. Increasing the number of Boy Scout troops in the neighborhood is another interest of the association. According to Mr. Krogh, only 1,500 of the 30,000 boys of scout age are now enrolled as scouts, and the association is coöperating with every church, park, and school in the vicinity in order to reach these boys.

The association meets weekly at luncheon in its quarters on the third floor of the Depositors State bank building, 47th street and Ashland avenue. In addition to the large directors' room there is space for several billiard and card tables where more informal meetings take place. Officers of the association, besides Mr. Krogh, include H. O. Rosenberg, president; J. J. Reiter, Edward Klinenberg, S. Goldstein, and E. H. Golk, vice presidents; G. T. Kuzel, treasurer; Otto Buetler, counselor.

Directors of the association are R. D. Mathias, chairman of the board; J. N. Atkins, Z. Basinski, C. L. Blackman, J. A. Calek, George F. Florey, J. Gordon, A. Heinemann, R. L. Hunter, B. R. Kozlowski, H. C. Laycock, Ben Paszkiewicz, P. O. Peemueller, A. J. Pierzynski, Al Podborny, Stanley Sekulski, Frank Stern, Mathew White, A. J. Wlodarski, B. Zaleski.

Ex-officio members of the board of directors are H. O. Rosenberg, J. J. Reiter, Edward Klinenberg, S. Goldstein, E. H. Golk, Kaare Krogh, and George T. Kuzel.

SEEK $300,000 HERE TO RELIEVE ARABS' VICTIMS

Hadassah to Start Drive Tuesday Night.

Immediate relief for more than 4,500 Jewish families left destitute in Palestine as a result of the recent religious conflict will be sought by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. A campaign to raise $300,000, which is Chicago's quota in a national drive for $2,000,000, will be launched at a meeting of the 3,500 members of the local group Tuesday afternoon at the new Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street.

MRS. BERTHA READ

According to Miss Pearl Franklin, president of the chapter and first vice president of the national organization, in these critical days the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine, which was founded by the women's Zionist order in 1922, finds itself taxed to its capacity.

Describes Suffering of People.

Thousands of men, women and children are destitute and lack food, shelter, and clothing, she said. Sanitary conditions are bad. Large numbers of people are crowded together, sickness is increasing and epidemics are imminent. She pointed out that the Hadassah medical organization is thus far administering the relief work in all sections of Palestine. Jew, Christian and Arab are being treated by this organization without discrimination as to race or color.

"The great need of the suffering in Palestine impels Hadassah to make a plea for immediate funds in this great emergency," Miss Franklin said. "The generous attitude of the Jewish men and women of Chicago in past emergencies makes us feel that the $300,000 which has been set as our quota will seem small compared to the actual amount we hope to receive."

Expected to Praise British.

At the meeting Tuesday Mrs. Bertha Read will tell of the events leading up to the present disturbances in Palestine. Resolutions are expected to be passed by the members of the chapter commending the British government for the interest it has taken in regard to the affairs in Palestine, but stating that the British officials in that territory were incompetent and that they should be replaced by able persons in the near future, Miss Franklin said.

Officers of the local organization in addition to Miss Franklin are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Bertha Read, Mrs. Harry Berkman, Mrs. S. H. Soboroff; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Callner; financial secretary, Mrs. George Golinken; recording secretary, Mrs. Moses B. Levin; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Messinger; treasurer of the tithe, Mrs. David Brenner; and recorder of tithe, Mrs. E. A. Rubenstein.

Presidents of the Hadassah chapters in the various districts of Chicago are: North shore, Mrs. Harry M. Fisher; south side, Mrs. Martin Marmont; Lawndale, Mrs. William Weinberg; northwest, Mrs. Harry Schoolman; Albany Park, Mrs. Harry Wexler; west suburban, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox; and downtown, Miss Lillian Franklin.

CLASS AT PARKER AIDS PUPILS TO BE AIR MINDED

New Course Offered to Boost Flying.

A departure from the hide-bound school, 6800 Stewart avenue. Many this year at Parker Senior High school, 6800 Stewart avenue. Mony Chicago high schools have courses in which students are taught the science and construction of airplanes, or given some ground work in flying, but it remained for the Parker High to introduce a course in "air-mindedness."

According to Joseph S. Turek, instructor, the class is intended to develop an interest in aeronautics among the students and to satisfy the demand for information of those already aeronautically inclined.

The hazards attendant on flying will be considered, particularly with reference to weather conditions and the comparatively new science of meteorology, and government regulations for pilots and airports will be studied. No text books are to be used, but information will be obtained from current sources.

The class is open to both boys and girls and thirty-two students are enrolled. They are Fred Church, William Borst, Tom Hoffman, David Wood, Joe Grazaske, Robert Shaffner, Le Grand Van Slyke, Joseph Bowman, Frank Carr, Art Eddington, Jack Kershaw, Kenneth Devlin, Anthony Wagner, Fred Fahenstook, Jonathan Frobiom, Bob Comfort, Paul Brattstrom, William Olson, Harold Meyers, Harry Paradis, Theodore McCartney, Wilbur Martin, Walter O'Leary, Ernest Gleason, Dorothy Gilbert, Charlotte Hall, Margaret Butusov, Dorothy Smith, Marie Baker, Gail Mosier, Rita Dukette, and Miriam Griest.

Much interest has been aroused among parents and faculty as to the results of the experiment.

MARQUETTE P.-T. TO GREET NEW PUPILS' PARENTS

The first fall meeting of the Jacques Marquette Parent-Teacher association will be held in the school auditorium, 66th street and Richmond avenue, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Miss Margaret Wellman of the American Red Cross will speak.

The election of delegates was staged in the nature of a horse race, enlivening the proceedings and providing diversion for the guests.

Arrangements are now being made by "L" post to give a Columbus day party and dance in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 12.

On account of the state convention, the regular meeting of Chipilly post, No. 310, has been postponed from tomorrow night to Monday, Sept. 23.

RUSH 28 MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Paving, Sewers, Water Lines Start in Spring.

All but two of thirty south side projects planned by the board of local improvements were approved at the latest public hearing of the board in the city hall. The property owners of the south side who attended the hearing were opposed to only one improvement—the paving of East 90th street between Commercial and Muskegon avenues. Upon the demands of the property holders, the project was abandoned by the board.

The resurfacing of Eberhart avenue from East 57th to East 55th streets was deferred for one year. Twenty-eight other projects, including eight paving jobs, ten new sewers and ten water supply pipe systems were ordered by the board. All of the improvements are to be paid for by special assessment on the property owners. The tax will be spread immediately and approval of the County court will be sought in order that contracts may be awarded in time for the work to be done early next spring.

Major Project in 15th Ward.

Foremost among the paving jobs ordered is one for a new concrete pavement on four streets in the 15th ward. The work will cost $155,000. The streets to be paved are: South Tripp avenue between 55th and 59th streets; South Kildare and South Kolin avenues between 55th and 57th streets, and 56th street between Tripp and Kostner avenues.

The paving of 55th street between Kostner and Cicero avenues at a cost of $94,700 was another important paving job ordered by the improvement board. The pavement will be concrete and will serve as an extension of the existing through street.

The third largest south side project ordered by the board, to cost approximately $82,000, was the widening of 47th street between St. Lawrence and Ingleside avenues. The roadway is to be widened to 48 feet and will be paved with concrete with the exception of the surface line right of way in the center.

Other Paving Projects.

Other paving jobs approved are as follows:

Paving of Normal avenue between 104th and 105th streets with asphalt at a cost of $18,000.

Paving of South Trumbull avenue between 63d street and Archer avenue with concrete at a cost of $38,500.

Kilpatrick avenue between 55th and 56th streets and 54th street between South Kilpatrick and Cicero avenues with asphalt at a cost of $34,000.

Paving of South Oakley avenue between 97th street and a point 510 feet south with asphalt.

Widening of Lake Park avenue from 56th to 57th streets.

$288,000 for Sewers.

The ten sewer systems ordered by the board will cost $288,000, the largest of which will serve an area with a radius of one-half mile of Nagle avenue and 53d street. The main line of the system, which will cost $88,000, will extend in Nagle avenue between 52d and 54th streets.

The other nine south side systems are as follows: The area between Mulligan and Natoma avenues and 56th and 57th streets. Sewer pipes will be laid on all north and south side streets in this district.

The area bounded by Central and Nagle avenues, 51st street and Archer avenue.

Normandy avenue between 54th and 57th streets; Rutherford avenue between Archer avenue and 57th street, and Archer avenue between Normandy and Nordica avenues.

Beverly avenue between 87th and 88th streets.

Fifty-seventh street between Crawford and Keeler avenues and Karlov avenue between 56th place and 57th street.

Mackinaw avenue between 108th and 109th streets.

One Hundred Twenty-third street between Loomis and Laflin streets.

Fifty-fifth street between Kenneth and Kostner avenues.

The area between Luna and Lotus avenues, 51st street and Archer avenue.

Water Pipe Systems.

The ten water supply pipe systems ordered by the board will cost approximately $81,000 and are for the following streets:

Anthony avenue between Crandon avenue and 92d street.

Ashland avenue between 115th and 121st streets.

Indiana avenue between 87th and 88th streets.

La Crosse, Lamon and Laporte avenues between 63d and 65th streets.

One Hundred Twenty-ninth place between Halsted street and the city limits and Morgan street between 129th place and Vermont street.

Avenue O between 108th and 109th streets, and 108th street between Avenue H and Ewing avenue.

Lavergne avenue between 63d and 64th streets.

Eighty-sixth street and 86th place between St. Lawrence and Rhodes avenues, and Rhodes avenue between 87th street and a line 50 feet north.

One Hundred Twenty-fifth place, 126th street and 126th place, between Wallace street and Parnell avenue.

Avers avenue between 53d and 54th streets.

CHURCHES JOIN WITH "Y" TO AID ROSELAND BOYS

Course to Be Given for Training Leaders.

Plans for closer cooperation between the churches of Roseland and the 111th street Y. M. C. A. are announced as a result of a dinner conference last week of representative pastors, community business men and the boys' work committee of the "Y".

THE REV. LOGAN HALL.

Among the joint activities suggested by the Rev. Logan Hall, pastor of the St. Stephen's Methodist Episcopal church, who presided at the meeting, will be the observance of Father and Son week, sending delegates to state older boys' conferences, church boys' clubs in membership of Y. M. C. A., inter church swimming meets, and a leaders' training class for work with boys.

Offer Course in Leadership.

Details of the leaders' training class, as announced by W. W. Gregg, chairman of the boys' work committee of the "Y", include a meeting on the third Tuesday of each month for seven months. The first meeting will be held Oct. 15. All interested churches, he said, may enroll men in this class, which will teach them how better to serve and hold the boys of their community.

A number of churches, according to the officials of the "Y", are planning to use the physical education facilities of the Y. M. C. A. building under their church leadership. This is said to be one of the newest developments in week day church work in the city.

Leaders in Movement.

Among the Roseland men interested in these projects are: the Rev. C. A. Hull, of Greenstone church; the Rev. John G. Grace, pastor of the Roseland Baptist church; the Rev. Eric Ringenhjelm, pastor of Elim Lutheran church; J. C Bovenkerk, Nicholas Persenaire, William Oberg, E. H. Johnson and C. H. Singleton.

ASK PLAYGROUND FOR STUDENTS AT MOUNT VERNON

School P.-T. Association Debates Plans.

A new playground for the school was among the matters discussed at the meeting on Thursday of the Parent-Teacher association of the Mount Vernon school, 105th and Morgan streets. The school, opened this fall, now owns the land for a playground but equipment must be procured before the children can use the ground to advantage. This should be obtained before the end of the warm weather, Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, president of the association, feels.

Means of increasing the membership of the association were also considered, and Mrs. Ralph A. Doyle, membership chairman, urged every one to cooperate to make the association a real power in the community. She and her committee are trying to raise the enrollment from the present figure of approximately fifty to one hundred, which would represent almost all the parents of the 500 students attending the school.

Officers of the association present at the meeting, besides Mrs. Siddall, included Mrs. J. S. Brantner, 1152 West 103d place, first vice president; Mrs. Fred Trouten, 1207 West 104th street, second vice president; Mrs. Alma Swane, principal of the Mount Vernon school, third vice president; Mrs. L. Millel, 10557 South May street, recording secretary; Mrs. D. C. Lewis, 10521 South Racine avenue, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. J. C. Groundwater, 10449 South Racine avenue, treasurer.

Heads of committees present besides Mrs. Doyle were Mrs. C. E. Arthur, 1015 West 103d place, social chairman; Mrs. M. T. Cratser, 1037 West 103d place, publicity chairman; and Mrs. J. W. Luther, 1108 West 103d place, by-laws chairman.

The officers and committee chairmen have decided to hold a meeting on the Tuesday preceding the general meeting of the association on the second Thursday of each month. Special matters will be discussed preparatory to presenting them to the organization as a whole, and it is hoped that more effective handling of the association's problems will be secured. The first of these special meetings was held on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

CORNELL SQUARE LURES CHILDREN AND GRANDDADS

Serves as Bit of Country for Folk Back o' Yards.

One of the pleasantest spots imaginable on these warm September days is Cornell Square park, just a few blocks away from the big packing plants, yet as airy and sunny with its trees and shrubs as an acre in the country. At least that is what the people who live around Cornell Square seem to think, for almost any day a stroll along the graveled walks will find them there—Johnny and Billy getting in some early football practice, little Bobby playing in the sandpile with the girls or waiting his turn on the slide, and over there on the bench those old men, ten of them, chatting and laughing, the sort who appreciate good sunshine and air—and good talk.

These were men too busy once to have time for the park, in fact most of them were active in south side business for years, but now they come to Cornell Square every day and smoke a long pipe or two, commenting on politics or even on an airplane which strays too low on its way back to the airport, the only disturbing element that ever enters the park precincts. When the warm days are over, their club room will be dusted and the checker board brought out.

Cheered by Oldsters' Presence.

"As long as they come here we know the square is as it should be," said F. D. Bosserman, director of the park. "They have always been leading citizens in the community, and the fact that they have come here so regularly is the highest compliment that could be paid us."

Inside the park building, if you are there on Tuesday or Friday afternoon, you may be lucky enough to see some of the 200 babies who come with their mothers and big sisters to be weighed and examined by Dr. J. R. Doty and Miss Caroline Gerbert, the nurse. Little Marion Eggli comes along with her mother to see that baby Joan is getting along properly, and Rose Morana drops in from school to bring her sister home because she used to like it there herself.

Prepare for Winter Season.

Mr. Bosserman reports that the park is getting ready for a busy winter, with all sorts of plans for every age's entertainment. Miss Bernice Mullins is to conduct a class in artcraft for women and older girls every Thursday night, and there will be a civic music class on Tuesday and Friday afternoons at 5 o'clock. Puppet making will go on every afternoon from 4 to 5 in preparation for the puppet show to be held on Oct. 1. Story hour begins at 4 o'clock every Thursday. Several troops of Boy Scouts are planning to make the Square their headquarters.

Mr. Bosserman will hold a meeting of Boy Scout troop, No. 330, on Tuesday night, Charles Cahut will lead troop 432 on Wednesday night, and John Troike troop 411 on Friday night. Classes in calisthenics and dancing for girls and boys will be under the supervision of Miss Molly Levy and Robert Wach.

DISPENSING HEALTH TO SOUTH SIDE BABIES

The infant welfare station is one of the most popular spots at Cornell square, a gathering place for folk of all ages who live southwest of the stockyards. Dr. J. R. Doty and Miss Caroline Gerbert, nurse, are in charge of the station. The picture includes these mothers and their children: Mrs. Marie Morana, Rose, and Emily, 5031 South Hermitage avenue; Mrs. Theresa Schmidt and Gertrude, 4542 South Paulina street; Mrs. Helen Roubik and George; Mrs. Otelia Cervinka and Herbert, 5925 South Winchester avenue; Mrs. Anna Marmon and Dorothy, 5351 South Seeley avenue; Mrs. Eleanor Pradelski and Cecilia, 5210 South Paulina street; Mrs. Rosa Aramo, Lucy, and John, 4524 South Paulina street; Mrs. Stephania Roediger and Pearl, 5130 South Ashland avenue; Mrs. Sally Konieczka and Lauretta, 5221 South Honore street; Mrs. Anna Gratton and Phyllis, 1947 West 59th street; Mrs. Gertrude Malec and Mathew, 4811 South Hoyne avenue. The youngster in the scales is Joan Eggli, 5303 South Damen avenue, who was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. William Eggli, and her sister, Marion. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

About 2,000 members of the Odd Fellows lodge met yesterday at Hyde Park High school, 63d street and Stony Island avenue, in the annual south side regional rally.

Edward F. Brown, grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Illinois, was the principal speaker on the program, culminating a series of talks on the purpose and aims of the order with discussion of the achievements of the lodge during the last year.

Other speakers included Fred Kelley, 8005 Justine street, president of the south side region and two past grand masters, Dr. Arthur A. Nauman of Rogers Park, and J. Paul Kuhn of Batavia.

Arthur L. Hoffman, 1130 East 63d street, was in charge of arrangements for the rally.

GROUNDBREAKING HIGH POSTPONED AT PARKER SENIOR

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new $1,500,000 Parker Senior High school, 58th street and Stewart avenue, which were scheduled for tomorrow, have been postponed until after the next meeting of the board of education. Contracts for the construction of the new school were to be awarded at a meeting of the board Tuesday, but action was deferred until Sept. 24. Plans for an extensive celebration to mark the breaking of ground are being made by the students of the Parker Senior High school, Parker Junior High school, Parker elementary school and the Parker Practice school and by the residents of the community.

Open Evenings If You Like
If you cannot come during the day, phone us before 5 P. M. and we will forward to your car Furniture, Rug and Radio departments open for you in the evening. A typical Tenth Corner service.

These sales for Monday and Tuesday, September 16 and 17. But they are on sale only while quantities last. After they are sold out, they cannot be duplicated at these prices.

Rather than move this merchandise twice—from the old warehouse to the new, and then in the course of time into the customer's home—VALUE will move it directly from the warehouse into your home. The saving of that one move permits us to make prices we have not been able to equal in many years!

To simplify selling we have brought over samples of everything in the warehouse to our 4th Floor Furniture department. Here you can make your selection quickly, easily, and in comfort.

SEEK TO AROUSE MORE WOMEN TO POLITICAL DUTY

League to Co-operate with Other Bodies.

Making contacts with as many women as possible in its territory is to be the principle underlying this year's program of the Southwest League of Women Voters, according to Mrs. William Bethke, president.

An effort will be made to coöperate with existing organizations in putting the work of the league before groups of women not as yet politically minded and thus to knit together a district more loosely organized than the regions of the older leagues.

A citizenship school is planned for Nov. 8, in which the Englewood, Morgan Park and Ridge woman's clubs, have agreed to participate. Foreign relations and problems of local and national importance will be discussed and men and women prominent politically have been invited to speak on developments in fields in which they are active.

Luncheon Scheduled for Oct. 11.

The work of the season opens with a luncheon at Trinity Methodist church, 99th street and Winchester avenue, on Oct. 11. Mrs. Holland Hagler is in charge of the arrangements and Mrs. W. W. Ramsey will speak on "The League in Action in the Neighboring States," followed by a speaker as yet unannounced who will discuss the judicial election in November.

Later meetings will include three luncheons, two afternoon teas, and a candidate meeting in the spring.

Members of the child welfare committee of the southwest league will sponsor a tour of the sanitary district Monday, Sept. 23. A luncheon will follow. Buses will convey the guests from the 91st, 95th and 103 street suburban stations of the Rock Island railroad at 10 o'clock in the morning. The luncheon will be served at 616 South Michigan avenue.

Officers of the League.

Officers of the Southwest league are: Mrs. William Bethke, 9317 South Damen avenue, president; Mrs. Hugo Diemer, 10633 South Hoyne avenue, vice president; Miss Helen Thayer, 9807 Vanderpoel avenue, secretary; Mrs. H. C. Newton, 9958 South Winchester avenue, treasurer.

Chairmen of the committees of the league are: Mrs. C. L. Michod, 2032 West 110th place, publicity; Mrs. Joseph J. Barclay, 11419 Lothair avenue, membership; Mrs. Louis L. Simmer, 9607 Beverly avenue, efficiency in government; Mrs. Harry N. Tolles, 10561 Longwood drive, international affairs; Mrs. Vernon Beebe, 10918 Irving avenue, and Mrs. H. B. White, 11800 Longwood drive, state and county schools; Mrs. M. D. SUNDAY SCHOOL TO HAVE CIRCUS IN MORGAN PARK

There'll Be Freaks, Side Shows, Parade.

The circus is coming to Morgan Park next Saturday and winsome class of the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal church is bringing it. All the children are on tiptoes with excitement, and there won't be any trouble about getting mother or Aunt Susan to go along because they planned it all in the first place and so they are certain not to miss it themselves. Nothing is going to be left out—all the people you look for at the circus will be there. The fat lady and the snake charmer, the three legged woman, the strong man and such a collection of animals, bears, trick dogs and a monkey which will want all your extra peanuts!

A parade through the streets will let every one know that the circus has arrived. At 2:30 o'clock the marchers will assemble in front of the church, clowns and acrobats and wild west sharpshooters. Up in front a band will set the pace. Perhaps you'll recognize Merle Reynolds as bandmaster with some of the boys from the Tower class of the Sunday school.

Side Shows and Pony Rides.

After the parade all the members of the Win Some class will be busy getting ready for the evening performance, but there will be a real pony ride at 5 o'clock and almost before you know it the freak show will open. What fun to see the tallest woman in the world, and watch the Hindu woman wind snakes around her neck before your very eyes. Than a funny minstrel show will make you laugh and afterward if you are really skilful you may win a prize trying your aim at the ball throwing booth.

The evening show opens at 8:30. A trio of professional tumblers will take your breath away with their marvelous tricks, and you won't get it back until the tight rope walkers and wild west cowboys have finished their acts.

Most of Class to Help.

Mrs. C. E. Arthur, general chairman of the circus, expects to have a large crowd in attendance. Last year more than 1,000 persons went to the circus and this year she hopes they will come again and bring their friends. Assisting Mrs. Arthur are most of the members of the Win Some class and several men of the church. Mrs. Katherine Hill, 11624 Irving avenue, is chairman of the freak show, and Mrs. Hazel Whitford, 11353 Church street of the minstrel show. Mrs. May Anderson, 11409 Church street is to sell hot dogs, doughnuts, and coffee; Mrs. H. J. Kuehne, 10808 South Hoyne avenue, candy, and if you're thirsty after eating the popcorn balls of Mrs. J. L. Nammar, 1723 Monterey avenue, you can get pop or ice cream from Mrs. Ruth Baugher, 1724 West 107th street.

Mrs. Mildred McClellan, 10750 Yale avenue, will have charge of a fish pond and you will want your fortune told by the gipsy, Mrs. Grace Black, 11060 Hermosa avenue, is bringing to the circus.

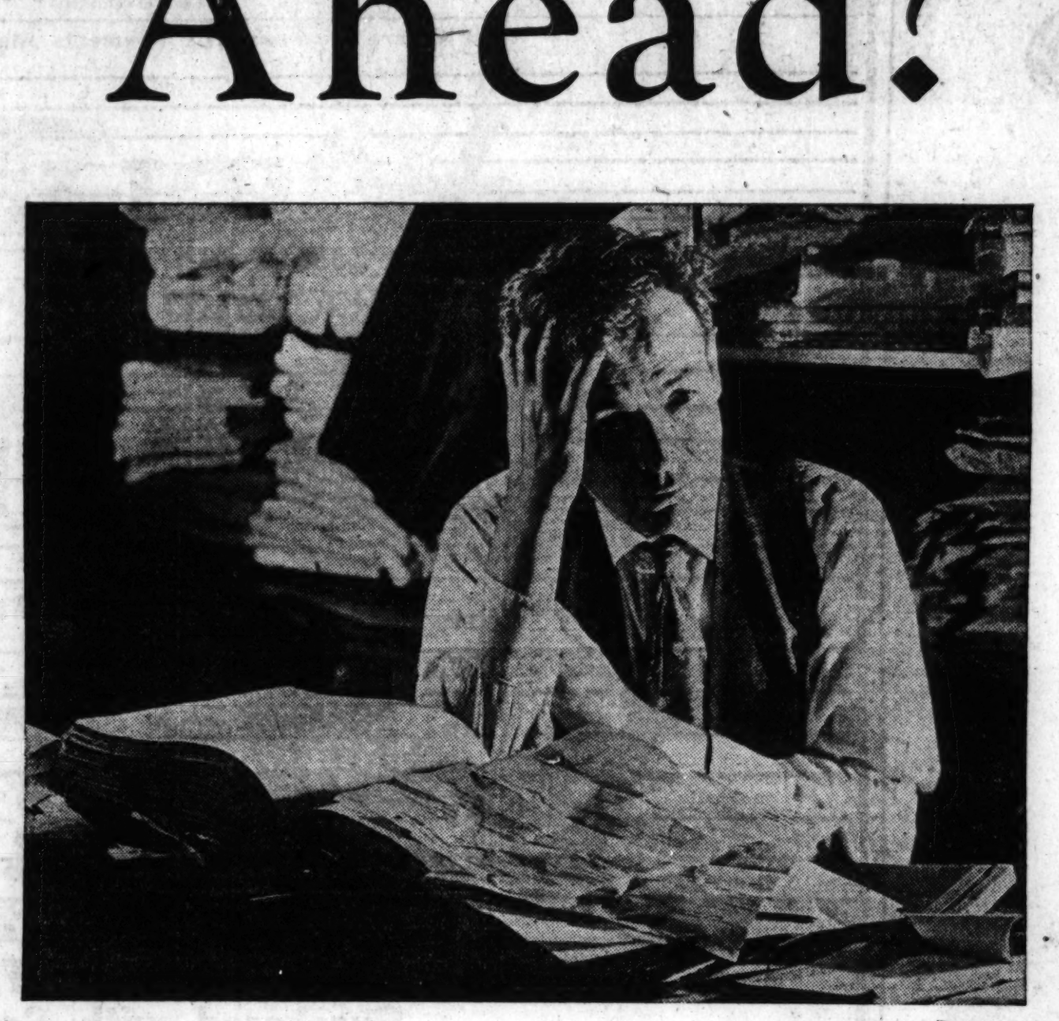
Southtown Opera Club to Give First Program

The first program of the Associated Civic Opera club of Southtown is scheduled for next Thursday evening. The club, boasting the largest membership in the city, will hold its meetings in the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal avenue.

According to Mrs. Charles Clark, 7130 Princeton avenue, program chairman, the first program will consist of a moving picture showing the making of operas and views of operatic stars.

The second meeting, to be held on Oct. 17, will be a lecture on "Character Analysis," and the third, on Nov. 21, a lecture on "The Mechanics of Production."

Getting Ahead?



Or Will the End of the Month Tell the Same Old Story?

Is your business any better off today than it was a year ago at this time? Are you taking full advantage of the increased buying power of the people of your side of the city? Are you getting your share of the additional millions in salaries and wages that they have to spend this year?

BUSINESS in Chicago and all over America is rolling up one of the best years in history. Sales have been booming for months. The chance for profit rarely has been so favorable.

Yet in the face of this peak prosperity, many merchants and retailers are still plugging along at the same old pace. Sales for them come just as hard as ever. Bigger profits, as always, are "just around the corner." The golden clangor of the market is at its loudest. But many merchants haven't even heard it.

What about your business? Are you satisfied that it is returning you all you can expect of it—that it is giving you a square deal for all the long hours and hard work you invest in it? Do you know, moreover, what many merchants in your line—with no greater capital nor any other major advantage—are doing to cash in on the 1929 flood of buying power?

Get the Facts—FREE!

If you are not satisfied that your business is growing, expanding, profiting, as it should in these prosperous times, here is your chance to do something about it. The Chicago Tribune has developed a new sales plan. Merchants and retailers in nearly every line have investigated it, tested it, and demonstrated conclusively what it can do.

Many of these merchants—men in your kind of business—have increased their sales all the way from 50% to 100% and even more, by using the up-to-date sales methods that this plan involves. The results have amazed even the hardest-boiled business men.

32 Pages of Help

The Tribune would like to place before you the complete details of this profit-making sales method. All the facts, all the information you naturally would want to know before deciding, have been set forth in a 32-page book. The title of this fascinating book is "Bigger Profits."

The Chicago Tribune will send a copy of "Bigger Profits" to every Southwest Side merchant and retailer who will take the trouble to ask for it.

HAPPY CHILDREN'S PICTURES TAKE PRIZES IN CONTEST

HERE'S CHANCE TO PROVE SKILL WITH A CAMERA

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Hyde Park Pastor Will Preach on "Cult of Size"

"The Cult of Size" will be the subject of a sermon by the Rev. Willis L. Goldsmith, pastor of the Hyde Park Congregational church, 58th street and Dorchester avenue, at services this morning. Miss Marie Howland will describe her trip to Europe at the meeting of the Young People's club of the church this evening.

FADA presents.. VIBRA-CONTROL
..the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the

1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

3,000 TO ATTEND MEETINGS HERE OF SISTERHOOD

P. E. O. Sessions Open in Stevens Tuesday.

With Mrs. John B. Mudge, 5131 Ellis avenue, as general chairman, the biennial convention of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held in Chicago for the first time in thirty years, opening Tuesday morning at the Stevens hotel and continuing until Friday.

Mrs. Mudge will be assisted by the Illinois State chapter composed of 95 individual chapters.

Eight hundred official delegates are expected and in addition many visitors and members from all parts of the United States and Canada, making a total of more than 3,000 to attend the sessions.

Expect Donor of School.

One of the guests expected to attend is Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard, an 82 year old member, who several years ago, turned over to the organization Cottey college, a junior college for girls at Nevada, Mo. The plant, now valued at $350,000, is conducted by P. E. O. and is accredited with the University of Missouri. It is one of the oldest schools for women in the country and is the only self-built college in the world. With an original capital of $3,000, the school was started by Mrs. Cottey alone.

The opening session at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon will be presided over by Mrs. Mabel Frisbee of Bushnell, Ill., state president, who will give the address of welcome.

Banquet Tuesday Evening.

At the formal banquet, Tuesday evening, one of the guests will be the Rev. Charles L. Stafford, Muscatine, Ia., the only surviving husband of one of the founders.

Samuel S. Parks, 4231 Fulton boulevard, who extended the welcome thirty years ago when Chapter A entertained at the national convention, will again welcome the guests on behalf of the members of B. I. L., the organization of the husbands and brother-in-laws of the P. E. O. members.

The address of the evening will be given by Mrs. Ola B. Miller, Iowa City, Ia., national president and Lorado Taft will also speak, his topic being "Beauty in America."

Election on Thursday.

Election of officers will be held Thursday afternoon, and in the evening Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chapter A will speak on "Sweet Experiences."

The closing sessions will be held on Friday, when the convention will adjourn for two years.

The chief philanthropy of the P. E. O. Sisterhood consists of a fund of $560,000 which is lent to girls to complete their college education, and 25,000 girls have received help in this way. At the present time 14,000 girls have active accounts with the sisterhood.

CHRIST CHURCH DEDICATES ITS ENLARGED HOME

Noted Churchmen Heard at Week's Services.

Dedication ceremonies of the newly remodeled and enlarged Christ Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Sangamon streets, formerly the Sangamon Street Methodist Episcopal church, in progress seven days, closed Thursday evening. The Rev. Jacob John Hoffman, who has been pastor of the church for more than nine years, was chairman of the committee in charge of the dedication services.

The rebuilt church, which formerly had seating accommodations for 150 persons, now has a capacity of 350, in addition to larger Sunday school facilities. According to the Rev. Mr. Hoffman, the cost of remodeling the church was more than $75,000.

Other added facilities in the new building are kitchens, rooms for primary and adult classes of the Sunday school, club rooms, pastor's study and vestry room.

Dedicatory Sermon Preached.

Although the dedication ceremonies started Sept. 6 when the Fellowship club of the church held a thanksgiving dinner, the church was officially dedicated last Sunday when the Rev. Mr. Hoffman preached the sermon which opened the church. "The Church of Christ" was the subject of his sermon.

The Rev. F. W. Mueller of Philadelphia, superintendent of the Home Missionary and Church Extension society, preached the sermon at the services last Sunday evening. "The World Program of Methodism" was the subject of his sermon.

Other prominent churchmen who took part in the dedication ceremonies throughout the week were: The Rev. A. J. Loeppert, district superintendent; the Rev. Polemus Swift, and the Rev. John Thompson of the First Methodist church.

Musical Program Given.

After a sermon on "Music" by the Rev. George L. Scherger, a musical program was presented by the choir of the church Tuesday evening. Mrs. Irene Hensel Rollins, church organist, and Miss Tina Mae Haines, guest organist.

Members of the Isabella Thoburn Missionary circle sponsored the social evening which closed the dedication program Thursday. Mrs. Earl L. Sauer was chairman of the committee in charge of the social.

ALICE 'MONGST CLEF DWELLERS

ALICE in Musicland and her conductor encounter the Clef Dwellers today. They are shy fellows who are liable to flee into their flats at a moment's notice and make a terrible sound. That's why they must have Major Scale and the Composer on hand to keep them composed and ready to play. When they get used to strangers the Clef Dwellers are well behaved, though the director threatens them with his baton. Pat Barnes announces; the W-G-N Orchestra plays amusing classics. 5:45.

JEAN GOLDKETTE

GOLDKETTIC creations are built like symphonies. Their vast depth, their abstract color, their vivid perspective they have in common with the greatest symphonies. But that is not all. The mood is that of youth. The notes are sharply defined, and the patterns of rhythm are symmetrical and crisp. Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra are the leaders in the Dance Music renaissance. 1:30, 2:25 and 11.

(Without tubes)
The new Peerless cabinets are triumphs of the interior decorator's art. The receiving set has an automatic volume control which prevents the "blasting in" of nearby stations. It has a single dial. It operates from any electric light socket and is fully shielded. It uses nine tubes, including three screen grid tubes.

CHICAGO LAWN GARDEN SHOW AWARDS MADE

Exhibition to Be Included in Program Yearly.

Something of an experiment for the Chicago Lawn Woman's club was the recent garden show, and, like other experiments made in the past, is by way of becoming an indispensable part of the organization's future program. So great was the interest shown not only by contestants in the various classes of exhibits, but by garden owners of the neighborhood in general that plans are already under way for another show next season.

BROADCASTING TODAY ENTERS ITS NINTH YEAR

It's a Far Cry to Early Programs, However.

Radio broadcasting today, will enter upon its ninth year. It has been such a far cry from the crystal set which was so popular in those early days to the modern electric receiver which represents the latest in engineering ingenuity, that it is hard to realize that only eight years have elapsed since the first radio broadcasting station was licensed.

The first program broadcasting license in this country was granted to station WBZ of the Westinghouse company at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 1921. The second license was issued to WBY, of the Radio Corporation of America, at Rochelle, N. Y. Four days later, the third was granted to WJZ, then operated by the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., and the fourth to KDKA, of the Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, 1921.

To KDKA, however, goes the distinction of being the pioneer station inasmuch as it broadcast programs experimentally long before it or the other stations were granted governmental licenses.

Broadcasting Makes History.

Since that time the history of broadcasting has virtually been the history of our country. Most of the great events which have transpired have been given directly to the people through this medium. In reviewing these occasions one runs across:

Harding-Cox presidential returns announced by Station KDKA, Nov. 4, 1920.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight, July 4, 1921.

Beginning of broadcasting of world series baseball games in October, 1921.

Funeral service of former President Harding, August, 1923.

Blow by Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas," knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo grounds in New York city, Sept. 14, 1923, caught by ringside microphone and heard a thousand miles away.

Last public appearance of former President Wilson at the Armistice day celebration in the Arlington National cemetery, Nov. 11, 1923.

Wilson's Funeral Service.

Funeral services of former President Woodrow Wilson from Washington cathedral, February, 1924.

Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1924.

Program incident to the inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, March 4, 1925.

Reception to Col. Charles Lindbergh in Washington, D. C., June 11, 1927, and in New York two days later, broke all previous hookup records with 50 stations in the net.

On Sunday, July 24, 1927, this country joined with a Canadian broadcast for the first time and again all records were shattered—53 stations simultaneously transmitting a religious program.

During the ceremonies incident to the opening of the International Peace bridge at Buffalo, the voice of the Prince of Wales was broadcast in the United States, Aug. 7, 1927.

In June, 1928, full meetings of the Republican and Democratic national conventions were transmitted from Kansas City and Houston, Texas, respectively. National coverage was maintained by two huge networks for several days.

On March 4, 1929, a complete description of the inaugural of President Herbert Hoover from the time the party left the Hoover home in S street until the parade was completed late in the afternoon, was given the nation by two networks of stations.

COMPILE LIST OF 3,500 WORLD RADIO STATIONS

There are approximately 3,500 radio stations above 6,000 kilocycles in the world at present, according to a complete list just compiled by G. Colby Blackwell of the engineering staff of the radio commission. Of this number there are between 1,500 and 1,600 of such stations, including the numerous experimental transmitters, in the United States. Monthly supplements to the list will be issued.

The information was obtained in the case of the United States from the latest records of the commission, while the foreign stations were recorded from list No. 5 of the frequencies published by the International Bureau of the Telegraph union at Berne, Switzerland.

Radio to Aid Flyers on Washington-Miami Route

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Fifteen powerful radio stations, to be operated for the benefit of airplane pilots, will be constructed by the federal government between Washington and Miami, and Houston, it was stated recently by George D. Barr, assistant airways engineer of the U. S. department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

A GREAT expense in radio advertising—over the chains—is the cost of the telephone lines between the stations. This has been circumvented by some concerns who make phonograph records of a half hour's program, including the music, the announcements and the advertising, and then ship the records to the stations in selected parts of the country. Out of that has come the question as to whether good music, recorded on disks, can be picked up in clear and full toned fashion from the phonograph appartus for transmission into the air; the chain salesmen, who send their music from New York over the telephone wires direct to the transmitters in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, etc., say it cannot. But, no matter——

Now an organization has been formed which will record programs on sound films, like the talking movies. The films will record sound only, not pictures, to be broadcast in English and translated into other languages, and then shipped to radio stations over the world. The officials claim, "Our device makes recordings of programs perfect in tone and quality, eliminating blasts and imperfections which often occur when the natural voice is used through a microphone. The reproducer can be plugged into the station's control amplifier. When the film is started the program will go out on the air. No wires are used in this network. Each film will be released to the broadcasters on certain dates.

THE NEWEST gag among the broadcasters is to announce that Mr. So-and-So had a wad of world series tickets, if the public will only write to him. We recall how we were plagued before the Army and Navy game in 1926, when Messrs. Carrell and Gosden used to announce every night over the air that we had a load of tickets we were anxious to get rid of, and what our home telephone number was, and that it was best to call us about seven in the morning!

THE DEPARTMENT of commerce states that two hundred million radio sets would be required to provide radio facilities for all the people in the world within range of broadcasting stations

That's just fourteen less than there are in our building every forenoon when we're trying to sleep.

A NEW collegiate talkie called "Sophomore" give the radio announcers another rap. Graham MacNamee, in particular, gets the raz, and undeservedly, we think.

A football announcer named McAfee is heard describing the gridiron conflict: "Gee, folks, you ought to be here. . . . Hanford has the ball. . . . No, just a minute—no—yes—Hanford has the ball—no, beg pardon, Colton has the ball—no, it is Hanford's ball after all—well, we all make mistakes, don't we? That's why they put erasers on the end of pencils."

MANY RADIO devotees ask, "How does one break into radio?" and "How did you happen to get into it?"

Well, almost every one breaks in accidentally or casually, and we did, too.

"What did you do before you got into radio?" some will inquire. Well, during our third year at Northwestern, in Evanston, we were contributing quips and verse almost daily to the "Line" on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE, then conducted by the late Bert Leston Taylor—"B. L. T." Our burning ambition was to run a newspaper column, as we were doing on the college paper. We tried to "make the Line" every day, and we darned near did.

We frittered away most of our college hours rehearsing plays, singing in shows, composing sketches for the magazines and in other extra curriculum pursuits. Our frequent contributions to the paper gained us an admission to the city editor, just at the time when we knew there was an opening for a campus correspondent. So for many weeks we turned in yarns of campus engagements and frolics and initiations. Then we braced the city ed. for a part time job as a regular reporter, and for a whole year, while attending classes in the forenoon, we performed all the clumsy and comical duties of the fuzzy cub reporter. Seeking to wander farther afield, we took up football assignments in the fall, under the direction of that grand old gent, Harvey T. Woodruff, who was then sports editor.

And so on—writing book reviews for Burton Rascoe, then literary editor of THE TRIBUNE—jumping into the advertising department to write ads and start the paper's house organ, "The Trib," in 1919—and still going to classes in Evanston. Our year was '20.

One day we happened to review in the paper a small book of comedy written by J. P. McEvoy and illustrated by Frank King. McEvoy was editor of a publishing house turning out greeting cards and junvenile books. He was later to write "The Potters" for this newspaper, and King was just starting "Gasoline Alley." Nowadays you know McEvoy as author of "Show Girl" in Liberty and librettist of the Ziegfeld Follies in recent years.

He offered us a post, writing and editing the thousands of verses and jingles you read on Christmas, birthday and Mother's day greeting cards. Because we had doted for so long on his work as a columnist in the papers, we leaped at the chance. After three years of pleasant association with McEvoy and illuminating contacts in the publishing and theatrical worlds, we left to start a column of humor and verse on the sports pages of another

Chicago morning newspaper. Another year rolled by.

In 1921 and 1922 we were hearing of people who owned these gadgets called radios. A tinkering lad put earphones on our head one summer evening and we heard a likable announcer—we know not who it was—introducing piano selections from a loop department store. We put down the earphones and never listened to a radio set again. We gave radio and its accelerating progress no more thought than we would to astral chemistry.

The summer of 1923 came along. W. K. Hollander, the publicity chief of a local chain of theaters, commissioned us to write a weekly show for the radio, welding together and introducing all of the talent present that week in the local theater—including the complete symphonoy orchestra, an hour long broadcast over Station WMAQ direct from the theater. That, so far as we know, was the first "continuity" written for the air in Chicago. We put as much effort in composing the scenario as we would into the Follies; many of the shows were done entirely in verse. But, after the shows were written, there was nobody to recite them in the rôle of announcer. So Bill spoofed us into the job of announcer.

It fascinated us from the start. The mystery of it, the dramatics, the mail from the listeners and the wide audience it gave to the material of an aspiring columnist, all made us hungry for more. We jumped in, feet first, then. Station WLS was opening with a great fanfare, in the spring of 1924, and we were the announcer. Then came W-G-N, in the same spring, and we moved to the new TRIBUNE station. "Radio Announcer Bares Life Secrets."

Were it not for the fact that it would sound silly, we would remark that there is no more engrossing and engaging business in the world. It is a job in which we revel, in its infinite variety. Every queer activity we ever engaged in we now find helps us in radio—college dramatics and glee club goings-on, newspaper reporting, sports writing, column conducting, book reviewing, children's book publishing and advertising soliciting. In the first three years we never took a day off. There was a time when we handled all the broadcasts from nine in the morning until after midnight. And many's the night we slept in the studio.

It's been alluring work and great fun. It has taken us from coast to coast—to the choicest football games every week in the fall; to the world series ball games; to the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] in Tennessee, in 1925; to a half dozen Kentucky Derbies and Indianapolis auto races; to Calvin Coolidge's office in the White House and the floor of the senate chamber in Washington; to the Republican and Democratic conventions; to ringsides and vaudeville stages and movietone studios.

But this story's getting too long—Toodle-OO!

COUNTESS TO BE N. B. C. ENTRY IN RADIO CONTEST

Seeks "Most Beautiful Artist" Title.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting company, in the radio world's fair "most beautiful feminine radio artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF, New York. She is a soprano.

To Radio from Stage.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera company and other broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months, it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of New Moon, a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries from Many Stations.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from several hundred radio stations in many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the radio world's fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the entire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

U. S. EXPERT TO STUDY AVIATION'S NEED OF RADIO

That the radio commission has taken an active interest in the problem of applying radio communication to aviation is indicated in a letter sent to Gerald C. Gross, commission engineer, just before he sailed, together with Commissioner Charles McK. Saltzman, for The Hague to attend the conference of the international consulting technical committee on radio communications.

The commission directed the engineer to make an inspection of the leading aviation fields in Europe at the close of The Hague parley "for the purpose of making an engineering study of current European pratices with respect to radio communication for aviation."

[A STATEMENT BY ALFRED H. GREBE...]

Many of These Modern Features Are Exclusive With the New Grebe

Screen Grid Tubes—The use of which results in sensitivity never before attained. Weak signals from distant stations are amplified clearly and distinctly.

New Control for New Power—But in the New Grebe this added power is controlled. Overlapping of stations is eliminated . . . strays are kept out. You get the full tone value made possible by that exclusive Grebe feature—the Equalized Band Pass Filter.

Single Audio Stage Means No Hum—Grebe reception is so strong . . . so pure in tonal characteristics . . . that only a single audio stage is needed. Hum and microphonic disturbances are eliminated.

Large Diameter Speaker . . . an Original Grebe Idea—Full tone range is effectively accomplished by special large diameter electrodynamic speaker . . . so successfully introduced by Grebe.

For Superb Reproduction of Phonograph Records—You can play your favorite phonograph records by a mere turn of the tuning dial. This automatically connects the electric phonograph pick-up with its specially wound transformer.

Cabinets Designed for Lasting Beauty and Acoustic Perfection—The New Grebe is obtainable in a wide choice of selected walnut and mahogany lowboy and highboy models. Furniture of characteristic beauty and dignity . . . and expertly designed for its acoustic properties. In a word, Grebe craftsmanship.

In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.

When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."

At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.

I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

Your Grebe dealer wants you to enjoy Tri-toned* radio. Let him arrange for a 48 hour demonstration in your own home. Telephone him . . . today.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

To that small but discriminating group who are interested in the finer things of life, we present the new Screen-Grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

... a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"...the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument . . . a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on pre-vision . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

VISION TO SERVE RAISES CHURCH FROM DEATHBED

Meets Needs of New Folk in Yards.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When the Rev. Warren N. Clark, a student in Garrett Biblical institute, became pastor of the 47th Street Methodist church seventeen years ago, he found the institution confronting a discouraging and difficult problem. The church was rich enough in tradition. One of its organizers back in 1881 had been G. F. Swift, the packer. A splendid edifice had been erected at 47th street and Marshfield avenue. Exceptional leadership had been enjoyed in the list of pastors. But successive tides of immigration had caused the membership to move farther south and west, leaving the church surrounded by newcomers.

THE REV. WARREN N. CLARK.

The condition was not unusual in the swift changes in the development of Chicago. In 1912 the 47th street church had such a scant constituency that there was talk of abandoning it. It was a case of adjustment or death.

Visions a New Frontier.

The Rev. Mr. Clark had come from Kansas with its far horizons and great open spaces—the old frontier, which he realized had been an important force in the shaping of American life. In the field in which he found himself he visioned the new frontier—a great immigrant industrial community which would determine what America was to be during the next fifty or 100 years.

A survey was made of the parish which showed the center of the Sunday school membership within a block of West 50th and South Honore streets, just across from Cornell square. The phrase community church was new, but the idea was dawning. In 1915, the 47th street church property was sold and the work of the organization taken up at 50th and Honore streets with a new plant, dedicated in 1916, now called the Community Methodist Episcopal church.

From a neighborhood church of the conventional type, a change was made to a seven day a week program of social and recreational as well as religious activities. The Rev. Mr. Clark has been in charge of the new work these last fourteen years. The plant includes a chapel, gymnasium hall, recreational parlor and classrooms. It appealed from the start and the success of the project has gone beyond all expectations.

Active in Community Council.

The church is one of the coöperating organizations of the Stock Yards Community council, which is rather an extension of the idea. The Rev. Mr. Clark is chairman of the council and chairman of the advisory committee of the Stock Yards United Charities.

In the district are forty nationalities facing the task of learning to live, to work and to play together. Coöperating with some 25 other organizations of various denominations, the Community Methodist Episcopal church has not lacked in an opportunity for service. Thus the old 47th street church did not die. It took note of the principle of biology, when a change in environment takes place, and adjusted instead. A church might not be able to bring in people by ringing a bell, but it could find out the needs of a people and minister to them.

The church conducts one of the largest vacation schools in the city. Emphasis is placed on the social and week day services. One of the features of the Sunday program is a service conducted by the children, who have their own ritual, their own choir, and listen to a story sermon by the pastor.

Gangs in Gymnasium Work.

A feature peculiar to this church is that the work of the gymnasium is not conducted by classes, but by "gangs."

"Gangs," says the Rev. Mr. Clark, "spring up as naturally as grass out of the ground. Their cause is self-preservation as well as the gregarious instinct. Ten years ago we began to test whether or not the gang could be supervised as a gang so the product would be for good instead of evil. Some fifteen gangs meet at the center throughout the winter months. Their favorite sport is basketball.

"I don't believe in the gymnasium as a bait to get boys into the Sunday school. You can catch fish with bait, perhaps, but people have a way of taking the bait and leaving the book.

"In the shift from types of industry that once gave boys an opportunity for full muscular development, the worker now very often has tasks that bring few muscles into play. Athletics have become essential. But we don't stop there. We say, 'This is but part of life, and there is more—the spiritual, the moral and the intellectual.'"

Analyzes City's Population.

The Rev. Mr. Clark cites the reason why many of the churches, of the sort of which he found himself pastor have a difficult problem, as told by recent statistics.

"The figures show," he says, "that 19 out of every 100 persons in Chicago are foreign born, 42 out of every 100 children are those of foreign born parents, four per cent are Negroes, leaving 35 per cent of native stock.

"No wonder," he adds, "that a church started as was the 47th street

GAINING PRACTICAL EDUCATION WHILE EARNING

Fascinating and highly practical courses are offered by the South Side Branch Continuation school, 26th street and Wabash avenue, for boys and girls who must work. Each of the students is in school one day a week. The home mechanics class is shown in the upper left picture. Left to right: H. P. Begin Repair Work on Hale, Peck Schools

Work on the rehabilitation of Peck school, 58th street and Springfield avenue, and Hale school, 62d street and Linder avenue, will be started this week, according to an announcement from the office of H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education.

In the meantime, however, residents of the communities in which these schools are located are expressing dissatisfaction in regard to the present confusion which is caused by the temporary disposition of the pupils of both schools.

Pupils Are Dismissed.

At the Hale school more than 600 pupils, who registered there at the beginning of the school term, merely attend a roll call each morning and then are dismissed after a brief period. This condition is caused by the fact that the eleven portable classrooms, which have been erected on the school grounds for the use of the pupils of the school until the building is once more declared safe, have not been furnished with the necessary sanitary conveniences. According to F. C. Dohecker, principal of the school it is not known when the children will be allowed the use of the portables, but they are nearing completion.

More than 950 children, who registered at the Peck school at the beginning of the term, now attend the Tonti school, 58th street and Turner avenue, from 12:15 to 4:40 every afternoon. The 1,061 pupils, who regularly attend the Peck school, are compelled to attend classes from 8 to 12 o'clock each morning.

Tell of Board's Promise.

According to the parents of the Peck school children, officials of the board of education promised that portables would be ready at the beginning of the school year to accommodate the pupils of the school until the rehabilitation work was completed. The officials of the board have not kept their promise and the parents of the pupils are objecting to the long walk the children are compelled to take to reach the Tonti school. They are also objecting to the irregular hours during which their children must attend classes.

A meeting of the South Hamlin avenue and Vicinity Property Owners association was held Monday evening at the Chicago Lawn Masonic temple, 62d place and Homan avenue, to discuss the problem and to appoint a committee to meet with the officials of the board and determine when the portables for the Peck school would be constructed and when the portables for the Hale school would be ready for occupancy. William F. Stelzer, president of the association, was chairman of the meeting.

Ready in November.

Neither the Hale nor the Peck school would be ready until the latter part of November, the announcement from Mr. Caldwell's office stated.

The two schools were declared unsafe last spring through tests made by L. E. Ritter, I. F. Stern and D. B. Rush, consulting engineers employed by the board of education at that time. These reports were confirmed by Paul Gerhardt, architect for the board, on Aug. 15 after he had made a series of tests throughout the summer months.

According to the consulting engineers' report, all parts of the roofs on both buildings, with the exception of those over the corridors, are weak, and girders under the assembly halls and gymnasiums and some joists on the first floors are held to be unsafe.

ST. RITA PARISH CARNIVAL SHOWS BOOM IN TRADE

One of the outstanding features of the carnival which is being sponsored by the members of the St. Rita parish at 63d street and Western avenue, will be a pageant illustrating the business program of Marquette Manor. The carnival opened Tuesday evening and will continue each night until Sept. 20. Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th] is chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration, while the Rev. J. F. Green, pastor of St. Rita's church, is sponsor of the affair.

Other members of the arrangements committee are: Albert Howe, Charles Zofkie, Mrs. M. J. Coppinger, Mrs. Fred Amend, Mrs. P. J. Lawler, Mrs. J. R. Cook, and F. J. Small.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

MR. IRVIN PETER KLINK, the popular proprietor of Klink's pharmacy at 73d and Bennett, is more popular since he stretched his soda fountain to 26 feet last May. But some of his popularity is now being shared by Virginia, his 8 months old daughter, who spends quite a bit of her time watching the grown-ups guzzle her dad's sodas, waiting for a chance when she will be a bit older and can enjoy them herself.

George R. Du Bois of 6734 Chappel avenue keeps such an eagle eye on our townsfolk that we have about decided to appoint him second assistant pumper at the village well. George pinch hits for our first assistant, Zimmie, and records many items of interest for our readers. He, like Zimmie, sports a Chinese license on the rear of his car, and evokes curious remarks from bystanders.

LABOR day was made immeasurably brighter by our meeting the witty Mr. Paul J. O'Connell galloping down the Midway. P. J. informed us he had taken Labor day literally by actually working all day. The enlightened will readily recall Paul, who, when not engaged in persuading the Hyde Park citizenry that the Hotel Del Prado laundry "does it better," operates a paying division of Mr. Langford's big hostelry on the Midway. Despite all the years that have rolled by, Paul has more pep than most of the younger bucks and his cheery smile is just as infectious as of yore.

Harry H. Dickey of 6929 Vernon avenue is the next golf champ at the federal reserve bank, if what we hear from Dame Rumor is reliable. Harry, the popular note teller at the impregnable institution, is being groomed at Shoop's course, up in Racine, the course made famous by Shoop's restorative, and is in fine fettle to enter the bank's annual jousts on Columbus day. Each week-end Harry and his strawberry shortcake spouse, Grace, motor up to Wisconsin, under the guidance of Fred Klopfer, the 61st street champion, and take the natives of Racine for a merry trimming. Well, Harry, it won't be long now. If you paste the pellet with the same musical sweetness as when you tickle that clarinet of yours in Medinah's band, the first prize is yours. We're pulling for you.

CLIFFORD P. FOX, the inspired Franklin dealer at 4746 Cottage Grove avenue, is seldom found at his Chicago address these lovely days. Clif, when home, can be located at 553 East 60th. Most of the time, however, he's resting with a book of verse and a jug of—lemonade and—thou, underneath the boughs out at Flint lake, Indiana. He's got SOME summer home out there, and we don't blame him for spending the melancholy days in Hoosierdom.

Mr. Edward L. Wilbur of 519 W. Marquette road [no phone] is singing "Rose Colored Glasses" these days, what with buying a Dodge [new?] and being elected assistant cashier of the I.-C. Bank and Trust company at 53rd and Lake Park avenue. Eddie hopes all this good fortune will sort of discourage the boils he's had lately, same not being so pleasant when they arrive in twins and triplets.

WILLIAM BIRRELL, the eminent disciple of Richard Wagner, and who is reported to be the best piano tuner in Roseland, tunes pianofortes only a few days a week now. He's bought himself a summer home in De Motte, Ill., and hies him to that place several times each week. Bill tunes himself in with the infinite, preferring to enjoy the rhapsodies of mother nature in the country, to the tuning of recalcitrant musical instruments. Be that as it may, the urge for self preservation still remains the first law of nature, and he can be found at the family residence at 66 West 112th place when necessary.

Improvement Association Plans Larger Membership

The Princeton Improvement association will meet tomorrow evening in the Seventh Day Adventist church, 60th place and Princeton avenue. This will be the first meeting of the fall season. It is proposed to enlarge the territory covered by the association to include that lying between 57th and 63d streets and from Stewart avenue to the Rock Island tracks, to permit a larger membership. Charles F. Shean is president of the group.

Governor Buys Painting by South Side Artist

"Autumn Among the Hills," a painting by Lucie Hartrath of the Drexel Arms hotel, has been purchased by Gov. Emmerson to hang in the permanent exhibition at the state capitol in Springfield. The governor saw the picture in the All-Illinois Artists' society exhibit at the state fair. A number of Miss Hartrath's paintings hang in Chicago schools.

Wait 30 Years Before Going on Honeymoon

"A honeymoon thirty years after marriage" is the experience of the Rev. Dr. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, and Mrs. Thomas. They are back in Chicago after a four month tour of Europe and tell among other things of a private audience with Pope Pius.

THE REV. G. H. THOMAS.

Explaining his label of the tour, Dr. Thomas said at the time he was married, he could not afford to take a honeymoon. Parish and family duties continued to delay the prospective tour until this spring, when the south side rector and his wife found themselves sufficiently free from their duties and cares to launch upon the long delayed trip. Both are high in their praise of such a plan of delaying the honeymoon until success had crowned the matrimonial years.

Praise for Mussolini.

Discussing economic conditions in Europe, Dr. Thomas commended highly the work of Premier Mussolini, the Italian dictator. Mussolini has transformed Italy into a busy, humming country, the rector stated, adding: "He has instilled a new sprightliness into the Italian people; he has eliminated unemployment and is rapidly solving the economic problems of the country."

The question of "Who caused the war?" is still uppermost in the minds of Germans, Dr. Thomas found. Dr. Thomas believed France is in the best economic condition of any of the European nations. Disarmament, he said, seems a farce when it is realized that France continues to maintain a standing army of a million men.

England Still Suffers.

England's position on the war debt settlement was commended by Dr. Thomas, who said that the English people are suffering probably more than any other as a result of the world war.

The European honeymoon "thirty years after" was declared a great success by both Dr. and Mrs. Thomas. Last spring Dr. Thomas declined election as bishop of Wyoming, tendered by the Episcopal House of Bishops.

Wreck City's Oldest House; Lincoln Once a Guest There

Seven years or so after Chicago made its corporate bow as a village workmen laid the foundations for a country home three or four miles to the south of the swampy hamlet.

A fine brick house was built, a house that was proud of itself and the pride of its builders, a house that through the years witnessed many changes, gave its hospitality to many noted guests.

Lincoln, tradition has it, sat on its wide front porch in later years and looked out at the lake through the cottonwood trees. Stephen A. Douglas, whose estate was farther south, was a frequent visitor. James Long, who constructed the city's first water system, was its tenant for many years.

Stands Through Fire and Wars.

It stood through the fateful days of the civil war and emerged from the great fire, little the worse, to become a landmark to the travelers over the Cottage Grove line. World's fair visitors noted it as they passed on south, returning soldiers from the Spanish-American war thought of it as one more sign of home.

It saw Chicago rise from a prairie settlement to the third largest city in the world. It saw stone and steel replace the frame structures that first were built around it. It saw neighborhoods change and other buildings fall under the wrecker's ax, but was itself untouchable.

Until September, 1929. Approaching its ninetieth year and the old brick house at 2432 Cottage Grove avenue, the oldest house in Chicago, with all its traditions and all its memories, was razed.

Near Buena Vista in Early Years.

James Long, who made the old brick house his home for the longest period of any of its tenants, came to live in it in 1850. At that time its number was 128 Cottage Grove avenue, "near Buena Vista." He was born in Maryland and was engaged for some time in publishing an anti-slavery paper with William Lloyd Garrison in New York. He came to Chicago with his wife and daughter Frances Maria, then five years old, living first in a home facing on Dearborn park, where the public library now stands. Frances Maria later married Joseph N. Barker, a Chicago attorney.

It was while he lived in the house that Lincoln and Douglas are said to have been its guests. He was a member of the city council for several years and built the hydraulic mills at the northeast corner of Lake street and Michigan avenue which manufactured flour.

Laid Water Mains of Logs.

The surplus power of the mill was used for pumping water from Lake Michigan. The water was forced through log pipes which were bored in the mill and laid by him in the principal streets of the town. Previous to this people were supplied with drinking water by men who brought it in casks from the lake and distributed it in buckets to their patrons.

But not very long. Charles H. Palmer, national superintendent at the time for the Christian Commercial Traveling Men's association, distributors of the Gideon Bibles, was its tenant for fifteen years and died there, murmuring, "God save the traveling men," with his last breath.

And the house still stood. An occasional family found lodging there. John Burke was its final tenant.

Y. M. C. A. CHORUS TO REHEARSE FOR AUTUMN CONCERT

Members of the 111th Street Y. M. C. A. chorus will start rehearsing tomorrow evening for their annual fall concert. This community chorus, which is under the direction of Wallace B. Graham, will take up Mendelssohn's "Elijah" for presentation in November.

The "Messiah," which was presented twice last year by the organization, will be repeated next Christmas, according to Director Graham. The remainder of the year will be spent on the study of new works.

E. AUBURN PARK GROUP TO URGE STREET REPAIRS

Means of improving the condition of neighborhood streets will be the principal subject of discussion at the opening meeting of the East Auburn Park Improvement association on Tuesday, Oct. 8, according to Dr. Frank G. Douglass, president.

A petition has been presented to the department of public works concerning the condition of Normal and Eggleston avenues and Winneconna parkway and a campaign is under way among local property owners to obtain 100 per cent backing for the proposed repaving of these streets.

The question of restricting the territory will also be raised at the meeting, Dr. Douglass said.

Officers of the association, besides Dr. Douglass, are: A. C. Cussman, vice president; Harry Tarant, secretary, and Dr. S. A. Waterman, treasurer.

South Side P.-T. Publicity Group to Meet Sept. 23

The fall meeting of the publicity department of the south side council of Parent-Teacher associations, will be held at Morrill school, 6011 South Rockwell street, on Monday afternoon, Sept. 23. Delegates from sixty schools are expected. Mrs. H. I. Gentine, 4525 South Sawyer avenue, is chairman of the department.

15TH WARD VETERANS TAKE ACTIVE PART IN SERVICE CONVENTION

Among the 27th delegates attending the first annual Service Men's league on Sept. 6 at the Hotel La Salle were the representatives of the 15th ward division of the league.

The delegation, consisting of officers and members of the executive committee, was headed by Emmett J. Grady, 6159 South Washtenaw avenue, chairman. Officers of the 15th ward division, besides Mr. Grady who attended the convention, included Allen Moynihan, first vice chairman; John Ebermain, second vice chairman; Andrew Schultez, secretary; John McInerney, treasurer; Walter Rodle, publicity chairman, and George Vana, membership chairman.

EMMETT J. GRADY.

Members of the executive committee present were John Dekoker Jr., Dr. Edward Soukup, William McAndrew, Arthur Guedel, Andrew Grady, Walter Klode, Walter Zippman, Robert Mautner, Henry Sikorski, Sig Nothhelfer, Edward Walsh, Joseph Sweeney, A. D. Selton, Dr. Benedict Aron, Paul Koch, and Constantine Petropoulous.

Emmett Grady summarized the activities of the convention as follows: "Consolidation of the Illinois Republican service men was completed, enabling service men who are Republican party adherents to take an active part politically without taking the American Legion into politics."

State officers of the league, elected for four years, are Howard Savage, former national commander of the American Legion, state chairman; Joseph Allen, vice chairman; Maj. Gen. Milton Foreman, treasurer, and Maj. Carlos Ames, national executive committeeman.

Markey Review Reception.

Markey review, Woman's Benefit association will receive members of the Officers' club of the Southtown Fisher district, Thursday evening, at the Orange temple, 63th street and Green street. Mrs. John Fisher, 6448 South Park avenue, is president of the club and will be the guest of honor.

Following the ceremony a banquet will be held at the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] will be toastmaster. Numerous city and county officials as well as the leading business men of the district have been invited to the dinner.

GREAT PAGEANT OF INDUSTRIES TO OPEN BRIDGE

South Chicago Plans Parade of Queens.

Arrangements are being made by residents and business men in the southeastern section of Chicago for an extensive celebration to mark the opening of the new 106th street bridge over the Calumet river. The ceremony will be held Saturday afternoon, Sept. 28.

A huge parade with floats characteristic of the industries, of the commercial and mercantile interests and of the social and linguistic groups in the South Chicago and Calumet districts, will be one of the features of the demonstration.

Each of forty-eight floats which will be entered in the parade by as many nationalities represented in the territory will carry the queen of its nationality in native costume. The queens will be chosen by the various groups in the community. "Miss America," who will lead the parade, will be chosen by the South Chicago post, No. 493, of the American Legion.

Prizes for Floats and Windows.

Prizes will be awarded for the most strikingly decorated automobiles and floats and to the merchants on the streets through which the parade will pass for the best decorated store fronts. For a week before the dedication ceremonies the entire district will be decorated with flags and bunting and placards will be placed in the business places throughout the territory announcing the celebration.

City, county, state and federal officials will coöperate with business men and residents in making the affair a success. According to George R. Hodges, chairman of the float committee, Mayor Thompson will make the address.

These prominent persons will take part in the parade, which will be led by the 100 piece band and drill team of the American Legion post.

Naval Salute to Be Fired.

At the same time of the dedication address, the S. S. Wilmette, with 200 United States naval reserves on board, will steam up the Calumet river, firing a salute as it passes the new bridge. At the same time, airplanes will circle over the throng, and drop daylight fireworks.

Nicholas J. Bohling, is general chairman of the affair, while Charles Hirshfeld is assistant chairman, Gideon Ekendahl is secretary, and Charles W. Frey is treasurer.

Members of other committees are:

SEEK $300,000 HERE TO RELIEVE ARABS' VICTIMS

Hadassah to Start Drive Tuesday Night.

Immediate relief for more than 4,500 Jewish families left destitute in Palestine as a result of the recent religious conflict will be sought by the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. A campaign to raise $300,000, which is Chicago's quota in a national drive for $2,000,000, will be launched at a meeting of the 3,500 members of the local group Tuesday afternoon at the new Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street.

MRS. BERTHA READ

According to Miss Pearl Franklin, president of the chapter and first vice president of the national organization, in these critical days the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine, which was founded by the women's Zionist order in 1922, finds itself taxed to its capacity.

Describes Suffering of People.

Thousands of men, women and children are destitute and lack food, shelter, and clothing, she said. Sanitary conditions are bad. Large numbers of people are crowded together, sickness is increasing and epidemics are imminent. She pointed out that the Hadassah medical organization is thus far administering the relief work in all sections of Palestine. Jew, Christian and Arab are being treated by this organization without discrimination as to race or color.

"The great need of the suffering in Palestine impels Hadassah to make a plea for immediate funds in this great emergency," Miss Franklin said. "The generous attitude of the Jewish men and women of Chicago in past emergencies makes us feel that the $300,000 which has been set as our quota will seem small compared to the actual amount we hope to receive."

Expected to Praise British.

At the meeting Tuesday Mrs. Bertha Read will tell of the events leading up to the present disturbances in Palestine. Resolutions are expected to be passed by the members of the chapter commending the British government for the interest it has taken in regard to the affairs in Palestine, but stating that the British officials in that territory were incompetent and that they should be replaced by able persons in the near future, Miss Franklin said.

Officers of the local organization in addition to Miss Franklin are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Bertha Read, Mrs. Harry Berkman, Mrs. S. H. Soboroff; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Callner; financial secretary, Mrs. George Golinken; recording secretary, Mrs. Moses B. Levin; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Messinger; treasurer of the tithe, Mrs. David Brenner; and recorder of tithe, Mrs. E. A. Rubenstein.

Presidents of the Hadassah chapters in the various districts of Chicago are: North shore, Mrs. Harry M. Fisher; south side, Mrs. Martin Maremont; Lawndale, Mrs. William Weinberg; northwest, Mrs. Harry Schoolman; Albany Park, Mrs. Harry Waxler; west suburban, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox; and downtown, Miss Lillian Franklin.

PARKER HIGH GIRLS ENTER NEW KIND OF AVIATION COURSE

The enrollment in a course intended to make Parker High school students air minded has included many girls. In the picture Joseph S. Turek, instructor, is explaining the mechahism of a plane to Miss Margaret Butusov. The other girls, left to right, are: Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Gail Moiser, Miss Jane Jones, Miss Marie Baker, Miss Rita Dukette and Miss Dorothy Gilbert. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CLASS AT PARKER AIDS PUPILS TO BE AIR MINDED

A departure from the hide-bound school, 6800 Stewart avenue. Many this year at Parker Senior High school, 6800 Stewart avenue. Mony Chicago high schools have courses in which students are taught the science and construction of airplanes, or given some ground work in flying, but it remained for the Parker High to introduce a course in "air-mindedness."

According to Joseph S. Turek, instructor, the class is intended to develop an interest in aeronautics among the students and to satisfy the demand for information of those already aeronautically inclined.

Consider Flying Hazards.

The hazards attendant on flying will be considered, particularly with reference to weather conditions and the comparatively new science of meteorology, and government regulations for pilots and airports will be studied. No text books are to be used, but information will be obtained from current sources.

The class is open to both boys and girls and thirty-two students are enrolled. They are Fred Church, William Borst, Tom Hoffman, David Wood, Joe Grazaske, Robert Shaffner, Le Grand Van Slyke, Joseph Bowman, Frank Carr, Art Eddington, Jack Kershaw, Kenneth Devlin, Anthony Wagner, Fred Fahenstook, Jonathan Froblom, Bob Comfort, Paul Brattstrom, William Olson, Harold Meyers, Harry Paradis, Theodore McCartney, Wilbur Martin, Walter O'Leary, Ernest Gleason, Dorothy Gilbert, Charlotte Hall, Margaret Butusov, Dorothy Smith, Marie Baker, Gail Moeier, Rita Dukette, and Miriam Griest.

Parents Show Interest.

Much interest has been aroused among parents and faculty as to the results of the experiment. Mr. Brook, an instructor in the school, feels that the class is the logical response in education to the increasing interest of the public mind in all that pertains to aviation.

church had such a hard problem, later on, in finding its task."

Among the earlier pastors of the old 47th street church were the Rev. Fred C. Brayton, the Rev. Asor McDole, who built the first frame church; the Rev. William H. Carwardine, 1887-1889, who built the parsonage; the Rev. H. G. Warren, who was pastor of the church during its high water mark of attendance in 1899 when the fine brick edifice was erected; the Rev. Harry Ward, now professor of sociology at Union Theological seminary; Dr. David D. Vaughn, now of Boston university, and Dr. Joshua Smith, who founded the Burnside settlement.

Surface Lines Official Is Kiwanis Club Lecturer

"Magic of Transportation" was the subject of an address by Donald McGill, assistant superintendent of the Chicago Surface lines, at a meeting of the Englewood Kiwanis club Tuesday at the Englewood Y. RECALLS DRIVE TO GIVE NAME TO BLACKSTONE AVE.

Dr. J. W. Walker Tells of Plea by Residents.

This article is No. 14 in a series on the names of streets, suburbs, and districts of the south side.

Blackstone avenue, named in honor of Timothy B. Blackstone, a pioneer Chicago business man and at one time president of the Chicago & Alton railroad, was once christened Dahlgren avenue.

How the change came about is told in a letter to THE TRIBUNE from Dr. James W. Walker, 1504 East 53d street, which says:

"Regarding the articles on street names appearing in your columns, permit me to say that when the city authorities decided, very wisely, to abolish duplicate street names, officials—I think it was of the map department—were given the task of providing new names.

First Was Washington Avenue.

"I was then living on Washington avenue and, feeling dissatisfied with the new name, Dahlgren, I secured over 400 names to a petition to replace it by Blackstone, which name I took from the Blackstone library, a gift to Hyde Park from T. B. Blackstone. I took my petition to the committee of aldermen concerned and, after two interviews, succeeded in getting Blackstone adopted."

The gift to the Hyde Park library was but one of the many Blackstone philanthropies. When Mrs. Blackstone died on Sept. 30, 1928, she left a will with bequests totaling more than a million dollars to charitable, educational and religious institutions.

At one time the family lived in a mansion on the site of the present Blackstone hotel. A later home was a fine brown stone residence at 1912 Prairie avenue. Mr. Blackstone died in 1900. Mrs. Blackstone lived to be 90 years old.

Mansion's Contents Auctioned.

In 1925, Mrs. Blackstone made a gift of the Prairie avenue home to the Presbyterian Training school with the proviso that it be left as it was until her death. Last January the oriental rugs, the fine paintings, the silken hangings and the inlaid pieces of furniture were sold at auction, bringing but a fraction of their original costs.

Dr. Walker writes that his suggestions for naming University avenue and Harper avenue in preference to less appropriate title, were also accepted by the outhorities.

RUSH 28 MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Paving, Sewers, Water Lines Start in Spring.

All but two of thirty south side projects planned by the board of local improvements were approved at the latest public hearing of the board in the city hall. The property owners of the south side who attended the hearing were opposed to only one improvement—the paving of East 90th street between Commercial and Muskegon avenues. Upon the demands of the property holders, the project was abandoned by the board.

The resurfacing of Eberhart avenue from East 57th to East 55th streets was deferred for one year. Twenty-eight other projects, including eight paving jobs, ten new sewers and ten water supply pipe systems were ordered by the board. All of the improvements are to be paid for by special assessment on the property owners. The tax will be spread immediately and approval of the County court will be sought in order that contracts may be awarded in time for the work to be done early next spring.

Major Project in 15th Ward.

Foremost among the paving jobs ordered is one for a new concrete pavement on four streets in the 15th ward. The work will cost $155,000. The streets to be paved are: South Tripp avenue between 55th and 59th streets; South Kildare and South Kolin avenues between 55th and 57th streets, and 56th street between Tripp and Kostner avenues.

The paving of 55th street between Kostner and Cicero avenues at a cost of $36,700 was another important paving job ordered by the improvement board. The pavement will be concrete and will serve as an extension of the existing through street.

The third largest south side project ordered by the board, to cost approximately $82,000, was the widening of 87th street between St. Lawrence and Ingleside avenues. The roadway is to be widened to 48 feet and will be paved with concrete with the exception of the surface line right of way in the center.

Other Paving Projects.

Other paving jobs approved are as follows:

Paving of Normal avenue between 104th and 105th streets with asphalt at a cost of $18,000.

Paving of South Trumbull avenue between 43d street and Archer avenue with concrete at a cost of $38,500.

Kilpatrick avenue between 55th and 56th streets and 54th street between South Kilpatrick and Cicero avenues with asphalt at a cost of $34,000.

Paving of South Oakley avenue between 87th street and a point 510 feet south with asphalt.

Widening of Lake Park avenue from 55th to 57th streets.

$288,000 for Sewers.

The ten sewer systems ordered by the board will cost $288,000, the largest of which will serve an area with a radius of one-half mile of Nagle avenue and 52d street. The main line of the system, which will cost $88,000, will extend in Nagle avenue between 52d and 54th streets.

The other nine south side systems are as follows: The area between Milligan and Natoma avenues and 56th and 57th streets. Sewer pipes will be laid on all north and south side streets in this district.

The area bounded by Central and Mason avenues, 51st street and Archer avenue.

Normandy avenue between 54th and 55th streets; Rutherford avenue between Archer avenue and 57th street, and Archer avenue between Normandy and Nordica avenues.

Beverly avenue between 87th and 88th streets.

Fifty-seventh street between Crawford and Keeler avenues and Karlov avenue between 58th place and 57th street.

Kackinaw avenue between 108th and 109th streets.

One Hundred Twenty-third street between Loomis and Laflin streets.

Fifty-fifth street between Kenneth and Kostner avenues.

The area between Luna and Lotus avenues, 51st street and Archer avenue.

Water Pipe Systems.

The ten water supply pipe systems ordered by the board will cost approximately $81,000 and are for the following streets:

Anthony avenue between Crandon avenue and 92d street.

Ashland avenue between 115th and 117th streets.

Indiana avenue between 87th and 88th streets.

La Crosse, Lamon and Laporte avenues between 63d and 65th streets.

One Hundred Twenty-ninth place between Halsted street and the city limits and Morgan street between 129th place and Vermont street.

Avenue O between 108th and 109th streets, and 108th street between Avenue H and Ewing avenue.

Lavergne avenue between 63d and 64th streets.

Eighty-sixth street and 86th place between St. Lawrence and Rhodes avenues, and Rhodes avenue between 87th street and a line 50 feet north.

CHURCHES JOIN WITH 'Y' TO AID ROSELAND BOYS

Course to Be Offered for Training of Leaders.

Plans for closer cooperation between the churches of Roseland and the 111th street Y. M. C. A. are announced as a result of a dinner conference last week of representative pastors, community business men and the boys' work committee of the "Y".

THE REV. LOGAN HALL.

Among the joint activities suggested by the Rev. Logan Hall, pastor of the St. Stephen's Methodist Episcopal church, who presided at the meeting, will be the observance of Father and Son week, sending delegates to state older boys' conferences, church boys' clubs in membership of Y. M. C. A., inter church swimming meets, and a leaders' training class for work with boys.

Offer Course in Leadership.

Details of the leaders' training class, as announced by W. W. Gregg, chairman of the boys' work committee of the "Y", include a meeting on the third Tuesday of each month for seven months. The first meeting will be held Oct. 15. All interested churches, he said, may enroll men in this class, which will teach them how better to serve and hold the boys of their community.

A number of churches, according to the officials of the "Y", are planning to use the physical education facilities of the Y. M. C. A. building under their church leadership. This is said to be one of the newest developments in week day church work in the city.

Leaders in Movement.

Among the Roseland men interested in these projects are: the Rev. C. A. Hull, of Greenstone church; the Rev. John G. Grace, pastor of the Roseland Baptist church; the Rev. Eric Ringenhjelm, pastor of Elim Lutheran church; J. C Bovenkerk, Nicholas Persenaire, William Oberg, E. H. Johnson and C. H. Singleton.

New Pastor Takes Pulpit of Morgan Park Church

The Rev. Walker A. Briggs this morning will assume the regular pastorate of the Auburn Park Federated church, 7700 Normal avenue. Since the Rev. Herbert N. Blakeway left the Federated church in May to go to Brimfield, Ill., the Rev. Mr. Briggs has been supplying the pulpit. The Rev. Mr. Briggs, after preaching for thirteen years in Iowa, has spent the last twelve years in Chicago churches. He now leaves the Pilgrim Congregational church in the Logan square district. While there, he was a member of the Logan Square Lions club and served as chaplain of the club for four years.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—I priced tilt-top tables for a sun porch some time ago in the loop, but did not make a purchase because I decided that the price was too high—$2.75—and they were not painted. Later, in a department store in our neighborhood, I was surprised to find these tables painted in two colors (boxed, in knockdown style) at 29 cents each. I purchased three, one in each of the color schemes—red and gold, green and gold, and black and gold. Now, in addition to having one for my own use, I have two Christmas gifts at less than half the cost of the unpainted tables for sale in the loop.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—I bought a tweed coat for my little girl the other day in the 63d-Halsted street shopping district that I consider a real bargain. It was reduced from $9.75 to $2. I also bought ribbon selling elsewhere for 35 cents for 5 cents a yard.

CLUB SOLVES QUILT PROBLEM.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Our club was making quilts, and to get enough "pieces" was a problem. But an apron factory solved it. I got a large sack full of remnants for $1. We made up five pretty quilts, sold them for $10 apiece, and still have material left for several more.

MEETS ATTACK ON SOUTH SIDE TRACTION PLAN

Figures Justify Proposal, Association Head Says.

Hearing that the transit committee of the city council did not favor their plan for solving the immediate transportation problems of the south side because the committee believed the cost would be too great, members of the Property Owners' Traction association this week submitted figures to show it would be less than the committee thought would be spent for the work in that section of the city.

The association says 42½ miles of elevated extensions proposed in its plan would cost $40,700,000, while 48 miles of surface line extensions would cost $8,640,000, making a total of $49,340,000.

In support of the association's arguments, Edward H. Burke, president, said the plans of the transit committee provide for the city paying $100,000,000 for the construction of subways throughout Chicago, while transportation companies will expend $200,000,000 for the construction of elevated and surface line extensions and for equipment.

$110,000,000 for Construction.

Under such a plan, Mr. Burke said, the members of the organization believe that of the $200,000,000 approximately $90,000,000 would be spent for equipment and betterments and $110,000,000 for the actual construction.

Of this amount, the association is asking for $49,340,000, or 44.9 per cent, to be used for the extensions on the south side, Mr. Burke said. This sum, he said, although less than 45 per cent of the total as proposed by the transit committee for all extensions, would take care of more than 50 per cent of the city's present transportation needs.

In support of this, Mr. Burke pointed out that the territory covered by the recommendations of the association is more than 60 per cent of the entire area of Chicago. He said the south side territory has within its confines more than 85 per cent of Chicago's manufacturing interests and more than 45 per cent of the voting population of the city.

Sees Neglect of South Side.

He asserted that the south side has been neglected for years in regard to elevated extensions and that while the residents of this territory, since 1893, have watched every other section of Chicago benefit from extensions of some sort or other, they have received nothing.

"We believe," Mr. Burke said, "that the residents of the south side are thoroughly aroused over its transportation problems and that now while the transit needs of the entire city are under discussion is the time to make a concerted effort to obtain the elevated and surface line extensions which we believe are so necessary to the future development of the south side."

C. of C. Invites Suggestions.

With public hearings soon to be held by the transit committee members of the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce have been urged to send written suggestions in regard to the transportation problems of the various sections of the south side to the organization's headquarters this week.

H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the south side's largest civic group, said residents of the different sections of the territory know their transportation needs better than anyone else and these needs will be presented to the transit committee when the hearings are held.

When the suggestions are received at his office, Mr. Haylett will make a list of the surface line and elevated extensions wanted by the residents of the south side and will send that list to the transit committee. This list will be defended at the hearings by Mr. Haylett and other representatives of the organization.

Mr. Haylett pointed out that unless the needs as listed by the members of the organization is included in the transit ordinance it will not receive the support of the 87 affiliated organizations, which have a total membership of more than 200,000 persons, when the ordinance is placed on the ballot.

SEEK BOND VOTE TO LINK MICHIGAN UNDER RAILWAYS

Federation Confident Proposal Will Win.

The opening of Michigan avenue from 63d street to 66th street will be one of the major improvements upon which the South Side Federation of Improvement Associations will concentrate their efforts of the coming year.

This announcement was made at the first fall meeting of the organization, composed of eighteen improvement groups on the south side, Thursday evening at Brooks hall, 71st street and South Park avenue, by William R. Wendland, president. The meeting was held to outline the activities of the organization for the coming year and to appoint committees.

Project Favored for Years.

Mr. Wendland pointed out that his organization has been interested in the opening of Michigan avenue for several years, but was inactive on the contemplated improvement last year because the lack of funds in the city treasury made it useless to urge the opening of the thoroughfare.

In order to open Michigan avenue it will be necessary to construct a subway under the Pennsylvania and Lake Shore railroad tracks from 63d street to 66th street. Such a subway would open one of Chicago's most popular thoroughfares from Oak street, on the near north side, to the southern city limits.

According to Mr. Wendland, the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad have an agreement with the city that in the event of a subway being constructed under its elevated tracks at this point the cost of the work would be borne by the city and the work done by the Pennsylvania railroad.

Bond Issue Is Necessary.

Mr. Wendland stated that the consummation of the project now awaits only a bond issue for the construction of the subway. He asserted that since the project is not only the concern of the motorists of the south side, but of every automobile owner in the city, who will at some time make use of the through thoroughfare from the north side to the southern city limits, there is hardly a possibility of its defeat at the polls if it is placed on the ballot this fall.

Next Sunday the members will hold a tea at the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive.

CHRIST CHURCH DEDICATES ITS ENLARGED HOME

Noted Churchmen Heard at Week's Services.

Dedication ceremonies of the newly remodeled and enlarged Christ Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Sangamon streets, formerly the Sangamon Street Methodist Episcopal church, in progress seven days, closed Thursday evening. The Rev. Jacob John Hoffman, who has been pastor of the church for more than nine years, was chairman of the committee in charge of the dedication services.

The rebuilt church, which formerly had seating accommodations for 150 persons, now has a capacity of 350, in addition to larger Sunday school facilities. According to the Rev. Mr. Hoffman, the cost of remodeling the church was more than $75,000.

Other added facilities in the new building are kitchens, rooms for primary and adult classes of the Sunday school, club rooms, pastor's study and vestry room.

Dedicatory Sermon Preached.

Although the dedication ceremonies started Sept. 6 when the Fellowship club of the church held a thanksgiving dinner, the church was officially dedicated last Sunday when the Rev. Mr. Hoffman preached the sermon which opened the church. "The Church of Christ" was the subject of his sermon.

The Rev. F. W. Mueller of Philadelphia, superintendent of the Home Missionary and Church Extension society, preached the sermon at the services last Sunday evening. "The World Program of Methodism" was the subject of his sermon.

3. WHEEL WASH. Everything below the fenders is cleaned off by the wheel washers, equipped with pressure guns that shoot a powerful stream of soft, warm water.
4. BODY AND TOP. The Top gets a combination Hosing and Brushing while the body gets a soft warm water spray.
5. MORE WATER. Gallons and gallons, applied with hose and sponge, remove the dirt and dirt only—no possible injury to your paint job.
6. JUST HOT AIR. Plenty of it, under pressure takes the water out of all the cracks (to prevent later streaking) and does the preliminary drying.
7. A CHAMOIS RUB. Applied with enough "elbow grease" to bring out all the beauty of your paint job.
8. THE GLASS JOB. All the Glass-work on the car is cleaned and polished till it looks like it isn't there at all.
9. FINISHERS. These men give the body, nickel work, dashboard, steering wheel, etc., a final touching up—and they're mighty particular.
10. VACUUM INSIDE. A powerful suction nozzle brings the bloom back to your upholstery just before you make your proud exit.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

CATHOLICS GIVE TODAY FOR WORK IN FAR CORNERS

Writer Describes Hardships of Missionaries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

This morning in all churches of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago the annual collection sponsored by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be taken up to aid the needy missions throughout the United States and the world.

THE REV. JAMES J. HORSBURG. [Lawrence Photo.]

The Rev. James J. Horsburg is the diocesan director of the propagation society, and his offices are at 755 North State street. Msgr. William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society, explained at St. John's church, Erie and Clark streets, that $10,000 of the fund collected last year was used by the bishop of Alaska to build small churches for the Eskimos.

A part of the collection was also used for the constructing of a seminary in Mississippi, where young colored boys are educated for the priesthood. These were two of the items Msgr. O'Brien mentioned, and he said they were typical of hundreds of other needs.

Missionary's Life a Hard One.

It may be said that missionaries of all religious denominations suffer untold privation in their fields of endeavor.

The writer saw some of these missionaries at work in the practically unexplored sections of South Africa—in just those portions of the dark continent which are unfrequented by white men.

It was last Palm Sunday that the S. S. Duchess of Atholl of the Canadian Pacific line dropped anchor a mile off the shore at Dar-es-Salaam, which before the war was the capital of German East Africa. Slavery existed there until 1919. The country is now a British protectorate.

Ravages of the war were in evidence as the trip in small boats was made toward the Dar-es-Salaam harbor in the intense tropical sunshine.

Dominicans Hold Service.

Dominican fathers were in charge of the economically kept church at Dar-es-Salaam.

The congregation consisted of native and two colored boys in bare feet assisted as altar boys.

On the altar was a young missionary, Father Joseph Fitzgerald, 32 years old, a Bostonian by birth and a member of the Holy Ghost order. He had been in the missionary field in Africa for three years and his colorless complexion substantiated the fact. Two of his sisters are nuns in a Boston hospital, he told Rt. Rev. P. F. Kelley of Cambridge, Mass., who happened to be a member of the hospital staff and was acquainted with the family.

Father Fitzgerald's mission is located forty miles inland from Dar-es-Salaam, in the heart of the big game country. Illness had forced him at the time of our meeting to procure medical aid at the seashore town.

Finds Mohammedanism Popular.

Father Fitzgerald, who said he was content with his work, stated in a joking manner that the first 100 years in the tropics are the hardest. Mohammedanism and other isms, he said, prove attractive religions to natives in Africa because they are able to select what they wish and discard any preachments that would curb their secret and ofttime obnoxious practices.

HERE'S CHANCE TO PROVE SKILL WITH A CAMERA

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

FADA presents..

VIBRA-CONTROL

..the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.

1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

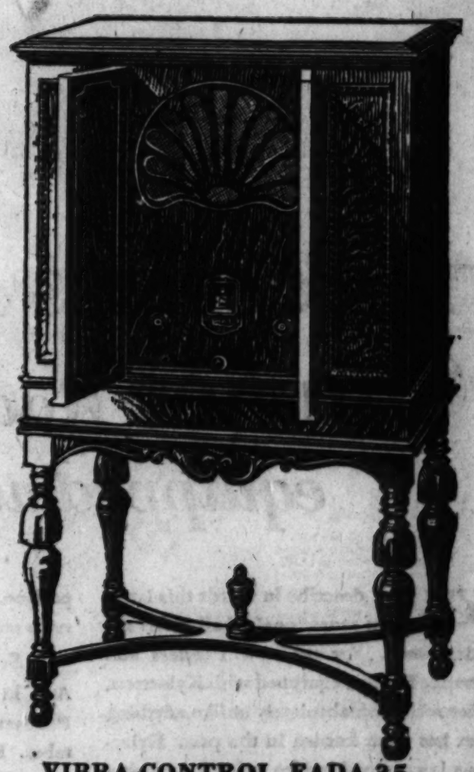
The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.



VIBRA-CONTROL FADA 35

Uses screen grid and new 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification, with Fada Pre-Selector for sharpest selectivity. Fada full-power dynamic speaker. Equipped for phonograph attachment.

HIGHBOY $245 LESS TUBES

Fada radios are priced from $99.50 to $675.

"Because Fada output is necessarily limited, we suggest an immediate hearing of this revolutionary step in musical reproduction at your nearest Fada dealer."

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

SPRAGUE NAMED HEAD OF LEGION FAIR COMMITTEE

Kellogg Appoints Other Noted Leaders.

George M. Kellogg Jr., commander of Cook county council of the American Legion, has announced the names of veterans who will act as the official World's Fair committee, as follows: Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman; Col. Abel Davis; Past National Commander Milton J. Foreman, Past National Commander Howard P. Savage, Past State Commander Ferre Watkins, Past State Commander, Charles W. Schick, State Commander David L. Shillinglaw, Vice National Commander L. A. McGann, Col. James E. White, Edward Clamage, J. F. Novotny, Richard C. Day, Humphrey Sullivan, Robert E. Casey, Dr. Charles Schott, George S. Middleton Jr., A. P. Boyle, William A. Schlupp, Joseph L. De La Cour, Walter T. Quigley, and C. E. Paxton.

An invitation to hold the American Legion national convention in Chicago in 1933 has already been received from officials of the World's Fair.

The delegation from the Stanley F. Sullivan post, No. 746, to the state convention at Rock Island tomorrow and Tuesday, includes: Emmett Grady and Walter Rodie, past commanders; Ed Klein, senior commander; Al Heinan, junior vice commander; Paul Koch and John Reilly. Alternates are Eman Brzak, Edward J. McCauley, Vincent Kane, Tom Burns, William Cook and Henry Seigwart. The post's drum and bugle corps of thirty members and a color guard will accompany the delegates, according to Eman J. Brzak, commander of the post. Representatives of the Sullivan post auxiliary are to march in the convention parade.

The night of Monday, Sept. 30, gives promise of a gala occasion at the Majestice theater when the current bill, "Pleasure Bound," will be a benefit performance for Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, of the American Legion. Tickets are already on sale for the event, either at the box office or from members of the post. The funds thus provided will be used for financing the post's drum and bugle corps on its trip to the national convention at Louisville.

Medille-Tribune post has selected the show, including such stars as Jack Pearl, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley, Shaw and Lee, as just the sort of vehicle to provide an atmosphere on the stage that will be in keeping with that "out front" on the big benefit night. Adjt. E. F. Classen announces that in tickets it will be a matter of first come, first served.

Bernerd Carlin will be the speaker at tomorrow's meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 23, at the Hotel Sherman. His topic will be "South American Advertising and Opportunity." On Monday, Sept. 23, Robert Wood of THE TARSUNS will give the Saga of the 'Untin' Bowler.

Mrs. W. Landeck, president of the Woodlawn unit, No. 175; Past Presidents Mrs. W. V. Muttart, Mrs. George E. Macauley, and Mrs. William A. White and Delegates Mrs. E. J. Donnell, Mrs. Francis Ward, and Mrs. A. Christofferson are departing this morning for the state convention.

Advertising Men's post, No. 23, has chosen the following delegates and alternates to attend the state convention: Delegates, R. C. Merritt, William A. Carroll, William C. Bausch, Walter L. Backer, Howard E. Dyggert, Harold W. Gibbs, E. P. Hayes, A. B. Sawkins, E. K. Smith, J. F. Bowers; alternates, Paul Arenson, S. S. Bolton, Fred Busby, William L. Griffin, Henry Kadler, W. H. Riley, Joseph Teitelman and Edwin Read.

Chicago Elevated post, No. 194, will be represented at the state convention in Rock Island by the following delegates: George R. Apfel, commander; E. A. Imhoff, Richard Dwyer, Arthur E. Kuflas, adjutant; Frederick Cooke, Clarence Birmingham, and A. Ross.

The delegates and alternates were elected at a special meeting of "L" post held last Tuesday evening in the Edison building, at which the wives and sweethearts of members were guests. An extensive program of entertainment and dancing featured the program. The election of delegates was staged in the nature of a horse race, enlivening the proceedings and providing diversion for the guests.

Arrangements are now being made by "L" post to give a Columbus day party and dance in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 12.

On account of the state convention, the regular meeting of Chipilly post, No. 310, has been postponed from tomorrow night to Monday, Sept. 23.

State Commander N. O. Isaacson of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, calls attention to Forget-Me-Not day, Sept. 28, as of vital importance this year due to increasing problems.

"We are," he says, "relying upon the generosity of the people of Chicago both from a contribution standpoint and working standpoint, as we will need thousands of volunteer women to sell forget-me-nots on that day. The problem of the disabled veteran is becoming greater each year due to the increase in the number of those who are now beginning to break because of the effect of the world war, the lack of suitable employment, and many other causes."

At a recent election of officers held by Commonwealth Edison post, V. C. Bacon was elected commander for the coming year. He has been active in Cook county council work and has been senior vice commander for the last year. Officers elected to serve with Commander Bacon are: L. C. ALICE 'MONGST CLEF DWELLERS

ALICE in Musicland and her conductor encounter the Clef Dwellers today. They are shy fellows who are liable to flee into their flats at a moment's notice and make a terrible sound. That's why they must have Major Scale and the Composer on hand to keep them composed and ready to play. When they get used to strangers the Clef Dwellers are well behaved, though the director threatens them with his baton. Pat Barnes announces; the W-G-N Orchestra plays amusing classics. 5:45.

GOLDKETTE CREATIONS FLAVOR SABBATH

JEAN GOLDKETTE

GOLDKETTIC creations are built like symphonies. Their vast depth, their abstract color, their vivid perspective they have in common with the greatest symphonies. But that is not all. The mood is that of youth. The notes are sharply defined, and the patterns of rhythm are symmetrical and crisp. Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra are the leaders in the Dance Music renaissance. 1:30, 2:25 and 11.

Cubs vs. Brooklyn Here Today

QUIN RYAN, foremost among radio sports reporters, unfolds a brisk word movie of the Cubs-Brooklyn encounter. 2:55 brings lineups of the game, and three o'clock says "Play ball." Follow 'em close. Each game counts. Balls, strikes, hits, runs, errors in quick succession make the broadcast almost as vivid as the game from the grand stand. Sponsored by Baskin-Hart, Schaffner and Marx. 2.55.

WOMEN VOTERS PUSH DRIVE FOR 500 MEMBERS

South Shore Group Plans Citizenship Course.

The biggest drive for increased membership in its three year old history is being launched this month by the South Shore League of Women Voters, according to Miss Genevieve Corkwell, first vice president. A "membership drive luncheon" during the last week in September, to be held at some accessible point in the loop, will give the 779 members an opportunity to take stock of themselves and to ponder ways and means of increasing their membership by 500 before the next state convention in November. The South Shore league won the prize for increased membership last year and Mrs. C. A. Geiger, as membership chairman, is anxious to maintain this record through the coming season.

Among the several innovations planned for this year's program is the class in citizenship to follow each of the bi-monthly luncheons of the league. Women locally and nationally prominent in politics will give half-hour talks on various aspects of voting, with emphasis on how to vote rather than for whom to vote, so that every member will have a working knowledge of politics by election time.

Headquarters to Be Moved.

The headquarters of the league will be moved to the Bryn Mawr Community church, 70th and Jeffery avenue, and regular luncheon meetings are to take place there beginning Oct. 10 and every second Thursday thereafter. Details regarding the programs of these meetings will appear in the league yearbook, now on the press.

Officers of the South Shore league elected last spring include: Mrs. W. H. Comstock, 2031 East 72d place, president; Miss Genevieve Corkwell, 7125 Euclid avenue, first vice president; Mrs. C. M. Turton, 2055 East 72d place, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Newton, 2310 East 70th place, recording secretary; Mrs. W. Howard Boyce, 7342 South Shore drive, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. M. Kurtz, 7550 Luella avenue, treasurer.

Directors of the league are Mrs. A. P. Anderson, 1443 East 68th street; Mrs. R. L. Barry, 7647 Coles avenue; Mrs. C. L. Bidwell, 6020 East End avenue; Mrs. F. J. Brewbaker, 1520 East 69th street; Mrs. H. N. Bundesen, 7417 Oglesby avenue; Mrs. L. D. Cook, 8233 Woodlawn avenue; Mrs. C. A. Geiger, 1519 East 68th street; Mrs. Lee Hall, 6853 East End avenue; Mrs. S. L. Katz, 6953 Constance avenue; Mrs. E. H. Long, 7427 Jeffery avenue; Mrs. G. W. Payson, 6916 Clyde avenue; Mrs. R. C. Swartzell, 8000 Evans avenue; Mrs. J. E. Taylor, 2714 East 77th street; Mrs. J. S. Way, 8247 Kenwood avenue.

Chairmen of Committees.

Much of the league's work is delegated to committees at the head of which are: Miss Genevieve Corkwell, program chairman; Mrs. C. M. Turton, publicity chairman; Mrs. C. A. Geiger, organization and membership chairman; Mrs. S. L. Katz, social chairman; Mrs. R. L. Kendall, finance chairman; Mrs. William McCloud, house chairman; Mrs. Chester Greene, music chairman; Mrs. A. P. Anderson, resolutions and revisions chairman; Mrs. J. C. Donno, auditing chairman; Mrs. J. M. Steigely, nominating chairman; Mrs. R. L. Barry, printing chairman; Mrs. S. L. Katz, yearbook chairman; Mrs. A. P. Anderson, dining room chairman; Mrs. G. W. Payson, luncheon chairman.

Delegates to the Cook county council of the League of Women Voters are: For education, Mrs. J. E. Taylor and Mrs. Thomas Stephenson; for Chicago affairs, Mrs. C. Newton and Mrs. G. W. Payson; for Cook county affairs, Mrs. F. J. Brewbaker and Miss Alice Corkwell.

Members of the South Shore league serving on state committees of the Illinois league include: Mrs. Paul Hahn and Mrs. W. H. Collins on the committee for efficiency in government; Mrs. Allen Laird and Mrs. E. E. Hill on the international relations committee, Mrs. C. L. Bidwell and Mrs. J. C. Donno on the child welfare committee, Mrs. W. P. Dalrymple and Mrs. George Foale on the living costs committee, Mrs. H. N. Bundesen and Mrs. Chester Greene on the social hygiene committee, Mrs. J. E. Announcing COLONIAL SCREEN-GRID RADIO

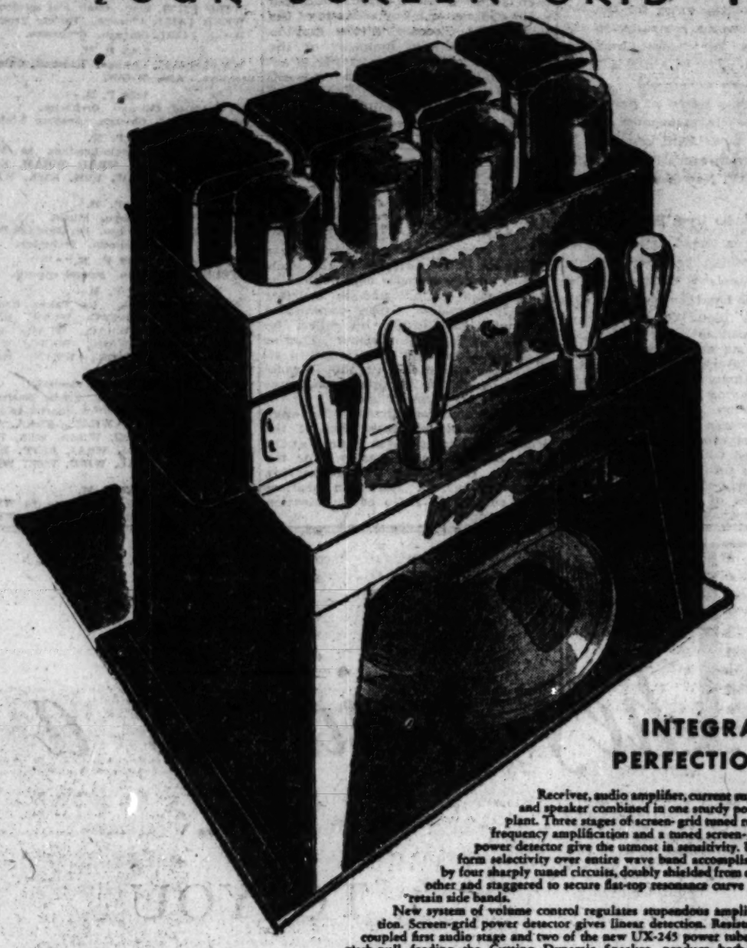
FOUR SCREEN-GRID TUBES ◆ ◆ ◆ 8 TUBES IN ALL



INTEGRAL PERFECTION

Receiver, audio amplifier, current supply and speaker combined in one sturdy power plant. Three stages of screen-grid tuned radio frequency amplification and a tuned screen-grid power detector give the utmost in sensitivity. Uniform selectivity over entire wave band accomplished by four sharply tuned circuits, doubly shielded from each other and staggered to secure flat-top resonance curve and retain side bands.

New system of volume control regulates stupendous amplification. Screen-grid power detector gives linear detection. Resistance coupled first audio stage and two of the new UX-245 power tubes in push-pull feeding the Cutting Dynamic Speaker, produce both the unusual high quality of reproduction and the giant-like volume.

Today... at progressive radio stores everywhere... the public will see and hear and marvel at the NEW Colonial

Today... for the first time... the QUADRUPLED POWER of FOUR Screen-Grid tubes will be demonstrated. Today a new era of reception is at hand... a new meaning of sensitivity, selectivity, TONE... realized.

BROADCASTING TODAY ENTERS ITS NINTH YEAR

It's a Far Cry to Early Programs, However.

Radio broadcasting today, will enter upon its ninth year. It has been such a far cry from the crystal set which was so popular in those early days to the modern electric receiver which represents the latest in engineering ingenuity, that it is hard to realize that only eight years have elapsed since the first radio broadcasting station was licensed.

The first program broadcasting license in this country was granted to station WBZ of the Westinghouse company at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 1921. The second license was issued to WBY, of the Radio Corporation of America, at Rochelle, N. Y. Four days later, the third was granted to WJZ, then operated by the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., and the fourth to KDKA, of the Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, 1921.

To KDKA, however, goes the distinction of being the pioneer station inasmuch as it broadcast programs experimentally long before it or the other stations were granted governmental licenses.

Broadcasting Makes History.

Since that time the history of broadcasting has virtually been the history of our country. Most of the great events which have transpired have been given directly to the people through this medium. In reviewing these occasions one runs across:

Harding-Cox presidential returns announced by Station KDKA, Nov. 4, 1920.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight, July 4, 1921.

Beginning of broadcasting of world series baseball games in October, 1921.

Funeral service of former President Harding, August, 1923.

Blow by Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas," knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo grounds in New York city, Sept. 14, 1923, caught by ringside microphone and heard a thousand miles away.

Last public appearance of former President Wilson at the Armistice day celebration in the Arlington National cemetery, Nov. 11, 1923.

Wilson's Funeral Service.

Funeral services of former President Woodrow Wilson from Washington cathedral, February, 1924.

Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1924.

Program incident to the inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, March 4, 1925.

Reception to Col. Charles Lindbergh in Washington, D. C., June 11, 1927, and in New York two days later, broke all previous hookup records with 50 stations in the net.

On Sunday, July 24, 1927, this country joined with a Canadian broadcast for the first time and again all records were shattered—53 stations simultaneously transmitting a religious program.

During the ceremonies incident to the opening of the International Peace bridge at Buffalo, the voice of the Prince of Wales was broadcast in the United States, Aug. 7, 1927.

In June, 1928, full meetings of the Republican and Democratic national conventions were transmitted from Kansas City and Houston, Texas, respectively. National coverage was maintained by two huge networks for several days.

On March 4, 1929, a complete description of the inaugural of President Herbert Hoover from the time the party left the Hoover home in S street until the parade was completed late in the afternoon, was given the nation by two networks of stations.

COMPILE LIST OF 3,500 WORLD RADIO STATIONS

There are approximately 3,500 radio stations above 6,000 kilocycles in the world at present, according to a complete list just compiled by G. Colby Blackwell of the engineering staff of the radio commission. Of this number there are between 1,500 and 1,600 of such stations, including the numerous experimental transmitters, in the United States. Monthly supplements to the list will be issued.

The information was obtained in the case of the United States from the latest records of the commission, while the foreign stations were recorded from list No. 5 of the frequencies published by the International Bureau of the Telegraph union at Berne, Switzerland.

Radio to Aid Flyers on Washington-Miami Route

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Fifteen powerful radio stations, to be operated for the benefit of airplane pilots, will be constructed by the federal government between Washington and Miami, and Houston, it was stated recently by George D. Barr, assistant airways engineer of the U. S. department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

A GREAT expense in radio advertising—over the chains—is the cost of the telephone lines between the stations. This has been circumvented by some concerns who make phonograph records of a half hour's program, including the music, the announcements and the advertising, and then ship the records to the stations in selected parts of the country. Out of that has come the question as to whether good music, recorded on disks, can be picked up in clear and full toned fashion from the phonograph appartus for transmission into the air; the chain salesmen, who send their music from New York over the telephone wires direct to the transmitters in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, etc., say it cannot. But, no matter——

Now an organization has been formed which will record programs on sound films, like the talking movies. The films will record sound only, not pictures, to be broadcast in English and translated into other languages, and then shipped to radio stations over the world. The officials claim, "Our device makes recordings of programs perfect in tone and quality, eliminating blasts and imperfections which often occur when the natural voice is used through a microphone. The reproducer can be plugged into the station's control amplifier. When the film is started the program will go out on the air. No wires are used in this network. Each film will be released to the broadcasters on certain dates.

THE NEWEST gag among the broadcasters is to announce that Mr. So-and-So had a wad of world series tickets, if the public will only write to him. We recall how we were plagued before the Army and Navy game in 1926, when Messrs. Carrell and Gosden used to announce every night over the air that we had a load of tickets we were anxious to get rid of, and what our home telephone number was, and that it was best to call us about seven in the morning!

THE DEPARTMENT of commerce states that two hundred million radio sets would be required to provide radio facilities for all the people in the world within range of broadcasting stations

That's just fourteen less than there are in our building every forenoon when we're trying to sleep.

A NEW collegiate talkie called "Sophomore" give the radio announcers another rap. Graham MacNamee, in particular, gets the razz, and undeservedly, we think.

A football announcer named McAfee is heard describing the gridiron conflict: "Gee, folks, you ought to be here. . . . Hanford has the ball. . . . No, just a minute—no—yes—Hanford has the ball—no, beg pardon, Colton has the ball—no, it is Hanford's ball after all—well, we all make mistakes, don't we? That's why they put erasers on the end of pencils."

MANY RADIO devotees ask, "How does one break into radio?" and "How did you happen to get into it?"

Well, almost every one breaks in accidentally or casually, and we did, too.

"What did you do before you got into radio?" some will inquire. Well, during our third year at Northwestern, in Evanston, we were contributing quips and verse almost daily to the "Line" on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE, then conducted by the late Bert Leston Taylor—"B. L. T." Our burning ambition was to run a newspaper column, as we were doing on the college paper. We tried to "make the Line" every day, and we darned near did.

We frittered away most of our college hours rehearsing plays, singing in shows, composing sketches for the magazines and in other extra curriculum pursuits. Our frequent contributions to the paper gained us an admission to the city editor, just at the time when we knew there was an opening for a campus correspondent. So for many weeks we turned in yarns of campus engagements and frolics and initiations. Then we braced the city ed. for a part time job as a regular reporter, and for a whole year, while attending classes in the forenoon, we performed all the clumsy and comical duties of the fuzzy cub reporter. Seeking to wander farther afield, we took up football assignments in the fall, under the direction of that grand old gent, Harvey T. Woodruff, who was then sports editor.

And so on—writing book reviews for Burton Rascoe, then literary editor of THE TRIBUNE—jumping into the advertising department to write ads and start the paper's house organ, "The Trib," in 1919—and still going to classes in Evanston. Our year was '20.

One day we happened to review in the paper a small book of comedy written by J. P. McEvoy and illustrated by Frank King. McEvoy was editor of a publishing house turning out greeting cards and junvenile books. He was later to write "The Potters" for this newspaper, and King was just starting "Gasoline Alley." Nowadays you know McEvoy as author of "Show Girl" in Liberty and librettist of the Ziegfeld Follies in recent years.

He offered us a post, writing and editing the thousands of verses and jingles you read on Christmas, birthday and Mother's day greeting cards. Because we had doted for so long on his work as a columnist in the papers, we leaped at the chance. After three years of pleasant association with McEvoy and illuminating contacts in the publishing and theatrical worlds, we left to start a column of humor and verse on the sports pages of another

Chicago morning newspaper. Another year rolled by.

In 1921 and 1922 we were hearing of people who owned these gadgets called radios. A tinkering lad put earphones on our head one summer evening and we heard a likable announcer—we know not who it was—introducing piano selections from a loop department store. We put down the earphones and never listened to a radio set again. We gave radio and its accelerating progress no more thought than we would to astral chemistry.

The summer of 1923 came along. W. K. Hollander, the publicity chief of a local chain of theaters, commissioned us to write a weekly show for the radio, welding together and introducing all of the talent present that week in the local theater—including the complete symphonoy orchestra, an hour long broadcast over Station WMAQ direct from the theater. That, so far as we know, was the first "continuity" written for the air in Chicago. We put as much effort in composing the scenario as we would into the Follies; many of the shows were done entirely in verse. But, after the shows were written, there was nobody to recite them in the rôle of announcer. So Bill spoofed us into the job of announcer.

It fascinated us from the start. The mystery of it, the dramatics, the mail from the listeners and the wide audience it gave to the material of an aspiring columnist, all made us hungry for more. We jumped in, feet first, then. Station WLS was opening with a great fanfare, in the spring of 1924, and we were the announcer. Then came W-G-N, in the same spring, and we moved to the new TRIBUNE station. "Radio Announcer Bares Life Secrets."

Were it not for the fact that it would sound silly, we would remark that there is no more engrossing and engaging business in the world. It is a job in which we revel, in its infinite variety. Every queer activity we ever engaged in we now find helps us in radio—college dramatics and glee club goings-on, newspaper reporting, sports writing, column conducting, book reviewing, children's book publishing and advertising soliciting. In the first three years we never took a day off. There was a time when we handled all the broadcasts from nine in the morning until after midnight. And many's the night we slept in the studio.

It's been alluring work and great fun. It has taken us from coast to coast—to the choicest football games every week in the fall; to the world series ball games; to the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] in Tennessee, in 1925; to a half dozen Kentucky Derbies and Indianapolis auto races; to Calvin Coolidge's office in the White House and the floor of the senate chamber in Washington; to the Republican and Democratic conventions; to ringsides and vaudeville stages and movietone studios.

But this story's getting too long—Toodle-OO!

COUNTESS TO BE N. B. C. ENTRY IN RADIO CONTEST

Seeks "Most Beautiful Artist" Title.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting company, in the radio world's fair "most beautiful feminine radio artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF, New York. She is a soprano.

To Radio from Stage.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera company and other broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months, it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of New Moon, a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries from Many Stations.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from several hundred radio stations in many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the radio world's fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the entire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

U. S. EXPERT TO STUDY AVIATION'S NEED OF RADIO

That the radio commission has taken an active interest in the problem of applying radio communication to aviation is indicated in a letter sent to Gerald C. Gross, commission engineer, just before he sailed, together with Commissioner Charles McK. Saltzman, for The Hague to attend the conference of the international consulting technical committee on radio communications.

The commission directed the engineer to make an inspection of the leading aviation fields in Europe at the close of The Hague parley "for the purpose of making an engineering study of current European pratices with respect to radio communication for aviation."

They paid us a compliment..

[A STATEMENT BY ALFRED H. GREBE...]

Many of These Modern Features Are Exclusive With the New Grebe

Screen Grid Tubes—The use of which results in sensitivity never before attained. Weak signals from distant stations are amplified clearly and distinctly.

New Control for New Power—But in the New Grebe this added power is controlled. Overlapping of stations is eliminated . . . strays are kept out. You get the full tone value made possible by that exclusive Grebe feature—the Equalized Band Pass Filter.

Single Audio Stage Means No Hum—Grebe reception is so strong . . . so pure in tonal characteristics . . . that only a single audio stage is needed. Hum and microphonic disturbances are eliminated.

Large Diameter Speaker . . . an Original Grebe Idea—Full tone range is effectively accomplished by special large diameter electrodynamic speaker . . . so successfully introduced by Grebe.

For Superb Reproduction of Phonograph Records—You can play your favorite phonograph records by a mere turn of the tuning dial. This automatically connects the electric phonograph pick-up with its specially wound transformer.

Cabinets Designed for Lasting Beauty and Acoustic Perfection—The New Grebe is obtainable in a wide choice of selected walnut and mahogany lowboy and highboy models. Furniture of characteristic beauty and dignity . . . and expertly designed for its acoustic properties. In a word, Grebe craftsmanship.

In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.

When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."

At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.

I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

Your Grebe dealer wants you to enjoy Tri-toned* radio. Let him arrange for a 48 hour demonstration in your own home. Telephone him . . . today.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

To that small but discriminating group who are interested in the finer things of life, we present the new Screen-Grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

● ...a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument... a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on previsions . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

A1 SALESMEN

$25.00 PER DAY NOW

$100.00 Per Day Before Xmas

We have been in business about sixty days. The first hundred salesmen who started with us made $25.00 a day immediately. We are just finishing our first hundred thousand sales. Men in our organization have made about a quarter million dollars in profits during the last few weeks. We have purchased and contracted for enormous quantities of merchandise at unheard of low prices in the fastest growing and biggest selling line in America.

Sales in this line are increasing at the rate of $300,000,000.00 per year. In a few years this line has gone from nothing to the sixth largest industry in America. We sell direct to the consumer, and our price is about 30% of the normal retail value. We have two more new lines practically ready for the market. Men who will work can make $25.00 a day from the start. The sales talk and demonstration can be learned in fifteen minutes.

This is the greatest holiday line and Christmas merchandise in the history of selling. For sixty days before Christmas good men should make $100.00 per day.

We want only men of reasonably good appearance and personality. They must be workers and willing to do a full day's work to make $25.00. We prefer married men who own their own homes or who want to. We have no place for the man who is satisfied with $10.00 a day when he can make $25.00 a day. This is a steady, permanent, year round business with an unlimited future. The average woman in the United States uses each year $50.00 worth of the commodity which we sell. She pays on the average of three to five times our price. Every man uses an average of $20.00 worth and pays three to five times our price. Most merchandise of a similar kind is not as attractive as ours, regardless of the price. This business offers unlimited opportunity, and we expect real producers who start with us now to make as high as $25,000.00 to $50,000.00 within the next year. Remember, this business is only for workers. If you are looking for a real opportunity and are willing to pay the price of success, call or write 1488 Pure Oil Bldg., 35 E. Wacker-dr.

A MAN OF Exceptional Mentality

A manufacturer, rated AAA1, operating nationally, has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

We are not so much interested in a salesman as we are in a man with potential executive ability—one who can learn our business and then qualify to direct others. For such a man there is a brilliant future.

This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance, or books—nor is it posters.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that your services are worth $8,000 per year or more.

We can use a man immediately in each of the following territories: Minneapolis, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and one in Chicago.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. J. W. Davis on Monday for appointment, Randolph 4745, or, if you prefer, address H M 183, Tribune.

A NEW DEAL. BEVERLY SHORES.

Most gigantic development in our 31 years of successful realty operations; right on shore of Lake Michigan, handy to Loop by fast electric trains. Will require a few additional salespeople to handle inquiries and show property. This is an opportunity to connect with us and work into permanent, well paying position. You must be ambitious, over 25 years old, and well recommended. Experience will help, but not absolutely necessary, as we train you to succeed the Bartlett way. Apply in person only.

A BRAND NEW DEAL FOR SALES MANAGER ASSISTANTS AND SALESMEN

This deal is located in one of the fastest growing towns in the U. S., with a population of 163,000, having over 76 diversified industrial plants, with a payroll in excess of $43,000,000 per year.

We have acquired a tract of Subdivision Property in one of the choicest locations, on one of the leading arterial highways, 15 minutes' drive from the farthest plant of industrial Flint.

Because of incoming industries bringing additional workers to Flint, creating a demand for homes, we have completed a plan which enables the working man to build and own his home on a budget system of as low as $125.00 down on house and lot, with small monthly payments on balance—no carrying charge.

We have inaugurated a system that eliminates pounding the pavement and ringing door bells. This system is a proven factor in placing real prospects in your lap.

This is not a hit and run deal, and no high pressure or unethical methods will be tolerated.

The men we select must be clean cut, of good character, and above the average—must be high class salesmen with records as producers. Your past performance is your recommendation. For those who can qualify, we have an opportunity to earn big money in the next 60 days.

The salesmen selected will be paid a commission of 9% and allowed a drawing account against their commissions and given 100% co-operation, which means advertising, Newspaper, Circulars, personal contacts, and Part Timers.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY

This is a direct factory connection. Company with AAA-1 rating, operating on national basis selling to merchants only; not real estate, insurance, stocks or bonds, but is high class merchandising; the demand for our product is huge and conditions necessitate more positions than we require that we hire the first man we can get.

Our expansion program definitely includes the employment of a few competent salesmen for territories in Illinois; the remuneration will run large enough to interest the best of competent salesmen.

Our plan includes personal selling in the field by the man selected, as well as through dealers he may appoint in certain sections of his territory. Commission paid salesmen on dealer business, as well as on his own personal sales.

Our business has had a tremendous growth in the last two years, proving the salability of our line; meat and grocery experience will help, but is not essential and we sell neither meat nor groceries.

Prefer men with mechanical refrigeration experience; the successful applicant must be 25 to 50 years old, good educational and commercial background, possess executive ability with references immediately available.

Phone Mr. C. C. Sypher, Monday or Tuesday, Randolph 3656 for appointment.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

While reading the newspaper did you note the vast amount of crime committed upon retail merchants, and still a large portion of them are operating without any protection, as they cannot afford the high rate of separate insurance coverage.

The National Surety Company is now issuing a limited bond covering the retail merchants against such crimes as holdups, safe burglaries, bad checks, dishonest employes, counterfeit money, etc., at a rate within the reach of every merchant.

Call for a personal interview and information. Room 1500, 105 W. Adams-st. See Mr. McNamara.

ARE YOU A SALESMAN?

If you are a salesman not an order taker, if you can qualify as a business man, sell them a proposition of real merit on first call, then we want you. You must be accustomed to earning from $15,000 to $20,000 annually. Nature of business is to appoint distributors throughout the country on an asbestos product backed by bonding company. Before calling and wasting your time and ours determine definitely whether you are big enough for a big proposition. L. B. Hall, Franklin 9600.

ASSISTANT TO SALES MANAGER.

If you are between 35 and 55 years of age, willing to work hard, possess a level head, and above all, are willing to follow instructions, I will make you a proposition that will mean independence to you in a very few years.

I only want a man who has a definite purpose in life—that of wanting to work real hard now so that he may enjoy the evening of his life in real comfort.

THE SHORELINE

SIX AND SEVEN ROOM SUITES

Located at the south end of Jackson Park, directly across from the yacht harbor and facing the lake, The Shoreline commands a view which defies description. Look from the windows and scan the yellow sweeps of the Michigan and Indiana dunes vanishing into the darker northern Illinois shore. At evening a truly wondrous sight is unfolded. Thousands of twinkling lights of the outer drive finally lose themselves in the splendor of the loop. Nearby parks and drives contribute to that exclusiveness so entirely The Shoreline's.

THE BUILDING

The Shoreline is an imposing structure, rising sixteen stories above the street. The architecture is an adaptation of the Spanish and Gothic. Two large outdoor patios, beautifully landscaped, are for the exclusive use of the residents. The building is entered by the lobby, whose design and motif are that of an old Spanish castle. Dark stained beams surmount a ceiling over two stories in height. The walls are of stone and palm finished plaster. The doorman and receiving clerks are always on duty. Swift, noiseless elevators run day and night for your convenience.

THE APARTMENTS

The apartments all have real fireplaces. Cheerful French casement windows allow plenty of light and air to enter. The floors throughout are of pure cork tiles imported from Spain. The baths are of gleaming colored tile. Gas, safe refrigeration is provided free of charge with each suite. Description is not enough for these beautiful and delightful rooms. Inspect our model apartment.

THE SERVICE

Doormen and bell boys are always on duty, making The Shoreline perhaps the best serviced apartment in Chicago. A large garage with all complete facilities is on the immediate premises and is serviced by uniformed attendants.

TRIBUNE TOWER

The TRIBUNE TOWER is the coolest building in Chicago.

All the corridors are open to the outside air.

Every office is an outside office.

Every south, east, and west window has an awning.

The building is kept immaculately clean.

Windows stay up. It is quiet. The air is pure and there are no buildings to cut off light and breeze and radiate heat into your office.

Our offices are cheerful, delightful in summer and comfortable in winter.

If you are interested, let us try to meet your requirements.

USED CARS SACRIFICED AT PRICES BELOW COST

IN STUDEBAKER'S GIGANTIC SALE

We will be moved from our present location very shortly—but we still have 54 good used cars remaining, and these autos must be liquidated immediately regardless of original cost.

Nevertheless, the famous Studebaker Used Car Pledge is in force during this clearance. 5 days' free driving trial goes with every car sold.

CADILLAC SEDAN. A comfortable 7 pass. that will satisfy the most exacting buyer. The finish, upholstery, and tires are in excellent condition. Removal price, $225.

STUDEBAKER COACH. Late model Spec. Six. Tires have been used so little they are not even worn smooth. You'll be pleased by the attractive appearance of this car and you'll be thrilled by its spirited performance. Removal price, $275.

HUDSON BROUGHAM. Was in storage for over one year, so now it's in toptnotch condition. Has many valuable extras. Removal price, $350.

JORDAN SEDAN. A str. 8 finished a beautiful combination of tan and blue. It was traded in at a very favorable price, so we'll pass on the saving to you. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Removal price, $445.

CHRYSLER COACH. Model 70. The motor is A1 throughout and every detail of the appearance is 100%. This is one of the smartest, finest running cars in Chicago. Has 4 whl. brakes and many valuable extras. Removal price, $545.

HUPMOBILE COUPE. A str. 8 4 pass. Only used evenings and Sundays for pleasure driving. Result is it's in marvelous condition today. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumper, spare tire, etc. Removal price, $545.

CHEVROLET SEDAN. 1929 Landau Sedan that is in new car condition. By acting quickly you can get this practically new Chev. at a tremendous saving. Has spotlight, trunk, spare tire, shutter front, etc. Tire is collapsible. Will not remain long at our removal price of $585.

FRANKLIN ROADSTER. Now in new car condition. Extras are driving light, bumper, spare tire, shutter front, etc. The finish is bright and shiny and the expensive upholstery appears unused. Tires have little mileage. Motor has been carefully checked over and today it's in toptnotch condition. Removal price, $595.

LOCOMOBILE SPORT SEDAN. This str. 8 never left Chicago blvds. Originally cost over $6,000, and now it appears in the same condition as when it first left the factory. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Removal price, $545.

OAKLAND SEDAN, 1928, that was driven so little that today it's the last word for styling, performance and attractive appearance. Because of business reasons the former owner told us he wanted a bigger car and that's the reason he traded in this one. If you examine it carefully you'll be forced to admit that it's in toptnotch condition today. Has 4 whl. brakes and very full equipment. Removal price, $625.

PONTIAC COACH, 1929. Driven so little that it is merely broken in. The upholstery, finish, and tires appear positively in the same condition as when this car was first taken out of the showroom. Has a wealth of extra equipment. You can make a big saving at our removal price of $695.

STUDEBAKER COUPE, 1929 Dictator business man's coupe. Very low mileage. Your neighbors would not tell this from a brand new car. Mechanically A1. Has unusually attractive paint job and expensive upholstery, 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Removal price, $695.

VELIE SEDAN. We recommend this as one of our best buys. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, driving light, and many extras. Has a good runnibg motor. Removal price, $250.

WILLYS-KT. CLAIRE SEDAN. Late model with 4 whl. brakes, spare tire, Weatherhouse clock, Motometer, Sweet running motor. Every detail of the interior and exterior appears new. Removal price, $495.

PEERLESS SEDAN, 1927 5 pass. that's an ideal car for the family. The upholstery, finish and tires are in splendid condition. Motor has been carefully checked over; 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. This is a bargain if there ever was one. $695.

BUICK VICTORIA. This late model 4 pass. is priced hundreds of dollars under its real market price. This is a sporty car with a world of power and neo. It's equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Finished in handsome color. Motor is just broken in. This is a sensational value at our removal price of $685.

NASH SEDAN, 1929 series "400." Driven so little that we defy anybody to tell it from a new Nash. Every detail is in marvelous shape. Motor is 100%. Will be sold within 24 hours at our removal sale price of $750.

PIERCE-ARROW SEDAN. Model 80 7 pass. that is a wonderful used car value if there ever was one. Was kept in excellent mechanical condition by the original owner, so now it will give new car satisfaction. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, etc. It will not remain long at our removal sale price of $850.

AUBURN SEDAN. Recent model str. 8, with 4 whl. brakes and a wealth of extra equipment. Has smart, low slung lines and it runs like clockwork. Here is an exceptional car at an inexpensive price, $885.

LINCOLN

(AUTHORIZED DEALERS)

For Your Protection

Lincoln Motor Cars are not sold by yearly models and as a result those who purchase used Lincolns from other than Authorized Lincoln Dealers are sometimes confused as to the year the car was manufactured—and ofttimes they pay the same price for a car that is a year or two older than that which they thought they were buying or could have obtained from an authorized dealer.

In order to protect prospective buyers we have inserted under the Lincoln alphabetical classification of this issue and all daily issues of this paper a listing of serial numbers indicating the year of manufacture, also the prices at which reconditioned and guaranteed Lincolns can be purchased from us.

It is unnecessary to pay more or run the risk of getting an older model if you follow these listed serial numbers, as they cover Lincoln production from 1924 to the present current models.

A very complete selection of all models and body styles is on display in our Used Car Department for your inspection and demonstration.

Money Back Guarantee

In addition to the Standard Lincoln guarantee, all reconditioned Lincolns carry our Money Back Guarantee and may be returned within five days from the date of sale if unsatisfactory for any reason and we will refund the full purchase price.

Liberal Terms Arranged.

SHOW YOUR APARTMENT with TRIBUNE WANT ADS

CHICAGO landlords and rental agents know where to turn to find help in bringing tenants. During the first six months of this year, 58.8% of all their advertising went to the Tribune—more than twice as much as they gave to any other Chicago newspaper. Thousands of experiences accumulated over a long period of years have set their judgment. They want quick, sure results from their advertising, and they use the one newspaper that can bring them these results.

When they gave the Tribune this overwhelming preference, they gave you the strongest testimonial to its effectiveness that you could have. And at the same time, they made productiveness even more certain. Knowing that far the greatest volume of apartment advertising in Chicago is listed in the Tribune, practically everyone looking for an apartment turns immediately to its columns.

Daily or Sunday, Tribune Want Ads Do the Job Alone!

Placing your apartment before these tenant-seekers makes renting comparatively easy. Among them, there are men, women, families watching for every type of flat at every rental. Your own place will appeal to some of them!

Through the Tribune Want Ads, you can flash your apartment before the largest possible audience in the place to which every apartment-hunter turns. The Tribune Want Ad section can tell your story, can make this your most successful season. Call
